Hemmed in by sand, sea and hills, Moses pitched camp before the shallowest spot of the Sea of Reeds. As the night settled there came the loud shouts of the charioteers in hot pursuit of the runaways. Panic that swept them into bitterest invective against Moses as the source of all their troubles roared thru the ranks and the fact that the great leader kept them steady is high tribute to his power. Of course the king was not there, but as the darkness settled and the storm began to lash both sea and shore, the armed forces paused to wait for dawn. Moses held the people in hand, prayed to his friendly Jehovah and watched the waters where the outgoing tide, urged on by the wind that now drove it out with unsual swiftness, left a long tongue of sand thrusting itself away from the shore where he stood. "Forward," he cried, and in the drip of rain, the crash of thunder, the rush of the wind, the movement made but little impression upon the soldiers who were drenched in the fearful storm themselves. Hurrying feet carried Israel swiftly in the wake of the receding water and the grey of the dawn found them beyond the flood and free from the menace of the forts. The soldiers, roused by the receding noises of the camp had followed in the dark to mire their chariots in the wet sand and muddy ooze where the lowered breeze and the returning tide rushed with the leap of a freed beast. They were caught in the swift swirl and swept to death in the waters thru which Israel had gone. Little wonder that it has thrilled the imagination ever since or that it brought a burst of song from Miriam's lips.

THE PERPETUAL PASSAGE

There is always a way through the sea for the follower of God. There may be storm and pursuit, but there is perpetual passage. Ignorance must march toward its promised land of knowledge thru many a weary wilderness with the result of past mistakes in hot pursuit. Superstition, fear, bigotry, sin are all in full career after the form, but there is an escape in sight. And that day of deliverance is made a perpetual memorial in the life and a new song is upon the lips and freedom to follow God and build new is just beyond the hour when all seemed lost. Sorrow, heartache, tears, misunderstanding seem impossible barriers—there is perpetual passage thru every one.

"DOC" AND "SAM."

By F. F. CORLISS

"If a man die, shall he live again?"

This momentous question of Job's has been answered by thousands of the world's greatest scholars and thinkers. Some have replied in the affirmative and many in the negative, but no one has given an answer that satisfies the head and gratifies the heart. No substantial evidence has been produced that would be accepted as proof in a court of justice. Now, for plain citizens like you and me, Doc (who are of no consequence save to ourselves), to try and illumine the minds of others on a subject so darkly hidden, may seem rather presumptuous, no matter how modest we may feel about it."

"That little word if, Sam, considering its diminutive appearance, is the biggest and hardest word in the language to overcome. It contains a double doubt. The first one is, does he die or don't he die; possibly it is just a seeming, transition, a passing from a lower state to a higher; possibly it is a temporary sleep and then an awakening. The second douht is, assuming that he is dead, will he live again or indefinitely remain dead?"

"Well, Doc, I am going to eliminate your little if and your double doubt with a flat statement as a postulate, which is, that man don't die in the sense tat we define death. And I want you to hold me to the text and make me prove it or admit defeat.

"So I start with the truth to support me that "in God we live and move and have our being." That out of God we can not go, can not be, can not do. That God is life; the whole of life, the life of the universe, the soul of it. In man, God is the life, the soul, the mind and the heart of him. Man is a finite and inseparable part of the Infinite life, the only life, the whole of life, which life is self-existent, deathless, immortal. On this planet God's highest expression of noble attributes have become manifest in millions of individualized parts called human beings and it becomes self-evident that as every whole is composed of parts, if you can by death annihilate millions of its parts you can destroy the whole.

"Now to annihilate the Creator by taking the life of His most useful, most highly developed self conscious creations, in whom He lives, through whom He works to achieve His grandest purpose, is something that is simply unthinkable—impossible.

Now, so long as the real man does not die, it is evident that he still lives, somehow, somewhere, though his physical body, his temporary housing is resolvable into its elements."

"Look here, Sam; it seems to me this question hinges on the definition of man. You and I are talking about the real man, that elusive thing within us that gives us ideas, makes us think, talk, walk and do useful work. We are discussing the spirit of the thing we call man, knowing full well that the spirit of a thing is the thing itself, regardless of what may be its outward material covering.

"In the days of Job, Sam, man knew very little about man, God or the universe. They did talk God as being a Spirit, but still they made Him anthropic, localized Him; made Him walk in the Garden.

"But they knew nothing about His immanence, and they thought that the earth was flat. Their ideas on the fundamentals of existing things were vague, hazy and illogical. Of man as science knows him today, they were grossly ignorant. They knew the physical man when they saw him on the street or in the market place, at work or play, but their knowledge of his physiological make-up was of the most meagre kind. They didn't know anything about appendicitis, infantile paralysis, aphasia or brain storms. Surgery had not become fashionable at that time. They knew nothing about hypnotism, etherization or the x-ray. They never dreamed that men had within him the potentials that would ever enable him to fly in the air and float under the see or send his voice across the continent without wires."

"What you say, Doc, is quite true. It is about the way history puts it. There is an awful gulf between Job's definition of man as he knew him and the definition that science gives of him today. There is no doubt about Job's belief in an immortal life, because that belief is ingrained in the hearts of men; that belief was born in the minds of men and is found in the lowest, most illiterate tribes of men. But in the time of Job they believed in a resurreected physical life, and even buried with the so-called dead their tools, trinkets and keepsakes that they might be handy when the awakeing call should come. So replying to Job's question from the view-point of his definition of man, I say he will live again, but more accurately speaking, keep right on living, but he will have a new body. There would be no object in passing out or dying if we had to continue life's journey in the same old worn out vehicle of a resurrected body. Now if you have found any flaws in my argument, Doc, just kindly point them out."

"Well ,Sam, you speak rather plainly and positively, just like you had some advance information. I thought you would try to give me a little dig, you're so fond of fun, but this is no funny subject, Doc.

"Philosophers tell us that we can not learn, can not know anything only as we study it by contrasts, opposites and its relation to other things. Hense it follows that hefore we can know what a man is and his destiny, we must learn what his position is in the universe—how he is related to it and to his Creator.

"Man can not reason only from what he knows, but reason has been given him for a purpose—and it is not a mere accident—and it has enabled him to go very far afield and to know things that he could not see or taste or touch.

"Man is hoth an effect and a creation, and man has learned by much observation, research and experiment to trace things back to their source. He has found that the same cause under the same conditions always produces the same effect. He has found that our sun is composed of the same elements as the earth and that man is likewise chemically composed in his physical heing and that back of the sun and stars there is one creative cause for all of us. He has found that there is one unbroken bond that relates self-conscious mind in man to the universal consciousness, the universal life and intelligence of his Creator.

"We never find any attributes in a creature or a creation but what preexisted in the mind of their creator. We find in man that the first law of his nature is his life's self-preservation here and now and that his instinctive desire to perpetuate his life beyond the grave is a divine inheritance.

In man we find wisdom, power, love, mercy, kindness and many other good qualities and as they exist in man we know that they first existed in our Maker. Thus we learn the nature of our Creator by discovering Him in all His manifest creations.

"God rules the universe by virtue of His immutable laws. They are made in justice to all men and for the benefit of all men. He has endowed all men of all colors, of all nations with His own eternal life without partiality. He has given them all freedom of the will, given us all laws by which to govern our lives, our health, happiness, our social and financial success, our technical and industrial achievements. He has raised the aggregate minds of humanity to a high state of intelligence and marvelous accomplishments; has taught man how to find unseen worlds and compute their distance; how to find microscopic life, the deadly microbe and toxic bacillus and how to find their antidotes. He has evolved man from a low estate and given him dominion over all the earth and all His creations and potency to command the wealth of nature's vast resources. He had made man the prime factor in the development of His evolutionary process in the higher altitudes of mind and spirit. Now we look upon our Maker as the perfection of love and justice.

"If we find at the end of three score years and ten that He has lured us on to toil and struggle with high hopes of eventually reaching a state of eternal bliss; that He has used us as a means to an end for the perfection of some impersonal far-off Divine event and then annihilated us, can we then call Him a God of loves and justice?

"God has never made anything that has been found to be useless. Everything has a worth, a purpose, a destination to reach. If it has no utility value, it has a value for color, symmetry, harmony or beauty.

"Man has been endowed with the faculty for introspection, for analysis of things existing. Taught to reason, taught how to find what life is and its meaning, just as he has been taught to search for the Divine intent and to follow it; just as he has been taught how to explode the atom and liquify the air, so he has been taught that the self-conscious life in man never ends and that death is but a new beginning—a passing to a life that is higher, better.

"Let worry about your future, Doc, be the least of your troubles."

"I hope you are right, Sam. I have no reliable data with which to dispute you and I should hate to spoil your argument if I could."

MORTGAGEES' SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
STOCK FARM

Under a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Wayman C. Beckman to the undersigned, dated January 13, 1925, and recorded in Liber No. 90, folio 126, etc., Mortgage Records of Garrett county, we were authorized to make sale of the property mentioned and described in said mortgage in case default should be made in any of the conditions thereof, and default having been made in the payment of both principal and interest at the time stipulated, we hereby give notice that on the 7th Day of August, 1926,

at the hour of 2:00 o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, we will offer and sell at public auction all of the following pieces or parcels of land:

(1). A tract of land called "Dundas," containing 100 acres, more or less, and fully described in a deed from James M. Schley et ux., to one Henry Beckman, dated March 30, 1857, and recorded in Liber No. 16, folio 397, Allegany County Records.

(2). A tract of land called "Mason's Beginning," containing 100 acres, and fully described in a deed from J. McClure Mason and wife to the said Henry Beckman, dated November 30, 1859, and recorded in Liber No. 18, folio 530, Allegany County Records.

(3). Military Lot No. 1505, which was conveyed to the said Henry Beckman by Edward Hoye, substituted trustee, by deed dated July 5th, 1890, and recorded in Liber No. 16, folio 116, Land Records of Garrett County.

Saving and excepting from the above so much of the land so described as was conveyed by the said Henry Beckman to one John A. Fulmer by deed dated December 23, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 49, folio 161, Garrett County Records; the part so conveyed containing about 33¼ acres.

The above pieces or parcels of land are the same as acquired by the said Wayman Beckman under the last will and testament of Henry Beckman, recorded in Wills Liber "B," folio 452, office of Register of Wills of Garrett County.

(4). Part of a tract of land called "Woodville," containing 76 acres, conveyed to the said Wayman C. Beckman by Josiah T. Beckman, by deed dated May 31, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 47, folio 213, Land Records of Garrett County.

The above four parcels of land compose one farm, containing about 292¾ acres; is located in the famous "Pleasant Valley," about five miles South of Oakland; more than half of it is cleared and in cultivation or pasture; is improved by a good dwelling house, barn and other necessary buildings; also a good orchard; is but a short distance from the point known as "Allegany Heights," one of the most beautiful and extensive views on Backbone Mountain.

This farm is well watered and would make a most excellent sheep or stock farm.

TERMS OF SALE—As provided by mortgage, cash; but anyone interested not prepared to pay cash, can make satisfactory terms with the undersigned.

Crellin, Md., March 23, 1926.*

This is to announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Garrett County, subject to the result of the primary election. I respectfully solicit the votes of all Republicans interested in a clean administration and the enforcement of the law, and if nominated and elected I promise to give my best endeavors to the conduct of the office, both in the administration of the criminal laws and in performing routine work, such as service and return of papers coming into my hands.

FRANK BLAKE.
Oakland, April 7, 1926*

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County, Md.:

After having consulted with a number of the tax payers and voters thruout the county, I have decided to announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of Garrett county, subject to the result of the Republican primary election. I was honored with this office by the people of Garrett county seven years ago and feel that my record as sheriff is good, and by reason of the experience I obtained at that time I feel that I am well qualified to again serve the people, and I respectfully solicit your support at the primary.

ROY O. WINTERS.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

The Great Seal of Maryland

AMERICANS ARE REALISTS

This is the only country in the world, writes George B. Lockwood in the National Republic, in which government undertakes to interfere with the forms of government pervailing within political parties. In view of the fact that the acts of organized parties must be subjected to the decisions of the public will at the polls, there is no legitimate reason for such laws as those which impose the necessity of a given method of selecting candidates or declaring principles. The convention system, properly safeguarded to insure the right of all those actually adhering to a political party to take part in the selection of its agents, is the representative republican plan of party organization. Under the direct primary system a political party may be, and sometimes is, seized and governed by elements out of harmony with its professed prineiples. Such a system makes responsible government impossible. It makes of political parties only agencies of individual ambition; mere office-brokerage concerns. It has wellnigh expelled courage from public life. It has exalted the time-server, the politician who thinks more of the momentary wishes of his constituents, however unreasonable, than of the welfare of his country. It is making political parties thoroughly unrepresentative of anything but the appetite for office, the lust for power.

The advocacy of the direct primary may seem to the short-sighted demagogue politician a form of flattery of the people which will promote the fortunes of those who engage in it. But the American people have a genius for government derived from the fact that they are realists. A theory, however alluring, which works more poorly than a less attractive theory which produces far better results, will not permanently hold the public allegiance. The demand is great and is growing for a return to representative government in political parties and in government; in other words, a return to the traditional American form of party and of national government.

The convention system of party government, when restored, of course should be aptly safeguarded. The abuses of that system in an earlier day are well remembered. But in proportion to the rapidity of return by the American people to the principles of representative republican government, in proportion to their abandonment of the discredited European theory of pure "democracy," the American people will be on the way to stability and progress in national, state and local political and public affairs.

AMERICAN LABOR AND RUSSIA.

The American Federation of Labor continues to show sound judgment in its stand against any official intimacy between American and Soviet Russia. The executive council of the federation recently elaborated its stand by issuing a warning against the sending of a mission to Soviet Russia in the name of American labor and attacking certain American organizations which are believed to be communistic in their purposes.

Some labor men and others interested in Russia having been planning the sending of some sort of commission to Russia, the purpose of such a commission being to make an "investigation of the social, economic, industrial and political conditions" in Russia and other nations to be visited. There has been some suspicion, however, that the commissions has a deeper purpose that this.

"We seriously doubt the good faith of such a self-constituted commission," the executive department of the Federation said. "We cannot believe any representative or officer of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will accept a membership on such a commission." Mention was also made of organizations "assuming to speak for labor, in the name of labor and which the executive council believes, are communistic in make-up, in principle and in purpose."

It is indeed fortunate that the leaders in the American Federation of Labor realize the menace to all Americans, of the insidious spread of communistic propaganda. No class of Americans has more to lose from a communistic assault in the United States than the working people themselves. American workingmen are steadily advancing in every way. The contrast with the working people of Russia is indeed vivid and striking. In case of a communistic victory in the United States, most of the rich, realizing the approach of the storm, would doubtless get away. It would be those who have to remain behind who would really suffer.

GOOD NATURE IN MOTORING.

Now that the number of automobiles on the streets has doubled within a few years, the jams at many congested spots have become very irritating to many people who use cars. Some folks of an impatient disposition seem to love all self-control. Their lack of a spirit of good-natured acceptance of these conditions causes many accidents.

If they fall in behind a line of cars on some highway they cannot wait for a good chance to pass ahead, but they will do so on curves or at various unsuitable places. Then some car unexpectedly appears and there may be a smash. People are not fit to drive automobiles through crowded towns and on congested roads unless they have a certain calm spirit of philosophy that is willing to wait for its proper turn, and which is not irritated by delays of some seconds or minutes. The old proverb said that the "patient waiter is no loser," and it never applied more closely to anything than to automobile driving.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

The Baltimore and Washington Epworth League Institute closed Sunday night with a very impressive candle-light service. This institute, as well as the Pittsburgh area institute, held the preceding week, were marked with the most gratifying success. The young men and women paid close attention to the work of the gathering and all went away benefitted.

Both the School of Missions and the School of Theology began their sessions Monday evening and will continue until the first part of next month.

It is indeed gratifying to all concerned to note the splendid success and encouraging outlook for the future when one can see so many young men and women gathered in these various conventions preparing for and actually taking up the Christian work in all its different avenues.

A number of the deaconesses are here in their Rest Home where they will spend a season of vacation the better to carry on after their return to their various fields of labor.

There have been many new and strange people visit the Park this week or a month recently, all of whom carry away with them good impressions of the place and of the hospitality extended them by our people.

The re-roofing of the large amphitheatre is now under way. The building, or rather the roof, has been allowed to get into such condition that even a shower rendered it unichabitable.

The Park management has had placards printed and posted advertising boating and bathing facilities at the lake. Special hours during the week-days are set in the schedule.

At the School of Missions Tuesday a message was read from Mrs. S. W. Davis, of Jamestown, N. Y., extending her felicitations for the success of the school. Mrs. Davis has been critically ill for several weeks, hence her absence from the Park this year—probably the first time since the Park was founded.

BITTINGER

Notwithstanding the heavy rainfall which visited this section of the county on Friday evening of last week, resulting in a wet and muddy condition of the earth, the Woodmen of the World picnic, which was held in Broadwater's grove at this place on Saturday, was a pronounced success in every respect. It is estimated that more than a thousand people, from nearby and distant points, were in attendance and spent the entire day and evening at the grove. The temperature was just right and with this condition, coupled with clear skies and a pleasant breeze, combined to make it an almost ideal picnic day.

The public iniatory ceremony, performed by splendidly uniformed members of the fraternity from Washington, D. C., was most impressive and was witnessed and enjoyed by many people. The addresses by visiting speakers were well received. The ice cream and pop man was on the move all day and many good things were in demand and readily supplied by the men and women in charge of the refreshment stands.

Perhaps the next most novel feature of the day was the great squad of smiling political candidates who spent the day shaking hands and striving to win their way into the esteemed confidence of the voters.

So far as can be learned, the day was a great success, both financially and socially.

News came to this village last Sunday afternoon of the burning of the barn on the Marshall Lohr farm on Keyser's Ridge, north of Bittinger, the fire occurring Saturday night.

Miss Leonora Wiley returned last Thursday from a few days' visit with her sister, at Marathon, N. Y. She was accompanied upon her return by her sister, Mrs. David Messersmith, and little daughter, and her brother, Thomas W. Wiley, of Marathon.

As a result of the heavy rainfall of Friday evening the Casselman River valley from Jennings northward was almost entirely inundated. Meadows and grain fields were badly damaged and the public road was so flooded as to be impassable for several hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Beitzell are the proud parents of a young son, Edwin now wears a smile, a long-tailed coat and insists upon being addressed as "Daddy."

The roofs of buildings in this village, damaged by the storm of Sunday afternoon, the 18th inst., are being repaired as rapidly as possible. Window panes, broken out by the same storm, are being replaced.

Mr. Paul Hook returned to Cumberland Sunday evening after spending the week-end here with his parents.

Miss Pearl Frazee has gone to Uniontown, where she will remain for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Lloyd Diehl, of Hazelton, W. Va., spent Saturday evening and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Frazee and family.

Miss Ruth Friend has returned to her home after having spent several weeks with friends at Keeler Glade.

Many of the people from this place attended the box social at Fearer last Saturday evening.

DEER PARK

Mrs. Jennie Freeland has been ill for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lipscomb and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lipscomb, of Shaffer, W. Va., spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Reis.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Sollars and two children, Mrs. Kenneth George and daughter, Mrs. E. S. Bittinger and children, Rev. D. B. Brown and Miss Eunice George went to Swallow Falls on Thursday where they spent an enjoyable afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shinholt and family, of Cumberland, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ashful King.

Mr. Frank DeWitt, Mrs. Jeffreys and daughter and Miss Helen DeWitt, of Altamont, were in our village on [illegible]

There will be an all-day meeting at Thayerville on Sunday, August 1. Sermons in the morning, afternoon and night. All are invited.

Mr. Rideour, of Frederick, was in our community in the interest of an Ohio publishing company a few days ago.

Mrs. A. R. Arnold and daughter Geraldine, of Lancaster, Pa., are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Hugh Calderwood has returned from Washington, D. C., where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Parker Rodeheaver.

Mrs. Frank Clary and children spent Wednesday of last week with Mrs. Ashful King, near town.

Miss Anna Clary, of Mountain Lake Park, Mrs. Alma Bell and daughter Vivian, of Grafton, and Mr. William Clary, of Florida, visited their sister, Mrs. Frank Thrasher, in Deer Park, last week.

Miss Josephine Droege, of New York, and Mr. Albert Droege, of New Haven, Conn., are at Fairview Cottage for a season.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Junkins and children, of Piedmont, visited at the former's home here this week-end.

Miss Thelma Harvey, of Cumberland, was here on Sunday.

During the month of August the Deer Park Hotel has the following conventions booked: The Rotary Clubs of the Tri-States (Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland), August 20, when two hundred or more Rotarians will be present; the Allegheny Gas Company's employes, Aug. 22, 75 persons; the Standard Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., August 25-0, 75 persons.

The Deer Park Hotel is a suitable place for such gatherings. The heads of the above named organizations have made arrangements for these functions, which promise to be enjoyable.

Mr. Dorsey Jeffreys, of Cumberland, visited Mrs. Jeffreys and daughter at this place, who are spending a few months with Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

Take Them To The Dentist

Dentists throughout Maryland will be kept busy between now and the day when the schools open in the fall, getting the teeth of the pro-pective first-graders in good shape, if the advice of the doctors who have had charge of the child health examinations that have been held by the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, is followed.

According to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, the Bureau of Child Hygiene is making a special effort during the summer to examine as many as possible of the children who will enter school this fall. At the examination—child health conferences, as they are called—the teeth, tonsils, eyes, ears and general physical condition of the four, five and six year olds are inspected. A report of the examination is sent to the family physician and the parents are advised to consult him if the children need any attention. If a visit to the dentist is recommended, the parents are urged to have the childrens' teeth attended to during the summer, and not to wait until after the schools open in the fall to have it done.

If the children have not been successfull vaccinated against smallpox, attention is directed to the State law which requires every child to be vaccinated before it can be admitted to the schools.

The health inspections of the prospective first-graders were begun in May by the Bureau of Child Hygiene, State Department of Education, and will be continued throughout the summer. During June, Child Health Conferences were held in seventeen out of the twenty-three counties, and altogether 1842 children were examined. Each conference was held at some conveniently located center, and in a number of instances the school busses carried the youngsters and their mothers to and from the conferences.

Of the 1842 children examined, 204 were under four years old; 1363 between four and seven, and 75 were eight years old and over. Over half of the children—988—had one or more decayed teeth or teeth otherwise needing attention. Practically one out of every five—that is 343 of the total—yas underweight, and needed building up, and one out of every three—695—had unhealthy tonsils or adenoids. Only one out of every three had been vaccinated against smallpox, and 1150 will have to be vaccinated before they can be admitted to school.

"Mothers and fathers can be depended upon to provide new suits and dresses and shoes for the little first-graders," Dr. H. M. Knox, Jr., chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene said, "but it is vastly more important to get them ready from the standpoint of health. According to the estimates of the State Department of Education, 16,000 [illegible] this year and be eligible for admission to the schools. Counting the children examined in May, and those brought to the conferences in June, over 2,000 have been examined so far. We hope to reach a great many more before the summer is over."

A young man named Male, residing near Deer Park, for whose arrest a warrant was issued several months ago upon information furnished by a Deer Park resident, charging him with reckless driving, was picked up on the street in Oakland last Saturday by Constable Shartzer and taken before Justice Gonder, who held the traverser for the action of the December Term of Court.

At the service on Sunday morning in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Dr. Jacob Yutzy, a native Garrett countian, preached to a large and highly appreciative audience. This was Dr. Yutzy's first appearance in a home pulpit in forty-seven years, at which time he preached in the old Lutheran church then located on Sixth street. In the congregation which greeted Dr. Yutzy Sunday morning were several who remembered the occasion of 47 years ago. There were others present who associated with the speaker when they were schoolmates more than 76 years ago.

In making change for patrons in the purchase of tickets and in Baltimore and Ohio dining cars, ticket agents and stewards are giving out "Stone Mountain Memorial" half-dollars at their face value, as souvenirs. These special coins were purchased from the Stone Mountain Memorial Association at one dollar apiece, by the Baltimore and Ohio Company for distribution among its patrons.

Mrs. Harvey B. Reppetto and two children, of Freemont, Ohio, are here visiting Miss Grace Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Malette, of Pittsburgh, Pa., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kahl at their home near town.

Miss Lena Founds, of Moundsville, West Va., who spent two weeks here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Butt, has returned to her home.

Mrs. Jane Wolfe returned to her home in Oakland on Sunday after having spent a week or more visiting friends and relatives near Uniontown, Pa.

Congressman S. A. Kendall, of Meyersdale, motored to Oakland yesterday and from here went to Crellin where he visited his sister, Mrs. Baker and her daughter during the day.

Evangelist Arthur C. Zepp, of Mt. Lake Park, returned Monday night after a month's absence. He had been a co-worker with Paul Rader in Chicago area. Mr. Rader is known to radio fans as a vigorous speaker over WHT, Chicago.

The following out of town guests are registered at Duffy's Mountain View Hotel on the hill in South Oakland: Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Snyder, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris, Cumberland; S. J. Verogh and family, Allegany; E. Ross, Pittsburgh; Mrs. and Miss Huge, Pittsburgh.

Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Funk and their little daughter, of Morgantown, W. Va., arrived in Oakland Tuesday expecting to remain here a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. John O. Thayer and then motor down into North Carolina for a visit to other relatives and friends.

Mr. A. R. Martin left Oakland on Friday last, motoring to Canton, O., and from thence to Akron, Ohio. He returned home Saturday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Martin and their daughter Maxine who had spent two or three weeks visiting relatives in Akron and other points in Ohio.

Mr. George A. Porter, of Shaffer, West Va., spent the week-end in Oakland with his daughters, Mrs. Paul B. Naylor and Miss Mary Porter. Miss Porter, who recently came to Oakland from Honolulu expects to return to the mid-Pacific city about September first where she is engaged in teaching.

SOLUTION OF LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

Mr. G. J. Slabach, of Akron, Ohio, who is visiting relatives in this section of the county, was a caller at The Republican office yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Cox and daughter, Mary Flo have returned to their home in Wheeling, W. Va., after having visited Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Butt in Oakland for several days.

Mr. W. C. Jones, formerly of Deer Park, who has been here on a visit to his son, Mr. E. R. Jones, for some time, has gone to Fairchance, Pa., for a short stay with relatives.

The drill team of the D. O. K. K. lodge will hold a festival in the City Park, Terra Alta, W. Va., Saturday evening, July 31, 1926. The committee in charge promise good music and good eats. All invited.

The Pastor's Aid Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church will conduct a food sale at the store of F. A. Smouse in Oakland, Saturday, August 7th, during the afternoon and early hours of the evening. The patronage of the public is solicited.

Misses Lucy Trickett, Esperance Ashby and Coral McRobie left Oakland Monday morning for Camp Royal, Md., where they will receive training in Sunday school work during the next ten days or two weeks. Rev. Bailey, of Mt. Lake Park, accompanied the party, the trip being made in the latter's automobile.

The annual premium list and catalogue of the Garrett County Fair Association will be completed this week and ready for distribution during the early days of next week. The catalogue comprises 124 pages and cover and presents facts concerning the exhibit to be held the last days of September and on October 1st.

Messrs. Ernest Ray Jones and Gilmor S. Hamill, trustees, appointed by the Court, advertise today the Reuben Enlow farm, located on the Hoyes-Friendsville road, at public auction, the sale to occur in front of the Court House in Oakland on Friday, August 20th. The property is composed of 100 acres and is an excellent farm.

The Republican enjoyed a visit from Capt. Charles E. Hoye, formerly of Garrett county, now located in Los Angeles, Cal., after serving for 25 years as soldier and educator in the Philippines. Capt. and Mrs. Hoye are in Garrett county for a brief visit before going on to New York and from thence back to the Pacific Coast.

At the home of Mrs. Anna Smouse on Second street, in Oakland, at a party given in honor of her daughter, Miss Ellen Smouse, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. James Everett Thompson, of Wierton, West Va., was announced, the wedding to occur at the Smouse home on August 10th. The bride-elect had as her guests sixteen young matrons and misses. Cards were the diversion.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bolden and Mrs. Anna Spedden Keyes, the latter of Washington, D. C., arrived in Oakland from a year's trip through the west and British Columbia. After remaining here a day or two Mr. and Mrs. Bolden will go to their former home at Sutton, W. Va. Mrs. Keyes remains here visiting her niece, Mrs. Ernest Paugh.

The Board of Election Supervisors of Garrett county, acceding to the desire of the people residing in the extreme southern section of the county and the necessity in order to afford facilities for voting in that part of the county, have established a voting precinct in the town of Kempton as will be noted by referring to the notice published in The Republican today creating the new voting place.

Mr. John F. Nydegger, of Elkins, West Va. ,was in Oakland a few hours on Tuesday, having arrived here that morning from Orlando, Florida, in which city his elder brother, William D. Nydegger, aged 67 years, died on Sunday morning. His remains arrived in Oakland today and were taken to the Chisholm-Nydegger cemetery, near Gorman, for interment. Mr. Nydegger was ill five years. Besides his widow he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Birdie White ,and by the following sons: Lester R. and Wm. D. Nydegger, Jr., Orlando; A Carlton, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Walter E., Johnstown, Pa. ,and Earl, of New York City. He is also survived by two brothers, Dr. J. A. Nydegger, of Baltimore, and John F. Nydegger, of Elkins, W. Va. The deceased was engaged in the drug business in Oakland many years ago.

Mr. Henry Kamp, of Accident District, presents his name for the consideration of the Republican voters at the primary election for the nomination for Judge of the Orphans' Court. Judge Kemp is now a member of that court and has been for several years past. His experience as such has made him acquainted with the duties of the office which has its reflection in the business-like transaction of affairs brought before the Court for determination.

In the political announcement column of today's Republican will be noticed the card of Mr. Jos. W. Feather, of near Oakland, who seeks the Democratic nomination for the Orphans' Court bench. Mr. Feather is a farmer by occupation, residing east of town. His genialty is a splendid asset; his qualifications for the position are excellent. Whether or not it will require a primary election to place his name on the ballot of his party remains to be seen, but should other candidates aspire to the bench Mr. Feather will probably win over his opponents in the preliminary contest.

LOCH LYNN

Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, of Frederick, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Fouch in the Park.

The many friends of Mrs. E. E. Kesner here surprised her with a party in honor of her fiftieth anniversary at her home on last Tuesday night.

During the electric storm on last Friday afternoon the manse of the United Brethren church was struck by lightning, the bolt entering via the chimney. Considerable damage was done the property. Rev. F. L. Fultz, who was in one of the rooms of the building when the lightning struck, suffered greatly from shock, but is resting comfortably at this time.

Mrs. Elizabeth Longridge, and Mr. Frank Cross, of Barton, are guests of Mrs. C. E. Hardesty at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Giblin, of Keyser, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spring, of Washington, D. C., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hardesty here on Sunday.

Rev. A. Bailey, of the Park, left by motor for Camp Royal, near Annapolis, Md., on Monday morning, accompanied by several young people who will take the training course there.

Mrs. A. L. Gibson and Mrs. Emma Queer were called to Washington, D. C., by the serious illness of Mrs. Ed. Stone-street, daughter of Mrs. Queer.

There will be the usual services in both churches here next Sunday.

Annual Picnic Information.

The Sesqui-centennial celebration now being held at Philadelphia, Pa., causes most of us to give more or less thought concerning it. In the days when our country was in the grip of the war of the Revolution, patriotism hitherto unheard of prevailed. Doubtless many will recall having read, at some time during their childhood the following lines:

"And there was tumult in the air,
The fife's shrill note, the drum's loud beat,
And through the land everywhere
The answering tread of hurrying feet;
While the first oath of freedom's gun
Came on the blast from Lexington."

The point we wish to make by quoting the above lines is that no war clouds loom on our horizon; no rumblings of strife mar our pleasure, but a certain rumbling is heard which will eventually result in a roar, or if you please, a volcanic eruption or something akin to that.

This is the first gun of the Seventh Annual picnic of the Knights of Pythis. Faint mutterings and subdued sounds have been in evidence for several weeks, but this is the first picnic gun to be fired. The chief gunner, the gunner's mate and in fact the entire gun crew is organized and prepared to give the public what they expect—a Labor Day picnic.

Progressive Esthonia

Esthonian Nurses and Patients at Typhus Hospital in Narva.

ESTHONIA, with which the United States has been negotiating a commercial treaty, should be of especial interest to Americans. Not only is it one of the youngest republics, but its formation marked the emergence to sudden independence of a people who, through 700 years of crushing bondage, kept alive their dream of freedom and were ready to put it into realization when the opportunity came.

World attention has been focused so closely upon storm centers of central and southern Europe that comparatively little has been heard of the new nations carved from Russia along the Baltic sea. But with the gradual resumption of commerce between Russia and the outside world Esthonia and its neighbors, Latvia and Lithuania, will assume a more important aspect, either as barriers or as gateways to interior Russia. From the eighties of the last century until the World war period Esthonia bore the double yoke of czarist laws administered by German officials.

One must go far back into Esthonian history to trace the origin of this duplicate despotism. Like the Finns, to whom they are closely related, the Esthonians or Esths, a race numbering a million and a quarter people, retain many characteristics which bespeak their Mongolian origin. They are long-armed and short-legged, have broad faces, are usually beardless and have slightly oblique eyes. They probably came to their present land between the Sixth and Eighth centuries from a former home along the middle Volga far to the east. Other relatives of the Esths, though more distantly related than the Finns, are the Hungarians, far away in south-central Europe.

The first record of the Esths in Europe reveals them as a daring, predatory people of the Baltic whose piratic outrages enkindled the wrath of Danish kings as early as the Twelfth century. In 1194 and 1196 Canute VI sent a strong expedition against them, and forced a number of the lawless bands to accept Christianity and allow themselves to be baptized. Hardly had the warlike proselyters left the Esthonian shores, however, when the inhabitants reverted to barbarism and their heathen practices.

Ruled by Teutonic Knights.

A quarter of a century later Waldemar II was more successful. He subjugated the northern coastal region and brought the inhabitants under submission to the Danish crown. It was never a willing submission, however, and for more than a hundred years the inhabitants gave their conquerors endless trouble until in 1343 Waldemar IV decided that they were "not worth the bother," so he sold his interest in the rebels and in their land to the Brethren of the Sword. The latter, unable to subdue the Esths, called on the Teutonic knights who were gradually spreading their net of power northward from Teutonic lands. They went in the role of Christian crusaders and remained more than six centuries as overlords and masters. The lot of the Esthonians became that of serfs.

In the Sixteenth century both the nobles (they came to be called "Balt barons") and the fortified towns of Esthonia placed themselves under the protection of the Swedish crown, but they were forced to acknowledge a new master after Peter the Great's successful wars against Charles XII.

In the last half century the Russian imperial government made systematic efforts to Russify the Esths, trying especially to abolish the Esthonian language to which the people have clung tenaciously. Harsh regulations as to the use of the language in the schools did not serve to wean the people from their own tongue, however. One characteristic which has served to preserve the Esth language through the centuries has been the people's love for poetry, and they have rare natural gift for versification.

The Russians also undertook by strenuous methods to gather the Esths into the fold of their orthodox church. The rugged endurance of this northern people, their vitality and spirit, is sufficiently shown by their bearing up under oppression that was both religious and political, and from the political standpoint, both Prussian and Russian. Perhaps their Mongolic descent helps account for that.

Progressive in Agriculture.

Before the World war Esthonia had become one of the most progressive regions, agriculturally, in Russia. Though situated in northern Europe, the country is tempered by the far-flung Gulf stream. Another thing of American origin—the potato—has made its deep mark on Esthonia, and it has even been called flippantly, "the Potato republic." As a source of alcohol the potato has been most important economically to the country. Every large estate has its own distillery, and before the World war great quantities of the potent liquid were exported.

Russia was reluctant to have Esthonia set up housekeeping on its own account. The country, about as large as New Hampshire and Vermont combined, blocks a considerable section of western Russia, whereas it formed before a natural outlet for the larger country. The Esthonian railways have already played an important part in moving produce to and from Russia, and if conditions become stabilized in the latter country, Esthonia should regularly collect a tidy sum as a transit agent.

Since the Esthonians are such lovers of liberty, yet had been so downtrodden by the "Balt barons" until almost the end of the World war, violent readjustments were inevitable. First came the Russian revolution. The Esthonians demanded and were given home rule. Then followed the Bolshevik coup; a Bolshevik invasion, which was fought back; a German invasion; more fighting with the Bolsheviks; and finally the establishment, with Finnish and British assistance, of an independent state. Then the new republic set about what its leaders described as "righting the wrongs of 700 years." The Esthonians, making up 92 per cent of the population, seized the great estates of the Balts (who constitute 1½ per cent of the population) and parceled them out among peasant proprietors. The country's agriculture was thus pieced on an entirely new footing, but the most recent statistics seem to show that production is holding its own.

Reval the Chief City.

Reval, known to the Esthonians as Tallin, is Esthonia's greatest port and city. It has existed for 700 years. With Helsingfors across the gulf, it formed tsarist Russia's gateway and first line of naval defense to Petrograd; but to Esthonia, its commercial possibilities seem brightest.

As first seen from shipboard, Reval's skyline is an epitome of the forces that have been at work upon Esthonia. On a hill which rises above the town is a citadel wall reminiscent of the Germans who took the country by the sword. On this height, too, are the homes of many of the Balt nobles who have descended from the German invaders. From the same hill a clump of Gothic steeples pierces the sky, recalling the Swedish invasion and the Lutheran religion, which most of the Esthonians profess. Within the circle of sharp spires are the queerly shaped, gilded domes of an orthodox Russian church, speaking of the efforts at Russification which never bore much fruit. In the lower town are the homes of the Esthonians—the stratum from which the people have literally risen to take over the affairs of their country.

In addition to its agricultural activities, Esthonia has numerous industrial possibilities. Already some of its waterpower is harnessed, and at Narva, on the Russian border, is one of the largest cotton mills in the world. Much of the land is still covered by forests, and the timber and wood-pulp industries are important. Millions of tons of oil shale exist in the country.

Fox Fires No Longer Cause Childish Fear

Boys and girls nowadays seldom experience the thrill of seeing a mysterious light glowing dimly in the depths of the forest or gleaming from some half-buried rotten log in a lonely swamp. The cutting away of the forests and the draining of swampy land have cleared from much of the landscape the causes which produce fox fire. In early days, however, the feet of pioneer children often were seen scampering home in the twilight when their owners came unexpectedly upon a light which seemed to have no source, says the Indianapolis News.

Ghosts and goblins and all sorts of evil omens ever have been associated with the appearance of fox fire and will-o'-the-wisps. There long has been a difference of opinion regarding the cause of fox fire, but now it is generally conceded to be due to a living fungus growth which permeates decaying vegetable matter and which possesses the power of emitting waves of light. No sensible heat waves are thrown out, and in this respect fox fire resembles the light emitted by fireflies and glowworms. Many a ghost might have been traced to its lair had the origin of phosphorescence been understood better, especially in the countries where the will-o'-the-wisps are reputed to be of frequent occurrence.

Poisonous Root Made Available for Food

Farinha, a bread made from a poisonous root, the mandioca, is the staff of life of the wild Indians of interior Brazil and also of the Brazilians. The mandioca root, which resembles somewhat the parsnip, is poisonous, but the natives know how to pull its "fangs." Each Indian family in the Amazon basin has a section of tree trunk made slightly concave on one side. This shallow trough is studded with pieces of flint or with large fish teeth set in the pitch-surfaced board. The women shred the mandioca root on this primitive grater, and pack the white fluff resulting in long woven mat tubes. After soaking the tubes in the water the contents are suspended from a tree limb to drain and pressure is applied to them on the principle of the tourniquet. This operation, which washes out the poison, must be repeated several times before the farinha can be used as a coarse flour for bread. For convenience in transportation the farinha is made into cakes a half-inch thick and a foot in diameter. It requires strong teeth to bite a piece out of one of them and eat it, according to white men who have tried it. The food is wholesome and nutritious, but rather tasteless.

Riding a Camel

The geographies do right to call the camel the "ship of the desert." He is, indeed, like a ship that pitches, tosses and rolls, all at the same time, in a storm.

A little skeleton "howdah" is put on his back, while his master leads him by a long rope. The unfortunate passenger sits cross-legged on top of the camel's very bony backbone and endeavors to adapt himself to the rolling, pitching movement. It makes many persons seasick.

The camel has a mean disposition, and is always trying to quarrel with the other camels in the party, biting and kicking them, grunting and making a general nuisance of himself.

World Is "Thin Shell"

"It is wholesome for proud man to look upward on a bright day at some pretty cirrus cloud, to consider that it is composed of ice spicules, that it floats in arctic cold, that it signalizes to us what hothouse creatures we are. If the roof of air were removed we should all be frozen to death in a moment. Just above the roof is deadly cold, and just below the crust of earth is deadly heat. Only within the thin shell that separates these two regions can the human race strut about and congratulate itself on its great powers."—Henshaw Ward, in "The Whirlpools of the Weather," in Harper's Magazine.

The Mad Book

Why doesn't somebody write a mad book, dedicated "to all the poor people who have lost their tempers and don't know where to find them?"

A few suggested chapters:

To have your feet stepped on.

To have a conductor abuse you before an earful of people.

To have a cross voice on the telephone tell you you to "Butt off the line."

To see what you want on the counter and have a clerk tell you: "We don't keep it."

To ask for the Mad Book and have a clerk say, "It's never been published."

The Agile Pianist

In playing Chopin's Etude in E Minor the pianist has to interpret 3,950 musical signs in two and one-half minutes. That means that his eye has to catch correctly and his brain to comprehend clearly more than 1,500 signs a minute, and his fingers have to execute accurately more than 2,000 movements a minute. Since it requires at least a tenth of a second to recognize a letter of print, the musician must have marvelously quick mentality and muscles to perceive and understand his more complicated typographical characters and to translate them into manual motion at such a rate.—Collier's Magazine.

WHITE CHURCH

Quite a number of the people from this community attended the Epworth League Institute at Mountain Lake Park Sunday evening.

Miss Edith Shockey, who has been employed in Cumberland, has returned to her home here.

Mrs. Mary White is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shockey at this time.

Miss Nellie Harvey has been engaged at the Park for the past few weeks.

Mr. A. T. Shockey is employed in the canning factory in the Park.

There will be an Epworth League social and festival held at this place on Saturday night, July 30th. Music will be furnished. Everyone invited to attend.

Mr. G. N. Steyer and family, of California, are visiting relatives in this section.

Mr. Issac Beckman was a guest of Miss Nellie Steyer on Sunday.

Sunday school is held every Sunday at White Church and Epworth League services every Sunday night. All attend these services.

Miss Neva Bowers was visiting a few of her friends in this community on Sunday.

Trucks too feel the difference

HUNDREDS of road tests on many types of cars and trucks prove that the new "Standard" Motor Oil gives astounding results.

A 2½ ton Mack truck, for instance, run 1,572 miles from September 24th to October 22d, 1925, showed 22.8% increase in oil mileage; 17.9% increase in gas mileage; smoother operation at all speeds; no carbon accumulation; better all 'round lubrication.

These results can be verified in your own car. Just get your crank-case filled at a "Standard" Service Station or dealer. Then expect results. You can actually feel the difference.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(New Jersey)

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing—smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

Mercy Cut No Figure in Old-Time Justice

The torturing of criminals on "the wheel" is a very ancient form of punishment. In an "improved" form it was revived in Germany in the Fourteenth century. The unfortunate victim was laid upon a very large cart wheel, his legs and arms extended and fastened to the spokes, and in that position, as the wheel was turned around, his limbs were broken by successive blows with an iron bar. In France, where the wheel was used only to punish criminals of the most atrocious sort, the victim was first bound to a frame of wood in the form of a St. Andrew's cross—that is, two bars of equal length laid crosswise like an X. Grooves were cut transversely in these bars, above and below the knees and elbows, and the executioner struck the limbs of the victim eight blows so as to break them in these places. Sometimes he finished his work by striking the criminal two or three blows on the chest or stomach, which usually put an end to the sufferer's life, and therefore were called blows of mercy. The punishment of the wheel was abolished in France at the revolution. In Germany it was occasionally inflicted early in the last century for the crimes of treason and parricide.

Exposure a Factor for Window Plants

Results in window boxes are largely dependent upon the right flowers for the exposure. It is not possible to have window boxes at every window identical with those at every other window if the exposure is different, but they may harmonize.

For sunny locations use nasturtiums, verbena, sweet alyssum, petunia, pansy, cornflower, snapdragon and marguerite; for shady places, nonflowering plants—the ferns, palms, English ivy, begonia, trailing evonyaius, asparagus sprengeri. Drooping effects may be had from lobellas, sweet alyssum and others. For half shady windows, hanging fuschia with bush fuschia, or bush fuschia with marguerites and vincas or hanging petunia with cobea scandens, or pink fuschia, white marguerites and vincas can be combined. Verbenas may be planted alone as they form a luxuriant mass of bloom and foliage. Pansies and sweet alyssum are a delightful combination.

Geraniums and English ivy are formal and go well in a formal house or along a dusty street which would thwart the growth of something more delicate. Very effective results may be had by trailing ivy upon a heavy cord to frame the window.—The Delineator.

Savages at Feast

The natives of Abyssinia are very fond of raw meat, but as such a diet is attended by considerable cost it is not so frequently indulged in and the result is that bread is the mainstay of the people.

Occasionally a carcass is secured and a feast is indulged in by a number of persons who consume it entirely without cooking or any other preparation. The carcass is cut up and each of the participants takes a piece with a bone attached. Squatting on his haunches he holds the piece by the bone and makes a cut with a sharp knife.

The partially severed piece is then taken in the teeth and finally severed with an upward movement of the knife. As one witnesses the operation it would seem that there was danger of severing the nose of the diner.—Chicago Journal.

Love vs. Delirium

People in love are not happy, but they always think they are going to be. Being in love is a delirious process of gathering together all imagined happiness, and believing that some other human being is the sum of them. You will be happy when you get it. The conclusion is almost mathematical. Millions of young people arrive at it, just as we did. When we were married we would be happy ever after.

The number of persons who are not happy, though married, should have suggested to us that there was a flaw somewhere in our reasoning. But it didn't.—Rose Wilder Lane, in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

Moon's Action at Poles

The naval observatory says that at either pole the moon is above the horizon continuously for about two weeks, and then below the horizon continuously for about two weeks. At the Arctic and Antarctic circles there are some years when for a few days in each month the moon does not set, and a few days in each month when it does not rise; otherwise at these circles it rises and sets daily. In the polar regions, during the winter months, the moon is generally above the horizon when it is full and below the horizon when it is new, and the reverse is the case during the summer months.

Bird Sacred to Indians

The ptarmigan, like the Indian, is susceptible to civilizing influence. Since the Indians of the Glacier National park reservation took up agriculture, this mountainside bird has come down into the valleys, even to mingle with the barnyard chickens and eat of the Indian's wheat.

The ptarmigan turns pure white like a snowshoe rabbit in the winter time, and the Indian has a sacred regard for the feathered creature in this immaculate transformation.

Entrance Examinations Engineering Scholarships

Scholarship Applications in the School of Engineering, established under provisions of Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, competitive examinations will be held September 17, 1926, beginning at 9 A. M. Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each County of the State, with the exception of Charles, Dorchester, Montgomery, Queen Anne's, Somerset and Washington, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for 1926-1927.

Scholarships are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances make it impossible to obtain engineering courses unless free tuition is granted. The Scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, text books and exemption from regular fees. One scholarship in each county and each Legislative District of the City with the exception of 5th and 6th, carries also the sum of $200. Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola, St. John's, Washington College, Western Maryland, University of Maryland (Maryland Agricultural College), Mount St. Mary's and Rock Hill.

Applicants address the Registrar, Johns Hopkins University, for application forms and catalogues of information regarding examinations, awards of scholarships and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 28.

Only Weak Can Find "Refuge" in Suicide

Accounts of suicide in the news are almost always depressing. They lessen one's confidence in the strength of the human spirit. They may arouse pity, it is true, but except in unusual circumstances this is pity based upon a recognition of weakness.

For suicide, speaking generally, is an abject confession of defeat, of complete failure of courage. And it signifies so narrow a vision, so limited an interest, for any man to say that in all the wide world nothing is left for him.

Consider the words Jasper Petulengro, the Norfolk gypsy, spoke to George Borrow:

"Life is sweet, brother."

"Do you think so?"

"Think so! There's night and day, brother, both sweet things; sun, moon and stars, brother, all sweet things; there's likewise the wind on the heath. Life is very sweet, brother; who would wish to die!"

"I would wish to die—"

"You talk like a gorgio—which is the same as talking like a fool—were you a gypsy chal you would talk wiser. Wish to die, indeed! A Romany chal would wish to live forever!"

"In sickness, Jasper?"

"There's the sun and stars, brother."

"In blindness, Jasper?"

"Why, then would the sun, the moon, brother, if I could only feel that, I would gladly live forever."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Return to Normalcy After the Big Fight

Little Elspeth and a friend were playing about the house and having considerable fun running in and out of the street, thought it would be a lot of fun to play fire. So they shouted "Fire! Fire!" until Elspeth's mother came rushing in from the back yard crying, "Where? Where?"

Upon learning that it was all a joke, she sent Elspeth to her room with the admonition never to play that game again, and went to her own room to take a nap.

The quiet was soon broken by a monotonous thump, thump, thump on the stairs and there was Elspeth, attired in her best coat and gloves, dragging her doll's trunk down to the front door.

"I'm going to find a lady that wants a little girl," she said determinedly, but finally was persuaded that no one wants a little girl half as much as her own mother.

Cuddled at last in her mother's arms, Elspeth sighed contentedly and then said:

"Now tat you are my own good muvver an' the big fight is over, s'pose we go an' unpack."

Soup Early Human Food

The art of soup making is one of the oldest forms of cookery of which we have any knowledge whatever. It denoted a distinct step forward of the civilization of the world when man learned the secret of [illegible] Egypt Scrolls.

"Poor fellow, he must have suffered terribly," remarked the first man.

"Suffered? He must have suffered? Why, he was dead when Scrooge came in!"

"So the barber shaved him, and when the job was over Scrooge sniffed a ghastly smile and muttered:

"Three and six—to the good.'

"Then his head fell back and he breathed his last."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Discovery an Accident

Charles Goodyear, who discovered the process of vulcanizing rubber, expended all his means in experiments with various mixtures and processes which should cure the fatal defects of the India rubber of that time, namely, since it is brittle in cold weather and sticky in warm weather. The great secret of vulcanizing, a process in which the two substances, submitted to a high temperature, are converted into elastic, enduring, heat and cold-defying material, now in use, was an accidental discovery made by Goodyear while standing by a stove and idly subjecting a mixture of rubber and sulphur to its heat.

Poker Not Entirely According to Hoyle

The traveling agent of a liver pill concern in the East struck this town to contract for an advertisement in the Torchlight, remarks the editor of the Snagtown (Ark.) Torchlight. Finding that he was an old newspaper man and that he purposed remaining two or three days to take in the town, we set out to post him on some of the idioms and customs. He thought he knew it all, however, and that's the reason he is in bedroom No. 48 in the hotel with a bullet in his groin.

We met the stranger stepped into the White Eagle still and took a hand in a game of poker. The game is rather a peculiar one in Dark Snagtown, two pairs beat four of a kind, and sometimes not. It is a good deal according to who is playing and how much there is up. It seems that our friend got a royal flush and was called by three jacks. He at once jumped to the conclusion that he had won the jackpot, but he was sadly mistaken. Tom Ephriam Smith was in the game, and it was an occasion when a pair of sixes, if held by Tom, would beat four aces. While raking in the pot the liver pill man was stopped by a bullet, and even if he gets well he will have a limp in his left leg. This town isn't as big as Chicago or New York, nor as wicked as St. Louis or Cincinnati, but we have our customs and idioms just the same, and the stranger who can't tumble to them must take the consequences.

Financial Deal Made Miser's Passing Easy

"Arnold Bennett," said a New York publisher, "wrotes a book about a miser, 'Hiremun Stops,' and when I ventured to tell him that there were no misers nowndays, he told an anecdote to contradict me.

"He said a chap named Scrooge was dying, and when the doctor let him know he had only an hour more to live, he passed his weak hand over his bristly chin and said in his weak voice:

"'Send for—a barber.'

"When the barber arrived Scrooge said to him:

"'How much—to shave me?

"'Sixpence, sir,' said the barber.

Birth of an Idea

Raquel Meller told at a dinner in New York a story about Bernhardt.

"Sarah Bernhardt," she said, "once complained to a friend that she was so hard up she didn't know which way to turn.

"'Sell your jewels,' her friend suggested.

"'I have none—I detest jewels,' said Bernhardt, and this was a well known fact. Then suddenly she clapped her hands and laughed. 'But there isn't a jeweler in Paris,' she went on, 'who wouldn't jump at the chance of auctioning off his stock as the collection of the divine Sarah.'

"A week or two later there was an immense sale of Sarah Bernhardt's jewels at the Salle Drouot, and Sarah was once more on her feet."

Marionettes in History

Puppets belong to the present as to the past. There are some 30 puppet directors now owning theaters in this country, without counting certain immigrants who present their folk plays in the foreign tongue.

In the future, one can only suppose, with Gordon Craig, that they will live on. In his textbook, "The Marionette," he said: "Burattini are magical. When a framework of a film machine one day found by curiosity hunters in the ruins of a cellar and marveled over, the Burattini will still be alive and kicking."

Why not? They ushered in the earliest civilization. They may bow out the last.—Grace S. Brooks, in the Century Magazine.

Soup Early Human Food

The art of soup making is one of the oldest forms of cookery of which we have any knowledge whatever. It denoted a distinct step forward of the civilization of the world when man learned that game which he trapped or killed might be prepared by a process of "stone boiling," affording him a broth and a meat in place of the charred product which hitherto he had cooked over the hot coals. The skin of the animal was his soup kettle in which he placed the meat and covered it with water. Then the improvised stock pot was hung in some convenient spot, and stones, heated in the fire, were placed in it, one after the other as they became cool, until finally, after hours of toil, the broth was ready for serving.

W. J. Rolfe in his notes on "As You Like It," says: "Better naturalists than Shakespeare believed in the toad stone, the 'precious jewel' of the text. Fenton, in his 'Secrete Wonders of Nature' (1569), says that 'there is founde in the heades of old and great toades, a stone which they call bornx or stelon; it is most commonly founde in the head of a hee toad, of power to repluse poysons and that it is a most soveraigne medicine for that stone.'" Poker Not Entirely According to Hoyle

The traveling agent of a liver pill concern in the East struck this town to contract for an advertisement in the Torchlight, remarks the editor of the Snagtown (Ark.) Torchlight. Finding that he was an old newspaper man and that he purposed remaining two or three days to take in the town, we set out to post him on some of the idioms and customs. He thought he knew it all, however, and that's the reason he is in bedroom No. 48 in the hotel with a bullet in his groin.

It seems that he dropped into the White Eagle still and took a hand in a game of poker. The game is rather eccentric in this town. Sometimes two pairs beat four of a kind, and sometimes not. It is a good deal according to who is playing and how much there is up. It seems that our friend got a royal flush and was called by three jacks. He at once jumped to the conclusion that he had won the jackpot, but he was sadly mistaken. Tom Ephriam Smith was in the game, and it was an occasion when a pair of sixes, if held by Tom, would beat four aces. While raking in the pot the liver pill man was stopped by a bullet, and even if he gets well he will have a limp in his left leg. This town isn't as big as Chicago or New York, nor as wicked as St. Louis or Cincinnati, but we have our customs and idioms just the same, and the stranger who can't tumble to them must take the consequences.

Financial Deal Made Miser's Passing Easy

"Arnold Bennett," said a New York publisher, "wrote a book about a miser, 'Riceyman Steps,' and when I ventured to tell him that there were no misers nowadays, he told an anecdote to contradict me.

"He said a chap named Scrooge was dying, and when the doctor let him know he had only an hour more to live, he passed his weak hand over his bristly chin and said in his weak voice:

"'Send for—a barber.'

"When the barber arrived Scrooge said to him:

"'How much—to shave me?'

"'Sixpence, sir,' said the barber.

"'And how much to shave a corpse?' gasped Scrooge.

"'Four shillin' to shave a corpse, sir,' the barber answered.

"'Shave me, then,' said Scrooge.

"So the barber shaved him, and when the job was over Scrooge smiled a ghastly smile and muttered:

"'Three and six—to the good.'

"Then his head fell back and he breathed his last."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Birth of an Idea

Raquel Meller told at a dinner in New York a story about Bernhardt.

"Sarah Bernhardt," she said, "once complained to a friend that she was so hard up she didn't know which way to turn.

"'Sell your jewels,' her friend suggested.

"'I have none—I detest jewels,' said Bernhardt, and this was a well known fact. Then suddenly she clapped her hands and laughed. 'But there isn't a jeweler in Paris,' she went on, 'who wouldn't jump at the chance of auctioning off his stock as the collection of the divine Sarah.'

"A week or two later there was an immense sale of Sarah Bernhardt's jewels at the Salle Drouot, and Sarah was once more on her feet."

Marionettes in History

Puppets belong to the present as to the past. There are some 30 puppet directors now owning theaters in this country, without counting certain immigrants who present their folk plays in their own language.

In the future, one can only suppose, with Gordon Craig, that they will live on. In his textbook, "The Marionette," he said: "Burattini are magical. When a framework of a film machine one day found by curiosity hunters in the ruins of a cellar and marveled over, the Burattini will still be alive and kicking."

Why not? They ushered in the earliest civilization. They may bow out the last.—George S. Brooks, in the Century Magazine.

BIDS FOR COAL FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

SEALED BIDS will be received by The Board of Education of Garrett County, Md., at its offices in the Court House, Oakland, Md., until 12 o'clock noon of

for the furnishing of Coal for fuel purposes for any or all of the public schools of Garrett county for the school year of 1926-1927.

All coal is to be delivered to the school house before December 1st, 1926, unless authority is given by the trustees of any individual school for later delivery and sufficient amount of coal for the needs of the school for the year is to be delivered.

The price submitted is to be based upon 2,000 pounds to the ton, delivered in the coal houses or bins of the schools. Coal must be of good grade and clean. The name or brief description of coal to be supplied should be included in all bids. Bids may be made for all or any number of different schools; but the Board of Education reserves the right to award bids according to its judgment if the average price of a number of bids for various schools is less than individual bids for separate schools.

The approximate number of tons necessary for any school or schools may be learned from the school trustees or upon inquiry by letter to the office of The Board of Education of Garrett County.

The successful bidder or bidders should be prepared to furnish, if requested by The Board of Education, at the expense of the Board, a surety, or trust company or personal bond, at the option of the Board, guaranteeing delivery of coal according to the stipulations named in this published notice, as also in the sealed bid submitted.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

GARRETT COUNTIAN TO DIRECT ODD FELLOWS HOME

A. T. White, of Mountain Lake Park, Will Take Charge At Frederick On August 10.

At a regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Odd Fellows Home, located just on the outskirts of Frederick, Wednesday night last, Past Grand Master Albert T. White, of Mountain Lake Park, was elected superintendent of the home.

In the home, which was recently completed, space has been provided for both children and adults. At the meeting Wednesday two children were admitted and two other children and an elderly woman will be received one day this week.

The new superintendent, Mr. White, will take charge on August 10th. Mrs. White will be head matron. Grand Secretary Jones of the Order of Odd Fellows, has been acting suprintendent.

At the conclusion of the meeting on Wednesday the directors made the usual inspection of the property and found everything in excellent order.

There are now fourteen persons in the home—seven children and seven adults. The applications presented will be acted upon at the next meeting.

The home has a capacity of about two hundred and fifty persons.

Typhoid Fever And How It May Be Prevented

Throughout the entire country, there was a marked increase in typhoid fever last year. To prevent a flare up in Maryland this year each local health officer has been asked to make a special report on each case that is reported from his district to the State Department of Health, so that the possible sources of the disease may be studied and controlled.

"The State Department of Health may do its utmost to get rid of typhoid fever," Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the State Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said, "But there are certain ways in which the individual can help. It is necessary to understand just how typhoid fever is contracted. To take typhoid fever, you must either eat or drink the germs that cause it. You do not breath it in with the air as you do some other diseases.

"The germs that cause typhoid fever are found in the discharges from the bladder and intestines of persons who have, or who have had typhoid fever. All such discharges should be instantly disinfected. If this is neglected and the germs are allowed to seep into the sources of drinking water, or to spread over the surface of the ground, one case of typhoid may be the cause of many.

"For months, or even many years, some people who have become entirely well after an attack of typhoid fever, still carry the typhoid germs in the discharges from the bladder and intestines. These people are called 'carriers.' If they are careless in their habits they may carry the germs on their hands and in that way infect any food they handle. Milk or cream for instance, may be infected from the hands of 'carriers' who do the milking or who handle milk in other ways. Accordingly, it is just as important that the discharges from the 'carriers' be disinfected, as from those who are actively sick with the disease. It is very dangerous for 'carriers' to handle food.

"Flies are often to blame, too, for spreading typhoid from the sick to the well. They feast on the discharges from persons ill with typhoid and carry the germs to food supplies. If the room of a person who is ill with typhoid is screened against flies it will be much more comfortable for the patient and much safer for the rest of the household. The kitchen should always be screened.

"Here are ten ways by which you may safeguard yourself and your family against typhoid:

"1. Boil your drinking water unless you are sure that the supply is pure.

"2. Always wash your hands before preparing food for the table.

"3. Always wash your hands before eating.

"3. Wash all vegetables that are to be eaten raw and all fruits, in water that has been boiled and cooled.

"5. Keep food covered.

"6. Use covered garbage pails.

"7. Screen the house from flies.

"8. If there is a case of typhoid in your household or in the neighborhood, keep out of the sickroom unless you are nursing the patient. Show your neighborliness in other ways.

"9. If there is a case of typhoid in your household disinfect every discharge from the bowels or bladder of the patient.

"10. Ask your doctor to vaccinate you against typhoid. The State Department of Health will furnish the vaccine free of charge. All you will need to pay is the doctor's fee. Three treatments, a week apart, will protect you for this season and the next."

Hutton Grange Meeting.

A very appreciative audience enjoyed the literary program at Hutton Grange Hall on the evening of July 26th. The feature of the program was the reading by Mr. J. A. Connell: "Gideon's Fleece." Everybody present was deeply impressed by the serious and solemn beauty of this noble poem as interpreted by Mr. Connell. Songs by both the quartet and the grange as a whole were another enjoyable feature of the meeting.

The next meeting will be on the evening of August 9th. A large attendance of the membership is especially and earnestly requested. Members will kindly bear in mind, however, the distinction between the regular session, which starts at 8.00 p. m. and the literary program, which usually starts about half an hour later, and is held during a recess of the grange in order to admit and welcome the general public.

A topic of live interest to the entire Hutton community will come up in the regular session. This is the question of holding a local community fair at the Hutton Grange Hall next month. There is no reason why the Hutton Grange cannot have a good local fair if the members will only decide to have one and then work for it like they have worked for their Grange at community exhibits and other things.

The usual excellent literary program will be given at 8:30. It will include a song service by the grange; also readings by some of the members. Past Master B. C. Scott will again address us on "Current Events." This is a subject of perpetual interest as new events are taking place all the time.

The Hutton Grange earnestly requests its members to attend and to invite their friends to attend the literary program. The general public will be welcome to join in a discussion of the local fair at the close of the literary program. REPORTER.

AN ILLUMINATING LECTURE CONCERNING MEXICAN AIMS

Speaker At Mountain Lake Park Pleads for U. S. Understanding of What Mexico Wants

"The efforts of the present Mexican government to reconstruct the country socially and economically and to establish a nation-wide public school system against tremendous odds, should be appreciated and commended by every thoughtful and liberty-loving American," said the Rev. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, D. D., corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, speaking at the service at Mountain Lake Park under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Area Summer School for Theology, Sunday evening, August 1st. Dr. Diffendorfer recently returned from an extensive visit to Mexico, studying the religious and educational problems of that country.

"The religious question which has stirred the Republic from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the border to Yucatan, is the result of the attempt of the present government to enforce the provisions of the Constitution of 1917, which is the present organic law of the country. This Constitution provides that no one but a native Mexican by birth can perform the functions of a minister of religion in Mexico, that no religion shall be taugh in any primary school and that all schools of any sort shall be separate from church control or from the control of men representing the church, and no minister of religion may be principal of any school in Mexico. The Constitution further provides that all church property passes automatically into the hands of the government except that no statutory has been passed which affects church property acquired before 1917, when the present Constitution was put into effect.

"In the midst of this controversy the Mexican Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church met in the city of Pueblo. With Bishop George A. Miller of the Methodist Episcopal church, the resident bishop in Mexico City, I attended this conference upon invitation. The conference elected one of its own members, the Reverend V. D. Baez, a Mexican, from Mexcio City, as its presiding officer, the bishop and myself taking no official part in the proceedings of the entire week. The conference was conducted efficiently by Mexicans in fine spirit, the business was transacted with dispatch and the appointments were read by the presiding Mexican oficer.

"This only illustrates the spirit of all the evangelical workers in Mexico. We have assured the government that we intend to obey the law and even to go further, to support the government and to give every possible aid in the education and training of an intelligent group of people who will participate honestly and effectively in a democratic government.

"The Methodist group in the evangelical movement is rapidly adjusting its property holdings, the leadership of its schools and the separation of school and church property, and none of its missionaries are performing the functions of a minister of religion, having adjusted themselves to other tasks approved by the Mexicans, so that there is now opportunity for a greater advance in the evangelical movement in Mexico than in any previous period of our history."

Dr. Diffendorfer left Mexico when the Amerlean papers were full of the stories of alarming conditions in Mexico. During his visit he was able to observe conditions sufficiently to state that these reports were grossly exaggerated and that there is much misunderstanding in the United States regarding the true purpose of the Mexican Government and the condition of affairs over the border. What Mexico needs, according to Dr. Diffendorfer, is the friendly help of America rather than any embarrassment of the present government by withdrawal of recognition, and intervention should be the furthest from our thought.

A new pipe organ, the gift of Mrs. D. E. Offutt, is being installed in the Oakland Presbyterian church by C. A. Elliott, local dealer. The instrument is of the Estey manufacture and is said to be one of the best of its kind. The organ will be dedicated at the service to be conducted in the church Sunday morning. It was given by the donor in memory of her late husband, D. E. Offutt.

MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE INVADING GARRETT COUNTY

Crops In Southeastern Section Are Being Damaged by Pest

During the past week the Mexican bean beetle has made its appearance in Garrett county and has done considerable damage in the territory lying adjacent to the Potomac River.

Investigations show that practically every garden and bean crop in Kitzmiller, Kempton, Gorman and other communities along the river are infested, and isolated gardens in the vicinity of Oakland have also been attacked. The beetle made its appearance in the Ryan's Glade section and is apparently moving in a northwesterly direction. Those whose gardens have not been infested should be prepared as the insect is apt to appear at any time and spreads rapidly.

The Mexican bean beetle is a new insect in this part of the country coming here from the South where it has already done much damage. The beetle is nearly hemispherical, one-fourth of an inch long and about one-fifth of an inch wide. Each of the brown wing covers bear eight black spots. The beetle closely resembles some of the native beneficial ladybirds to which family the insect belongs. The larva is orange colored, varies in length from about one-twentieth of an inch when young, to about one-third of an inch when full grown, and is covered with long, branched spines. Injury by the larva and adult of the Mexican bean beetle to the bean plant is characteristic. The adult, feeding from below, eats ragged areas in the lower surface of the leaf, but often cuts through the upper surface, giving the foliage a lace-like appearance. The larvea usually feed on the under surface of the leaf, leaving the upper surface intact. The lower tissue is cut away in narrow parallel sections about the length of the insect's body. Between these sections are narrow strips which are left untouched by the larva, resulting in a peculiar network not likely to be mistaken for the work of any other insect. All parts of the plant above the ground are fed upon by both beetle and larva. When the insects are numerous, the plant is destroyed and presents the appearance of having been completely dried out. After destroying the foilage, the insect may attack the pods and even the stems. Injury to cowpeas and soybeans is similar, but attack on the stems and pods of these plants is very rare. When the beetles are abundant a bean crop may be destroyed in four weeks or before the pods are grown.

The Mexican bean beetle can be successfully controlled by the use of certain arsenical poisons. Although spraying with liquid poisons has given consistently better results against this beetle than dusting, the latter form of poison is becoming more popular year by year, and in the infested territory most growers prefer to apply insecticides to their beans in dust form. Also where medium infestation exists, dusting gives good results. The following mixture has been successfully applied:

The dust should be directed to the undersurface of the leaves, covering as much surface as possible. Enough of the mixture should be applied so that between two and three pounds of the arsenical in the dust is distributed on an acre of beans. Dust mixtures may be prepared on the farm by placing the ingredients in a steel drum or barrel, which is then tightly closed and rolled about for a distance of 400 or 500 feet. At the same time it should be tipped on end at intervals of about 50 feet.

There is practically no danger of arsenical poisoning from consumption of treated beans, but they should be rinsed twice in clear water before marketing to assure absolute safety.

The following stores are purchasing calcium arsenate to sell for the controlling of this insect: Gonder's Pharmacy, Oakland; Oates' Store, Germania, W. Va.; Hamill Coal Co., Kitzmiller; Davis Coal Co., Kempton, Md.

State Entomologist E. N. Cory and his assistants will be in the county the latter part of the week, and in cooperation with your County Agent will make an extensive study for the purpose of determining the best means of controlling this insect.

W. C. JESTER, County Agent.

Sunday School Picnic.

There will be a Sunday school picnic at Beckman's Grove, North Glade, on August 14th. Music and a program of interest in the afternoon. Races and several other amusements in the evening and a social at night. Everybody will be welcomed; all invited.

DIED.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN HOYE.

Benjamin Franklin Hoye, aged 78 years, died at Katy, near Fairmont, West Va., July 30, 1926. He was born at Sang Run, Garrett county, on May 23, 1848, and was descendant of Paul Hoye, who came from Ireland before the Revolution and settled in Washintgon county, Md., and of William Waller Hoye, one of the first settlers of Sang Run. He is survived by seven children, viz.: David H., William E., and Alice R., of Katy, West Va.; Mrs. Lulu K. Friend, of Cheat Haven, Pa.; Vernon M., Ralph and Elizabeth, of Sang Run. He is also survived by eighteen grandchildren. Mr. Hoye was noted among his many friends for his genial disposition and strict integrity. He was a member of the M. E. church at Sang Run. Interment was made in the cemetery at Sang Run on Sunday.

MRS. ELIZABETH M'ROBIE.

Mrs. Elizabeth McRobie, widow of the late Thomas R. McRobie, died August 2, 1926, after years of suffering as the result of cancer. She was born February 22, 1847, being a daughter of William C. and Eleanor Cunningham. Mrs. McRobie is survived by a daughter, Miss Ruth McRobie, of Washington, D. C., and by two sisters, Mrs. Sallie Ralston, of Frostburg, and Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell, formerly of Little Rock, Ark., but now residing in Oakland. When a very young girl, Mrs. McRobie united with the Lutheran church at Bittinger, Garrett county and later was one of the most active members in establishing a Lutheran church at Meadow Mountain. Her funeral occurred this morning. Following services at the home on Third street, conducted by Rev. C. A. Shilke, assisted by Rev. S. E. Wicker, Mrs. McRobie's body was taken to Bittinger for interment.

Mrs. Alice Fuller Sanner, widow of the late Capt. Ross R. Sanner, and a former resident of Oakland, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Kinsel, in Akron, Ohio, Tuesday, August 3, 1926. She is survived by the following children: J. Howard Sanner, Oscar W. Sanner and Lloyd F. Sanner, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. Maude S. Thompson, of New York City; Norman R. Sanner, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Walter R. Sanner, of Morgantown, West Va., and Mrs. Ethel Kinsey, of Akron, Ohio. The funeral of the deceased will occur at Confluence, Pa., on Friday, August 6, at 2:00 o'clock.

MARRIED.

Bittinger—Sebold—Miss Bernadette Sebold, of McHenry, and Mr. Walter Bittinger, of near Thayerville, were united in matrimony Sunday, August 1st, at 11:00 o'clock at the parish house of St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, the Rev. J. F. Eckenrode, pastor, performing the ceremony. The bride was gowned in a white canton crepe dress with picture hat to match. The maid of honor was Miss Margaret Sebold, sister of the bride, and was gowned in blue georgette with hat to match. The groom was attended by Mr. William Sebold, nephew of the bride. Following the ceremony the guests all returned to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sebold, where a very delicious dinner was served. There were about sixty guests present, including Rev. J. F. Eckenrode, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sebold and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Sebold and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Savage and family, of McHenry; Mr. and Mrs. James McGettigan and their daughter Pearle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis McGettigan and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Alexander, all of Accident; Miss Gertrude Beachy, Grantsville; Mr. and Mrs. Foster Glover and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Fast, Mrs. Wm. Mattingly, all of Uniontown, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William Sebold and family, of Deer Park.

The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts. They will make their home in Akron, Ohio.

Children's Day Service

The Mount Bethel Sunday school will hold its annual Children's Day service at the U. B. church of Mt. Bethel on Sunday, August 22nd, beginning at 10:00 o'clock a. m. The children's program will be rendered in the forenoon. A basket dinner is planned. The afternoon service will consist of speaking and music. Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell will address the Cradle Roll mothers. All mothers are invited to be present, as well as all others of the community.

THREE ADDITIONAL MEN ARE IN FIELD FOR PLACES

On the Republican Primary Ballot—House of Delegates. Commissioner and Clerk

Today's Republican carries the annuoncement of three additional candidates—Mr. Payton A. Dixon, of District No. 8, for House of Delegates; Mr. Walter G. Meyers, of No. 7, for Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners, and Mr. J. C. Meyers, of District 13, for County Commissioner, the latter a resident of Shallmar.

Mr. Dixon is a farmer, stock dealer and business man of his section of the county, being identified with the First National Bank as a director.. He has been a resident of the county since 1918, having at that time purchased the W. McCulloh Brown farm and moved upon it from a farm he then owned just across the Potomac River in West Virginia. Mr. Dixon is a candidate for the nomination for House of Delegates. He served as a member of the West Virginia House in 1917, and as a member of that body was on the committee on prohibition and had considerable to do with the drafting and passing through the Legislature of the present drastic prohibition law now on the statute hooks of West Virginia, hence Mr. Dixon, in seeking the office to which he aspires, is perfectly cognizant of the duties which will be imposed upon him as a member of the Maryland body and his experience in his native State's Legislature will stand him in good hand should he be nominated and elected to the position. Mr. Dixon is the first and only aspirant for House honors who has made a formal announcement. He stands high in his home community; is progressive as a farmer and business man and will without doubt serve the people of Garrett county should he be nominated and elected.

For Commissioners' Clerk, Mr. W. G. Meyers, present efficient incumbent of the office, makes his announcement in the columns of The Republican today. Mr. Meyers is thoroughly acquainted with the many intricacies of the office which he now occupies and which he hopes to retain.

Mr. J. C. Meyers, of Shallmar, District No. 13, where he is engaged as a store manager by the Shallmar Supply Company, is the latest aspirant for the nomination as a member of the Board of County Commissioners. Mr. Meyers is a son of John Meyers, of District No. 2, being a native of the county. During the World War he served with the Three Hundred and Thirteenth Infantry, being overseas with his outfit from the time it left Camp Meade until the return of the unit to the United States. Mr. Meyers has occupied the position he now has for the past six years. He is a highly valued employe of the concern for which he works and is a favorite with the people of the section where he resides.

Sunnyside Grange.

All members who failed to attend the last meeting of Sunnyside Grange surely missed a treat. Several good suggestions were offered and a splendid program was rendered, consisting of songs, readings, etc. Through the absence of the lecturer the ladies were challenged for a program, which was very creditably rendered by those taking part.

The women have now issued a challenge to the men to put on the next program at the regular meeting on August 11th. It is being rumored that upon that date ice cream and pie will be served.

All members are urged to attend each and every succeeding meeting as we hope to have something of interest which can only be made possible by the co-operation of those belonging to the grangee. Be a booster; don't just belong. REPORTER.

Congressman F. N. Zihlman Secures Additional Pensions for Civil War Veterans.

Two more Civil War veterans of the Sixth Congressional District have had their claims for the $72.00 monthly pension rate favorahly considered through the efforts of Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman. The veterans benefitted are Capt. James A. Hayden, of Mountain Lake Park, who has been in failing health for the past few years, and who has made several previous attempts to secure the $72.00 allowance without success, and Isaac Keedy, of Cumberland, who has been confined to his bed since November 1, 1925.

Foolish Beliefs Not Confined to Sailors

In defense of the supposedly superstitious fisherman, Lorenzo Sabine, in 1863, in an article on the American fisherman, wrote:

"It is said that he is credulous and superstitious. Admit that Kidd's money has been dug for in every dark nook of the coast, or talked about in every cuddy for a century and a half, and that horseshoes are nailed upon the masts of fishing vessels to keep off witches; what then? Is he the only one who has been or still is guilty of the same follies?

"In 1820 the duchess de Berri visited a watering place in France and indulged in sea bathing. Salt water and fish which were afterward taken from the spot were articles of immense value and sold at enormous prices. Indeed, those persons who could not purchase a whole fish gladly possessed themselves of a few scales or a fin! The water where the 'royal person' had been washed, when bottled and offered for sale, was known as 'Berri wine.' Have fishermen committed greater follies than these fashionable people of France?"

Good for Lorenzo! Today horseshoes are so scarce that fishermen no longer nail them to the masts of their schooners to keep off witches, although they do hang used automobile casings over the side to keep off other craft that might rub their planking.

Odd Masks Worn at Festivals for Dead

One of the queer and interesting customs of the Melanesians, dark-skinned inhabitants of the South Sea islands, is the festival in honor of their dead. At their festivals masks of grotesque appearance play an important part, says the Detroit News.

A collection of such masks has been made for the American Museum of Natural History. One of them resembles a crested helmet. Masks of this type, it is said, must be carved in secret and presented to the public view only during the funeral ceremonies. The crest of the mask represents an earlier custom of hairdress of the natives when they were in mourning. In the early days they shaved their heads on such occasions, leaving only a single ridge of hair.

One particular type has long, wing-like processes. The face is carved from wood and the fibrous parts of plants are used in working out the other parts of the head. With such masks bark is used as a covering for the neck. Masks from the Gazelle peninsula, New Britain, are made from the facial bones of skulls. The flesh is removed and replaced by sticky lumps of earth.

Will It Come to This?

Mistress of House (to prospective new maid)—I think you'll do, and I'll engage you.

Maid—Yassum. But dey's jes' one moah thing Ah wants to make shuah of. Is dey anyone in de house who's learnin' de saxophone?

Mistress—Oh, yes; we are a very musical family and my husband and the two boys are taking up that instrument.

Maid—Den it's all off. Ah can't stay.

Mistress—What! Don't you like music?

Maid—Oh, yes; Ah likes music all right. Dat's jes' it. I'se learnin' de saxophone mahself, soze Ah kin play in de lodge band, an' it busts me all up to have othahs in de house practicing all de time. Ah hase to have it quiet where Ah practices.

Dickens' Clock

Charles Dickens once wrote to his clockmaker as follows, says the Scientific Monthly:

"Since my hall clock was sent to your establishment to be cleaned it has gone (as indeed it always had) perfectly well, but has struck the hours with great reluctance, and, after enduring internal agonies of a most distressing nature, it now has ceased striking altogether. Though a happy release for the clock, this is not convenient for the household. If you can, send down any confidential person with whom the clock can confer. I think it may have something on its works that it would be glad to make a clean breast of."

Calling the Turn

The pastor looked over his glasses and shook his uncut locks.

"Carry out my original declaration," he said, "I am about to call the names of those persons who are now asleep in the congregation. John Haycock."

There was no response.

"John Haycock!"

The stout man stirred again.

The pastor's voice rang out:

"You're going down, all right, John Haycock, and things will be kept very hot for you, I'm sure. Let us now sing the ninety-ninth hymn."

Don't Tell It

Two little sisters were talkative to excess. Often they divulged family secrets. Their grandmother, becoming provoked by their seemingly endless chatter, chided them by telling them they should keep everything "under their hats."

In mimicry, natural with children, Katherine, the elder, on an occasion assumed the advisory role of her grandparent by repeating the same words to her sister Anne.

Anne raised her hand to her head and said: "I have no hat on."

Dunes of Lake Michigan

Scene in the Dune Country.

AT THE head of Lake Michigan, including the entire shoreline of Indiana and parts of the adjoining shores of Illinois and Michigan, there is a dune country, unique and wonderful and entirely different from our usual ideas of sand dunes.

The vegetation of the average desert or sandy region is usually an interesting example of the survival of the fittest, and most of the plant families remaining have adapted themselves to the severe conditions of their environments. Desert plants, too, are often strikingly beautiful when in blossom; but their period of growth and luxury is very short, lasting only through the rainy season.

Conditions are reversed in the Indiana dunes, for here there is never a long period of drought, and in place of a desert area there is a natural propagating garden, where a most astonishing number of rare and beautiful plants congregate, having migrated both from the north and south to this unusually favored locality.

Here, on the shores of a great fresh-water sea, whose moisture is constantly being carried southward by the prevailing northwest winds, and tempered both in summer and winter by its position on the lake, is a region so wonderful that it has been set aside by Indiana as a great state park for study and the recreation of millions of people of the Middle West.

There are about 20 miles of shoreline, averaging a mile or more in width and containing approximately 30 square miles of land, in the dunes, still unspoiled by commercial industries. This region is situated within easy reach of more than 10,000,000 people at a nominal cost for transportation. A visit to almost any one of the national parks is a luxury beyond the reach of the majority of the people of the Middle West; but the Lake Michigan dune region can be visited at all seasons and at a cost of, at the most, a few dollars. The dunes are popular even in midwinter, and many a party of students and other outdoor enthusiasts has enjoyed the scenery and the bracing air of the lake at that time of year.

Attractions Are Varied.

The attractions of the dunes are so varied that all classes may here find recreation suited to their wishes. The tramper, the geologist, the botanist, the zoologist, the student of early American history, and those who seek only fresh air and clear skies, can find all they desire, and more than they hoped for, in this wonderland of sandy beach and forested lake shore.

The outlines of the dunes are always graceful; for Nature, though sometimes cruel, displays wonderful skill as an artist, and the exposed wind-carved sands are arranged in beautiful curves and outlines against the sky.

The topography of the dunes lends itself to the formation of marvelous plant societies; great shallow ponds, with their typical borders of marsh-loving plants; deep, sheltered hollows, perfectly dry at the bottom; active stream beds, thickly fringed with willows, alders and button-bush, with thickets of giant mallows on the mucky shores; north slopes, with trailing arbutus, wintergreen, partridge berry, hepaticas and violets, and rare ferns and orchids spread in artistic profusion; moving dunes, whose lee-ward sides extend slowly and surely south, in time covering even tall trees with their smothering blanket of sand; old dunes, clothed to their crests with vegetation, and at intervals "blow-outs," where reverse winds have uncovered ghostly tree trunks, gray and weather-beaten and entirely denuded of bark, but the wood still sound and perfectly preserved by the sand shroud with which it was surrounded.

Many trees adapt themselves to the severe conditions on the more exposed dunes, frequently sending out roots from the trunk to take advantage of the encroaching sand, and if again uncovered the roots immediately function as branches. This is particularly true of the cottonwood, which also sends out roots of remarkable length close to the surface of the sand, in this way making use of surface moisture.

Trees, shrubs, and many plants from the Far North grow side by side with others whose natural habitat is many miles south of the lake, and the plant life is bewildering to the uninitiated and a joy to the botanist. The combination of underlying sand and humus, with abundant moisture, makes a condition of soil that is ideal, and the result is a luxuriant plant growth that is almost tropical.

The dune-floor vegetation is more striking than the arborescent growth, and the wealth of herbaceous plant life is remarkable. Even on the exposed lake beach and on newly formed sand drifts pioneer plants are constantly springing up. Hardy grasses, sea rockets, artemisias, sand cherries and many others take advantage of the slightest opportunity, and around these plants embryo dunes form, which in time grow and join the everchanging and fascinating panorama of dune succession.

As soon as a slight covering of humus accumulates, possession is taken by the stronger plant growth, and bearberry, juniper, arrow woods and sumacs soon fill up the vacant spaces, preparing the way for the tree growth that is waiting its turn.

The black oak is the most conspicuous tree of the older dunes, but it is accompanied by many others, mostly deciduous, although there are a few evergreens and one other conifer—the tamarack. Basswood, poplars, tulip, sassafras, juneberry, flowering dogwood, white and gray pines and occasionally white oaks are all to be found in the drier parts of the dunes; and in the lower lands sour gum, red maple, swamp whiteoak, pawpaw, cherry and the larger sumacs grow luxuriantly in the peaty soil.

Over all the taller growth are scattered draperies of vines, softening the rigid outlines and adding their blossoms to the marvelous display.

The herbaceous plant life is even more varied and wonderful. Great masses of bird's-foot and other violets, lupines, phlox of different colors, trilliums, waxy bells of wintergreen and blueberry, hepaticas, trailing arbutus—not just a few flowers, but acres of them and miles of acres—make a natural paradise which cannot be artificially duplicated.

Coloring in the Marshes.

The marshes have their own individuality of sedges, cat-tails, reeds, and borders of the larger ferns—royal, cinnamon, and the interrupted or clayton. The Virginia chain fern in one of the drier marshes crowds out the less vigorous plant life, coloring with its fertile fronds great stretches of the marsh a beautiful sepia. The blending of browns and greens in the marshes softens the landscape to an exquisite symphony of color in pleasing contrast to the more vivid coloring of the higher land adjoining.

It is in autumn, however, that the dune coloration is at its best, for then the entire region becomes a flaring landscape of gorgeous reds and yellows. Nature goes into her winter rest with a last effort in color that is beyond adequate description. The sour gum, red maple, sumacs, and sassafras discard their modesty and vie with each other in a gorgeous riot of autumn coloring.

Many of the trees and lesser shrubs and other plants bear edible fruits, providing a sumptuous larder for hosts of birds and small animals. The bird life of the region surrounding the end of Lake Michigan is very abundant, and during migrations nowhere in the United States are there more varieties of both land and shore birds to be seen than here.

The ruffed grouse, golden eagle, horned owl and the great blue heron still visit the dunes, and in wintertime the evening grosbeak, crossbills and pine finches are attracted by the wealth of food.

Geologically, the dunes and distinctly traceable old shorelines tell the fascinating story of the glacial period antedating Lake Michigan. The nearby universities bring their classes to the dunes as a most necessary object-lesson of their natural-science courses.

Historically, also, the dunes have their place in the earlier history of the West. The old Indian trails can still be pointed out, and it was through the dunes that the pioneer French found their way from Detroit to the site of Chicago at the mouth of the Chicago river.

MORTGAGEES' SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
STOCK FARM

Under a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Wayman C. Beckman to the undersigned, dated January 13, 1925, and recorded in Liber No. 90, folio 126, etc., Mortgage Records of Garrett county, we were authorized to make sale of the property mentioned and described in said mortgage in case default should be made in any of the conditions thereof, and default having been made in the payment of both principal and interest at the time stipulated, we hereby give notice that on

SATURDAY,
the 7th Day of August, 1926,

at the hour of 2:00 o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, we will offer and sell at public auction all of the following pieces or parcels of land:

(1). A tract of land called "Dundas," containing 100 acres, more or less, and fully described in a deed from James M. Schley et ux., to one Henry Beckman, dated March 30, 1857, and recorded in Liber No. 16, folio 397, Allegany County Records.

(2). A tract of land called "Mason's Beginning," containing 100 acres, and fully described in a deed from J. McClure Mason and wife to the said Henry Beckman, dated November 30, 1859, and recorded in Liber No. 18, folio 530, Allegany County Records.

(3). Military Lot No. 1505, which was conveyed to the said Henry Beckman by Edward Hoye, substituted trustee, by deed dated July 5th, 1890, and recorded in Liber No. 16, folio 116, Land Records of Garrett County.

Saving and excepting from the above so much of the land so described as was conveyed by the said Henry Beckman to one John A. Fulmer by deed dated December 23, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 49, folio 161, Garrett County Records; the part so conveyed containing about 33¼ acres.

The above pieces or parcels of land are the same as acquired by the said Wayman Beckman under the last will and testament of Henry Beckman, recorded in Wills Liber "B." folio 452, office of Register of Wills of Garrett County.

(4). Part of a tract of land called "Woodville," containing 76 acres, conveyed to the said Wayman C. Beckman by Josiah T. Beckman, by deed dated May 31, 1904, and recorded in Liber No. 47, folio 213, Land Records of Garrett County.

The above four parcels of land compose one farm, containing about 292¾ acres; is located in the famous "Pleasant Valley," about five miles South of Oakland; more than half of it is cleared and in cultivation or pasture; is improved by a good dwelling house, barn and other necessary buildings; also a good orchard; is hut a short distance from the point known as "Allegany Heights," one of the most beautiful and extensive views on Backbone Mountain.

This farm is well watered and would make a most excellent sheep or stock farm.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further encated by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amemlment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Artiele 14 of the Constitution of Marvland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

Our Prosperity

Another measure of the prosperity of the United States may be found in the fact that capital, deposits and resources of the banks of the United States are greater now than at any time in the history of the republic. The figures were given recently by R. N. Sims, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks for the annual convention at Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Sims stated that of a total of more than 28,000 banks in the United States, 20,289 were state institutions and 8,000 national banks. These banks have a total capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than seven billions, total deposits of more than 54 billions, and resources of more than 63 billions. Deposits increased over three billions, and total resources increased $3,487,607,427 over the highest totals of the year previous. All of the banking business of the United States in both state and national banks has increased more than forty per cent since 1919, when his first report was made, according to Mr. Sims.

This imposing percentage of increase will give us some idea of the growth and development of the United States during the past six or eight years. The country is now pretty well over the reconstruction period following the war and is once more on the high road of progress and prosperity.

There are still some pessimistic voices but they are growing fewer each year. For the present year, despite the unsettled condition of Europe, increased business is expected for the autumn months and it is now being predicted that the price of wheat may go to two dollars a bushel.

There is no question about the material prosperity of the United States. Let us see that in the rush of business and progress we do not forget the fundamental principles of the government which made such progress and prosperity possible.

Dangers of Paternalism

The dangers of paternalism in the United States were called to the attention of the lawyers of the United States recently in a report submitted at their Denver convention by F. F. Dumont-Smith, of Hutchinson, Kansas, who acted as chairman of the committee on American citizenship.

The report said in part:

"The Roman citizens bartered their ancient liberties for bread and circuses. The American citizen today freely barters his individual liberties and rights for government bounties and bonuses. He demands government interference in everything and surrenders freedom and his individuality for it.

"The old viril spirit is waning to extinction. The American citizen is being pauperized by government alms. If he supports the government he asks the government in return to support him. If prices are too high, instead of doing without, he wants the government to lower them; if they are too low, he wants the government to raise them.

"He wants the government to build his roads, educate his offspring, sanitate him, physic him, bring his children into the world, prescribe his dietary, and tell him what to believe in matters of conscience.

"This tendency, constantly accelerated, is furthered by powerful groups, some of whom have selfish interests at stake, but by many whose leaders are impelled by the loftiest motives and seek them on the grounds of economic or social welfare."

The United States leads the world in social service, in charity and in other activities designed to raise the standard of citizenship. Nearly all this work has been done by our private citizens and by our smaller units of government. We are proud of this as a measure of our high civilization.

But here of late the tendence has grown to let the federal government do the bulk of the work. As a result bureaucracy has grown in a degree never dreamed of in the early days of the republic, and there are many who seem to feel that the government at Washington should regulate not only the economic but the social activities of our life. There is a danger here which should not be lost sight of in our present day of prosperity. We will only remain free and happy if we continue to govern ourselves.

The Home Owners

Figures of the activities of the building and loan associations of the United States are always interesting because they form an index of the prosperity and progress of the people of the country in moderate circumstances. These associations, as everybody knows, finance the building of homes by persons who are unable to pay cash. Of course there are now many other methods of financing the building and purchasing of homes, but the building and loan associations occupy a very important place in home financing and their activities are always significant from the standpoint of the modest home owner.

According to H. F. Cellarius, of Cincinnati, secretary of the national association of these organizations, 500,000 American homes were bought or built last year on mortgage loans secured from building and loan associations. There was a thirty per cent increase in residential building in the country during the same year There are more than 12,000 of these associations in America and their assets amount to more than five and a half billion dollars. Ten million Americans hold stock in these organizations and the increase in assets during 1925 amounted to $743,238,957 or 15.6 per cent, while the growth of membership in the associations was 1,332,645.

The growth of institutions of this kind is indicative of the prosperity of the workers of the United States. So long as the number of home owners increases so rapidly there is little danger of bolshevism in America. The American worker is rapidly becoming a capitalist, and he is going to be slow to risk his assets and his opportunity for betterment for the promise of a Utopia which he knows has never yet been made possible in a world of human shortcomings.

The Woman Voter, a monthly publication issued by an organization of Democratic women of Montgomery county, in its issue for August hands this bit of truth and advice to Governor Ritchie and his followers:

"Since the present heads of the Democratic party have repudiated the platform of 1919 and disregarded the Maryland Bill of Rights, what right have these nullificationists to ask the people of this State to again elect them to office? The Woman Voter calls upon Governor Albert C. Ritchie and Millard Tydings to withdraw, and do so at once, and thus save the Democratic party a crushing defeat in the coming election. No man is bigger than his party. And any candidate who has been so signally honored as has Albert C. Ritchie and Millard Tydings should put the party before selfish ambition.

"Neither of these candidates can be elected, and for them to continue as candidates, when they cannot truthfully take the oath of office to support the Constitution of Maryland, places the Democratic party in a most embarrassing position, and the Woman Voter warns both now, if they refuse to heed the warning cry of the men and women of this State they must be prepared to take the consequences at the hands of the voters."

Boy Scouts Off to Camp.

Boy Scouts, numbering thirty, composing the local troop, left Oakland Tuesday morning at 9:00 o'clock in cars and trucks, which were donated by the business men of the town, for their camp located along the upper reaches of Deep Creek Lake, about ten miles from Oakland, on what was formerly the Thomas A. Nethkin farm. To reach the camp one must go to Sand Flat on the State road and from that point conveniently located pointers along the roadway direct the traveler to the camp. There will be two visiting days—Wednesday and Sunday, upon which days the public will be welcomed.

Rev. Torrey, former scoutmaster of the troop, and Rev. Linaweaver, present minister in charge of St. Matthew's Parish, are both in camp and are giving Scoutmaster Shirer vaulable assistance in the management of the camp.

BITTINGER

The long-suffering farmer harnesses the old gray mare, early in the morning. He and Ezra are both set for a big day's work, so they hustle over to the north meadow, intending to put away a batch of hay before sundown, but when the sweet-scented clover is dry and ready to be hauled to the barn without any warning there comes a drenching shower and they are forced to sid placidly down and wait until the skies are clear again. Thus taking advantage of every hour of sunshine and cheerfully accepting the showers, the farmers of this section are nearing the end of their haying time for this year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp attended services in the new Pentecostal church, now nearing completion, at Sand Flat, last Sunday.

Great Plain of Saloniki

The Arch of Galerius in Saloniki.

THE greatest engineering enterprise undertaken in the Near East during modern times is to be performed by American engineers near Saloniki, Greece.

Much of the Great Plain of Saloniki, (or Plain of the Vardar) lying to the west and to the north of the city, is like the Roman campagna, a country of swamps and frequently overflowed land. For centuries this over-moist region has been the source of malaria due to the millions of mosquitoes which it breeds. Yet that portion of the plain which is dry is of wonderful fertility, producing grain, cotton, and tobacco to perfection. The enterprise will consist in draining the swampy regions and protecting the plain from overflows by controlling several rivers, this work to cost between sixteen and seventeen million dollars. In addition the course of the Vardar river will be bodily shifted at a cost of an additional ten million dollars, to protect Saloniki harbor from silting.

By the undertaking, the Greek government will itself become possessed of approximately 180,000 acres of land now submerged which, it is estimated, will be worth $27,000,000; while other lands will be benefited by about $11,000,000 and will swell the taxes.

The Saloniki plain has been famous through the ages. This level region was the heart of Macedonia, and there Alexander was born. The devastating Macedonian phalanx there learned its evolutions. At Philippi, near by, Caesar and Pompey fought their important battle. Xerxes crossed this plain with his huge army of Persians to strike at the Grecian city states; later Mithridates traveled the same road to meet the Romans. Saloniki city, then Thessalonika, flourished during New Testament times. Paul labored there and had to flee for his life. The Byzantines, then the Venetians controlled the port; and finally it fell to the Turk and remained under his heel for four centuries.

Saloniki's Fine Situation.

The city stands on rising ground at the head of a long gulf, shaped very much like what the classicists call a Phrygian cap, or what is perhaps more familiar to us as the liberty cap of the French Revolution. This gulf, bending to the east in such a way that its inner recesses can never feel the disturbances of the open sea, is formed by that peninsula of Chalcidice whose three long promontories of Kassandra, Longo and Athos are the most salient feature of the northern Aegean. The longer western shore of the gulf sweeps in a curve of over a hundred miles from Saloniki to the tip of the peninsula of Thessaly.

For the greater part of their course these spreading coasts are both high and admirable to look upon. But the line of the Greek mainland is in particular notable because above it tower the three classic peaks of Olympus (9,800 feet), Ossa or Kissavos, as it is now known (6,400 feet), and Pelion or Plessithi (5,300 feet).

As regards approaches from the land, Saloniki is also happily placed. The city faces west and south, toward Macedonia and Thessaly, looking out at Olympus through the gate of the inner bay. The immediate edges of the bay are flat, having been gradually leveled by the three rivers that pour into it. But at no great distance from the water the final spurs of the Rhodope mountains make an amphitheater which rises east of the city into three peaks of 3,000 feet each.

On the north the hill of Daoud Baba reaches a height of 1,500 feet, whence the ground drops away into the plain of the Vardar.

It is not surprising that a city so admirably placed, whether for defense or for communication, enjoying the temperate climate of the northern Aegean, and amply provided with the various resources of field, wood, and water, should long have been known to men, and that its possession should often have been disputed.

Founded by Kassander of Macedon.

Yet compared to its two great neighbors, Athens and Constantinople, Saloniki is relatively a modern town. Founded originally as an Ionian colony, the place was first known as Therme, or Therma, from the hot springs which still exist in that eastern district of the bay.

The present town was founded about 315 B. C. by King Kassander of Macedon, and named after his wife, Thessalonike, half sister to Alexander the Great. The adjoining peninsula of Kassandra takes its name from the king himself, who founded another city on its shore.

Under the Romans, Saloniki grew greatly in importance. Made a free city, the capital of the surrounding region, it became the home of many Roman colonists, and not a few famous names associate themselves with the town. Cicero lived there for a time in exile.

During the Byzantine period Saloniki became the second city of the empire. Its situation made it the commercial capital of the Balkan peninsula, and it rivaled Constantinople as a port of traffic between eastern Europe and Alexandria.

Saloniki has been compared to Genoa. But one's first impression is of a disappointing flatness, not in the least comparable to the lofty air—the piled, bastioned, heaven-scaling air—of the Italian city. Yet Saloniki scales heaven, too, in her more discreet manner.

And there is even something faintly Italian about her. This is most palpable on the broad quay of the water front, especially when a veritable row of fishermen from the Adriatic are drying nets or sails under the sea wall, just as they do in Venice. The crescent of white buildings facing the blue bay would not look foreign in any Rimini or Spezzia. The White Tower, which is the most conspicuous of them, might have been the work of an Italian prince.

What the People Are Like.

As for the people, a good many would pass without question. Just such slight and trim young men in Italy would sit at little tables on the sidewalk. Just such young women, rather pale and powdered as to complexion, rather dusky as to eyes and hair, would sit beside them. And you hear a good deal of Italian. But you hear more of other and less familiar languages. And those red fezzes are a new note.

A more striking note is afforded by numerous dignified old gentlemen taking their ease in bathrobes, as it were, slit a little up the side and tied about the waist with a gay silk girdle. Over the bathrobe they usually wear a long, open coat lined with yellow fur, which guards them from the cold in winter and in summer from the heat. And none of them is without a string of beads, preferably of amber, dangling from his hand and giving him something to play with.

A dozen different estimates of the population will be given an enquirer, varying according to the race of the informant; but they all agree on the point that Saloniki contains not far from 150,000 people, and that more than half of them are Jews.

There is also a considerable Moslem population of Hebrew origin, mainly descended from the followers of Sabatai Levi of Smyrna, a would-be Messiah of the Seventeenth century, who created a great stir in this part of the world, and who, being at last offered his choice between death and Islam, elected the latter.

FUTURE LIFE.

By F. F. CORLISS.

Job was seeking knowledge and he simply asked shall we live again? He did not inquire where or how or for how long shall we live. And to me, that seems to be the thing of prime importance.

Job had wonderful patience and one would naturally think that he would rather die and go to Nirvana than to wish to live on in a resurrected body so painfully afflicted as his. But his thought is remarkable in showing us how strong is the inborn instinct to live, live on. For history gives us no record of one who suffered more pain, trials and tribulations of the flesh.

Regardless of our religious belief, we are all classed philosophically as either Spiritualists, Materialists or Agnostics.

The Agnostics are neutrals in thought. They say they do not know and are not going to speculate or guess about anything that they can not see, weigh or measure. To be a Materialist is to be an outcast among thinkers because they deny reason and common sense.

The Hindus and some of the Chinese believe they are going to Nirvana—a condition of endless sleep or utter extinction.

The rest of the world are classed as Spiritualists, but it does not follow that they have to believe in trance medium communications with the departed or slate writing and such.

Now nature has revealed to man with unimpeachable evidence that life and mind are a continuity on all planes of existence, visible or invisible. That life and intelligence once raised to the level of self-consciousness ever goes marching on, progressively unfolding itself and improving its environment. And that life in man does not cease with the decay of the body and return to its elemental primitive life like the life that dies in a tree or flower.

Nature may appear wasteful, but she is not and her laws governing the universe prove the conservation of energy, and if she is so careful that not an atom of her material substance shall ever be lost, is it reasonable to suppose that she will destroy the soul the life of man, the one and only thing that can reach the goal? The one and only thing in all the universe that really matters. The one and only medium through which God can express His noblest attributes. The only instrument He has for the development of His planet, the interpretation and execution of His cosmic purpose and the unfolding of His evolutionary process on the high levels of life and learning.

Having discovered that our lives are immortal, the next question is, where shall we live and how be conditioned?

In the cosmic scheme of things, death functions as an essential factor in the perfection of life, in giving it a new and richer field for its elevation to higher levels, just as mind is essential for the moulding of matter and regrouping its molecules into new and better living forms, in accordance to their chemical affinities and the law of growth.

But most of us have been taught to believe in a spiritual life beyond the grave. We are simply souls invested with an ethereal body that has neither weight or special dimensions, that is impervious to heat or cold; that requires neither food nor drink, clothes or shelter. We are supposed to go first to the Astral Plane, an ethreal zone that surrounds earth like one of Saturn's rings, thence as we qualify spiritually, we go higher and enter the Mental zone and so we keep on climbing into a purer, better life with perfection as our ultimate goal.

Now in this great ethreal void we toil not, neither do we spin. It is a place of eternal bliss where we can rest in quietude or float about and find our friends, play an imaginary harp and sing to the morning stars.

This picture of the future life was impressed on me in my childhood days by very devout teachers, but it has always seemed so unnatural, vague and shadowy that I have never been able with all my study through the intervening years, to comprehend it.

Now as a matter of fact, a truth of nature, we know that life and learning, mind and matter all have their source in an ethereal, mataphysical realm invisible to man.

We know, also, that the Creator, while He confines Himself to this invisible, intangible sphere is helpless to express or manifest His highest attributes. He would exist as a spiritual force, made manifest in His laws governing chemical and electrical affinities and in gravitation, but until He made man on this planet or on others there would be no one to know Him to appreciate his loving kindness, wisdom and His wondrous works.

So we find that all things originate from a spiritual conception within an ethereal medium invisible to us.

That by the law of growth and accretion they develop and become visible and tangible and thus spiritually invests itself in materiality as its only means of expression.

Hence planets were made for the abodes of men and supermen, that on them both God and man could expound to its completeness the one Divine purpose of existence.

The cultivation and perfection of all self-conscious, namely: living souls.

Nature is self-revealing—her own interpreter. Man simply observes, classifies, verifies and records her methods of doing things. And he finds that conscious life is self-existing, self-perpetuating, and that its only way of living is by constant and endless change. This fact is demonstrated in our own bodies, in the cell life which is daily dying and daily being renewed.

Life in its static form, in the lower levels, has but little value to God or man, save as being raw material which can be changed, moulded and evolved into higher forms made sensitive and given the power of self-motion, uplift and leverage for the attainment of life's noblest and richest gifts.

"Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

Our naturalists, biologists and other scientists have asked and sought and been rewarded by finding that out of the invisible, intelligent life emerges and embodies itself in matter for the purpose of higher self-expression and greater usefulness.

From the acorn springs the living oak. So life, starting with a microscopic cell materializes itself in an Emerson, a Shakespeare and a Newton.

When we actually behold the Creator giving to life one physical embodiment we know that He can repeat the act, especially when, for the completion of the Divine purpose in man, His life's embodiment becomes the prime essential to activity and his high attainment.

It follows that an embodied life can not exist in a realm that is void and vacuous or ethereal, that it must have a supporting substance like a planet on which to live and move and develop its inherent qualities.

Further, we find that nature's shibboleth is ever onward and upward in a progressive spiral. She never suffers retrogression, like the return of highly developed complex forms to those of the low and simple type.

If, at the dissolution of man's physical body, his life, his soul, returns to the invisible, spiritual zone, the place of his birth, then nature's purpose would abort and she would gain nothing but travail.

Yes, we are here for schooling, to contact many lives and be disciplined through experience and if we pass our exams, at the end of our course we may be re-embodied and pass on to a higher sphere for learning which may be on Centauri, Vega, Sirius or Andromeda. But if we have misused our time and talent here, spent them in dissipations, in gambling, cheating, drinking moonshine and quarrelling with our neighbors, we will likely be again embodied on earth and made to repeat the course. So until we can graduate here with credit we have but little hope for a better, brighter life incarnate on Venus, Altair or elsewhere.

No, a spiritual life is to me undesirable, impracticable—a fanciful yet monstrous myth. A place where the soul forever dwells as a ghostly apparition; just a shadow of his mortal being. Here he is to live in ease and insipid inanity, deprived of power to use or to benefit by the wisdom and experience that earth's school life gave him.

This life imposes on our credulity and stultifies our God given intelligence and reasoning faculty.

We all have a right to pin our faith on it if it satisfies the hoping heart and pacifies the mind.

But what would we think of a father, who, at the expense of much time and money, give his son a technical education which might be in the law, in chemistry, astronomy, in medicine or music, and then at the end of his training course sent him back to the farm to plow and plant, or confined him in some vast and vacant auditorium made beautiful? Would we call him just, kind, loving, reasonablee and considerate or his son's well-being?

No, it is discreditable to our Maker and impossible to believe that we are here to be trained, educated, to gain wisdom from experience and to build a worthy character and then suffer extinction of the soul, or be sent into a realm vacant and invisible, there to spend an endless life of innocent desuetude.

Out of all the philosophies, isms and oligies I can gather no hope for the future life of man save that of the soul's re-embodiment on earth or on some other revolving globe within the starry firmament.

Because re-embodiment is a cosmic law, a law of nature, and all things have to conform to it.

Suns and planets have their birth, childhood, maturity, death and decay like human beings.

We live in a world of vibration where life can only persist by it ceaseless changes and is itself the cause of changes.

Our accumulations of wisdom and experience we carry over from one embodiment to another.

All physical forms were born to die, and die that higher, better forms may be born, live, grow and improve.

Thus our dying forms become the stepping stones for the souls' escent into a future life that is purer, better, brighter and beautiful.

"Experience is the best teacher"

"That certainly applies to making gasoline. Prominent oil men tell me years and years of striving are necessary before a company can produce a gasoline that gives motorists what they want these days; snappy starting, good pull for the high stretches, lively motor always—all qualities which only experience can teach.

"Take 'Standard' Gasoline. There's fifty-six years of experience behind that brand. And it's the best straight gasoline you can buy. Always dependable—obtainable everywhere."

says Dealer Dan

"STANDARD" GASOLINE

Cajun Justices Not Ruled by Blackstone

The old cajun justices of southwestern Louisiana were important personages. The trials, which were held at the justices homes, were made all-day affairs, the neighbors driving in from miles around. Evidence was taken interminably, although the verdict was usually based upon the justice's point of view rather than upon any mere point of law.

For example, I know of a planter who brought suit against one of his tenants for the recovery of a calf. His ownership being proved, he was awarded possession of the animal. Next he was ordered to pay the costs of the court.

"But," objected the planter, "I have won my case. The loser should pay."

"True," agreed the justice. "But then, m'sieu, you have the money, whereas the other has not."

However, it was in domestic matters that these "prairie judges" really shone. One of them declared proudly that he could marry and divorce quicker than any other man in the state.

"It is quite simple," said he. "Gobie wishes to tie up with some girl. That is all right. He gives me $5 and I write down his marriage in my book.

"After a while he don't like it? He wants to be free? That is all right again. For $10 more I tear out the page."—Nevil Henshaw in Adventure Magazine.

Kruger's Idea Was to Make Camp on Ocean

The sight of the trackless ocean and a ship punching the waves, always brings back to this writer the authentic story of Paul Kruger, the president of the Transvaal republic, and his attempt to teach a group of Hottentot children the story of America's discovery, Pierre Van Passen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. His representation of a ship conjured up a mental picture of a floating covered wagon. Oom Paul's imagination may have been magnificent, but it failed him miserably on the occasion when he was traveling from Capetown to Southampton in the pathetic mission of seeking aid for his country at the chancelleries of Europe. When night descended Oom Paul, who in his youth had slain an African lion with his bare hands, became nervous and agitated. Finally he could hold out no longer. Briskly he climbed the ladder to the captain's bridge. The officer saluted. "Tell me," said the Boer president, "where do you plan to unhitch tonight. It's getting dark, you know, and I think we had better make camp." When reassured by the skipper he went back to his cabin, read the story of St. Paul's shipwreck, drank a stein of beer and fell asleep.

The Dirty Work

The helplessness of mere man in the presence of ordinary domestic tasks was illustrated in the case of the old miner, who explained that he had once tried to improve his cooking by studying a book of recipes. "It was no use," he said sadly, "because every one of them receipts starts off with 'take a clean dish.'"

He was kin to one of the sons of a Mrs. MacLeod. She was called away from home one day just after dinner. As she was leaving she said to one of the boys:

"One of you must wash the dishes and the other wipe them and put them away, so that everything will be tidy when I get back."

"All right, mother," said Jack, "but Will's got to wipe them. I'm willing to wash, but wiping is such greasy work."

Cosmopolitan South Africa

South Africa is among the most cosmopolitan places in the world, according to L. Kee, writing in the Sydney Bulletin.

"I saw a suitcase in the window of a shop in Durban and decided to buy it," says Kee. "A pleasant Hindu took my order and requisitioned a negro boy to get the article from the window. A girl (race unascertainable because only her eyes were visible; but they had a suspicious blue Chinese tint in their whites) typed the sale note, and an aged white man took my cash. Finally a Zulu, dressed like Beelzebub, 'rickshawed me and the case to the hotel. Each addressed the other in a different lingo."

Land in Extreme North?

The theory that land exists between Alaska and the pole has persisted for hundreds of years, and Dr. R. A. Harris, an American geographer, won considerable notice a few years ago by offering Arctic tide tables as proof of the existence of a large land mass north of Alaska, says Burt M. McConnel, in the Independent. There is also the fact that geese and ducks have been observed flying directly northward from Point Barrow during the early summer, and returning with their young a few months later from the same point of the compass. These are a few of the interesting theories in favor of the existence of land.

"I love my uncle andante."

"Give me a sentence with the word ammonia."

"Ammonia track, cried Sherlock Holmes exultantly."

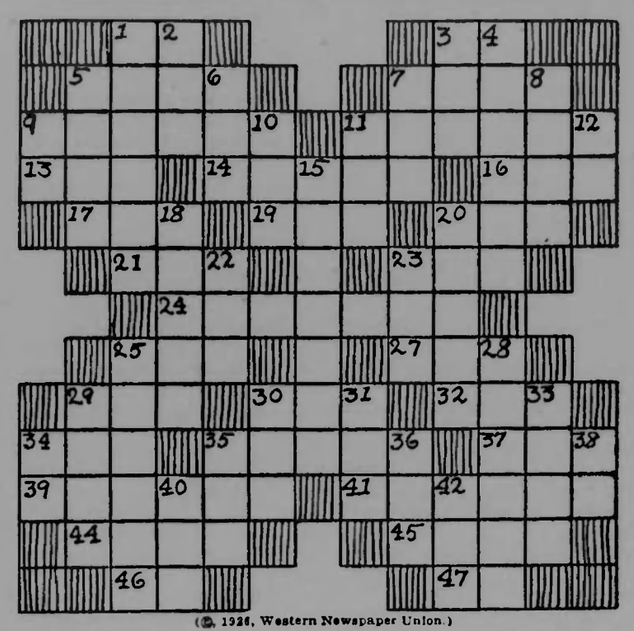
More Dependable Than Ever

Dodge Brothers, Inc., achieved third place in world production this Spring because they have been able—WITHOUT SACRIFICING FUNDAMENTALS—steadily to improve the smartness of their product.



Owners and engineers know well that mechanically the car is sturdier than ever—cost of upkeep lower—and performance more dependable.

Refinements and lower prices have been made possible by spectacular increases in sales. Not by violating the basic tenet of Dodge Brothers success: NEVER TO LOWER QUALITY IN A SINGLE DETAIL.

THE GIVING OF THE MANNA

Exodus 15:22-16:36.

Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life.—John 6:33.

THE GREAT NEED.

Out of the shade and greenery of Egypt's lowlands these marchers passed jubilantly across the sea and shouted and sang as they began their journey to their land of promise. But in the oven heat and shifting sand into which their feet sunk as they stepped weariness soon took complete possession of them. Hot, tired and thirsty, they reached Marah and flung down their packs for a drink. "Bah! It's bitter!" cried the earliest arrival, and discouragement settled like a pall over their spirits. The couple of hours farther to Elim and its shade and cooling wells was worse than a day's march. Then on they went into the desert of Sin with its verdureless plains, its brazen sky, its furnace heat, its glaring sunshine, its storms in which "sheets of sand fleet along the desert like streams of water. The whole air is filled, tho invisibly, with a tempest of sand driving in your face like sleet. Everything is lost to view save the nearest objects. The noise of these storms is peeculiar it screams and howls like demons led by the prince of the power of the air. Hence the force of Moses's description, 'a howling wilderness.'" And these slaves who had cowered under the lash thru most of their days "murmured" over these conditions. Well, I've heard Americans complain about the weather both winter and summer and be well-fed and in paradise compared with these hungry immigrants in utterly strange circumstances. And they were hungry. All the provisions were being exhausted, flocks and herds could not be used up without peril and the picnic venture for liberty had changed to a struggle for bare existence with no Land of Promise for long years yet. They were disillusioned, dispirited, hungry, thirsty, dirty, tired and sand in their sandals—try it and see if the "Government" doesn't come in for kicks.

What did they need? About everything material. But their greatest was the making of an indomitable spirit that could face its hardships with good cheer, that could find God in the midst of privation and rejoice in working with Him toward a larger good. God's land demands God's men. His cheif concern is character instead of condition. The long fight of Israel was against the notion that prosperity was the sole evidence of God's approval and even our President calmly informed the nation that America's boundless wealth is proof of her goodness. To be able to fail, to suffer, to go to the cross for God and keep sweet in the doing it is to need no land of primise ahead, it is already to possess it.

THE GREAT LEADER.

God meets our neeed supreme thru some human leader. And the more one becomes acquainted with Moses the higher he towers above the ordinary folk. He kept these murmuring men marching. They were held face to face with the hardships and carried forward. Like our doughboys who were "always hungry, always broke and no matter where they were wished they were somewhere else," and still advanced, so these complainers crossed the desert and climbed the rugged fastnesses. They threatened to stone him but followed him. They talked Egypt and followed him away from it. In the hour of their bitterest disappointments he found a way to sweeten the waters of their Marah. He could find water in abundance in the midst of the dusty desert and could produce food where there had been starvation. He worked them; he commanded them; he organized them; he wrote laws for them; he fed them; he gave them drink; he made God real to them in a way they had never known in all their days and it is small wonder that he is the outstanding figure of their history. They were made into a nation thru his persistent determination that they should become fit for citizenship in their dream empire. To accomplish half what he did with them would have marked him an outstanding figure. God gives us our first hit of spiritual manhood thru some man or woman who has dominated our hearts. It was a teacher who set Beecher toward his life goal; it was a mother who made McKinley; it was a Moody who stirred Grenfell; it is Christ who has made Christendom. Give God our best manhood and there is no setting limits to what will follow.

THE GREAT SUPPLY.

God fed them. How it was done, no man may say. They faced forty years of pitiless wilderness and emerged fit to contend with the walled cities of Palestine. Some say it was the "manna" known today exuding from the tamarisk tree. Some say it never happened. Some say it is poetry for preservation. Whatever one may say, Israel lived and gave God the credit. One can not very well brush aside a race with a wave of the hand or close the case with a Hebrew doing business in the next street. He evidently lived thru that wilderness and being human he had to eat. And God furnished bread.

But God never pauperizes. The gift was there, but the man must gather it or go hungry. If he chose to sleep till noon he could fast the next day. It was a perfectly simple arrangement. There were neither idle rich nor idle poor in the democracy of labor. Nor was one man permitted to "corner" the supply and exact toll for the doing of it. Nor could he hoard it by piling up reserves because the attempt brought polluted wealth. And there was the leisure sufficient for the largest enjoyment of it; the seventh day was a rest and worship day, emphasizing the fact that one ean not live by bread alone even if it is the corn of heaven. God wants neither a splendid animal with an emaciated soul nor an ascetic angel whose soul has no body that it can use. A man mumbled out an excuse for his dishonesty and included the phrase, "A man has to live." "No, he doesn't have to live," flashed back the answer, "but he does have to be honest; I'd starve before I'd be a thief." For a man to spend all his time fattening up his body is to give his soul a wooden leg instead of a wing.

THE GREAT GOD.

Back of every other idea of these glowing pages is the presence of God. Moses was but His messenger able to tap resources unseen of others because of his "seeing the invisible." God furnished every needed thing, even in the wilderness. He is equal to any need of any desert. "They are at their wits' end," sings the Psalmist. "Then"—God and the desired haven. There's bread enough in the granry of God to supply the world. There's resources enough with Him to meet every emergency of any and all lives. He who fed five thousand in a desert place said also, "I am the bread of life," and God who gave us Christ will not withhold any good thing, whether the desert be one of our own sin, of sorrow, suffering, defeat, disappointment or any other, even death itself.

To Make Tires of Paper.

Experiments have recently been made in Europe looking to the utilization of paper in the manufacture of pneumatic tires, tests recently made having convinced the experimenters that paper has the strength of metal, the elasticity of rubber, and a cheapness that is to be found in neither of these materials: all important qualities.

BIDS FOR COAL FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

SEALED BIDS will be received by The Board of Education of Garrett County, Md., at its offices in the Court House, Oakland, Md., until 12 o'clock noon of

FRIDAY, AUGUST 13th, 1926,

for the furnishing of Coal for fuel purposes for any or all of the public schools of Garrett county for the school year of 1926-1927.

All coal is to be delivered to the school houses before December 1st, 1926, unless authority is given by the trustees of any individual school for later delivery and sufficient amount of coal for the needs of the school for the year is to be delivered.

The price submitted is to be based upon 2,000 pounds to the ton, delivered in the coal houses or bins of the schools. Coal must be of good grade and clean. The name or brief description of coal to be supplied should be included in all bids. Bids may be made for all or any number of different schools; but the Board of Education reserves the right to award bids according to its judgment if the average price of a number of bids for various schools is less than individual bids for separate schools.

The approximate number of tons necessary for any school or schools may be learned from the school trustees or upon inquiry by letter to the office of The Board of Education of Garrett County.

The successful bidder or bidders should be prepared to furnish, if requested by The Board of Education, at the expense of the Board, a surety, or trust company or personal bond, at the option of the Board, guaranteeing delivery of coal according to the stipulations named in this published notice, as also in the sealed bid submitted.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 51. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, AUGUST 12, 1926. NUMBER 25.

LAWTON AND MARKLEY CANDIDATES FOR HOUSE

Both Are Residents of Oakland —Former Senator Speicher an Avowed Candidate for Senate

Polities these latter days preceding the State-wide primary election to be held on September 14th, are beginning to warm up and candidates who have put off from day to day to announce their intentions, are bestirring themselves to get their names before the people prior to the close of the books, which, according to information given out at the Supervisors' officee will be Saturday for State candidates and Monday, the 23d inst. for purely local or county candidates.

The latest aspirants to make formal announcement of their candidacy are Messrs. Arthur Lawton and Albert Markley, both of Oakland. The office they seek is that of members of the House of Delegates. Garrett county is entitled to three members in this law-making body. At this time there are three aspirants and if no others appear the contest for place will not be considered in the primary election. Messrs. Lawton and Markley announce their candidacy in The Republican today.

Mr. Lawton, should he be successful in his aspirations, will not be entirely new to Legislative mannerisms and duties. He served at a recent sess of the House as assistant clerk and for a month Chief Clerk of that body. As a resident of Oakland he has been identified with various business enterprises. Until recently he was active in the management of the Lawton Electrical Company, but for the past several months, following an operation for appendicitis from which he has not entirely recovered, he has been unable to give the business much of his personal attention.

Mr. Markley, as a resident of Crellin, represented the county in the lower house three years ago at which time he was elected by a large majority and his service to his constituents was satisfactory. Mr. Markley recently moved to Oakland from Crellin and has been engaged in selling insurance since his residence here.

Former Senator Harvey J. Speicher was in Oakland yesterday morning when he made an informal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Senate. His formal announcement will be printed in The Republican next Thursday at which time he will enunciate the platform upon which he hopes to be nominated.

With the entrance of Senator Speicher in the race the number of Senatorial aspirants is three, namely, Messrs. A. D. Naylor, of Oakland; N. R. Selby, Selbysport, and H. J. Speicher, of Accident.

The Republican primary ballot to be voted at the election on September 14th will be rather long and will contain the names of State as well as local candidates.

The Republican candidates, State, National and local, who have either filed their nomination papers with the Board of Election Supervisors in Oakland or who have made announcement of their candidacy are as follows:

For United States Senator
Ovington E. Weller, Baltimore City.
John Philip Hill, Baltimore City.

For Congress.
Frederick N. Zihlman, Allegany county.
George Louis Eppler, Allegany county.

For Governor.
Marion A. Humphries.

For State Senator.
Nathan R. Selby, Selbysport.
Alonzo D. Naylor, Oakland.
Harvey J. Speicher, Accident.

For House of Delegates
Payton A. Dixon, Election District No. 8.
Arthur Lawton, Election District No. 14.
Albert Markley, Election District No. 14.

For County Commissioners.
H. V. Leighton, District No. 7.
Daniel E. Orendorf, Election District No. 7.
George D. Browning, Election District No. 2.
Joel A. Beachy, Election District No. 3.
Charles A. Ashby, Election District No. 10.
Gorge Giessman, Election District No. 14.
J. C. Meyers, of Shallmar, Election District No. 13.
For Clerk to County Commissioners.
George W. Sterling, Election District No. 7.
Walter G. Meyers, Election District No. 7.

For County Treasurer.
Albert L. Lee, Election District No. 13.
William M. Frazee, Election District No. 7.
Richard J. Nicholson, Election District No. 8.
Charles F. Hammond, Election District No. 14.
George D. White, Election District No. 14.
Clever A. Michael, Election District No. 4.
Guy O. Yutzy, Election District No. 7.
Charles S. May, Election District No. 7.

For Sheriff.
Bert C. Scott, Election District No. 14.
John W. Kimmell, Election District No. 10.
John C. Forman, Election District No. 14.
Frank Blake, Election District No. 7.
Roy O. Winters, Election District No. 7.
George Hipsley, Election District No. 7.
William D. Casteel, District No. 14.

For Judges Orphans' Court
Homer Friend, Election District No. 2.
Truman W. Casteel, Election District No. 7.
William M. Trickett, Election District No. 7.
J. Thomas Moon, Election District No. 10.
Henry Kamp, Election District No. 5.

For Chief Judge Fourth Judicial Circuit.

In addition to the above Senatorial, Congressional, State and local officers, the Republicans will have as their candidate for Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, Mr. D. Lindley Sloan, well-known lawyer of the Allegany county bar. Mr. Sloan's qualifications for the judgeship are so well and favorably known and his circle of acquaintances so large in every county composing the District that his nomination will be made without material opposition.

On the other hand the Democrats will have a contest on hand for the judiciary nomination. W. P. Wachter, of Washington county, has filed his nomination papers with the local election board as has also Judge William C. Walsh, of Cumberland.

Other Democratic Candidates.

Other Democrats who have filed nomination papers with the local Board of Supervisors of Elections are the following:

For U. S. Senator.
M. E. Tydings.

For Governor.
William Miles Maloy, of Baltimore City.
Albert C. Ritchie, of Annapolis.

For Attorney General.
Thomas H. Robinson, of Baltimore City.

For Clerk of the Court of Appeals.
James A. Young, of Annapolis.

For Comptroller of the Treasury.
Wiliam S. Gordy.

For Judge of the Orphans' Court.
Joseph Feather, Election District No. 7.

For Members of State Central Committee of Garrett County.
Mrs. Elwood Offutt, Oakland; Gilead Broadwater, Grantsville; Robert Sharpless, Oakland; John Holman, Friendsville; Miss Frances Hamill, Oakland; Thomas J. Browning, Oakland; Ernest Liller, Oakland.

Congressman Zihlman Made Address to Oakland Rotarians.

At the Friday evening luncheon of the Oakland Rotary Club, Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman addressed the club in his usual happy and entertaining manner. His talk pertained to the City of Washington. In it he outlined its history, growth, recent development and government, and also outlined the plans now under advisement for its further beautification and expansion. By virtue of the fact that Mr. Zihlman is chairman of the District of Columbia House Committee he has an intimate acquaintance with these details.

Another guest at the Friday evening luncheon was Mr. Robert Evans, of Newton, Mass., who, with Mrs. Evans, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sincell.

Mr. Lawrence K. Dixon, of Oakland, was admitted to membership in the club, which now numbers twenty-seven.

Mr. Herman Steiding, of the Swanton section of Garrett county, was here as a business visitor on Monday.

FOUR CHILDREN OF GREEN FAMILY DIE MYSTERIOUSLY

Seven Others Are In a Critical Condition—Polluted Water Probably the Cause

Four deaths have occurred in the family of Mr. and Mrs. William Green, who live a few miles west of Lonaconing, in Garrett county, within the past week, and the rest of the family of eleven still remain in a critical condition, suffering from a rare disease which physicians believe is bacillary dysentery.

The death toll reached four on Tuesday, when Rosalie, aged 13 years, died in the Miners Hospital at Frostburg at four o'clock in the afternoon. Other children in the family who died are: Bessie Marie, aged 2 years, 8 months and 12 days; Charles, aged 4, and Catherine, aged 4 years, 11 months and 10 days.

Water Blamed

Cistern water, which the family used for drinking purposes, is believed to be the carrier of the disease which is very rare. Recently Mr. Green had a new composition roof placed upon the building from which water is carried to the cistern in question, but it is not known that the disease had its origin from this cause.

At the time the first child was taken ill and until a few days ago every effort was made by the attending physician, Dr. E. Don Taylor, of Lonaconing, to diagnose the case, but it was not until a test of the water was made at the Cumberland city laboratory that any clue to the malady was found. From the tests it was ascertained that the water was badly polluted and contained germs, which the children contracted, causing them to become weak and practically helpless.

At present three of the children are in the Miners Hospital with their grandfather, William Henry Green, aged 67 years, who was also stricken, while the father and four other children are ill at the Garrett county home. The most recent cases at the home was that of the father and the twin infants, boy and girl, only one week old, who were admitted to the hospital yesterday, along with the mother, who, however, has not been attacked by the disease.

Since the first case in the Green family developed early this month experts in the health department of the State have been working on it. These experts include medical men from Baltimore, and everything to reduce the suffering of the children has been done.

To Administer Serum

The Cumberland Chapter, American Red Cross, hearing of the plight of the Green children, offered their assistance, and through their efforts a costly serum was administered to the sufferers yesterday morning.

The attending physician, the county health nurse and the members of the Cumberland city laboratory staff have given much of their time and attention to the cases and it is hoped that the serum will rid the sufferers of the disease.

The bodies of the little victims of the disease lie side by side in a cemetery not far from the home and tomorrow the remains of the fourth victim will be placed there also.

The mother, the only member of the once overly large family, who has not been stricken with the disease, is heart-broken and is mourning the loss of her children. She, too, is weak, and is being cared for by her neighbors, or was until admitted to the hospital. Her neighbors are kind and generous and have given much of their time and attention to the sorely afflicted family.

Republican Women Met Friday.

The August meeting of the Republican women of Garrett county was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Willison, Oakland, with several new members present.

Following the general business of the club was a most interesting discussion concerning the issues and policies of the club in relation to the fall electoins . One definite aim decided upon by the club was to support only those candidates who are strictly and openly in favor of law enforcement.

The next meeting will be held in the Court House the early part of September at which time there will be a speaker from the Federation of Women's Clubs of Maryland and to which meeting the women of the county are especially invited. The exact date for this meeting will be published in The Republican in a later issue.

YOUTHS CONFESSED TO A SERIES OF ROBBERIES

Committed In Oakland Saturday Night When Three Stores were Robbed and Fourth Attempted

Carlton Bowers and Martin Filsinger, both of whom are minors, after having confessed to numerous robberies and attempted robberies in Oakland, were sentenced to St. Mary's Industrial School at Baltimore for an indefinite length of time by Justice E. I. West, Tuesday morning.

The boys were placed under arrest by Sheriff Yutzy and after being brought before the authorities and questioned at length, both owned up to the series of attempts and were committed without trial to serve the sentences imposed upon them. They will be taken to the industrial institution today or tomorrow by the county authorities.

The extent of their depredations include the burglary of A. D. Naylor & Co's hardware store on Liberty street; Harry Miller's meat store on the same street, which was entered on Saturday night and again on Sunday night; Joseph Helbig's pool room, on Second street, and an attempt to enter the warehouse of D. M. Dixon & Son on Green street.

In every instance entrance to the buildings was effected through rear windows from which the glass was first broken and the window locks thrown.

This will be young Bowers' third commitment to the industrial school and young Filsinger's first trip.

Bowers' mother is dead and his father is a confirmed invalid as the result of an attack of paralysis which he suffered about eight months ago. The Filsinger boy's father died several years ago. The mother teaches school during the term the schools are open and exerts her every influence to direct the boy straight.

On Friday night the postoffice building at Mountain Lake Park was entered by unknown parties. In the postoffice room nothing of value was obtained by the burglars, but in Dick Moore's barber shop, located on the upper floor of the building five razors and a pair of shears was stolen. Adjoining the postoffice on the ground floor is located a confectionery store, which was also entered and several dollars' worth of candy and other merchandise carried off.

MARRIED.

Thompson —Smouse—Miss Elizabeth Ellen Smouse, daughter of Mrs. Anna E. Smouse, of Oakland, and Mr. James Ewart Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, of Weirton, West Va., were quietly married at the home of the bride early Tuesday morning, the Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Oakland, officiating. Following the ceremoy, breakfast was served, after which the couple left by motor for Washington, Atlantic City and other eastern points. The impressive ring ceremony was used with Master Edward Smouse, nephew of the bride, as ring bearer. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Oliver Smouse, who also played "I Love You Truly" during the marriage rites.

The bride wore a dark blue jacket suit with a bridal corsage of roses, sweet peas and bridal wreaths. The color scheme of white and yellow was carried out throughout the home and was very prettily arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson contemplate making their home at Holliday's Cove, West Va., where the groom is engaged as an electrical engineer in the steel mills of that city.

Guests present at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gregg, of Holliday's Cove, Weirton, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smouse; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Smouse, Myersville, Md.; Miss Edna Peters, Westernport, Md., and Miss Lillian Sincell, Oakland.

At the local Presbyterian church Sunday morning, Rev. H. A. Grubbs will preach his final sermon as pastor of that church and at the close of the sermon, according to church law and by order of the Baltimore Presbytery, the pulpit in the church will be declared vacant. At the evening service to be conducted in St. Mark's Lutheran church, in appreciation of the service rendered that congregation by Rev. Grubbs during the period of time when the pulpit was not occupied, Rev. and Mrs. Grubbs will be guests of the church and congregation.

GOVERNOR ALBERT RITCHIE VISITS OAKLAND SATURDAY

Where He Was Tendered a Luncheon at the Home of Mrs. Elwood Offutt.

Last Saturday afternoon, Governor Albert C. Ritchie, who was in Allegany county two or three days last week, motored to Oakland and at the home of Mrs. Elwood Offutt, adjoining twn, a reception was tendered him, many people going out from Oakland to pay their respects.

The Governor was accompanied by Congressman Tydings, Judge Robert E. King, of Cumberland, and Edward J. Donahue, Frostburg, secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee of Allegany county.

Mrs. Offutt, who is a member of the local Democratic committee, had as her guests in addition to the Governor and his party, William Browning, Asa T. Matthews, Mrs. J. L. Pollock and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, associate members of the committee, to whom a luncheon was served.

WESTERN MARYLAND TENNIS TOURNAMENT ON

Semi-Finals of Men's Singles Scheduled For To-day With Four Star Players Battling

Mountain Lake Park, Aug. 11—The seventh annual Western Maryland tennis championships, in progress since Monday on the Women's Civic Club courts here, have proven unquestionably the most successful net events in local history. Drawing skilled and noted entries from Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Chicago, Cumberland, Charleston, Washington, Pa., and surrounding towns, the tournament has offered competition both spirited and sensational.

The semi-finals of the men's singles milling are carded for tomorrow morning with Frank S. Smith, Pittsburgh star, meeting "Stump" Friedrichs, of Wheeling, in the upper half, and G. A. Sawin, another Steel City ace, taking on Gwynn King, brilliant National Capital player, in the lower. Smith advanced this morning by dint of downing Alfred McCabe, Jr., of Coraopolis, Pa., 6-4, 6-3, in a stirring fore-court duel. Friedrichs moved ahead at the expense of his famed fellow-townsman, Senator Wright Hugus, who flashed brilliantly in set two, only to fall by a 6-0, 0-6, 6-1 count. Sawin fought through the quarter-finals by edging out Capt. Miller, Washington, D. C., veteran, 6-4, 7-5, while King forged to the front with victory over Bob Place, University of Chicago freshman luminary, after a torrid combat, 5-7, 6-0, 6-2.

Favorites have come through thus far in the women's division, which boasts, incidentally, the strongest array of feminine racquet talent assembled in this section of the country in many a day. Elizabeth Hugus, of Wheeling, clicked off her first round opponent, Miss Dezzette, of Washington, Pa., 6-2, 6-3, early today and drove so vigorously in so doing that her stock as candidate to retain the title she captured just a year ago, soared decidedly skyward. Mrs. DeLloyd Thompson, of Little Washington, Heloise Beebe, Virginia State premier, Mrs. Rudolph Rebold, Cumberland satellite, Sarah Wright, the Frostburg volleyer, the ambidextrous Corine Frazier, of Washington, D. C., Virginia Clinedinst, also of the Capital, and Dorothy Jarvis, Sewickley girl and Western Pennsylvania finalist, still remain very much in the running and must be reckoned with ere the trophy can be awarded. Mrs. Thompson's victim was Mary Faherty of Oakland, who went down gamely at 6-0, 6-1.

In men's doubles the potent Friedrichs-Hugus, Sawin-Dick, King-Howenstein, and Smith-Bowie combines continue to slide ahead apace. Sawin and Dick were down at 4-5 in the third set to the Jarvises, senior and junior, but pulled out gallantly, 4-6, 6-1, 8-6, to achieve the semi-finals. Friedrichs and Hughs broke into the same bracket by trimming Weber and Weber, 6-4, 6-2.

Finals in all classes are slated for Saturday.

Mr. Milton Scherr and Miss Alma Scherr, of Morgantown, West Va., returned to their home yesterday after having spent several days here visiting their sister, Mrs. Julius Renninger.

P. L. GOLDSBOROUGH NOT TO RUN FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Former Governor of Maryland Issues Statement Refusing to Be Candidate This Fall

A special sent out from Baltimore to the press of Maryland under date of the 10th instant, confirmed the report that Phillips Lee Goldsborough, former governor, will not be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the coming primary election.

Mr. Goldsborough has been urged for many weeks to make the race, but his attitude was not made known heretofore. His statement follows:

"A number of requests from men and women of Maryland have been received tendering their support if I should stand as a candidate for governor of the State.

"I feel highly honored at the compliment paid and thank them sincerely for it. However, having served a number of years in public life I feel that with good grace, I may ask to be excused from further such service.

"This has been the invariable answer to friends who have personally called upon me and to telegrams and letters received. It is with deep regret that this decision may not be altered."

Notes from the Boy Scout Camp

The Boy Scouts of the local troop, along with several visitors belonging to other troops, have been in camp along the shores of Deep Creek Lake for a week. In this short time they have had barrels of fun and have done lots of Scout work. Several important tests have already been passed. There are in camp a total of twenty-nine boys and three men. The weather has so far been fine for camping purposes and the location is pronounced ideal by all who inspect the camp.

Last Thursday Dr. C. C. McCullough, deputy State health officer, of Cumberland, visited the camp in the capacity of inspector. After going over all the equipment he pronounced everything o. k. and did not recommend a single alteration.

The visitors present last Sunday numbered about 150. The Scouts expect another big day next Sunday, which will be their last "visitors' day." Camp will be broken Tuesday morning, August 16.

The Scouts wish to express their thanks to all those who have helped to make this outing possible. Many liberal donations were received from various business, social and fraternal organizations in and around Oakland. Here are some of them: Oakland Rotary Club, D. M. Dixon & Son, G. A. Fraley & Son, Treacy's Cash Grocery, Oakland Produce Co., Mount Airy Canning Company, Piedmont Grocery Co., Miller's Meat Market, Lauer's Bakery, Gonder's Drug Store, and others. Donations of cash were received from many others; also pies, cakes, ice cream, candy, watermelons, bananas, pop, hams and other good things to eat. Messrs. G. J. Altstetter, H. L. Jones and W. W. Dawson each donated a day of their time to help get ready for and set up the camp. Messrs. H. A. Loraditch, W. Z. Hendrickson, C. N. McIntire and W. E. Shirer each donated auto trucks to move the equipment to the camp site. The cars to carry the Scouts to camp were donated by parents of the Scouts.

The Scouts deeply appreciate the "good turns" done them by people of this community and have resolved to repay in terms of good citizenship and helpfulness whenever an opportunity presents itself. S. W. SHIRER, Scoutmaster.

Local Pythian Sisters to Hold Picnic.

Garrett Temple, No. 17, Pythian Sisters, will hold its annual midsummer picnic at Casey's Mill on the afternoon of Sunday, August 15th. Those wishing to attend will assemble in front of Pythian Castle on Third street at twelve o'clock sharp. An invitation is extended to nearby temples, visiting Sisters and members of our local Temple to enjoy this outing. Everyone is expected to bring their appetites and a full basket of eats. Those having seating space in their cars will kindly report same to committee in charge.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Renninger and son Julius, accompanied by Mr. Milton Scherr and Miss Alma Scherr, of Morgantown, were week-end visitors to Chambersburg, Pa., and Winchester, Va.

THE BATTLE FOR PEACE.

With bread assured there was better spirit as Israel plugged thru the sand toward the bills that lifted themselves more than a mile into the cloudless sky. Climbing through the rainbow-colored rocks that give gorgeous tinting to the way, they saw the luxuriant growth in the defiles, but water had dipped into the sands. It lay ahead in the heart of Rephidim, the largest oasis in the district, several miles in extent and abounding in palms and grass. But they found their way barred. So attractive a bit of property could not be had without a struggle and Amelek wanted it for his own flocks. Here came a horde from the desert in desperate need of its ministry but capable of using its resources to the exclusion of all others. The desert warriors had already (Deut. 25:17) swept about the marchers and had cut off stragglers, now they blocked the pass to the springs. It was kill or be killed, and Israel must conquer or die in the desert. Moses quickly determined an advance, picked Joshua as leader and the mass of men hurled themselves forward. They were largely weaponless, but stones were everywhere and they were desperate enough to have just threatened to use them on Moses. Some of the shepherds no doubt had slings and knew well how to use them but it was to be a battle of bare fists and rocks, and the nature of the ground gave advantage to their means of battle, for they could slip from boulder to boulder, fling a stone and disappear, while the advantage of Amelek in cavalry was largely neutralized by the field over which they struggled. Moses went high up where he could observe the lay of the land and his lifted staff served like the signals from an airplane in modern fight. So long as it said "Forward," Israel crept from rock to rock and advanced until the day closed with the springs in their possession. Their stay in the desert was assured; they had won their right to a place and could spend the months ahead in peace. This is the story of the soul's march also. It has been brought out by God through the flood that threatened overthrow; has been fed in its wilderness journey until sure of its supplies from the hand of a kindly Lord and is led by Him into some corner where it must struggle desperately for its very life. Man must be taught the victorious life is his own; that the God who fought for him must now be possessed within, and the claim of the world, the flesh and the devil to control his actions must be overcome. Moses lifted nothing but a staff; God was the banner of the fighters and always must be on the field of the soul.

THE BEGINNING OF ORDER.

Victory brings its perils as well as defeat. There must be the consolation of its gains and the settling of the questions raised by its success. Often the result of the fight is snatched away in the peace that follows. Our war against war met its worst defeat after the armistice. Israel, with its individualism, had won its victory by single combat—why shouldn't the man keep for himself all that he had taken instead of holding it for the good of all? Weapons were sorely needed. Rich spoils from the dead were to be distributed for the cause, and Moses found himself sorely swamped with the decisions made necessary by the gains of Rephidim. Crowds swept in to visit the victors—not an unheard of thing today—and the old priest of Midian came bringing his wife and children that Moses seems to have given little attention. They had lived off her father long enough—why shouldn't the successful man share his success with them? So the judgship appeared in its beginnings before the eyes of the visitors as well as in the midst of the interested parties. Law was to become the basis of their further advance instead of desire, massed or otherwise, of interested parties. That is the beginning of a stable society. When the bullet is superceded by the ballot, whether cast by court or crowd, a long step forward has been taken. And the soul that has set up a standard is becoming God-possessed. Shall my own whims determine by action? Shall it be the voice of an organization, whether it be church, state or any other? Shall it be a book? What shall be the deciding authority for my life affairs? When the soul has settled that it shall be God and His cause in His world, then he has come to the place where the voice may spenk its "Ten Words" for its own guidance.

THE BETTERING OF THE WAY.

"Share your responsibility," said the sheik to Moses. Here was the modern efficiency expert studying in the desert the methods of procedure with clear eyes and explaining a better way of reaching the desired result. It was the early cry against our own courts as breeders of crime because of the delay in administering justice. Now Moses was a university man to whom the best knowledge of his day was an open book and the man who spoke was an unlettered son of the sands, but the leader listened as though to the greatest scholar in the world. In that lay much of his greatness. He was courteous to all and open to any suggestion from any source. Like a Dr. Litzinger, of Baltimore, who said: "I want to get a man well; I don't care who cures him." Moses would redeem life and whoever offered a way better than his own should have a hearing. Beecher credited an old colored man with having taught him a great truth; McCormick built an idea of his wife's into his reaper; an unknown book agent gave a hint to Westinghouse that has put an airbrake on every train that runs—it is the listener who learns and ultimately leads. But Mr. Know-it-all and Mr. Do-it-all are foredoomed to failure. Moses knew enough to take a tip on its merits and not on its origins. Catholics and Protestants and Fundamentalists and Modernists, Republicans and Democrats, Broadcloth and Overalls may all take lessons.

THE BIOGRAPHY OF A BELIEVER.

If you would win a place, you must serve others; if you would be a somebody in the Kingdom, you must be a giver and not a getter. Out of the personal development from a slavery to every lust that ordered a building reared for itself to the possession of a character that is able, God-fearing, truth-loving and just, is the road along which God still leads His children. Then he becomes a part of an ordered society, equal to bearing his share of the burdens and willing to merge his personal interests in the good of all. No redemption that consists only of a social order is sufficient. A redeemed world is made of redeemed men. Children of God must precede the family of God in the life of the world, and it is an order that is impossible of reversal.

Labor Endorses Eppler

From the Baltimore Federationist, August 6th, 1926

SENATOR EPPLER FOR CONGRESS

George Louis Eppler, former State Senator from Allegany County, and at present minority member of the State Industrial Commission, is an active candidate for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, which territory is principally in Western Maryland. Senator Eppler will go before the voters in the coming Republican primary in September.

Opposes Zihlman

Mr. Eppler will oppose Congressman Zihlman, who has held the office for several terms. Congressman Zihlman to some degree owes his ascendancy to organized labor, but has forgotten in recent years on several occasions his early associates and environment. Senator Eppler has an excellent record both as a member of the State Senate and as a commissioner on the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Eppler Fights for Miners

At the session of the General Assembly in 1920, Senator Eppler made a most inspiring fight for the Miners Bill, and although he failed to pass the bill it nevertheless laid the foundation for the favorable legislation that was passed in the succeeding session, for at this 1920 session a commission was appointed to study the mining situation at the request of Senator Eppler.

Gives Benefit of Doubt to the Worker

When called upon to decide a case on the State Accident Commission, records will show that Senator Eppler at all times gives the benefit of a reasonable doubt to the injured worker. He has helped and assisted whenever he has been called upon.

Deserves Support of Labor

Eppler as a candidate for Congress deserves the support of labor. His record is extremely good, and if elected to Congress he undoubtedly would always be on the side of labor.

BAYARD

Invitations for the wedding of Miss Mary VanMeter and Mr. Elisha Carlton Brown, which is to occur at Shepherdstown, W. Va., on the 17th inst. has been sent to friends. Both participants were teachers in the Bayard school the past term and are scheduled to teach here again this year.

The Women's Missionary Association of the U. B. church held an outdoor service in Nugent's Grove Saturday afternoon. An excellent program was rendered, after which refreshments were served. Members present included quite a number along with several visitors.

The Shaffer-Nordeck reunion was held at Freeport, West Va., Saturday, August 7th. About 170 persons were present, among them being A. C. Shaffer and family, of Bayard; Rev. Ray N. Shaffer, of Westerville, O., and Charles H. Shaffer and family, of Rupert, West Va.

Water in the town reservoir is getting quite low. Notice has been issued warning against any unnecessary use of the water. The Emmons Coal Mining Company has also had trouble in obtaining a sufficient supply for operations.

Jerry Harvey and family have returned from a two weeks' auto trip through eastern and southern states.

KITZMILLER

A watermelon party was given last Friday at the swimming pool. The party was chaperoned by Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Stratton. Quite a large number of young people attended and all had a most enjoyable time.

Some little folks were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Pew in honor of their nephew's, Carol Smith, third birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sowers are on a motor trip which includes points in Canada.

Mr. George W. Coffman has left for New York. From there he will go to Pocomoke City, Md., where the Coffman-Fisher Company will open a new store. Mr. Coffman will be absent two or three months.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lyons have returned from Ambridge, Pa., where they spent several months.

A social will be held by the D. V. B. S. committee Saturday evening, August 14. If the weather is favorable the social will be held in the Kitzmiller high school grounds, if unfavorable, then in the F. O. E. Hall. The proceeds are to help defray the expenses of the Bible school, which was recently conducted here. Everyone, both in Kitzmiller and Blaine, are being canvassed for the social. Your cooperation is kindly solicited. Come and have a good time.

Miss Olin Wilson has returned home after attending the summer session of the Frosthurg State Normal. Miss Wilson received her normal diploma and teacher's certificate from the school and will teach the Peerless school this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hutson and family and Miss Marguerite Junkius motored to Winchester, Va., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Dora Lear, on Saturday. All returned Sunday except Miss Junkins, who will spend a week or two in Winchester.

Mr. Samuel Seaman and family, of Burlington, W. Va., visited in Blaine last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Junkins and family and Mrs. Robert Campbell and children visited the home of Mrs. Maude Junkins.

Mr. Paul Custer, of Grantsville, was in town Monday. He will teach in the elementary school here.

Miss Millicent Wilhelm is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tichnell at Bloomington.

Mr. Lee Smith, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., is visiting at Mrs. Maude Junkins.

Mrs. Jennie Kepner and two children are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Maude Junkins.

Pleasant Valley Grange Community Fair, Sept. 25.

The members of Pleasant Valley Grange have set Saturday, September 25th, as the date for their annual community fair and picnic. All details and arrangements have been made for what promises to be one of the best fairs ever held at Pleasant Valley.

The committee in charge is composed of the following: Eris Liller, amusement; Mrs. Mary Custer, meals; B. H. Friend ,refreshments; Paul Friend, garden and farm crops; Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, Mrs. Wesley White, women's work.

It was also decided by the Grange to hold a box supper and festival in the Grange Hall on Friday, August 20th.

Send your Job Printing to The Republican Job Printing department. It will be done correctly and promptly.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

The Great Seal of Maryland

ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

EVOLUTION EVOLVES.

As against the depressing and rather humiliating fact that evolution has been defeated overwhelmingly by the voters of Tennessee at the primary elections, is to be set the leading part taken by Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, of New York, at the meeting of the British Association at Oxford.

Dr. Osborn's address was the most interesting of those made on the opening day for various reasons, one being that it had to do with the general principles on which the examination of all the other scientific subjects considered had to do.

In everything that is the subject of thought it is now admitted that what may be called "progress", for lack of a better word, depends on change, or variation, though we continue to be in the dark as to the cause of that variation.

Darwin himself, the most modest and least dogmatic of men, who defined his own theory as "a convenient working hypothesis," would not have resented Dr. Osborn's summing up of the recent evolution of evolution, as follows:

"We are accordingly entering an entirely new era of research on the problem of the origin of the species, marked by a decline and death of all the chief speculations based upon knowledge of the first half of the nineteenth century. We now know all the modes by which the species and sub-species originate, among the vertebrates at least—in fact, there is little more on this point to be known. But our very enhanced knowledge renders the problems of causes of the origin of the species infinitely more difficult than it appeared to Darwin."

The riddle of the painful universe continues unread. But, unlike the men who lived at the beginning of the nineteenth century, we know what is going on even if we don't know why it is going on.

If the great puzzle of all still lurks behind the curtain a corner of it has been lifted, for the benefit of those who believe that great is the truth and that it must prevail.

CHURCH SERVICES.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Parish.
Paul G. Linaweaver, Minister.

St. Matthew's Church, Oakland—Church school at 10:00 a. m.; morning prayer and sermon, 11:00 a. m.
Deer Park Village—3:30 p. m.
Deer Park Hotel—5:00 p. m.
Swanton Chapel—Services on the second and fourth Sundays of each month at 8:00 p. m.

St. Mark's Lutheran, Oakland.
"The Friendly Church."
Rev. C. A. Shilke, Pastor.

Sunday school, 9:50 a. m. Our school is well organized in departments. Its teachers are devout men and women who give their best to make the word of God live in the lesson that is given. You are invited to come, worship, study and work with us in this department of church work.

Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock, public worship. Subject of sermon, "The Church." In the evening at 8:00 o'clock, sermon, "The Old—The New."

We welcome all visitors, especially those here during the summer season. Our church is located within walking distance of any of the hotels. Come and worship with us.

St. Paul's M. E. Church, Oakland.
Rev. Archibald Moore, Pastor

9:45 a. m., Sunday school hour, Mr. E. R. Jones, superintendent. Classes for all ages, led by a group of earnest teachers. An interesting opening exercise, in which the music is furnished by Miss Lucy Trickett and the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. R. R. Gilbert, precedes the study of the lesson.

The Men's Bible Class meets at ten o'clock and will have for its teacher next Sunday morning, Mr. Fred. A. Thayer. There is always an interesting discussion of the lesson in which everyone is invited to take part.

11:00 a. m., morning worship hour with sermon by the pastor. This is a helpful service and designed to bring all who attend into a closer relationship with the great things of life. No better way can be found in which to spend this hour on Sunday morning than in joining in divine worship.

There will be no evening worship in this church during the month of August.

Wednesday, 8:00 p. m., regular mid-week prayer service in charge of the pastor. Always a cordial welcome.

Garrett Memorial Church, Oakland.

10:00 a. m., Sunday school, Mr. H. L. Jones, Superintendent.

11:00 a. m., worship and sermon. This will be the final sermon in the pastorate of the Rev. Henry A. Grubbs. At the close of the sermon, by order of the Presbytery of Baltimore, the pulpit will be declared vacant.

Corinth Charge, M. E. Church.

Rev. William Anderson will preach at North Glade and Swanton.

Rev. Durward B. Brown will preach at Wesley Chapel (Salt Lick) and at Crellin.

Underwood Church News.

The Underwood Church, which has heretofore been considered of little consequence to the community in which it is located, is now steadily rising and becoming a big and better Sunday school and church. For this we have to thank in particular our pastor, Rev. F. L. Fultz, who, with his warm commendation for what little we have done, has inspired within us a wish to become the most forcible church, with our few numbers, as mortal mentality can obtain. We also extend our appreciation to Mrs. Oscar Kitzmiller, the Sunday school superintendent, for the help and suggestions she is giving us in carrying out the religious activities of our community and to Mr. Oren Rhinehart, who through the influence of Mr. Earl Sims, became a member of our school early in the spring and at once became ver active. He is now teaching the adult department in the school and is chairman of the various meetings.

The school has more than doubled in membership since April of this year. We have recently organized a singing class, which is for the benefit of the young people now entering the choir and to learn hymns, which are practically new to us now.

We should like to have the co-operation of all in helping us reach the goal we are striving for and wish all to attend the festival we are giving on Tuesday, August 17th.

Our worshipping services are as follows: Every Sunday at 10:00 a. m. ,Sunday school; every second and fourth Sunday of the month, 11:00 a. m., preaching service. Come and worship with us. A MEMBER.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Both the tennis tournament and the Chautauqua started on Monday. The tournament is being patronized very largely by out-of-county people, a number of players being present from Cumberland, Keyser, Pittsburgh, Fairmont, Oakland and other points. All are being highly entertained by the brilliant plays of the participants and with a continuation of the favorable weather during the days of the tournament the crowds will continue to be large.

The Crellin Boys Band was here on Monday evening and gave an excellent concert to a large crowd that had gathered in anticipation of the treat. The music and the crowd of people reminded one of the days of the old Chautauqua when the Stephens and other bands were here for the month of August.

Rev. Roland Aspinall preached both morning and evening in the auditorium last Sunday. He had goodly sized congregations at both services.

The cottages that had not been rented for the summer are now mostly occupied for the present month.

An increased interest in real estate is being shown here by persons who have come and formed favorable impressions of the Park and what it offers.

Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Shultz are spending some time at the Park. Rev. Shultz is engaged in closing up his work on the district in this part of his territory and while thus engaged is making the Park his headquarters.

While the crowds shift yet there is a goodly number of people here enjoying rest and recreation.

BLOOMING ROSE

Miss Ruth Friend spent last week with relatives in Markleysburg, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Lott VanSickle and family motored to Hoyes last Sunday evening.

Mr. Paul Hook, of Cumberland, spent the week-end with his parents here.

Miss Jane Shears returned to her home in McKeesport, Pa., last Sunday after spending a few weeks with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Friend and daughter motored to Markleysburg Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Friend and family were visiting relatives at Selbysport last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Frazee and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Teets on Sunday.

Mr. Charles Shears, of McKeesport, Pa., is here with friends and will remain for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanSickle were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Frazee last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Shears and family and Mr. James Young, of McKeesport, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Grove and daughter, of Friendsville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lott VanSickle on Sunday.

Mr. Ray Friend and son, of High House, Pa., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arch C. Friend last Saturday and Sunday.

A great many of the people of this community attended the picnic held at Friendsville last Saturday.

GORTNER

Mrs. Delph Matheney and son Darwin, of Terra Alta, spent the week-end here with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Welch.

Mrs. Mary Lee has returned home after spending several days with the Deems family across the mountain.

Church services will be conducted next Sunday by the Brethren.

Mrs. Jacob Swartzentruber and Miss Lulu Slabach visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Taylor on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Crow and children, of Eglon, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hesse, of Silver Knob, spent Sunday at H. E. Yoder's.

The following visited at Mr. Noah Yoder's last Sunday: Misses Fannie Yoder, Carrie Wiles, Emma Burkholder and Messrs. Alvin Beachy, Daniel Lichty, John Wilson, Jacob Petersheim and Alvin Yoder.

Mr. and Mrs. Artie Dolge and their daughters were Morgantown visitors over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ohl Miller, of near Springs, Pa., called on Miss Emma Burkholder Friday evening.

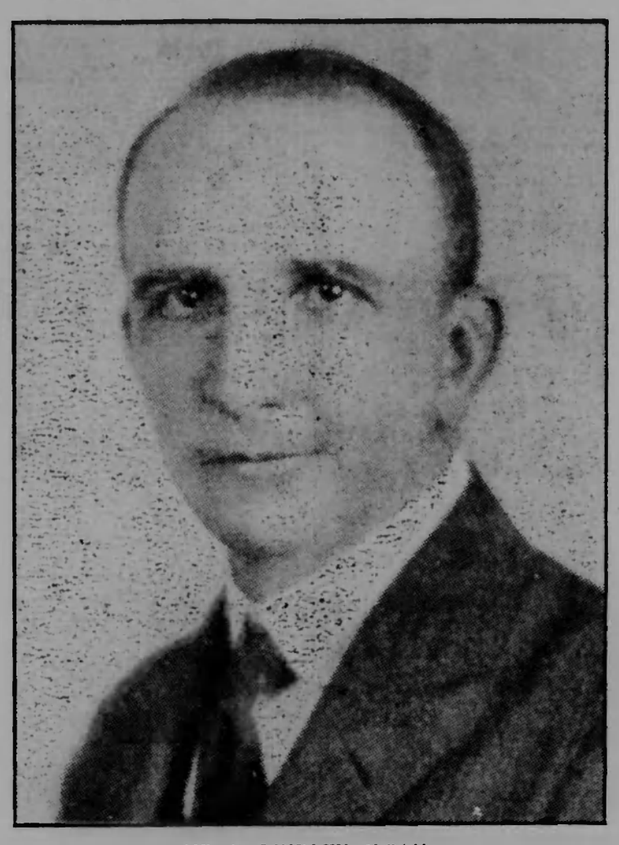
Mr. Charles Lewis, accompanied by a crowd of Lynndale folks, went to Blackwater Falls last Sunday.

Misses Agnes and Mary Keller, of Hoyes, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein on Sunday.

Messrs. Roy Spoerlein and Harvey Swartzentruber were attendants at the Friendsville picnic on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beeghley and Miss Mildred Taylor were guests at the birthday dinner of Roy Beeghley at Eglon on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Beachy and children and Misses Bona and Kate Yutzy were Aurora visitors last Sunday.



The farmers in this section finished harvesting their peas last Tuesday. The crop was exceptionally good and the growers realized tidy sums for their crops. The vinery at this place is being cleaned up and put in condition for next year's crop. The work at the vinery is being done by Roy Lichty and Webster Slabach. Mr. W. E. Spoerlein, our merchant, estimates hauling about 210 tons of shelled peas to the canning from the vinery located here.

Mr. John Burkhadder, accompanied by Mrs. John Ash and children, of near Bittinger, motored to Greenland Gap Sunday where they spent the day visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rotruck.

A crowd of young folks spent Sunday at Mr. S. W. Slabach's. Among them were Misses Minnie and Ruth Newman.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CHIEF JUDGE

MR. D. LINDLEY SLOAN.

The above is a likeness of Mr. D. L. Sloan, of Cumberland, candidate for the Republican nomination for Chief Judge of this, the Fourth, Judicial Circuit of Maryland.

Mr. Sloan is well known to the people of Garrett county as an attorney of many years' experience and has practiced his profession in this county as well as in Allegany and other counties of the State in such manner as to mark him as one of the leaders of the bar.

He is eminently qualified in every way to undertake the duties of the office to which he now aspires.

CONGRESSMAN FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

Thanking the voters of Garrett county for the confidence they have reposed in me through the succesive years of my Congressional life, and again soliciting their votes at the primary election to be held throughout the District on September 14th, 1926, I beg to remain,

Very sincerely yours,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

The Range Eternal

The Range That 100,000 Women Bought

Here's a big feature found only in The Range Eternal. The sanitary splasher back prevents dirt from getting behind the stove-pipe and does not reduce the area of the cooking surface. The weak, dirt-catching, tea shelves are removed and strong substantial ones are placed at the top of the high closet brackets. This certainly makes a handsome range—you won't find another like it.

THE Range Eternal is an everlastingly good range. Two generations of malleable range builders have made it so. And two generations of satisfied range users praise and endorse it. You'll want a Range Eternal, too, when you see it—it's so new—so handsome—and so efficient. It costs you less, too, than any other range because you use less fuel. There are thirty-two steps up to Range Eternal perfection that represent thirty-two points that you won't find in any other range.

Eternametal Flues

that will never burn out, nor rust out, nor wear out. They make the Range Eternal last forever. Be sure that the range you buy has Eternametal flues. They are exclusive to the Range Eternal.

Parker Process Rust Proof Top

this is another big feature. The top of the Range Eternal is protected against rust—absolutely. It will not rust.

Don't buy any range until you see the Range Eternal. See it at our store. Ask us to show it to you.

"THE MOST WONDERFUL GIRL"

By BERTHA R. McDONALD

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN Margaret Lamont accepted Dick Lindsay's invitation to lunch, she knew instinctively that for the seventh time in twice as many months she was about to hear of a marvelous discovery.

"Margaret," Dick began, leaning chummily across the table, looking into her eyes with an expression which Margaret likened mentally to that of a pet dog gazing at his master, "you're the best pal any fellow ever had and I want you to be the first to know. I—"

Something within her suddenly revolted. Raising a hand protestingly, she finished the story. "I know, Dick. You've found the most wonderful girl in the world, haven't you?"

"Why—er—why, yes, but how—"

"Oh, I know the symptoms. There never was any other like her, was there? There never is;" with a scarcely audible laugh. "What am I to be—flower girl, train bearer, or what?"

"Oh, if you'd only be something in the party!" Dick enthused. "I—I don't think I'd feel properly hitched if you weren't, Margaret."

And so she promised, although every fibre of her being cried out against it. Not that she was in love with Dick Lindsay—she knew very well she wasn't, but being brought face to face with exactly the same set of circumstances—the seventh occasion in so short a time—had thrown her precipitately into a state of absolute rebellion. She thought just then that if she ever had to hear that expression—"the most wonderful girl in the world"—again, as long as she lived, it would be her complete undoing. Playing big sister to the men of the world certainly was not what she chose as her life work.

In a careful resume of the situation she wondered wherein the fault might have been hers. She always had been popular enough. Plenty of men took her to the theater, motoring, to dances and the like, but one by one in turn they fell off. She always knew what was coming. Before long she was escorted to some private corner at a dance or invited to lunch, where she listened attentively to a eulogy upon the subject of the most wonderful girl; without exception, a case of wanting her to be the first to know.

She recalled her customary counseling—"Every man wants a wife, home and kiddies. It's the best thing that can happen to a young fellow when he finds the right girl."

After that the routine was stereotyped. The engagement was announced, social circles were plunged into a vortex of parties and showers, there was a wonderful church wedding where she was invariably one of the bridesmaids.

She had served in that capacity so often during the past few years that she knew the whole wedding ceremony by heart. She had marched with knitting step down that long church aisle so many times that it now seemed like the ritualistic work of some secret order.

Dick Lindsay's appeal was the proverbial last straw. She had been counselor on the last occasion. The next time any man invited her into a cozy corner or out to lunch, she would be otherwise engaged. Let him pour his tales of the most wonderful girl into some other ear. Hers was irrevocably closed to that phrase. More than that, she was not going to be "the best pal any fellow ever had" in the future. She would be more coy—more the clinging vine type. Perhaps, after all, men liked that type better than the sturdy oak, independent sort of girl. She would flatter them, appeal to their sense of protection; she would—

Dick Lindsay's wedding differed in no respect from others at which she had officiated, except perhaps that John Wayburn, the usher who was her side partner in the procession, seemed a little more human than some of the atrocities who had been wished upon her in the past. He seemed more serious-minded, more alive to the importance of the big things of life than many of her male acquaintances.

When she learned of his decision to associate himself with one of the older lawyers in their city Margaret was surprised at the little thrill of pleasure which swept over her. Having many tastes in common, it was only natural that they should see much of each other in the days that followed. Both loved grand opera and adored Kipling; liked to travel; enjoyed gardening and the great out-of-doors.

There was something about this newcomer which stirred up all sorts of unfamiliar emotions in Margaret Lamont's otherwise staid interior; an impression of great strength, both physical and mental; the dim consciousness that it would not be at all difficult to assume the role of clinging vine where he was concerned.

Event followed so closely upon event that she wouldn't have had time to listen to a private account of the most wonderful girl had she been invited to do so. She was a very busy lady. She spent her hours dressing to please John Wayburn. She was too, too happy, for suddenly one day, a cloud appeared upon her horizon.

John began to talk about a man's responsibilities. She felt the very bottom of her world drop out. She sensed the beginning of the end, for hadn't each of the seven discoveries of the most wonderful girl in the world begun in that self same way, just before the final curtain?

"Every man wants a wife, a home and kiddies," John was saying, taking her very words away from her.

Who could it be, she wondered? It was sickening to lose John thus, after all the others. Ah—she must try to make it last a little longer; at least until she could retire gracefully, without letting the world—her world—know how she had been stricken. Time—just a little time—enough to allow her to get out of town. Aunt Grace was sailing for Europe the following week. She would go with her.

"Why, John!" she heard herself saying, with a hysterical laugh, in a voice she scarcely recognized as her own: "Whoever heard of a man as young as you binding himself with such fetters? And I'll wager anything the girl, whoever she is, won't want to think of a house to look after and crying babies for ages and ages!"

"But love—"

"Love—fiddlesticks! None but old fogies believe in love these days. Loving is a lost art, Johnnie, don't you know it is?"

She never could forget the hurt look in his honest, brown eyes, but she let him go, realizing that her lack of sympathy with what he probably would have called "the biggest thing in my life," had she allowed him to progress that far, had driven him away. All well and good. She would rather never set eyes on John Wayburn again than to have to march down a church aisle as a bridesmaid at his wedding.

The next day she learned that he had left town—left without a word for her whose heart was aching for a glimpse of him. Two days later his letter reached her. She opened it with trembling fingers and tear-wet eyes.

"Dear Margaret:

"I left because I could not endure remaining where seeing you would be unavoidable. I love you deeply and supposed you loved me in the same way. I cannot tell you the shock it was to hear you speak so lightly of love, home and children. No one could have made me believe you would say such things had I not heard you myself. Perhaps you are only waiting for the right man. When he comes I hope he will protect and care for you as I'd like to have done.

"John."

A cry escaped her. For once she had misjudged—miscalculated—driven away the only man she ever really had wanted. Her life was utterly ruined and she only was to blame. The trip with Aunt Grace was inevitable now. She must hide away where her tell-tale heart would not betray her.

John Wayburn had advised no one of his destination. His letter had been mailed from a train so she could not reach him to tell him how she had misled him, had her pride permitted her to do so.

Reaching New York two days ahead of the date for sailing, Margaret was left much to her own devices during Aunt Grace's last minute shopping. On the morning of the second day, while she waited in the lobby of the hotel where her aunt lived, her heart almost stopped beating when she saw John Wayburn coming toward her. He did not see her until he was directly in front of her.

"Margaret!" He tensed when he saw that it was she. "Why are you here? Come—we'll call a taxi!" he went on, when he saw her eyes lit. "Now," when they were in the cab. "Tell me—what is it? Why did you say those things? You can't have meant them."

"I—I thought you were like all the rest—waiting to tell me of your love for some other girl—and—I wanted to—to ward off the evil day as long as possible!"

"Then you did love me all the time—you didn't mean what you said about—"

"About home and—er—children?" she interrupted, hiding her crimson face against his coat. "No, John. They are the things every sane girl looks forward to when she finds the right man."

"Margaret!" he exclaimed, lifting her shining eyes to his. "You're the most wonderful girl in the world!"

Smallest Known Fish Shown to Scientists

The record of minuteness in its class is held by a tiny fish shown at the meeting of the American Society of Zoologists at New Haven by Dr. E. W. Gudger, of the American Museum of Natural History, says Science Magazine. The midget is exactly thirty millimeters, or less than one and one quarter inches in length and belongs to the semiparasitic genus Remora.

The fish in this group are parasitic only to the extent that they "hop a ride" on larger fishes, attaching themselves by a sort of vacuum disk that grows on top of their heads. This saves them the labor of swimming for themselves, and they pick up a living by swallowing bits of food scattered by their unwilling carriers at meal times. The next smallest specimen, which Doctor Gudger also showed, is a trifle over one and three-quarter inches in length.

A Correspondent of a Baltimore Paper Asks Some Pertinent Questions Pertaining to the Identity of Governor Ritchie's Boosters.

The Observer, published in Baltimore, in its issue of recent date, contained an article asking some pertinent questions and desiring first-hand information concerning the boosters of Governor Ritchie. This article is reproduced in The Republican by request, being as follows:

To the Editor of The Observer:

As a Marylander who has just returned to the State after some months in New York City, I am wondering if you could give me a little information concerning Governor Albert C. Ritchie whose activities you must have observed.

There were sent to me during the winter, for example, a number of handsomely printed pamphlets. I hold some of them in my hand. One of them is called "The New South and the Faith Which is its Heritage"—Address of Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland Before a Joint Session of the Senate and House of Delegates of Virginia. A second is entitled, "The Creed of Democracy, Individual Liberty and State Responsibility"—Address of Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland at the Jackson Day Dinner of the Iroquois Club, Chicago. Nowhere on these pamphlets is there indication of the source from which they emanate. They are printed at "The Capitol Gazette Press," Annapolis, Maryland, but one seeks in vain for information as to who paid the printing bill and who circulated these pamphlets. Here is another entitled "John Marshall"—Address of Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland at the Dinner of the Lawyers' Club, New York City. It is printed by "The Twentieth Century Printing Company, Baltimore, Maryland. But, again, no information is given as to who paid the printing bill.

I recall receiving als othe report of a dinner given Governor Albert C. Ritchie by citizens of Maryland. It was an interesting booklet. A lot of excellent and opulent gentlemen eulogized the chief executive of their State. The cockles of one's heart tingles at the loyalty and brotherly affection and the esteem which suffused the pamphlet recording this dinner. Reading it in New York City in modern America, 1926, it seemed, however, peculiarly anachronistic. The dinner reminded one of something in the past. One could not visualize the one million actual citizens of Maryland tendering this dinner to the Governor of Maryland. One did not visualize the thousands of Maryland farmers digging the soil, the tens of thousands of Marylanders of all types using the roads and kept in order by Colonel Baughman's not-too-polite guardians of the highways. No, one rather visualized a setting of 150 years ago in some English colony where the powerful governing class tendered a banquet to some Governor appointed by the British Crown. One could not believe that the citizens of Maryland were voicing their esteem, but that a group of gentlemen who arrogate to themselves identity with this large citizenry had given the dinner.

Possibly you observed this phenomenon and can inform me as to the degree in which the eulogies expressed really express the sentiments of the one million people who live in the State of Maryland.

I noticed in New York the closing by the prohibition enforcement officials of a night club in the Tenderloin District called "The Club Ritchie." I also noted in your columns during the winter a statement to the effect that in the Bowery section of New York City a saloon had been called "The Albert C. Ritchie Cafe."

Am I to understand that these places of entertainment and amusement in New York City were actually named after the Governor of Maryland, and if so, who financed these places? Who sought to profit by making known in the metropolis the name of the Governor of Maryland?

There are forty-eight American States and to the editors of the newspapers in New York City the Governors of most of them have always been rather unimportant. Certainly not in the history of the State of Maryland has any Governor been given such unceasing publicity in large numbers of the New York papers. Yet, during my months in New York City I rarely picked up any of the New York papers without seeing the picture of Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland or some reference to him. To those who know the journalistic world in this country a phenomenon like his does not develop without the conscious and deliberate effort of some very powerful and astute man or group of men. Any friend of Mr. Otto Kahn, any friend of Mr. Bernard Baruch, might gain such publicity, since the fingers of these gentlemen and of their friends and colleagues are in every financial, commercial and journalistic pie in New York City.

I, as a Marylander of extremely old stock, am delighted that the Governor of my State should be made known so frequently to the teeming millions of New York and to the country as a whole. Yet, I am sufficiently skeptical as to ponder how this most desirable consummation has been brought about. You have noted in your columns at numerous times the visits paid to the executive mansion at Annapolis by Mr. Baruch. I believe that Mr. Baruch was on some governmental board during the war with Governor Ritchie. From your observation, does is seem in any way possible to you that Mr. Bernard M. Baruch might—because of his great friendship and admiration—use the endless levers of which he has control to make the Governor of Maryland a national figure?

You will recall that before a Senate investigation committee Mr. Paul M. Warburg was brought to admit that various members of his firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company contributed respectively, to the 1916 campaign funds of Messrs. Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt. That firm was taking no chances. Whichever way the ball rolled, whoever sat in the White House, the firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Co. would be looked upon with gratitude. An excellent technique!

I have no doubt that Mr. Paul Warburg, Mr. Untermeyer, Mr. Otto Kahn and many other astute friends and associates of Mr. Bernard M. Baruch are also taking hundred to one chances in making known to the country, gentlemen in the various political parties who might conceivably be jockeyed into the White House at Washington. Somehow, as a Marylander of old stock, I should not be so extremely proud to have a Maryland Governor sit in the White House at Washington if there were any slightest suspicion that he had been put there by financeforces functioning internationally, and having altogether too close relations with the chancellories of many European countries.

On my return to Maryland, I note concerning the relations of Governor Albert C. Ritchie to the Arundel Corporation. I note the present clamor concerning the Conowingo electrical development. I am much struck with the relations of this development to the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore, and the United Railways Company of that city. Have you any information concerning the contracts of large New York financial groups with these local enterprises? Do you think it possible that the journalistic affiliations of such financial groups in New York City might explain some of the publicity which has been given to a gentleman who seems very close to the Arundel Corporation and to be esteemed very highly by the Consolidated Gas, Eelectric Light and Power Company and the United Railways Company?

I am much struck, also, by the fact that Mr. Howard Bruce has been made the Maryland representative on the Democratic National Committee. From your observations have you any information which might enlighten me and the people of Maryland concerning the exact strtegy adopted by Mr. Bruce and his associates at the Democratic National Convention in New York in 1924? I have heard vague rumors that some very astute measures adopted at that time failed for some reason to accomplish the purpose for which they were adopted.

The minds of the people of Maryland are, to a very great extent, influenced by facts and ideas which are brought to the people of Maryland through publications controlled by wealth derived from the coal fields of West Virginia. I should be very grateful to you if you could inform me as to the exact relations of this matter of the national publicity of Governor Ritchie and the ambitions of Governor Ritchie to be president, to those who control this wealth derived from the coal fields of West Virginia and to those who control the sand and gravel of Maryland and the relations of the two local groups to Mr. Bernard M. Baruch.

It would seem to an observer returning to the State after an absence of some months that three different groups appear very ardently to desire the success of Ritchie. Are these groups working individually, or are they working—to some degree—as one definite body?

The questions that I hereby propound to you are questions in which I believe all intelligent citizens of Maryland would be much interested if the underlying economic and political realities on which these questions are based could be made known to such citizens.

I believe that you will be doing a very great service if you can give me illuminating or satisfactory answers to these questions. NATIVE SON.

BITTINGER

One big pumpkin on the vine,
Five candidates beside it;
All agree it would be fine
If they could just divide it.

But fate decrees it otherwise—
These five can never share it;
There is but one can win the prize,
The rest must grin and bear it.

During an electrical storm Thursday afternoon of last week the residence of Joseph Hetrick and family, situated on Negro Mountain, about three miles north of this village, was struck by lightning. As a result the brick chimney was shattered from attic to cellar, several windows broken and the upper and lower floors badly shattered, entailing considerable damage. However, no fire followed the bolt.

Orvil Bittinger and family, of near Deer Park, visited relatives in this community last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaffer, of Grantsville, and Mrs. Charles Reckner, of Confluence, Pa., spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joel Brenneman, just north of this village.

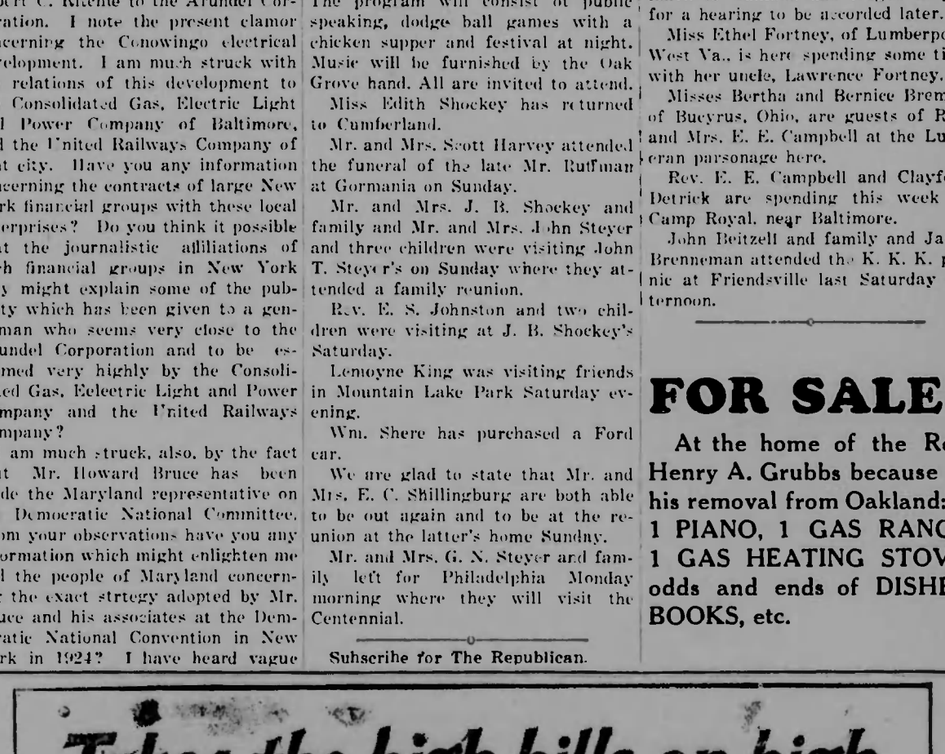
George Hipsley, one of the numerous Republican candidates for Sheriff, who resides at Mountain Lake Park, was canvassing for votes in this district one day last week.

W. E. Buckle, who is employed at Farmington, W. Va., spent Saturday and Sunday with his family here.

Mrs. C. R. Broadwater was numbered among the local sick a few days ago, but is reported as being very much better at this time.

William Casteel, the efficient and obliging deputy sheriff of Oakland, came to this district a few days ago and placed Edward Bittinger under arrest upon a charge of cruelty and non-support of his family. He was taken to Oakland and lodged in jail for a hearing to be accorded later.

Miss Ethel Fortney, of Lumberport, West Va., is here spending some time with her uncle, Lawrence Fortney.



Misses Bertha and Bernice Bremer, of Bucyrus, Ohio, are guests of Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Campbell at the Lutheran parsonage here.

Rev. E. E. Campbell and Clayford Detrick are spending this week at Camp Royal, near Baltimore.

John Beitzell and family and Jacob Brenneman attended the K. K. K. picnic at Friendsville last Saturday afternoon.

Smart New Rumble Seat
For Sport Roadster

Rumble seats are justly popular. They add a smart, rakish touch to roadster lines, and increase the carrying capacity by two passengers.

That Dodge Brothers Sport Roadster now provides this convenience, will be welcome news to thousands.

Like the main seat, it is deeply upholstered in gray Spanish genuine leather, and the seat back is high and well pitched, providing unusual comfort.

When closed, the rear compartment is absolutely waterproof, even in rainiest weather.

Ample space is provided behind the main seat for golf clubs, suit cases, tennis rackets and similar luggage.

Brilliant pheasant green lacquer body and hood, strikingly in contrast with the tan top, black fenders and full special equipment, complete a general color scheme of exceptional dash and charm.

HIGHWAY IN W. VA. WILL BERIVALOFNATIONALROAD

Northwestern Turnpike Follows The Line Laid Down in 1838 by C zet, French Engineer

The Northwestern Turnpike will have been entirely rebuilt, it is expected, within the year and West Virginia will have a rival of the National Road, leading from Cumberland to Wheeling.

Following the line of the turnpike built in 1838, the modern State road will have its beginning at Winchester, Va., twenty-eight miles from Romney, it will cross over the Allegheny Mountains and drop down by a gentle grade into the North Branch (Potomac) Valley.

After leaving Romney it starts on its way west throagh Mechaniesburg Gap. From there it will wind its way to the Ohio River on to the West.

Were it not that the title, Northwestern Turnpike, had so much attached to it, the highway would undoubtedly be called the Crozet Road, in honor of its original designer and bullder.

The turnpike was constructed under the engineering skill of Claudis Crozet, an officer under Napoleon Bonapart in the Russian campaign and later an instructor at West Point Military Academy. His field note book is still in the possession of the West Virginia Road Commission. It was his custom to make his plans for bridges in this book and that they were good is proven by the fact that one wooden bridge hulit by him in 1838 will be retained in the new road being constructed.

Through the Eastern part of the State the road has been completed and only short detours are found in the Western part. The distance from Parkersburg to Washington is practically the same as the distance from Wheeling to Washington over the old national road.

Although in crossing the state the whole system of mountains running from north to south are traversed, at no place is the grade more than five per cent. Uniformly on the whole pike a uniform width of 21 feet is maintained.

As the state road from Charleston to Parkersburg is completed it will give a connecting link between the Midland Trail in the Southern part of the state with the Northwestern turnpike in the Northern. This road is about 700 miles long. About 50 miles have been completed and the remainder is expected to he finished soon. This highway will make it possible to visit all the big towns in the Northern part of the State without leaving hard roads.

Nearly all the new road passes through the scenic section of West Virginia. It is laid around Chestnut Mountain, through the virgin forests of Cheat river, and over Cheat Mountain at an elevation of 1,500 feet above the river.

Hutton Grange Meeting and Proposed Festival.

At the meeting of Hutton Grange on the evening of August 9th, the following tentative program for the six weeks succeeding was adopted: A young peoples' festival on the afternoon and evening of August 19th, to include the sale of refreshments. Music and a general good time of the nature for which the Hutton Grange is noted. The proceeds will be used to defray a debt owed by the young people made in connection with former activities. The Harvest Home supper will be held during the second week of September. The Hutton Community Fair will be held during the last week of September and just preceding the County Fair.

The literary program will he maintained at each of the gatherings, but in order to give each feature the time they should have, the literary program will be shortened to meet these conditions.

At the last meeting there was the usual fine singing and a reading by Mrs. B. C. Scott. County Agent W. C. Jester made a splendid address.

Ashby Family Reunion

The tenth annual reunion of the Ashby clan was held last Saturday, August 14th, in the Reams picnic grove at Crellin. Many relatives and friends were present, some coming from distant points. Baseball and other games and pastimes featured. Rain in the early evening stopped the activities and an adjournment was called to meet again on the second Saturday of August of 1927.

FIRE AT TERRA ALTA THIS MORNING BURNED STORE

Offutt-Lakin Building Completely Destroyed—Oakland Fire Department Responds to Call

Responding to a call for aid in fighting a fire which broke out in the large Offutt-Lakin store building at Terra Alta, West Va., ten miles west of Oakland at three o'clock this morning, Mayor Fraley and the Oakland Fire Department hurried to the neighboring town and lent what help they could in an effort to save from destruction the building and surrounding properties. The fire, however, had made such headway in the Offutt-Lakin building that nothing could be done and efforts were then centered upon adjacent property with the result that aside from the property in which the fire had its inception no other owners suffered loss.

The burned building belonged to the D. E. Offutt estate upon which an insurance for $12,000 was in effect.

It was occupied by Messrs. Keith Wiles and his partner, Mr. Casseday, as a general mercantile store and was well stocked with goods, much of which was burned.

In addition to the Oakland and Terra Alta fire departments the Kingwood department was also present and rendered aid.

TWO CARS WRECKED NEAR CRELLIN SUNDAY NIGHT

Occupants Of One Cut by Flying Glass, Another Bruised.

Two persons were more or less painfully hurt and two automobiles were badly wrecked on the Oakland-Crellin road Sunday evening at eight o'clock when they came together on a sharp curve at a point just below the Inn, near Crellin.

One of the cars, a Chevrolet coupe, driven by Joseph Littman, of Oakland, was going west toward Crellin and the other, a new Studebaker sedan, said to be owned by R. L. Currey, a banker of Parsons, West Va., who had as his companions William Harmon, lawyer, also of Parsons, and two young women named Kight, of near Oakland, were coming toward town when it is claimed by Harmon, who was driving the car, that his brakes locked and caused the vehicle to skid into the Littman car, which spun about on the roadway. The Parsons car, with its passengers, left the road and plunged over a culvert wall to the earth below, wrecking it to some extent. To get the car back on the highway required the brushing out of a roadway through the undergrowth.

One of the Misses Kight received a badly lacerated knee and was otherwise cut by flying glass, while Mr. Harmon was bruised very painfully about his chest when he was forced against the steering mechanism of the machine as it plunged over the wall.

Tuesday night Currey, accompanied by a garage man from Parsons, came to Oakland where he arranged for the repairs to be made to the Littman car and paid a fine of $25 and costs for not reporting the accident within the time limit.

Mildred Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolfe, of Oakland, sustained a broken collar bone and two fractured ribs on last Thursday night when an automobile in which she was riding was wrecked on the Oakland-Accident road. The injured girl was brought to town by Roy O. Winters and her injuries were dressed by a local physician.

Notes from Sunnyside Grange.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at our last meeting. Instead of a program by the men, we had ice cream and pie, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

We as a body of Grangers, want to extend our thanks to the good brothers for their generous treat. After the ice cream was served we had a short song service by both men and women.

The women will furnish our program at the next meeting, August 25, but will appreciate nny help the men may render along that line. Messrs. Yutzy, Gortner and Stahl, the challenge is still open, so why not start the ball to rolling.

At our next meeting we are going to discuss whether or not we shall hold a Community Fair sometime this fall. Some of the members suggested nt the last meeting that a fair and pienie combined be held. We hope to have a large attendance and all take part in the discussions. REPORTER.

FORMER OVERSEAS SOLDIER CANDIDATE FOR HOUSE

Arthur H. Green, 313th Infantry Veteran, Now Merchant at Swanton, Latest Aspirant.

Arthur H. Green, of Swanton, who has an enviable record as a member of Co. G, 313th Infantry, during the recent World War, is the latest aspirant for nomination for the House of Delegates from Garrett county.

Mr. Green was in Oakland Tuesday when he authorized The Republican to print his announcement as a candidate for this very important office, which announcement will be found in its proper place on page 3.

The candidate is now engaged in the mercantile business at Swanton. Until recently he followed farming for a livelihood. He is thirty years of age, and is an upstanding, intelligent, hustling young man. As a soldier he went overseas with his regiment, the 313th Infantry, from Camp Meade and spent ten months in the trenches. He soldiered with many Garrett countians and was successively private, corporal and sergeant and would have received a commission as second lieutenant within a week had not the armistice been signed.

Another candidate whose announcement appears in today's Republican is Mr. William E. Wass, who aspires to membership of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. Wass is a resident of District No. 2 and was a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff three years ago.

In the list of candidates for County Commissioners published in The Republican last Thursday the name of John Beitzel, of District No. 12 was unintentionally omitted.

When They Are Underweight.

A well balanced diet with an abundance of milk, fruit and green vegetables, meals at regular hours, plenty of sleep at night and a nap during the day, are recommended by Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, as safeguards for all young children and especially for the prospective first-graders who will enter school in the fall and who have been found to be underweight at the child health conferences that have been held throughout the State under the auspices of the State Department of Health.

Commenting upon the fact that one out of every five children examined during the early weeks of the summer were underweight, Dr. Knox said, "Two things should be remembered in planning the daily routine of every child. First, the necessity of a balanced diet; second, the importance of plenty of sleep.

"It is not possible to give hard and fast rules," he continued, "because each child is a law unto itself and needs individual attention. Accordingly, all that we do at the Bureau conferences is to suggest certain things that are good for the average child, and we ask each mother who attends the conferences to take her child to her doctor for specific advice. A report is also sent from the Bureau to the family doctor of every examination.

"One does not have to hunt far for some of the causes that are responsible for the under par condition of some of the prospective first graders. These causes are: too much candy and other sweets and too little sleep. With apologies to the person who invented the famous phrase about an apple a day, we can say with equal certainty, 'a nap a day to keep sickness away,' for all young children. We talk a great deal about the high strung, nervous child. A nap or a rest in a quiet airy room or on a porch, in the middle of the day, will do a great deal to counteract the tendency to tantrums and will also give the child a chance to store up reserve strength.

"Sometimes the underweight child is benefitted by a mid-morning or a mid-afternoon lunch, not a lunch of candy and cookies, all day suckers and things of that sort, but by a simple nourishing lunch—a glass of milk with a slice of bread and butter, or possibly a dish of junket or a baked apple with two or three graham crackers, if it does not interfere with the appetite for the three regular meals.

"Certain things are bad for all children and should always be avoided. Among them are coffee or tea, fresh baked bread, corn, cabbage, cucumbers, pickles, unripe fruit, cake, candy or pie."

Send your Job Printing to The Republican Job Printing department. It will be done correctly and promptly.

FIRST MARYLAND WOMAN CHOSEN FOR STATE G. O. P.

Weller Group Backs Mrs. Eva C. Chase For Clerk of The Court of Appeals.

The line-up in primary contests for State-wide offices in both the Democratic and Republican parties became known definitely when the time limit for filing certificates of candidacy for these offices expired at midnight Saturday. There will be three contests in the Republican ranks and two among the Democrats.

The Weller faction, which was expected to place a candidate in the field for State Comptroler to oppose Dr. Charles F. Goodeii, the Hill-Humphreys-Broening candidate announced Saturday evening shortly before the lists were closed that no candidate would file for the post. Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, declined to comment on the candidacy of Dr. Goodell.

Unopposed Candidates.

Other unopposed candidates in the primaries will be Wiliam F. Broening, Republican candidate for Attorney-General on the Hill-Humphreys ticket, who has been indorsed by the Weller faction; Thomas H. Rohinson, Attorney-General; William S. Gordy, Jr., State Comptroller, and James A. Young, Clerk of the Court of Appeals. The last three are seeking renomination with the support of the Democratic organization.

Governor Ritchie, who is a candidate for renomination, also is supported by the Democratic organization. Opposing him is William Miles Maloy, who is making an independent fight for the nomination. Another contest in the Democratic ranks will be that between Representative Milard E. Tydings and Mrs. Virginia Peters-Parkhurst, of Berwyn, Md., for United States Senator.

Mr. Tydings is being supported by the organization and Mrs. Parkhurst is making the fight as an independent candidate.

Three G. O. P. Contests.

In the Republican ranks there will be three contests. Representative John Philip Hill is seeking the Republican nomination for the seat in the United States Senate to which Senator O. E. Weller asks reelection. The Weller candidate for the nomination for Governor is Addison E. Mullikin, who filed for the office after repeated efforts on the part of Senator Weller and his associates to induce Phillips Lee Goldsborough, former Governor, to become the gubernatorial candidate had failed. Opposing Mr. Mullikin is Marion A. Humphreys, of Salisbury.

The Weller candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals is a woman, Mrs. Eva C. Chase, of Riverdale, Prince George's county. The anti-Weller candidate is A. Kingsley Love, an attorney, of Loveville, St. Mary's county.

A young man named Strawser, of near Deer Park, was arrested at Loch Lynn Heights last Thursday afternoon by Sheriff Yutzy and Deputy Sheriff Casteel upon a charge of having possessed 36 pints of illicit liquor, which, it is alleged, he transferred from his conveyance to a Ford car, owner unknown, in a garage at the above place. At the time of his arrest Strawser was in company with a woman named Bowers, who, the officers, allege, was the manufacturer of the liquor and Strawser the sales agent. At a hearing Strawser was held for the grand jury. He is in jail in default of bond.

Browning Family Reunion.

The annual Browning family reunion will be held at the Fnir grounds adjoining Oakland on Saturday, August 28th. Last year the reunion was very largely attended and was a most enjoyable occasion. This year the attendance promises to be larger as is being looked forward to with much interest and pleasure.

The second annual reunion of the Fike family was held August 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fike, near Asher Glade church, Garrett county, in honor of Hiram Fike, by friends and connections of the family. There were about fifty people present, made up of four generations of the family. The weather was ideal for the occasion and everyone present was in excellent spirits. Dinner was prepared by members of the families attending and was served under the trees and enjoyed by everyone to the fullest extent. All parted at a late hour, wishing everyone a prosperous and profitable life, to meet again next year under the same conditions.

MARYLAND TO BE SCENE OF NEW MEIGHAN FILM

Mae Murray, Lila Lee and Wallace Berry Will Be In Cast of a $1,000,000 Picture

According to a recent announcement, made in Annapolis by Allen Green, business manager of Unit No. 1 of the Universal Film Company, the scene of Thomas Meighan's next picture will be in Maryland and Virginia.

Many of the scenes will he taken in Annapolis and others in Washington, D. C., and at Alexandria, Va. At present consideration is being given to scenes in Western Maryland, between Hancock, Cumberland and Oakland.

The name of the picture has not been selected, Mr. Green said, but it will be a beautiful collaboration and of course will contain a plot. He said the picture would include an all-star cast, with such notables as Thomns Meighan as the lead, Mae Murray as co-star, Lila Lee, Wallace Beery and other favorites of the silent drama.

King Baggott, well known in movie circles, will be the director of the picture.

DIED.

MRS. KATIE B. RUDISILL.

Mrs. Katie B. Rudisill, wife of Rev. L. A. Rudisill, of Mountain Lake Park, died at her home there Monday morning at three o'clock. On Thursday evening preceding, while sitting in a swing on the porch of her home in the Park, Mrs. Rudisill suffered a heart attack, followed by a stroke of paralysis, which affected her entire left side, and for a time she was unconscious. Her passing was quiet and serene. Mrs. Rudisill was a woman of the home and made it a place of comfort and happiness for her family. Her life was a blessing and inspiration in the home and community. She was a loyal, affection wife, a devoted, loving mother—a queen who ruled in love and kindness and loved equally by those who knew her.

For several years Mrs. Rudisill was president of the Park Women's Home Missionary Society; was one of the founders of the John Thompson Deaconess Rest Home in the Park and was a member of the Park Methodist Episcopal church.

At the hour of her death her family was at her bedside. Mrs. Rudisill is survived by her husband, L. A. Rudisill; Wesley H. Rudisill, a son, and by her daughter, Miss E. Ruth Rudisill. She is also survived hy a brother, W. H. Hopkins and a sister, Miss Ella Hopkins, both of Cincinnai, Ohio. Other members of the family at the Park are the two grandchildren, Adelaide and Virginia Rudisill, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rudisill, and Lieut. Wm. Hopkins, of Chicago, Ill.

The funeral services were held at the family home at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, being conducted by Rev. Henry A. Grubbs, of Oakland, assisted by Rev. R. Aspinall, the pastor of the deceased. Mrs. Gordon Mealy sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Face to Face," both of which selections were favorites of the deceased.

Interment was made in the family lot in the Oakland cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Lee Bender, Eugene Comerford, Henry B. Harvey, J. L. Echard, M. M. Schrock and John Weber.

REV. E. L. MEADOWS.

Rev. E. L. Meadows, of Pittsburgh, Pa., dropped dead in his yard at the Park Tuesday evening as the result of an attack of the heart. For several years past Mr. Meadows operated the book store at the Park and lived just across the street from the building. He was aged 65 years. His body was prepared for interment at the Bolden undertaking establishment and sent to Pittsburgh yesterday morning for burial.

MRS. M. C. DAVIS.

Mrs. Mary C. Davis, widow of the late Rev. S. W. Davis, died at her home in Jamestown, New York, on Monday after a prolonged illness. Her funeral took place in Wheeling, West Va., yesterday morning. From its inception Mrs. Davis and members of her family were summer residents of Mountain Lake Park. Mrs. Davis for many years was at the head of the Deaconess Rest Home at the Park and was allied with other interests of a civic and benevolent character at that place. Her death is deeply regretted hy all who knew her.

TOLL IS SEVEN DEAD AND SEVEN SERIOUSLY ILL

Thomas Green and Sister Edna Green Latest to Be Stricken With Bacillary-Dysentery

Two more victims of the polluted cistern water drunk on the farm of William N. Green, at Beechwood in Garrett county, which to date has taken a toll of seven lives, were admitted to the Miners' Hospital at Frostburg yesterday.

They are Thomas Green, 19 years Sampson Green, bother of William N. old, and Edna Green, 10, children of Green, who drank some of the water from the cistern on July 28.

With seven dead there are now seven other members of William N. Green's family in a serious condition at the Miners' Hospital from the polluted water. The disease from which they are suffering is said to be bacillary-dysentery, an ailment dreaded by physicians.

Another member of the family, Mrs. Charles Whitman, 20 years old, daughter of William N. Green, who lived at Lonaconing, died two weeks ago from a disease similar to which caused the deaths in the Green family, although physicians say her death was not due to bacilliary-dysentery.

HIGH WATERS ABOUND IN ALL SECTIONS OF COUNTY

No Property Loss However Has Been Reported Aside From Damage to Small Bridges

Continuous rainfall, almost without cessation since Saturday morning last has caused the streams to rise in every section of the county, but thus far no damage or loss has been reported except the washing away of several small bridges over Cherry Creek south of Oakland, and the consequent interruption of mail service over the roads in that section.

At Crellin, owing to the rise of Snowy Creek, many men employed in the mines above that town were unable to reach the workings this morning.

The Proposed Seventh Annual Picnic of the Knights of Pythias to be Held Labor Day.

Progressive strides are heing made in connection with the Labor Day picnic to be held in Oakland on Monday, September 6th, under the auspices of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias.

Unprecedented interest is evidenced by the enthusiasm displayed at each successive conference of the picnic committee. The placards and other advertising but partially convey the actual scope and magnitude of this picnic. Many new features, both in the parade and at the grounds will be noticeable. Some definite announcements will be given in a later report of the committee's activities. Thus far the picnic machinery is functioning perfectly.

Without the loyal support of our friends from neighboring localities and our local citizens, success will not attend our efforts.

We take this opportunity of extending hearty thanks to everyone who has in any way contributed to the success enjoyed in former years. The committee feels confident of the necessary cooperation on the part of the public and depends upon the continuance of the same generous interest and patronage.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

Maryland Tuberculosis Association Clinic.

A clinic for diseases of the chest will be conducted in the Court House, Oakland, Wednesdny, August 25th, at 10:30 o'clock a. m. Individuals complaining of any of the following: Cough, expectoration of blood (spitting), tired feeling, loss of weight and appetite, indigestion, hoarseness, etc., should see their family physician and obtain permission to attend clinic at the place announced.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry A. Grubbs left Oakland yesterday for their new field of work at Waterford, Pa., going by motor. Until last Sabbath Rev. Mr. Grubbs was the pastor of the Oakland Presbyterlan church where he did conscientious work among his parishioners. An opportunity to do greater service in his calling was presented when he received an invitation to become pastor of the church at Waterford. Both Mr. and Mrs. Grubbs will be kindly remembered by the people of Oakland for their kindly acts and fellowship.

GRANTSVILLE

Mrs. Fred Livengood entertained the members of the Reformed Ladies' Aid Society at her home on Thursday afternoon.

The Grantsville Musical Club held a meeting at the Holmes and Wallace studio. Mrs. Harry Bender presided.

The club extends its best wishes to Miss Viola Broadwater, who has accepted a position as teacher of music in the Union Bridge and Taneytown schools this year.

The following program was given:

Study, The first ten centuries of Christian music.

Vocal solo, "The Wanderer," (Schubert) George Diefenbach.

Piano solo, "At Evening," (Heller) Miss Viola Broadwater.

Vocal solo, "In the Boat," (Greig) Mrs. Harry Bender.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF H. J. SPEICHER

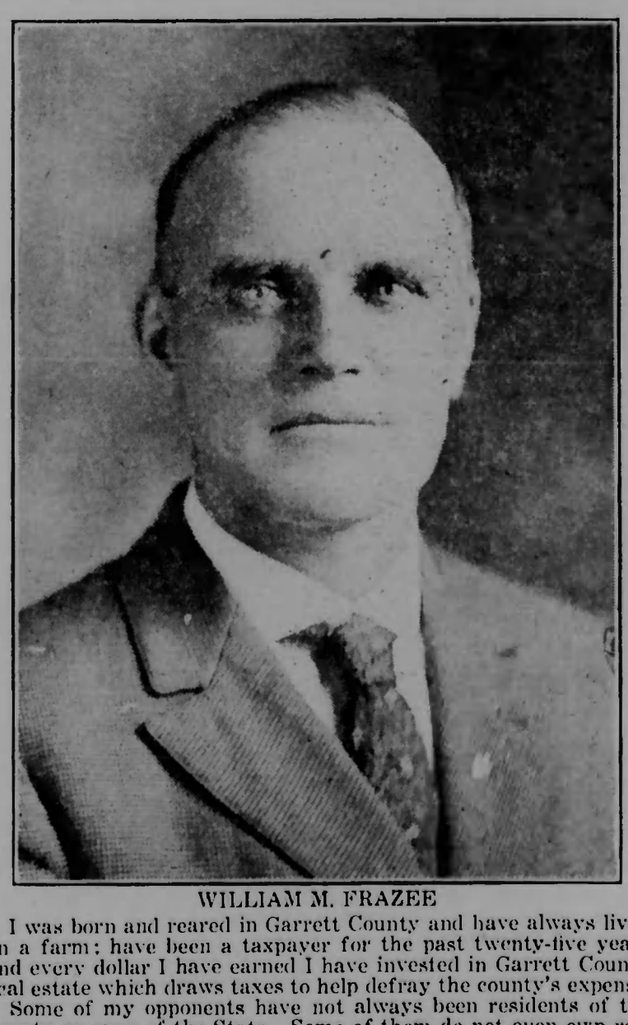
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

Since the earnest solicitation of many Republican voters and citizens of Garrett County, I have decided to become a candidate for the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket, subject to the result of the primary election.

I have had twelve years' experience as your representative, which I believe will better fit me to represent you and will enable me to accomplish more for an economical administration of affairs.

During my term of office I have voted for such mesures and legislation for the betterment of schools and roads—in fact all legislation that was for the betterment of conditions of the county and State.

I have made mistakes—that man doesn't live who hasn't made them—but listen: I have served you twelve years without criticism from any of the leading papers of the State.



If you will take the time to go back over my record and see what has been accomplished for the county during my term of office, I feel sure you will favor me with your support.

Assuring you of my appreciation for the confidence heretofore reposed in me and assuring you a faithful and conscientious discharge of duty if again nominated and elected, I have the honor to remain with respect,

Very truly yours,
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

FOR NOMINATION FOR COUNTY TREASURER

WILLIAM M. FRAZEE

I was born and reared in Garrett County and have always lived on a farm; have been a taxpayer for the past twenty-five years and every dollar I have earned I have invested in Garrett County real estate which draws taxes to help defray the county's expense.

Some of my opponents have not always been residents of the county or even of the State. Some of them do not even own real estate, and if any taxable property, then very little.

If nominated and elected, I will endeavor to treat my fellow-taxpayers with every possible courtesy and will strive to fill the office efficiently, honestly and carefully and will be diligent in the discharge of my duties. If nominated and elected, I will distribute the tax business as much as possible among the institutions of the county with fairness and honesty to all.

I therefore hereby earnestly and respectfully solicit your worthy vote at the coming primary, which will be on September 14th, 1926.

It is my aim and determination to see every voter. Should I miss any, it will not be intentional.

Thanking you in advance, I am,

Yours respectfully,
W. M. FRAZEE.

Located on the Hoyes-Friendsville Road in Garrett County, Maryland.

Under and by virtue of the powers vested in us by a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, passed on the 22nd day of July, 1926, in a cause wherein Dora Enlow and others are plaintiffs and Clifford Enlow and others are defendants, the same being No. 2673 Equity on the docket of said Court, we, the undersigned trustees, do hereby give notice that we will offer and sell at public auction on at the hour of two o'clock P. M., in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Maryland, all that property known as the farm of Reuben Enlow, late of Garrett County, deceased, the same being composed of Military Lots Nos. 1575 and 1577, containing in all 100 acres, and being the land which was conveyed to the said Reuben Enlow by deed from Josiah H. Gordon and Robert H. Gordon, trustees, bearing date January 17, 1882, and duly recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 6, folio 161, etc., one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to which deed reference is made.

Said farm is very well located on the road leading from Hoyes to Friendsville. About sixty acres are under cultivation and the balance is pasture and timber land. The property is improved by a dwelling house, barn, necessary outbuildings, a fair orchard and is fairly well watered.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on the day of sale and the balance of the purchase price at the time of the ratification of said sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. Conveyancing at the cost of the purchaser.

IT COULD BE WORSE.

From 1914 to 1917 neither France nor England was given very much cause for complaint by the American people. One might, indeed, differentiate between the people and the government and blame the latter for its delay in entering the war; one might find fault with the efforts of Mr. House to bring peace about before our entrance became unescapable or over the greater effort to keep the rights of neutrals from total obliteration the while we remained the only influential neutral left. Grey of Fallodon, however, realized quite early that there was one diplomatic mistake the Allies must not make—offend the United States. The Germans did make that mistake, and Grey is not the only Englishman who has been thankful that they did.

Certainly during the latter part of the war the role we played in Europe was not ungrateful to the Allied peoples. Possibly we boasted a little too freely of the decisive effect of America's entrance. But when the Armistice came and President Wilson sailed for Europe there was not much idea over there of welcoming him with hisses.

In the post-war period we stood shoulder to shoulder with England for a quick economic rehabilitation of the Continent. If we refused to join the League of Nations, the League we rejected was the one Mr. Wilson described—with Article X as its heart—not the sort of League that eventuated. We did not abuse ourimpregnable position as the creditor of all Europe to dictate the terms of the treaties and rearrange the Continent to suit our own ideas. We asked for little, and, as the event proved, we got less. We have minded our own business ever since. When England funded her debt to us on substantial terms she hailed her act as a master stroke in the way of proving to France, Italy and the lesser powers that she practiced what she preached.

It is worth while recalling these things now that America's popularity seems to have become a minus quantity. America seems to be wholly and exclusively responsible for the shrinkage of the franc, so considered not only in Paris, but in London as well. But England did considerable more than settle her debt to us in order to put her house in order. She even went on a gold basis. And during this period of the franc's decline, from a low of 8.45 cents for 1919 to a low of 1.93 cents in 1926, no payment to us by so much as a single penny contributed to the embarrassment of the French Treasury. On the other hand, we have loaned Europe over $5,000,000,000, mostly for the re-establishment of industries and markets, from trade with which France has been able to benefit immeasurably.

France is mistaken if she believes this country fails either officially or popularly of sufficient sympathy for her in this present predicament. We may point with some satisfaction to the fact that if she wants to call us names we have nohody but Borah and Johnson able or willing to return the compliment. But if being called names for the little this country has really done in the way of offense affects our sensibilities, let us thank Heaven we are not in the League of Nations. Contrast the League's activities with those presupposed for it by Mr. Wilson, and then think of us determined to carry out his program for it! Reparations, Syria, Moroceo, the Ruhr, all before the Council, and America challenging France on each and all!

ASAF.

In a recent issue of his paper, the editor of the Elkins (West Va.) Review, deplores the indifference and woeful lack of interest displayed by the citizens of that town in civic activities. Elkins and Elkins people are not alone in this respect. Every community is afflicted to a greater or lesser degree along this line. Oakland is not exemp from the rule as generally laid down in the article printed in the Elkins paper, which may be applied to nearly every community in which interests clash. This clash of interests should not exist; everyone in business would be better off and their ledgers would show a gain on the proper side of the balance sheet at the end of the year if a differ course should be put into use for the conduct of business matters.

The Republican does not undertake to preach a sermon or to tell others how to operate their shops and mercantile establishments, but if at the end of a given time after the rule of live and let live, help instead of an attempt to retard progress, is put into effect and lived up to honestly and conscientiously, better conditions do not exist, then we shall not have another word to say.

The Elkins newspaper's article is such an excellent one and fits so smugly into the civic affairs of Oakland, that it is herewith given in full:

"The trouble we encounter in Elkins in endeavoring to put anything worth while over is lack of general participation on the part of everybody in such things as are undertaken either for the betterment of the city or for its growth. It is the lack, we should say, of a general community spirit—of an indifference on the part of too many people as to the future of the city. In other words those who bemoan affairs the loudest and wonder what is going to become of the city, do not lend their efforts toward getting anything done when it is attempted.

"What we need in Elkins is that same firey pride in our city that we had in our government and in our boys across the sea during the war period. That spirit now, unfortunately, is lacking. Then we were able to accomplish anything we attempted. Whenever Elkins was allotted a certain amount of Liberty Bonds to be bought, Elkins always took its quota. Whenever it became necessary to raise so much for Red Cross work, Elkins was able to reach the goal. But now that spirit is gone. We are all too much engrossed in our own affairs to give any time to the city and its affairs. People will not even attend mass meetings, whether for or against whatever may be undertaken.

"There is too much of a spirit of 'Let George Do It' in evidence, and after a time the Georges around here naturally get tired of trying to do it and of carrying the load. It is too unequal. This town belongs to all those in it, but unfortunately too many of them do not realize that fact.

"Elkins will be and is just what its citizens make it. If it is not what it ought to be, it is not the fault of the City Council, or of any other body of men. It is the fault of the people who live here.

"Our chief fault is that we do not maintain ourinterest in any projector movement which is undertaken. There is enthusiasm for a time, but it soon flickers and dies."

ROADS TO BE BUILT

The American people during the past 25 years have done what in some ways is the biggest job of construction ever accomplished in the world, in the reconstruction of their roads. It has been a task which was never imagined at the beginning of this century, when automobiles were just beginning to become common.

We now have paved or surfaced 500,000 miles of highways, a distance sufficient to go 20 times around the globe. And in addition we have graded and drained 250,000 more miles. It has been a stupendous task.

And yet it is only a fraction of the work to be done, as there are 3,000,000 miles of highway in the country. At the present rate about 40,000 miles are surfaced each year, and about 15,000 more graded and drained. And all the time the roads previously built are wearing out and have to be reconstructed.

Of course many of those 3,000,000 miles of road are little country ways not much used. And yet all of them were opened for a purpose to accommodate certain localities, and most of them are as much needed now as they ever were.

Probably it will take 25 to 50 years more before we have all the hard roads that the country should have, and when that time comes, a lot of rebuilding of the older roads ought to be done.

A road that is new to drive on for a few years, but soon goes to pieces, is a poor investment. We must build for permanent results, and roads of that character will be the cheapest in the long run. The cities must help the country districts improve their highways, and many rural neighborhoods are wasting more through bad roads than it would cost them to borrow the money and provide themselves with modern transportation facilities.

A MONEY INVESTMENT IN RELIGION

A church official states that contributions to religious causes in the United States last year reached a total of 648 million dollars. Compared with the one and a-half billion the county spends on education annually, with the billions that go into motor cars and with expenditures for amusements, chewing gum and cosmetics that the statisticians continually are reminding us of, the sum invested in religion does not seem to be large. It represents less than $6 per capita for the entire country, and less than $15 for each church member in the United States. A case could be made, without doubt, for a greater investment in the church and the work of religion generally.

Yet the sum is considerable. Like the growth in church membership, which has been especially marked in recent years, it may be taken as an evidence of a genuine public interest in religion. The appeal of the church for funds is materially different from other appeals. It is without the promise of those benefits of a material and tangible nature which are held out as a lure to people who spend their money for most other purposes.

Again, support of the church and religion is purely voluntary. If support of public education were placed on the same plane it is doubtful whether schools could be maintained at one-half of their present efficiency. Investment of hundreds of millions of dollars in religion means simply that large growing numbers of the people in this country believe in religion—believe that it can and should have a definite place in the life of the nation.

CONGRESSMAN FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

Thanking the voters of Garrett county for the confidence they have reposed in me through the succesive years of my Congressional life, and again soliciting their votes at the primary election to be held throughout the District on September 14th, 1926, I beg to remain,

Very sincerely yours,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

The Range Eternal

The Range That 100,000 Women Bought

Here's a big feature found only in The Range Eternal. The sanitary splasher back prevents dirt from getting behind the stove-pipe and does not reduce the size of the cooking surface. The weak, dirt-catching, tea shelves are removed and strong substantial ones are placed at the top of the high closet brackets. This certainly makes a handsome range—you won't find another like it.

THE HIGH EFFICIENCY OF THE RANGE ETERNAL IS DUE TO THE PARKER PROCESS RUST PROOF TOP

THE HIGH EFFICIENCY OF THE RANGE ETERNAL IS DUE TO THE ETERNAMETAL FLUES

THE RANGE ETERNAL IS AN EVERLASTINGLY GOOD RANGE

THE Range Eternal is an everlastingly good range. Two generations of malleable range builders have made it so. And two generations of satisfied range users praise and endorse it. You'll want a Range Eternal, too, when you see it—it's so new—so handsome—and so efficient. It costs you less, too, than any other range because you use less fuel. There are thirty-two steps up to Range Eternal perfection that represent thirty-two points that you won't find in any other range.

Eternametal Flues

that will never burn out, nor rust out, nor wear out. They make the Range Eternal last forever. Be sure that the range you buy has Eternametal flues. They are exclusive to the Range Eternal.

Parker Process Rust Proof Top

this is another big feature. The top of the Range Eternal is protected against rust—absolutely. It will not rust.

Don't buy any range until you see the Range Eternal. See it at our store. Ask us to show it to you.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Richards have returned to their home here from Washington, D. C., where the former submitted to two severe surgical operations. Dr. Richards is now rapidly recuperating from his ordeal and enjoys an occasional walk about his home and a visit to his neighbors. At times he goes to Oakland by automobile for brief visits to acquaintances there.

The tennis tournament conducted on the courts here during last week, was very largely attended and lively games were played by the participants. The Park, by reason of this tournament got much valuable publicity through the columns of the Pittsburgh, Wheeling and other newspapers who had special correspondents present thruout the tournament and who sent in daily reports to their journals.

The first annual DeWitt family reunion was held here last Saturday nt which I suppose a hundred took part, coming mostly in automobiles from various parts of the country. The DeWitts have figured largely in the physical development of the county and contributed largely to many important achievements in church, in school and in agricultural callings.

Two splendid services were held in the Park on Sunday, the first in the morning in the auditorium and the evening service in the M. E. church. The morning sermon was preached by Rev. R. L. Wood, of Meadowbrook, West Va., and in the evening the sermon was delivered by Rev. Chester Smith, of Baltimore.

There are yet quite a number of guests at the hotels and cottages. Many are planning to leave soon so that their children may enter school with the opening of the term early in September.

Next Sunday will be Anti-Saloon League day here. Speakers of national fame are to be present.

Sunday, August 29th, will be Tri-State Christian Citizenship day, which closes the program for the year 1926, which has proved successful and entertaining, as well as inspiring.

MARYLAND, AS COLONY, WAS FOR STATE'S RIGHTS

Braved The Anger of Continental Congress Because It Reserved Right To Handle Internal Affairs.

For a perfect example of the trials and difficulties encountered by the thirteen little dependencies of the British crown which were almost unknowingly welding themselves into the United States of America 150 years ago, the present time, observe the Maryland of the first six months of 1776.

Observe what we would today call the political difficulties, or those involving the relationships between colony and colony and between colonies and the "Continent," as they then called the thirteen colonies as a group.

A weird admixture of these difficulties broke on Maryland in March, April and May, 1776.

It all came about through the chance interception of a packet of letters from the British Ministry to that remarkable and likable personage, Sir Robert Eden, Maryland's last royal Governor, remarkable in his day and generation because, although he was a British royal Governor, he was likable, both personally and officially.

Took Independent Stand.

What happened as an immediate result of this seizure of enemy mail was that Maryland in effect declared her independence of her sister colonies and the Continent before she was ready to consent to a separation from Great Britain.

The cast of characters in this drama, if arranged for a theatre program, somewhat in the order of the appearance of the characters on the stage, would read as follows:

Lord Dunmore, deposed British Governor of Virginia.
Alexander Ross, of Maryland.
The Virginia Council of Safety.
The Baltimore County Committee of Observation.
Samuel Purviance, Jr., chairman of the Baltimore Committee.
The Continental Congress at Philadelphia.
The Maryland Council of Safety.
The Maryland Convention.
John Hancock, president of the Continental Congress.
Charles Carroll, barrister; John Hall, member of the Maryland Council of Safety.
William Paca, a Maryland member of the Continental Congress.
Thomas Johnson, a Maryland member of the Continental Congress.
Mordecia Gist, a major in the Maryland militia.

Capture Reported.

When the curtain rises early in April, Captain Barron is reporting to General Lee that he has made captive of Alexander Ross while Ross is coming ashore from Lord Dunmore's warship, and that he has found on Ross a packet of letters from Lord George Germain, British Minister for the American colonies, to Sir Robert Eden.

These letters seem to implicate Sir Robert in endeavors to be of service to the Ministry, particulary in the matter of providing the Ministry with very valuable information.

Sir Robert had been looked upon by the Revolutionary leaders as a good friend who was keeping aloof from the turmoil of the times, sympathizing somewhat with the Colonials, and holding himself ready to bring about a reconcilliation between the King and the American "rebels."

The intercepted letters thus appeared, from the attempt to get them to Eden secretly, to implicate Eden in a flagrant piece of double-dealing.

Stepped Into Limelight.

General Lee, always a clever actor, seeking ever the front of the stage, immediately gets busy. First, he lays the revelation before the Virginia Council of Safety.

It in turn at once sends copies of the letters to the Continental Congress, but not to the Maryland Council of Safety at Annapolis, the colony's central executive body when the Maryland convention was not in session.

Lee had made friends with Purviance on his way south and Purviance had told Lee that the Maryland Council and Convention were "afraid to execute the duties of their station."

Lee also writes Purviance "not to lose a moment, and in my name (if my name is of consequence enough) to direct the commanding officer of your troops at Annapolis immediately to seize the person of Governor Eden. The sin and blame be on my head. I will answer for all to the Congress."

The Baltimore committee receives the alleged evidence against Eden on Sunday, April 14, and at once rushes the story to the Maryland Council of Safety and to the Continental Congress.

To President Hancock it sends also Lee's letter to Purviance which echoed Purviance's slighting remarks about the Maryland bodies.

Investigators Named

The Council also delegates Charles Carroll, barrister, John Hall and William Paca to call upon Eden at Annapolis and ask for a look at his correspondence with Germain.

These delegates are reasonably assured by Eden that his intentions are of the best; that he has not been playing a double role and that he has no intention to attempt to escape. Asked to give his parole, Eden asks for a few hours to consider the demand.

While these matters are progressing the Continental Congress gets news of the Eden-Germain letters and debates the situation at great length, finally resolving that Eden had been caught in a correspondence "highly dangerous to the liberties of America" and that the Maryland Council of Safety should immediately seize Eden and all his papers.

Letter Withheld

The Continental Congress refuses, however, to send to the Maryland Council the Purviance letter which reflected upon the usefulness of the Maryland body.

It soon breaks upon the consciousness of the Maryland Council that it has been grossly ignored, if not actually insulted, first by General Lee, then by Purviance personally or by the Baltimore committee, and lastly by the Continental Congress.

This conviction is confirmed when the Council learns that on the responsibility of the orders from Lee and the Continental Congress, Purviance and the Baltimore committee are making plans to seize Eden.

These plans are being worked out in great detail at Baltimore but with no authority from the colonial capitol at Annapolis.

Captain Nicholson is to prepare the Colony's ship Defence for action and set out after Eden, wherever he may find him, taking along a small detachment of militia under Captain Smith with the approval of Major Gist.

To Seize Governor.

Blunderbusses and other arms are to be taken along in abundance and both Eden and Ross are to be seized and brought under guard to Baltimore. Accordingly to Purviance's plans, the Council of Safety at Annapolis is to have nothing to say about it from beginning to end.

The Defence sets sail from Baltimore for Annapolis on April 16, and after a series of confcrences between Smith, Carroll and various others, in the course of which Smith learns that Eden is still at his mansion, the Defence returns to Baltimore and the pursuit of Eden is over.

Eden has entirely reassured Carroll, Hall and Paca of his good faith He has refused to give his parole, but he has promised to do exactly what would have ceen required of him as a prisoner on parole.

"While I act," he says, "in any degree as governor of this province, I cannot give my parole to walk about in it as a prisoner at large under any obligation whatever.

To Continue Office.

But then he announces his resolution of continuing in his station "as long as permitted, or the ostensible form of the established government can contribute to preserve the peace of the province.

"You shall find me here and willing to continue acting in the same line I have hitherto done, so long as Maryland can reap any peaceful benefits from my service."

So here was Maryland's central executive body for the time being, the Council of Safety, with the explicit orders from an officer in the army of the United Colonies, as well as from the Congress of the United Colonies, to arrest Eden, while it had on its own account examined Eden personally and become convinced that his arrest would be a grave mistake at that time.

Such arrest would in effect be a breach of faith with Eden and in fact a broad invitation to the British warships somewhere off the Virginia Capes to come to the rescue of Eden and turn loose upon Maryland the style of guerilla warfare which they had been directing against Virginia because Virginia had quarreled with and driven away her detested Dunmore.

Vital Problem.

What was Maryland to do about it? Was she to submit to the superior authority of the United Colonies as laid down by a continental general and the Continental Congress, or was she to say that she was a sovereign province on her own account, entirely able to manage her own affairs?

If the latter, how was she to say it, just at the time when His Excellency George Washington was pleading for the closest union among the colonies?

At the very moment when this issue of State's rights was at its acutest point at Annapolis and in Baltimore, Washington was writing that divisions and parties as between the colonies and between the revolutionary leaders within the colonies were "the shelvs we have to avoid, or our bark will be split and tumble to pieces. Here lies our great danger, and I almost tremble when I think of this rock. Nothing but disunion can hurt our cause."

Saved By Patriots.

The situation was saved by the small group of patriot leaders who directed the affairs of the colony's Council of Safety. The Purviance case was disposed of quickly.

After many examinations and hearings it was agreed that Purviance had unjustly and without due warrant malinged the Council of Safcty and the convention in his letter to President Hancock; that he had grossly slighted them by entering into correspondence with the Continental body; that he had by far exceeded his authority and that of his Baltimore committee in sending the colony's ship to arrest Eden, and that he had proceeded in this enterprise without due consulation with the other members of his own committee.

For all of which lapses he was "highly disapproved," first by the Baltimore committee, then by the Council of Safety at Annapolis, and finally in May by the Maryland convention itself.

However, his "active zeal in the common cause" was applauded and he was excused from further punisment in the hope that in the future he would be "more attentive to propriety."

Purely Local Matter.

But the Purviance case was purely a Maryland matter. Not so were the colony's open disobedience of the continent's possible breach of intercolonial etiquet in sending the copies of the intercepted letters to the Baltimore committee rather than to the Maryland committee.

As to Virginia's little slip, as well as to General Lee's slight, the Marylanders seem to have allowed that there were extenuating slurs which influenced Lee who, in turn, influenced the Virginia council.

Moreover, Virginia's entire friendliness toward Maryland had been but a few weeks before manifested by her readiness to come to Maryland's aid when the British warship Otter had threatened mischief in the Chesapeake.

Answered Congress.

Consequently the Marylanders made but a slight gesture of displeasure to the southward and turned their chief attention to the northward in the direction of Philadelphia, the capitol of the continent, and said:

"We consider the Congress as having the supreme authority over the continent, and look up to them with Reverence and Esteem; but that they cannot interfere with uneontrolable power in the internal polity of this or any other province."

While the many-sided controversy was raging most furiously, the somewhat maligned and much aggrieved Council unburdened its soul upon the Maryland men in the Continental Congress.

The Council was firm in its faith that "if this storm blows over, we shall continue to enjoy quiet sometime longer, if not the whole campaign, and, perhaps before another, all will be settled happily."

All was settled happily in the end, hut not until after many arduous campaigns. Eden stayed two months longer. But that was the least part of Maryland's victory.

Three months before she and her sister colonies became States, she had taken her stand for "State's rights" and had won with a definition of State's rights which in principle stands without amendment today.

BETTER PAY FOR CLERGYMEN.

Recently there was held in Chicago a conference of clergymen for the consideration of economic questions. There was the usual talk about conducting industry for service rather than for profit, and a larger share of the rewards of production for the toiler. A Pittsburgh minister interrupted the flow of thought on this topic by reminding those present that the average compensation of a clergyman is about half that of a plasterer, bricklayer or linotype operator, and that it compares unfavorably with the wages of an unskilled workman in the steel industry, which was recently made the subject of an economic report by the Federation of Churches.

If the comparative compensation of those who toil for institutions for service and of those who work for institutions for profit are a measure of the results of the two systems, the showing would seem to be in favor of the latter. The most inadequately paid workmen we have in this country are the ministers of the gospel, both actually and relatively.

There ought to be an awakening and a reform in this matter. If the efforts of some official leaders of the churches were employed in this task rather than in projects of national and international regeneration thru politicai schemes like the League of Nations, attention to this near at home duty would have highly beneficial results. If such organizations as the Federal Council of Churches would engage in surveys of the economic status of ministers, and devise ways and means of lifting the level of life for those charged with the responsibility of preaching the gospel, it would probably be a more practical contribution toward the solution of public problems through the means churches have to offer—that regeneration of the masses through which alone better conditions can come—than attention to fine-spun schemes for reforming the world by patent process.

The clergyman ought to be as well paid as men in the trades, business and professions doing no more important and exacting work. He must devote years of study to preparation for the competent performance of his duties. He must maintain himself and family in respectable style. He must educate his children. He must buy books and periodicals to keep abreast of the times. His mind should be relieved from life-wearing cares thru the largest possible degree of economic independence. He cannot do all this on less than half the pay received by others engaged in tasks requiring less training and ability.

If churches expect to exert an influence commensurate with their mission they should set an example as employers. The result would be not only more young men of ability drawn to the pulpit, but far better service on the part of those who already have taken upon themselves the burdens of the ministry. People who sit in the pews are not intentionally stingy and hard-hearted toward those who serve them in the pulpits. They are not told as they should be, by the "higher-ups" in church organization what their duty really is, and they are not helped as they should be hy a "hard-boiled" business organization to raise an adequate budget. It is not insisted by someone not trying to be polite that they should spend as much money on religion as they do on motor cars and the movies.

If a movement were inaugurated to raise the level of compensation for the clergy fifty per cent within the next five years, the effort of itself would increase the interest and loyalty of churchgoers, and put new heart into underpaid clergymen which would help to vitalize the churches. It would put religion "on the map" as nothing else could do. That accomplished, the churches should not stop short of providing adequately for the old age of worn-out preachers. Millions are being poured out by American philanthropy at this time on schemes far less worthy than this. What object more important than to put more heart and hope into all of the hundred thousand clergymen who are carrying to millions of Americans the one message that is to be depended on to maintain not only the church, but society and the ordered state? Surely the laborer not only in the industrial but in the moral vineyard is "worthy of his hire."

CRELLIN

Miss Wilda Adams spent a few days here with her aunt, Mrs. Stanley Ashby, recently.

Lester Yutzy and family motored to Uniontown the latter part of last week and spent Sunday in that city.

Mrs. Robert Ford entertained the Young Women's Missionary Society of the Loch Lynn Baptist church recently.

The reunion of the Ashby family, which was held in Reams' Grove at Crellin on last Saturday, was very largely attended and a most enjoyable day was spent by every one present.

Lester Shaffer is now selling tombstones. Stop, look and listen.

Mr. Charles Reams and family left Crellin for New York and Philadelphia Monday night in which two cities they will spend several days before returning to their home.

Several of the Crellin people attended the DeWitt family reunion at Mountain Lake Park on last Saturday.

Application has been made to the Public Service Commission of Maryland by the Stanley Coal Company to permit the erection of an electrical plant here and for the distribution of electrical energy to the citizens and others of this community. The coal company has already received a franchise for this purpose from the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county.

DODGE BROTHERS
DE LUXE SEDAN

People select motor cars by different standards.

Some desire luxury and ostentation. Others, utility and economy alone.

Dodge Brothers De Luxe Sedan strikes a fine and distinguished balance—both in appearance and price—between these two extremes.

It provides unusual comfort and roominess; a refinement of line and design in which the owner takes deep pride; and everywhere in the world the name it bears is associated with the highest standards of integrity and workmanship.

With reasonable care, the De Luxe Sedan serves its owners for years, frequently delivers mileage running well into six figures, and on the resale market brings prices that strikingly reflect the solid value Dodge Brothers have built into it.

Veteran cars shed their carbon

New lubricating oil proves it with Buicks, Packards and others

A TEST on a Buick for carbon deposit with the new "Standard" Motor Oil showed amazing results. When the car was examined before the test there were heavy accumulations of carbon on cylinder heads and pistons. The new "Standard" Motor Oil was then put in the crankcase and the car run 2,969 miles. Again it was examined. Most of the carbon had disappeared—the slight amount remaining was easily wiped off with a cloth.

The new oil is a perfect all 'round lubricant, giving a complete piston seal; smoother operation at all speeds; cooler motor; increases in oil mileage of 12% to 40% and in gas mileage of 10% to 20%.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (New Jersey)

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing—smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS: DUTIES TO GOD

Exodus 19:1-20; 11.

Thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.—Deut. 6:5.

FENCING THE FIELD AGAINST GODLESSNESS.

Slowly the tribes moved thru the desert sands and increasing elevation until they reached the rocky fastnesses of Sinai itself. Here they were surrounded by towering cliffs, hemmed in by rocks that reached into the clouds, startled by the storms that wrapped the summit in mist shot thru with flashes of flame and shaken by the shattering thunders reechoing thru the chasms like mighty trumpets. It was their first experience of mountain. All their days had been spent along the lush Nile in the Delta and this storm-swept region, more than a mile above sea level, must have had a profound impression upon them. They spent nearly a year (Num. 10:11) under towering Sinai and perfected their organization into the Church that emerged from the experience. At its very heart lay these Ten Words (Deca. 10; logos, word) or Commandments that flamed into their hearts as a basis of living. It is not the only code, nor is it the earliest, but no other is more commanding in its sweep and in its influence. They lie at the foundation of all stable living either of man or nation. They are great fences along the highway or around the productive areas of living. They are boundaries beyond which is barrenness and chaos. That they were accepted in an agreement sealed with blood marks a long advance in religious thinking. It was the first election of a God in history. It was the acceptance of mutual responsibilities on the part of God and a people.

There are ten statements, one for each finger of the early learners, so that they might the more easily be fixed in mind. The first section concerns itself with relations to the God of their choice; the second of their relation to other men. The first one places their God in the supreme place in their thought and life. It did not repudiate other gods for other fields, but there was to be but one in theirs. Familiar as we are with the pagan world in which there are more gods than men so that their rules is a fearful tragedy, one can see what it must have meant to have the limitation given here. It did not follow that there were not broken rails in the fence as well as invasions of the field but in great part the fence held and within it grew the beautiful religion that has its crown in Christ. And no man can have a field growing rich harvests unless God comes first and all other divinities are kept outside. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon" is everlastingly true. Nor will the field produce without God within it. Godmoreness and Godlessness are both beyond the fence.

FENCING THE FIELD AGAINST MATERIALISM.

What is God like? That is a question that still has many answers. All sorts of images have been made as a representation of Deity, and they are always an inadequate thing. Ideas have been proclaimed so that human personality has been projected into immensity, but it has failed. Man can only give a magnified sinner a place in the heavenlies and to worship even an enlarged image of one's self is to cultivate the direst kind of selfishness. For we grow like the being we worship and every false line is accentuated and so is intensified in the worshipper. Then there is the tendency to make the image into a charm in which is localized the god. Even the cross may become a fetish. "I have lost my God!" was the wail of a loser of a crucifix. And to lose God in the image is to lose everything. This is the reason this fence is placed squarely about the field of spiritual life. God is a spirit and they who worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth. The peril of today is the substitution of things for the Spirit of God. To become immersed in matter instead of spirit will destroy the finer elements of personality. But within the fence the full harvest of Godlikeness may be reaped and man becomes Christly as he bows before the God who was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself.

BUILDING THE FENCE AGAINST IRREVERENCE.

A man may be measured by the extent of holy ground in his life. If it is little he very sure that he also is small. We are in a great world and one may very well pause in awe before the glory of some life that is radiant with its self-giving. Those boys who were upon the overturned conoe in security enough for a space at least, but found the crowding endangering the live of all and slipped quietly into the water that others might be secure, causes one to pause before the ordinary boy in perfect amazement at his possibilities. For greater love hath no man than this. It is that sense of worth in the world in which we are and in the God of it that marks the high soul. To be sure this Commandment takes us into court where someone swears that he will tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and it is directed against the utter falsity of breaking that pledge. It is a fence against dishonesty of word or life; the being what we seem to be. Jesus condemned unsparingly those who said, "Lord, Lord," and did not— it is of such that this word is spoken.

BUILDING A FENCE AGAINST LOPSIDEDNESS.

shorter hours that theoke :

This is the first legislation for shorter hours that the world has any record of. It gave a rest period to servant as well as all else and marks a long advance over ordinary conditions. Even in this 20th century seven days a week are not unknown. Six days shalt thou labor is an imperative part of its phrasing. There shall be no loafers in the commonwealth of God. Idleness is no part of His planning. Man has a right to a chance to work six days, but not seven. But what shall he do with the seventh day? To give it to other work is not its intention. To give it to mere pleasure is not its purpose. To give it to re-creation of the wasted forces, to use it in developing the side of our life that may have been forced into the background during the other days so that the soul be four-square instead of lopsided is to cultivate the field inclosed within this fence and to reap the glorious harvest of a well-rounded life.

Such are the fences God means to have about our soul farm that shall produce spirituality, Godlikeness, honesty of heart and a well-proportioned soul. And there is no other way of producing such a development. Men have tried all sorts of devices, but the result has always been a faulty crop. Accept them and a soul-harvest is sure.

BITTINGER

A gaudily dressed swain, strolling leisurely down a country lane informed an inquisitive friend that he had a date. Later he was seen in company with a smiling maiden and he informed the same inquisitive friend that he had a peach—a day of fruits in their season.

Deputy Sheriff "Billy" Casteel, of Oakland, was in this section last week on official business.

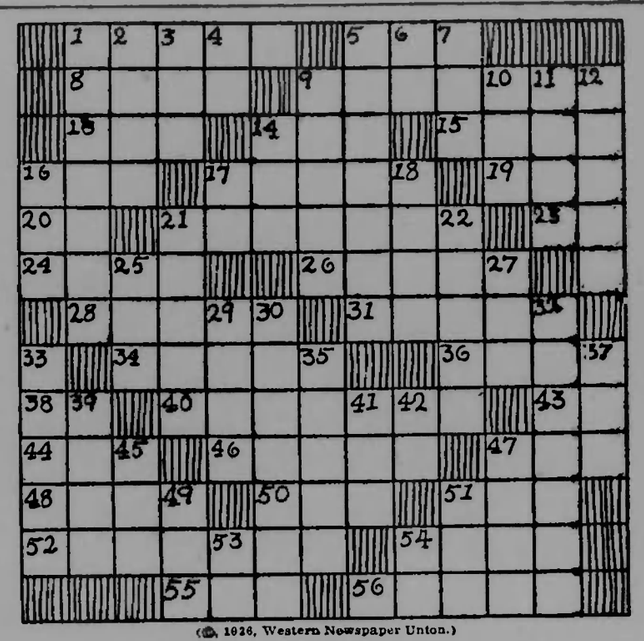
Harry Hinebaugh, of Oakland, came to this village a few days ago and began applying a coat of paint to the roof of the village school house but the heat was so intense that he could not complete the work and was obliged to return the following day to finish the job.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley, of Grantsville, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Floyd C. Diehl, the hustling and enthusiastics garage man of Grantsville, was a caller in this village last Saturday afternoon.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, who has been confined to his bed for several days as the result of an illness, is said to be improving at this writing.

Simon Brenneman, with a couple of assistants, is doing some carpenter work over in Pennsylvania.



Mrs. Howard Resh, of Akron, Ohio, spent a few days with her parents in Bittinger recently.

Oats harvest is now in progress in this community and indications point to a satisfactory yield.

The annual Lutheran Sunday school picnic will be held in Broadwater's Grove on Saturday, August 28th, and it is hoped that many people will be in attendance.

MAN AND WOMAN CAUGHT IN RAID NEAR DEER PARK

Conducted Shine Plant Under a Tent Located In The Woods With 200 Gallons of Mash.

Barrels and other vessels containing upwards of two hundred gallons of mash were found and destroyed Monday morning in a tent located in the woods by Federal Prohibition Officer Stotler, working out of the Cumberland office and at the same time William Harmon, a man of perhaps 30 years of age, and Zula Hinebaugh, of Deer Park, who were also found in the tent with the contraband, were taken into custody, brought to Oakland and placed in jail for a hearing before Justice West on Tuesday.

At the hearing before the Magistrate the evidence developed the fact that just as the officer appeared at the tent opening the woman was in the act of sampling the brew, which she pronounced good.

At the conclusion of the preliminary trial Justice West held both the man and woman for the action of the December term of the Circuit Court for this county under bonds of $500 each, and in default they were remanded to jail.

Yesterday morning, however, Miss Hinebaugh was released from custody when bail was furnished by her mother. Harmon is still in jail.

Are They Ready?

If your small son or daughter is going to enter school this fall, don't wait until Mary comes home from school with a headache, or Johnny has a toothache to find out that one of them has eyes that need attention, or unhealthy tonsils, and the other has decayed teeth. Take them to your doctor, have them looked over—just as you would have your automobile inspected if you were going to start on a long trip—and follow your doctor's advice as to whatever attention is needed. Take them to the dentists, or if necessary to the throat or eye specialist. As there are only a few days remaining before the schools open, you'd better take them today, is the advice of Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr. Chief of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene.

"Every child looks forward to the beginning of school life with mingled feelings of dread and pleasure," Dr. Knox said. "Parents realize, too, that when their small son or daughter reaches school age, an important period in the child's life is begun. The success or failure in after years depends a great deal on how the child makes use of the educational opportunities that are offered. He has every chance to make good at school if he is well and fit. He is always handicapped if he is not well. And the time to find out about his physical condition is before he starts in to school.

"From the examinations of the prospective first-graders that the Bureau has been making throughout the counties during the summer, and in connection with which over thirty-five hundred children have been carefully gone over, it is evident that many children throughout the State will enter school at a definite disadvantage as compared with their healthier comrades. Some have greatly enlarged tonsils and adenoid growing in their throats, which partly obstruct the passage of air, making them more susceptible to colds and bronchitis.

"Others are underweight for their age and height. Children in this condition often drag along at the rear of the procession of school children. Many have decayed teeth and accordingly cannot masticate their food properly. They are likely to have a poor appetite and until the condition is corrected they cannot thrive.

"Stooped posture is not uncommon even among small children and is another symptom that the child is under par. It is not uncommon, either, to find defects of vision or impaired hearing among young children, defects which should not be allowed to go uncorrected, as so often is done, on the theory that children will outgrow them. The ounce of prevention at this time of the child's life may save a great deal of suffering later on. Certainly much of a child's progress during the whole of his school life depends on the normal functioning of his eyes and ears.

"The responsibility rests with the parents. Every child should be taken to the family doctor before he is enrolled in school and the following questions should be asked:

"1. Is my child up to the standard in weight and height for his age?

"2. Are his tonsils or adenoids enlarged or infected so as to be dangerous?

"3. Are his teeth in good condition?

"4. Are his vision and hearing normal?

"5. Is his posture correct? Does he stand and sit and walk correctly?

"6. Is the food my child eats, proper in kind and in amount?

"Unless the doctor assures you that these questions can be answered satisfactorily your child is beginning his educational career handicapped. If you were planning a long automobile trip you would have your car put in good order. Should you not be equally careful of your child before he begins his long educational journey?"

AGED MINISTER DIES

Rev. Edmund Manges, Former Oakland Pastor, Succumbs at 84 In West York, Pa.

The Rev. Edmund Manges, veteran of the Civil War, and former pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland for eleven years, died Tuesday afternoon at 4:20 o'clock at his home, 1761 West Market street, York, Pa. He was aged 84 years and death was caused by infirmities incident to advanced years.

The Rev. Mr. Manges was a native of Somerset county, Pa., He was graduated from Gettysburg College with the class of 1870 and entered the Theological seminary the following fall, graduating from the seminary in 1875, and immediately entering the ministry of the Lutheran church.

During his long ministerial career he served pastorates at Luthersburg, Pa.; Shrewsbury, Pa.; Manchester, Md.; Levansville, Pa.; Felton, Pa.; Green Hill charge, Pa.; York, Pa., and Oakland. Upon leaving Oakland in 1914 he retired from the active ministry and took up his residence in York, Pa., where he continued to reside until his death.

Rev. Manges was pastor of the local Lutheran church when the building, then standing at the corner of Third and Alder streets was burned.

A year or two later the burned building was replaced by the structure now standing on Second street, made possible by his energy and determination to house his flock.

Mr. Manges was a member of St. James' Lutheran church at York. While a soldier of the Civil War he served in Co. L 52nd Infantry Fraternally he was a Mason, a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The deceased is survived by his widow and seven children: the Rev. Lewis C. Manges, D. D., pastor of Memorial Lutheran church, Harrisburg, Pa., and president of the East Pennsylvania Synod; Dr. Willis F. Manges, M. D., and professor roentgenology at Jefferson Medical school, Philadelphia; the Rev. E. L. Manges, pastor of St. James' Lutheran church at Huntington, Pa.; Mrs. George E. Smith, York, Pa.; Miss Corina E. Manges, Philadelphia; Mrs. G. Edward Swartz, York, and Miss Catherine Manges, teacher in the York public schools, who resides at home.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at York from St. James' Lutheran church with interment in Prospect Hill cemetery.

Thus closes a noble life well spent in the work for the betterment of humanity.

Shriners to Gather In Oakland.

A meeting of the local Shriners was recently held at which time an invitation was extended Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine of Cumberland, with which temple the majority of the Oakland Shriners are affiliated, to come to Oakland on Monday, September 13th.

Following the invitation thus extended a communication from the Cumberland body was received in which it was indicated that the Cumberland Shriners would be present 100 per cent strong with their forty piece band, drum corps, patrol and chanters, all of whom will come in their picturesque costumes. They will be accompanied also by a large number of the fair sex.

Arrangements are being perfected to make this one of the gala affairs of the season. A stree parade will be held at 7:30 in the evening when the marchers will traverse the principal streets of town, followed by a dance, the music for which will be furnished by Ali Ghan's own orchestra.

Ali Ghan is the infant temple of the United States, but it is a lusty youngster as will be seen when it visits Oakland on September 13th.

UNIONTOWN WOMAN AND MAN ENGAGED IN BRAWL

Sunday Evening On State Road Near Oakland and Fine of $225 Was Paid for the Fun Monday

A hand to hand conflict, in which the finger nails of the combatants were used frequently and furiously, was the cause of the arrest of Anthony Sansone, green goods merchant and groceryman of Uniontown, Pa., and a woman companion who would not reveal her identity, at a point on the State road directly on the outskirts of town Sunday evening at six o'clock. The charge preferred against the man was that of being under the influence of intoxicants and operating an automobile while drunk, and that against the woman was disorderly conduct.

The pair had driven into Oakland earlier in the day and was en route to the Pennsylvania city when the car was suddenly stopped at the edge of town by the driver. A heated argument was in progress according to passersby on the road and those residing within hearing distance, which presently drifted into a bout of some proportions and had assumed a knock-out affair when Sheriff Yutzy, who had been summoned by telephone, arrived on the scene and put the handcuffs on Sansone with the help of two or more other men who went to the scene from town or who had stopped their cars to witness the fisticuffs.

Sansone was brought to Oakland and lodged in jail, where he spent the night, while the woman, accompanied by Sheriff Yutzy, was directed by the officer to drive the car, an Oakland sedan into town. At a point near Houck's filling station it is said that an attempt was made by the woman to wreck the car, following which the sheriff drove the automobile the rest of the way, taking the woman to the European Hotel, following a preliminary hearing before Justice Gonder, where she spent the night.

At the hearing before Justice Gonder early Monday morning, the woman refused to give any information whatsoever, remaining silent on all questions propounded her. The charge against her, that of disorderly conduct, was dismissed.

Sansone, however, entered a plea of guilty to two charges, that of being drunk and disorderly and driving a car while under the influence of intoxicants. On the first charge he was fined $25 and costs and upon the second charge a fine of $200 and costs was assessed by the Magistrate. Both fines were paid and the pair drove out of town shortly after the close of the trial, seemingly satisfied.

Sansone was arrested at Mountain Lake Park one Sunday last summer, when, while under the influence of intoxicants, and accompanied by the same woman, he drove into and almost completely demolished a new car operated by a young man from West Virginia. At that time he was fined $100 and costs.

Upon leaving the Justice's office the woman was heard to remark "this is our second visit to Oakland and both visits have resulted disastrously."

Another Arrest Monday.

W. L. Morrison, of Burlington, W. Va., was arrested Monday morning by Sheriff Yutzy. He was charged with driving while drunk and having in his possession a quantity of intoxicants. He was fined $100 and costs.

Tri-State Good Citizenship Day At Mountain Lake Park.

The annual Tri-State Good Citizenship Day will be observed at Mountain Lake Park on Sunday next.

At 11 o'clock Dr. W. W. Davis, General Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, will preach on "No Room for the Lord's Day." In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be held a platform meeting when Congressman Kurtz, of Altoona is expected to speak on "The Lord's Day and the Nation." Should Mr. Kurtz not be present then Dr. Davis will give his address on "Campaigning for the King," or personal reminiscences.

In the evening "The Rolling Romance," illustrated by four films, will be given. This picture has attracted a great deal of attention. To see it will be a pleasure for both adult and child alike.

Miss Lillian Hammett, of Uniontown, whose singing last year so greatly pleased the crowds, will have charge of the music this year. The Crellin Boys' Band will also be present during the afternoon and evening and render music.

DEMOCRATS ARE LACKING IN COUNTY CANDIDATES

State Positions on Both Tickets Are Filled With Contests Looming Brightly Ahead

At midnight Tuesday the candidates who had failed to file their nomination certificates with the officers of election were out of luck, for at that hour the books were closed against all comers, and there was one local candidate who failed to get in, Willliam E. Wars, for membership on the Republican State Central Committee.

WILL BE INSTALLED PASTOR OF ST. MARK'S SUNDAY

REV. CHARLES A. SHILKE.

Rev. Charles Augustus Shilke was born near Lineboro, Carroll county, Md., and confirmed in Lazarus Lutheran church Sept. 28, 1901, by Pastor H. H. Flick. He graduated from Codorus Township high school in 1908 and entered college the same year, graduating with the class of 1912, following which he entered the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., and graduated with the class of 1915.

During the summer of 1914 he served as supply pastor of the First Lutheran church at Mill Creek, Illionois, and was licensed by the Maryland Synod, October 29, 1914; was ordained a minister on October 29, 1915 in Zion Lutheran church at Middletown, Md.

From the Seminary he was called to become pastor of Utica Charge at Walkersville, Md., which he so acceptably served for eleven years.

On June 19, 1926, he was unanimously called to become pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland, which he accepted and began his duties on July 1st.

Rev. Shilke will be officially installed pastor of St. Mark's church Sunday, August 29th, with special services in the morning and the evening.

Car Wrecked Near Accident and Young Woman Occupant Had Collar Bone Broken.

Sunday afternoon as the family of Rev. W. H. Cosner, of District No. 8, occupying a Ford car, was coming out of Accident, the machine collided with onther car and it was thrown over an embankment into a field. Miss Cosner, a daughter, suffered the fracture of her collar bone and her mother was badly bruised. First aid was rendered by Dr. Ravenscroft of Accident, who sent the party on into Oakland where surgical aid was rendered and the injured taken to their home.

The regular order of business will be carried out during the session. The feature of the lecture program will be an address by Mr. W. B. Burris, pop-an address by Mr. W. B. Burriss, pop-of this county, and who has just recently joined the Shady Dell Grange. A large gathering is expected to hear Mr. Burriss and to share the hospitality of Shady Dell that day.

Annual Sunday School Convention at Grantsville, Sept. 18 And 19.

The annual Sunday school convention of the Garrett County Sunday School Association will be held at Grantsville on Saturday and Sunday, September 18th and 19th.

An interesting program is now being arranged by County President E. R. Jones and the Field Secretary, Rev. G. A. Teske, of Cumberland, and will be announced at an early date. Among the speakers from out of the county will be Rev. Charles Peters, Ph.D., of Philadelphia, Pa. Sessions of the convention will be held on Saturday afternoon and night and all day on Sunday.

All Sunday school workers are urged to plan now to attend this convention and to see to it that all of the schools of the county are represented by a number of delegates. Superintendents are requested by the County President to present the matter to the schools and arrange for these delegations.

WARDER ROY, OAKLAND HIGH GRADUATE, KILLED

Injuries Received on Road Near Thomas Sunday Afternoon Resulted In His Death Monday

Warder Roy, aged twenty years, died at the Davis Memorial Hospital, Davis, West Va., Monday morning, as the result of injuries sustained by him Sunday afternoon on the road leading from Oakland to Thomas, when his car, parked alongside the road to permit the repairing of a tire, was ran into by another automobile said to be driven by a man named Donalds living at or near Thomas.

The report comes to Oakland that young Roy had completed the repairs to the car and was standing in front of it when the collison took place the young man being caught between the two cars. Both his legs were broken and he also received internal injuries.

Young Roy graduated from the Oakland High School last spring. He was quite a favorite among his fellow-students and the faculty and was also highly esteemed by those who knew him outside the school. His parents resided until recently at Shaffer, West Va., having left there some time ago and are now living near Washington, D. C. Besides his mother and father he is survived by a brother and two sisters.

TRESSLER ORPHANS' HOME BAND FINE ENTERTAINERS

Large Oakland Audience Was Delighted Monday Evening.

The Boys' Band of the Tressler Orphans' Home at Loysville, Pa., an institution owned and maintained by the United Lutheran Church of America, gave a very pleasing concert last Monday night, according to the concensus of opinion of the audience, estimated at four hundred persons.

The concert took place at the corner of Third and Alder streets following an unsuccessful attempt to illuminate the Court House lawn and approaches to the building, caused, it is said by an underground wire carrying the current to become short circuited.

The band is composed of thirty-two youths ranging from 11 to 20 years of age, who make an annual tour for the benefit of the home, of which they are inmates. This year makes the 12th annual tour for this organization, the personnel of course changing with each succeeding year. They are transported over the country in a handsome and very comfortable Pierce-Arrow coach. They carry a special combination of ten saxophones and one of the smallest bass drummers in the country.

The free will offering taken up at the concert amounted to about $106, which was satisfactory to those in charge.

The members of the band were placed in private homes while in Oakland and said upon leaving that they had greatly enjoyed their stay here.

City Delivery Service in Oakland After November 1st.

The citizens of Oakland, after November 1st, 1926, will enjoy city delivery service from the local postoffice. This news was contained in a letter from Congressman Frederick N. Zihiman to Postmaster Ravenscroft, dated August 6th, and just made public. This is a decided step forward and should prove of great advantage to the patrons of this postoffice and to the general progress of the town itself. This improvement in the service is due to the efforts of the postmaster and Congressman Zihiman, who has always actively interested himself in the improvement of the mail service out of this office and the other offices of his district.

Under the new order Oakland patrons of the office will receive at their doors packages sent by mail instead of having to call for the same at the office as is now the rule.

Mr. George Fratz, who graduated in June from the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Lutheran Institute, and is now employed in that city, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fratz, at Accident. He was accompanied home by Miss Amelia Nahrwold, also of Fort Wayne. She will spend two weeks with her friend, Miss Elfrida Haenftling, after which Miss Haenftling will return with her to Fort Wayne.

Miss Elizabeth Pearce returned to her home at National Sunday after having spent a week in Oakland with friends.

GORTNER

Mrs. Thomas Compton and two children, of Oakland, spent several days of last week in Gortner with Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Slabach.

Misses Bertha, Frances and Mildred Lechnor, of Aurora, were guests of Miss Carrie Wiles last Sunday.

Mr. Webster Slabach motored to Moorefield, West Va., Saturday, being accompanied hy Miss Freeda C. Layton, of near Gorman.

Miss Cathleen Dodge is spending this week with Miss Helen Mosser, near Red House.

Messrs. Jacob Swartzentruber and Roy Lichty spent the week-end with Mrs. Swartzentruber, who is a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Louch, Mrs. Blyston and son Eugene, and Misses Anna and Mildred Louch motored to Gortner from Scottdale, Pa., Saturday and on Sunday Mr. Louch preached in the local church at the morning and evening services.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Swartzentruber and daughters Sadie and Mary, of Grantsville, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Swartzentruber and children and Mrs. Chris Swartzentruber, of Greenwood, Del., are visiting relatives here. Mr. Eli Swartzentruber preached for us while in our community.

The Lee family attended the family reunion, which was held at Floyd on last Sunday.

Misses Vernie Hersleberger, Vernie Berkey, Emma Burkholder and Messrs. Carl Swiers, David Beckman, "Red" Sisk and Jeff Burkholder spent Wednesday evening with the Lichty family.

Mrs. Nellie Feathers and daughter Geraldine, of Oakland, are staying at Mr. W. C. Welch's this week.

Sunday visitors at Mr. S. W. Slabach's were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaffer, Mrs. Amos Martin and daughter Virgil, of Red House; Miss Mary Lichty, Ted Beachy and the Louch family, of Scottdale, Pa.

Mr. Whitfield DeWitt, of Hoyes, spent last week at Mr. Spoerlein's.

BLOOMING ROSE

Mr. Orval Friend and daughter Ruth motored to Uniontown Tuesday.

Miss Blanche VanSickle spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Evelyn Groves in Friendsville.

Mrs. Samuel Lininger, of Hazelton, West Va., was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alex. Frazee, here one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude R. Rice, of Clarksburg, W. Va., spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Lott VanSickle and family at their home here.

Mrs. Alex. Groves was visiting her parents here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. VanSickle and their daughters Helen and Blanche and Mr. Charles Shreve were guests of Mr and Mrs. Alex. Groves in Friendsville last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Frazee and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Teets last Sunday.

Many of the people of this community attended the K. K. K. meeting at South Avenue last Sunday.

BITTINGER

Commenting on the political outlook, a local observer says: "The entry of the newly groomed veteran politicians into the senatorial race will at least inject some enthusiasm into the primary contest culminating on the 14th of September, but who knows how."

A protracted period of rain fall and fog began in this section on Thursday evening August 12th, and has continued with little cessation until the beginning of the present week. During this time several inches of rain fell, so thoroughly saturating the soil that the strong east wind which blew continuously for five days loosened the growing corn and caused it to fall over, in some instances blowing it flat upon the ground. Oats also, which had just been cut and shocked, also suffered from the continued damp weather, but it is believed with the coming of the sunshine the corn will recover and the oats not be a total loss to the farmers.

Mr. George W. Engle and daughter Miss Flora, of Baltimore, accompanied by their friend, Mr. Samuel Jackson, spent a part of last week with Mr. Engle's mother, Mrs. Ellen Engle, at her home here.

Lewis Oester, of Keyser's Ridge, was among the Sunday visitors to this village.

Miss Agnes Harbert, of Shinnston West Va., who spent several days here with her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Fortney, returned to her West Virginia home last Sunday afternoon.

Miss Leonora Wiley returned last Friday evening from Reisterstown Md., where she had been visiting her brother, Mr. B. H. Wiley, and family.

We are glad to report some improvement in the health of Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, who has been confined to his bed for some time.

Clarence Loechel and family, of Grantsville, were guests of Mrs. Loechel's sister, Mrs. C. C. Beachy, last Sunday.

Keep in mind the Sunday school picnic at Bittinger next Saturday and come and spend the day with us.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF H. J. SPEICHER

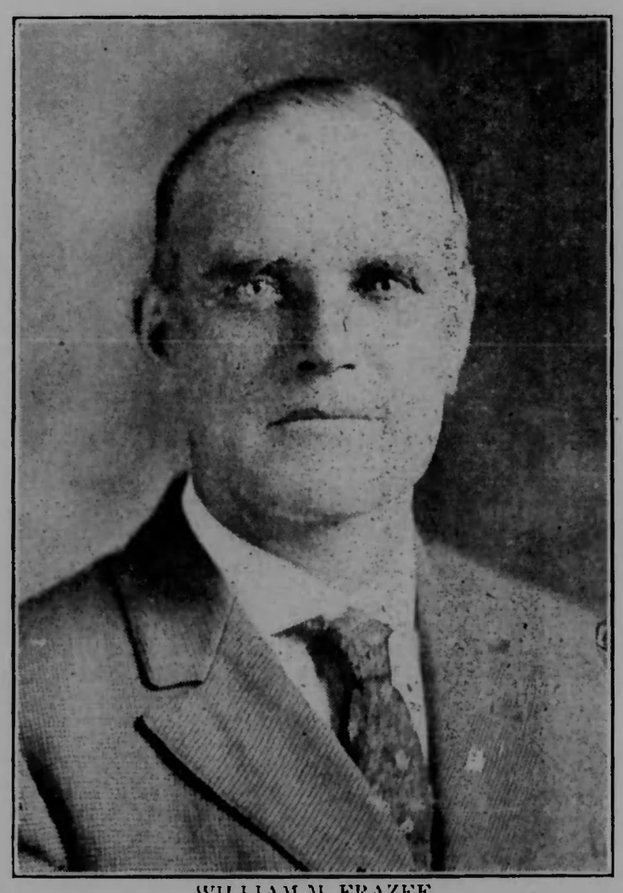
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

Since the earnest solicitation of many Republican voters and citizens of Garrett County, I have decided to become a candidate for the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket, subject to the result of the primary election.

I have had twelve years' experience as your representative, which I believe will better fit me to represent you and will enable me to accomplish more for an economical administration of affairs.

During my term of office I have voted for such mesures and legislation for the betterment of schools and roads—in fact all legislation that was for the betterment of conditions of the county and State.

I have made mistakes—that man doesn't live who hasn't made them—but listen: I have served you twelve years without criticism from any of the leading papers of the State.



If you will take the time to go back over my record and see what has been accomplished for the county during my term of office, I feel sure you will favor me with your support.

Assuring you of my appreciation for the confidence heretofore reposed in me and assuring you a faithful and conscientious discharge of duty if again nominated and elected, I have the honor to remain with respect,

Very truly yours,
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

FOR NOMINATION FOR COUNTY TREASURER

WILLIAM M. FRAZEE

I was born and reared in Garrett County and have always lived on a farm; have been a taxpayer for the past twenty-five years and every dollar I have earned I have invested in Garrett County real estate which draws taxes to help defray the county's expense.

Some of my opponents have not always been residents of the county or even of the State. Some of them do not even own real estate, and if any taxable property, then very little.

If nominated and elected, I will endeavor to treat my fellow-taxpayers with every possible courtesy and will strive to fill the office efficiently, honestly and carefully and will be diligent in the discharge of my duties. If nominated and elected, I will distribute the tax business as much as possible among the institutions of the county with fairness and honesty to all.

I therefore hereby earnestly and respectfully solicit your worthy vote at the coming primary, which will be on September 14th, 1926.

It is my aim and determination to see every voter. Should I miss any, it will not be intentional.

Thanking you in advance, I am. Yours respectfully,
W. M. FRAZEE.

Election District No. 2.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER

C. S. MAY.

In announcing myself as one of the many candidates for Treasurer, I want to say, if elected, I can and will keep as good a set of books as any man in or out of Garrett County.

No one solicited me to make the fight. Read my platform and vote as you please. It takes votes to elect, not promises.

MY PLATFORM.

1. I belive in God, Maker of all things. (Sin excepted).
2. I believe in the Bible, upon which all laws are based.
3. I believe in the Church and all of its branches.
4. I believe in all organizations that are in favor of the Schools and the building up of Humanity, Morality and the Church, including the K. K. K.
5. I believe America is the best Nation on earth.
6. I believe in and love the Constitution of the United States, and all its Amedments.
7. I believe when a man is elected to the highest office in the State, takes the oath to uphold the dignity of the Constitution of the United States, that he should do so.
8. I believe in the Law and the enforcement thereof.
9. I believe that when a man or woman is not satisfied with our laws, he or she should get out and go over where Emma Goldman and her crowd are, where there are plenty of her kind.
10. I believe the Eighteenth Amendment was written by God, thru one of His agents, and that Mr. Volstead will reap his reward in Heaven. All of this slush and propaganda published and paid for by a bunch of lawbreakers and thugs will never turn the minds of the good people of America. To the man or woman that says the Eighteenth Amendment is wrong, Russia will hold him or her also.

This is my platform, with many more beliefs. I ask you support at the Primary as a candidate for Treasurer for Garrett County on the Republican Ticket.

Time Draws Near for Much Discussed Labor Day Picnic

We take pleasure in announcing the time is near at hand for the Annual Labor Day Picnic. Nothing has been left undone to make it an honest to goodness picnic. We wish to lay special stress on the important features of the parade which promises to equal, if not excel, any previous attempt. The parade committee, which is in charge of Brothers, A. R. Martin and Guy O. Yutzy, give encouraging reports of cooperation of our local townsfolk.

Some of the many useful articles to be distributed on the grounds will be displayed in the windows of C. A. Fraley & Sons, The Coffman-Fisher Co., and D. M. Dixon and Son. Cast your eye over the entire collection and decide which article best suits your fancy, then come to the grounds and procure one in an approved manner.

Among the many attractions will be a fiddler's contest to be held on the grounds between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 p. m. The contestants will be named at a later date. It is to be hoped that the expectations of the hard working committee will be fully realized. In order to bring about the realization of their aims and hopes, all must enter into the spirit of the occasion and let our recreational instinct guide us in the pursuit of pleasure.

As a parting admonition we urge you to bring the future leaders of all walks of life, the kings and queens of industry—the true American red-blooded kiddies.

H. V. LEIGHTON, CANDIDATE FOR COMMISSIONER

H. V. LEIGHTON.

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County:—

It is only by the solicitation of many of the substantial citizens of the County that I am a candidate for the office of County Commissioner, and did I not feel that I am qualified for the office and in a position to render efficient service to my County, I would not be an aspirant to this office.

I have never held a public office in Garrett County, although I have been a voter and a heavy tax payer in the county for thirty years. I have never made a failure in any kind of business I have undertaken. I was reared a farmer and still own and operate a farm. I was a teacher in our public schools for five years; four years engaged in State Road building; have had supervision of streets and roads for many years. I was in the general mercantile business for twenty years and am now a lumber merchant and a farmer. With this varied experience I feel that I should be able to help take care of some of the intricate problems that come up before this Board.

I am very sure that every intelligent voter realizes the importance of this office and wants to select three men with unquestioned fitness and ability, and if we can have a Board that will give a careful and economical administration, it will mean much to each taxpayer of the County in keeping the tax rate where it should be and in getting value received for the money that goes through their hands.

I am not making any political pledges, but I do promise, if nominated and elected, to be fair and impartial, to render the very best service I am capable of rendering regardless of the effort, and to endeavor to keep the tax rate at the lowest possible point consistent with the needs and progress of the County.

I only ask due consideration and comparison of fitness and ability along with the other candidates, and then if your judgment leads you to select me as one of the three nominees, I shall very much appreciate your help and influence.

Don't forget to go to the primary election on September 14th, for in Garrett County this means more than the general election.

Very truly yours,
H. V. LEIGHTON.

While the attendance at the Rotary meet at Deer Park was small, compared with the number expected last Friday, the 175 Rotarians who gathered at the famous resort had a wonderful time. Dinner was served at 7.30 o'clock and consisted of a special menu of roast turkey and all that goes with the royal bird. Oakland won the cup for the largest attendance, while Terra Alta carried away the prize for swimming. On account of the wet grounds the golf and tennis contests were called off. The cup for the latter contest, donated by Dr. McComas, President of the Oakland Rotary, is a massive twenty five inch loving cup of beautiful design and will be contested for at the next meet of the district Rotarians

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY.

A report seems to have been circulated in certain sections of the county to the effect that if nominated and elected to the State Senate from Garrett county it is my intention to introduce legislation to exempt the Power Company operating near Oakland from taxation.

I cannot understand why anyone should circulate a report of this nature and it is absolutely false.

I will appreciate the favor very much if anyone to whom it is told will kindly drop me a note and let me know who is doing it. Certainly as one of the largest individual taxpayers in the county, I would not be in favor of an act of this kind, which by exempting a corporation from taxes would increase what the rest of us would have to pay.

I am not in favor of exempting said corporation or anyone else from the payment of its or their proper proportion of the tax burden and if nominated and elected I shall certainly take no such action to do so.

Very truly yours,
A. D. NAYLOR.
Republican Candidate for nomination for State Senator.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY

I have been informed by a number of friends that some of my opponents or somebody else has made the statement that I can neither read nor write, which statement is entirely false.

I think that I have sufficient education to perform the duties of County Treasurer.

I have been a taxpayer in the county for more than thirty years. Yours truly,
R. J. NICHOLSON,
Republican candidate for nomination for County Treasurer

PROPOSED BOULEVARD TO CUMBERLAND, MD., WOULD PRESERVE HISTORIC CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO CANAL

Old Waterway Played Large Part in Development of the Capital—Monuments Mark Events Along Route—Outgrowth of Patowmack Company, Organized in 1802 Under George Washington—185-Mile Parkway Would Offer Many Features to Travelers—Natural Beauties of Scenery Abound.

Running parallel with the shore of the lazy and beautiful "Patowmack," beloved of Washington, lies the chesapeake and Ohio canal, now abandoned and fallen into disuse. But back in the days when destiny was writing most rapidly the beginnings of the history of our great republic this waterway was the scene of active commerce, with boats busily plying up and down its length from tidewater at Georgetown, to Cumberland, Md.

The proposal has been made that the Federal government purchase this canal and build a national boulevard and parkway between Washington and Cumberland. The proposal to build the boulevard parallel to the canal is more desirable than the one advocating the use of the bed of the canal. The old canal, so closely connected with Washington's early activities should be forever preserved.

The suggestion is a most feasible one, in connection with the proposed acquisition of the virgin and historic forest tracts lying at the doorsill of the Capital City. These two features of the program for land acquisition are of outstanding desirability and have already been discussed in the pages of American Forests and Forest Life.

Should Be Parkway.

The canal is 184½ miles long, with an average width of 65 feet at the surface. The Federal government should unquestionably own this strip of land as a parkway from the Potomac river to and including Conduit road as far as Great Falls. The State of Maryland should also be interested in having, further, a magnificent boulevard, 185 miles long, from the Capital City to Cumberland. This boulevard would offer features that commend themselves to the traveler—scenery and history. Shepherdstown and Harpers Ferry are two of the most interesting towns that the canal passes between Cumberland and Georgetown. At Shepherdstown, on the edge of a cliff overlooking the Potomac, is a monument erected to the memory of James Rumsey, inventor of the steamboat, though Robert Fulton is generally credited with this achievement. In 1787, on the Potomac river, near Shepherdstown, James Rumsey made a successful demonstration of a boat propelled by steam.

It is interesting to find that, in 1784, George Washington passed a night at Bath, Berkeley county, Va., and James Rumsey, one of the proprietors of the tavern, showed Washington then his invention for propelling boats against the stream by a mechanical contrivance. Mr. Rumsey was afterward made the general manager of improvements of the Patowmack Co.

Capital For Closer Bonds

The dream of George Washington's life was to see the East and the West connected by a navigable waterway. The West, in those days, was known only as a dense and extensive wilderness west of the Appalachian mountains. Washington had a vision to see that a country of such vast extent could be held together only by closer bonds. As early as 1754, 20 years before the Revolution, Washington in person explored the proposed route for connecting the East and the West by the waters of the Potomac and Youghiogheny rivers. The result of his efforts was the formation of the Patowmack Co., which was organized in 1785, with George Washington as president. The plan of improvement of the Patowmack Co. was that of open-river navigation, except at localities where the falls made navigation impossible, at which places lateral canals with locks were constructed.

Navigation was opened in 1802, and the canals were in continuous operation until 1830, when the locks at Great Falls were abandoned. The expense of keeping the upper Potomac in a navigable condition was great, and the people began to see the feasibility of a continuous canal from tidewater, at Georgetown, to Cumberland. To consummate this required the rights and privileges secured under the charter of the Patowmack Co. to be surrendered. In January, 1824, the Chesapeake & Ohio canal was authorized by act of the Virginian assembly; in December 1824, by Maryland, and by the act of Congress approved March 3, 1825. The Patowmack Co. gave its final consent August 15, 1828. These acts constitute the charter of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal, which succeeded to the rights and interests of the Patowmack Co.

Ground Broken By Adams

Ground was broken for the canal by John Quincy Adams, President of the United States. Old newspapers give interesting descriptions of the celebration. The directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Co., met the honored guests, which included the President of the United States and his cabinet, the representatives of foreign governments, and other high officials. The procession, attended by companies of militia, the Marine band, and other bands of music, marched to the Potomac and embarked on a steamboat. Disembarking, the company marched to canal boats lying in the old canal of the Patowmack Co.

The inspired reporter of the National Intelligencer wrote: "All nature seemed to smile upon the scene. The senses of the company were regaled by a scene at once novel and really enchanting. The music of Moore's sweet song, "The Meeting of the Waters," poured its melody on the ear, so as to suspend the labor of the boatmen and charm to silence every voice."

Elaborate arrangements were made for the ceremony of breaking the ground. The spot chosen was near a powder magazine at the head of Little Falls. Two companies of riflemen saluted the arrival of President Adams. Mr. Mercer, president of the company, handed Mr. Adams the spade. The President pushed it into the ground, but the spade struck a root. Mr. Adams tried again with no better success; so he threw down the spade, stripped off his coat and went seriously to work. The multitude cheered and gave loud and unanimous applause. The canal was completed in Cumberland 22 years afterward, in October, 1850.

B. & O. Outgrowth of Canal.

Baltimoreans had no interest in the Chesapeake & Ohio canal. They had expended large sums of money on public roads to obtain the trade which the canal would deprive them of. The business men of Baltimore gathered at the homes of George Brown and Philip E. Thomas to discuss transportation. They organized the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. Plans were made that when ground should be broken for the Chesapeake & Ohio canal near Washington the corner stone of America's first railroad should be laid in Baltnmore.

July 4, 1828, simultaneously with President Adams turning the first spadeful of earth for the Chesapeake & Ohio canal, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, the only surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, lifted the first spadeful of earth for the laying of the corner stone of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. When the venerable patriot pushed the spade into the ground, he remarked: "I consider this among the most important acts of my life, second only to my signing the Declaration of Independence, if even it be second to that."

Wooden Rails First Used

The name of Baltimore & Ohio was chosen because the intention of its founders was to push construction from Baltimore to the Ohio river, thus uniting Chesapeake bay with the great tributary of the Mississippi. Wooden rails were first adopted, and horses were first used for hauling coaches over the rails. At one time the company experimented with a car which was carried before the wind by means of mast and sail. Peter Cooper, of New York, finally solved the problem by his little engine, Tom Thumb. By December 1, 1831, steam-drawn trains were in operation to Frederick, Md. The idea of conveying passengers was an afterthought. It was the freight traffic which the Chesapeake & Ohio eanal would draw from Baltimore that caused Baltimoreans to build the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and so the history of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal and its rival for Western trade, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is told at the same time.

The canal was wrecked by the freshet of 1889. The company could do nothing to put it in repair, and matters were taken to court. The court decided to issue a decree for the sale of the canal. Politicians interested in the West Virginia Central railway made an effort, through an act passed by the Maryland legislature, to sell this valuable property, worth millions, to that company for about $200,000. The decree issued by the court in 1890, providing for the sale of the canal, provided also that the sale should be stopped on condition that the trustees make the needed repairs by May 1, 1891, and operate it as a public waterway. It was repaired and traffic resumed until the spring of 1924, when it was badly damaged by the two floods that swept the Potomac.

Record of Young Republic

The old canal, so closely connected with Washington's early activities, should forever be preserved in some form, as part of the treasured record of the young republic, for it bears the actual imprint of the thought of this great American, expressed in concrete form. The "Washington Boulevard," running through this historic country, following the wooded shores of the quiet river that he loved so dearly—mile after mile of beautiful driveway leading into the city that bears his name—would eventually take its place among the great structures of the world.

Should the nation let this opportunity pass?

Several proposals have been made for acquirements by the government of the forests on both sides of the Potomac river about Key bridge. The acquirements of this particular stretch of land, lying at the very portal of Washington, the National Capital, can not be too strongly urged; for the banks of the old Potomac from its source, in two tiny streams in the mountains of West Virginia, to its mouth, with a width of 7 miles where it flows into Chesapeake bay, witnessed the making of much of our earliest recorded history.

In 1608 John Smith explored the river to the falls. In the next century, at the foot of the forest-covered cliffs on the Virginia side of the Potomac, John Randolph, of Roanoke, and Henry Clay fought their celebrated duel. Randolph threw away his fire and offered Clay his hand. On the other side of Key Bridge is Analostan Island, formerly known as Mason's Island, the home of John Mason, son of George Mason, who drew up the Virginia constitution, and who was the author of the famous Bill of Rights.

Story of Three Sisters

By far the most picturesque river legend of this section is the story of the Three Sisters, the small rocky islands in the center of the Potomac River just above Key Bridge. Before a drowning occurs they are believed to emit a sound like the slow chiming of a cathedral bell.

The three maidens, daughters of an Analostan chief, met one dark night and stole out in their canoes to visit the Powhatans. They were caught in the whirlpool and in fright they flung themselves into the water and were drowned. In the morning three rocks, gray and barren, had arisen from the water. There is an old ballad which gives their story. Part of it runs:

"Swifter they come and swifter.
With dark eyes gleaming round,
With soft words, glad and eager,
For the braves of the Powhatan;
When out of the darkness around them,
Out of the black of the trees,
The voice of the great spirit called them,
Like the cry of choking seas.
They leaped, with a moan of terror,
Into the heart of the mere;
The waters hissed around them,
The stars were white with fear.
Three rocks, spired and gloomy,
Gray as a stormy sky,
Sprang from the depth of the whirlpool,
Where the Indian sisters lie.
Ever at night they ring,
Like a sad cathedral bell,
Echoing far on the waters,
They sound the warning bell."

Cliffs and Banks Flowered

The cliffs and banks of the Potomac are covered with the native trees, flowers and plants. The flora of this section is intensely interesting, as lack of agricultural pursuits and building has preserved many original species. The towpath of the canal offers a convenient road for observing the flowers and plants of this region. The skunk cabbage, found in most places, is the earliest of the spring flowers, and this is followed by the hepatica, trailing arbutus, bloodroot, spring beauty, adder's tongue, or trout lily, wake robin, violet, Dutchman's breeches, bluebells, wild ginger, jack-in-the-pulpit, columbine and many others. The redbud and dogwood are among the more showy of the trees.

The country parallel with the old Chesapeake & Ohio eanal offers an ideal site for a scenic boulevard traversing this historic region and connecting Washington and Cumberland.

In the preliminary report of its committee on forest and park reserves, the American Civic Association mentions among the lands desirable to be acquired in extending the National Capital park system "both banks of the Potomac from Washington to Great Falls, to preserve the forests, the very remarkable natural scenery and stop defacement by quarry operations, this park-extension not to interfere with future development for water supply and power plant."

Bryce Pays Tribute

Indicative of a foreigner's appreciation of Washington, the late James Bryce, British ambassador, said in a remarkable address delivered in 1913:

"I know of no city in Europe except Constantinople, which has quite close—in its very environs—such beautiful scenery as many of the woods which stretch along the Potomac. No European city has as noble a cataract in the vicinity as the Great Falls of the Potomac, a magnificant piece of scenery which you will, of course, always preserve. * * * Some day the people are going to set the true value upon all these things—these spots of beauty around Washington. When that day comes those who come after you will either pay far more for these pieces of ground or else men will mourn in vain over opportunities forever lost. * * *

"You have such a chance offered to you here for building up a superb capital that it would be almost an act of ingratitude to Providence and to history and to the men who planted the city here, if you did not use the advantages you here enjoy."

The committee pointedly suggests that this address deserves to be made a textbook in our schools.

This dream of a National boulevard and a National Capital forest needs only unified public support to become a reality.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Last Sunday was Auti-Saloon League Day at the Park. The meetings both afternoon and evening were largely attended by a deeply interested crowd. The debate in the afternoon was exceptionally entertaining and drew a tremendous crowd from all parts of the county. The arguments put forth by the speakers showed plainly that a united action on the part of law-abiding citizens is absolutely necessary to combat successfulyy the outlaws whose sole ambition is to defeat the laws of the land and undermine the Constitution of the United States. The splendid music furnished by the Oakland City Band was greatly enjoyed by the crowds present during the day.

Dr. O. K. Widdoson, who has been quite ill for some time, is now here for a short stay.

Rev. and and Mrs. W. G. Shellebear, of New Jersey, have contracted to purchase two lots in the Park on which they contemplate erecting a cottage for occupancy next summer.

Several other parties are interested in lots here and in the rental of properties for next season.

The total rainfall recorded here from Monday until Saturday of last week measured five inches—probably the greatst precipitation for many years past. The continuous downpour weakened the dam at the lake and as a result a small break occurred, but Mr. Tassie, superintendent of the grounds, soon repaired it and kept the large gate open so that no damage of a material nature occurred.

MOTOR COACH SERVICE will be established by the Baltimore & Ohio direct from trainside at Jersey City to two new stations in the "Heart of New York City"

COMMENCING Sunday, August 29th, a fleet of commodious motor coaches will be placed in operation for the exclusive use of Baltimore & Ohio patrons, entering or leaving New York City.

On arrival in Jersey City, you step from your train into the waiting motor coach which will take you and your hand baggage direct to the heart of New York's activities, with choice of two routes.

Coach stations will be located in the Pershing Square Building on 42nd Street, opposite Grand Central Terminal, also in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, convenient to the uptown business, hotel and shopping districts, subway and surface lines. No additional charge. Regular schedules, over fixed routes, uptown and downtown New York, will be maintained between these coach stations and the Jersey City train terminal.

This service will provide the traveling public with a personal convenience heretofore not available.

For information and reservations, apply to local ticket agent.

On August 29th—Baltimore & Ohio trains will discontinue the use of Pennsylvania Station, New York City.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS: DUTIES TO MAN.

Exodus 20: 12-21.

Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Leviticus 19:18.

THOU SHALT PLAY FAIR WITH THY HOME.

The first institution God set in the world was the home; the second, whose story we are following in Exodus, is the church, and the third, to which we will come later, is the state. This is the divine order. Herethen in the heart of God's commands so soon as a true relationship has been established with Himself we enter the home. It is the vital institution in the world now as it has been in the thinking of the Eternal. "Upon the home rests our moral character; our civic and religious liberties are grounded there; virtue, manhood, citizenship grow there. We forget it at our peril. For American citizenship in the long run, will be, must be, what the American home is." So wrote that splendid struggler for the rights for the poor, Jacob Riis whom President Roosevelt called the "most useful citizen in America." And its stability is founded upon the character of its parents and the discernment of the children. God says: "Honor thy father and thy mother," but God never gives honor where it isn't due. How can a child honor a remarried father and a remarried mother while he is a shuttle between the two? God means that parents shall keep themselves worthy of honor on the part of the child. The other woman or the other man in the case has no part in God's planning. Campbell Morgan visited a room from which the children fled as he approached. The mother said: "Excuse the children; they thought you were their father." It is impossible for a child to honor a parent like that. And it is difficult to house a true home in a hotel. God means a real home when He builds it and real parents to run it when he commands it to be held in honor. We must play fair with the home and give it attention sufficient to make it all that it is meant to be to the life of those within it and to the state of which it is the foundation. Given a home of that sort children are to be discerning enough to appreciate its quality. Note that it is not a childless home God is contemplating. Both the younger and the elder son of Christ's parable failed to give it honor and to play fair with its life but ultimately they found its worth. And this is the grip of a real home, it compels the ultimate allegiance of its sons and daughters.

THOU SHALT PLAY FAIR WITH THY HANDS.

These next commands concern themselves with persons, purity and property. Thou shalt not kill. With the perfectly appalling record for crime in our own land we need again to read the lines graven in the moral constitution of the race. In "The Economic Waste of Sin" the author lists the losses to our own nation from crime as follows: Direct loss thru destruction, cost of police and private protection $549,813,788; thru loss of production of the criminals (200,000) and those who are made non-productive because of them, $1,180,000,000; thru the support of criminals in stolen values, fraudulent securities, fraudulent failures, gambling and forgery, $1,600,000,000, or a ottal annual cost of crime of $3,329,813,788. And then there is no inclusion of fake cures and medicines that take a terrific total each year, none of the graft that has made Tea Pot Dome famous and has stained the reputation of more states than Pennsylvania. Nor does it include the men who are murdered whose value has no possible computation. It is a terrific indictment of our American life and a tremendous urge to write anew in the Nation's life these rules that indicate the direction along which we may go with safety. Killing and stealing are not alone in America they belong to the world hut so long as we are making the record we are it behooves us to talk very little about the rest of the world. And we may well set ourselves the task of its reduction. Can the Church play fair with the rising generation unless it flings its warnings in its face? That Judge in Chicago who gave some first offenders a trip thru the penitentiary was using a wise precaution against a repetition. And then also we must drop much of our old prudery and warn against the sin of unfair taking advantage of the passions of others. Youth must know and has the right to know that an uncounted number of our blind children are playing the price of their parents sexual sins. "Keep thyself clean" in both thought and life is one of our Lord's injunctions as He interpreted these old commands.

THOU SHALT PLAY FAIR WITH THY TONGUE.

Words can never be recalled. Nor can they be fully overtaken. The first statement gets a headline, the retraction gets an inch in an obscure corner where it is never seen by the majority of those who read the earlier report. The priest who imposed the penace of picking a chicken along the highway and then added the further completion of its terms in the direction, "Go back now and pick up every feather you threw away," cured a heartless gossip by the process. There is of course the court basis of this command in which the truthfulness of the witness is the foundation upon which our system of justice rests. For if words may not be relied upon for accuracy then the Judge is helpless, the jury confused and the verdict untrue. And there is the shrug of the shoulder that may be as damning as speech and it is this innuendo business that finds its home among far too many people. They are literally truthful but twist their affirmation into a denial by the way they say it. They are failing woefully to play fair with others, to do for their neighbor what they wish done for themselves.

THOU SHALT PLAY FAIR WITH THY HEART.

That last of the ten words is the only one that concerns itself with the hidden life of the soul. All the others are judged thru the fruit plucked from the branches while this is the root of very many of the breakages higher up the list. This is the source of the dirty stream flowing across much of our present day life. It was an early day in which the wife was listed with other property as being upon the same level and so included in the injunction. In the thinking of the command this is a property craving that desires the possessions of another, that craves the thing that such property would buy and becomes miserable because it does not happen to be within reach. Of course it may be stretched over many other things than property. Education, appearance, position, or a dozen more may unsettle the placidity of one's temperament. And it is the sin we seldom mention and it roots deeply in the affairs that must be met by money, for the man who covets is most unlikely to play fair with God in the distribution of what happens to be within his control.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor aml City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland hy adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted hy the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted hy the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each hallot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitntional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall he submitted in form and manner prescribed hy the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

GARRETT COUNTY JAIL IS RANKED FIFTH IN STATE

With a Rating of "B", While the Allegany County Jail Stands at the Head of the List.

The Garrett County Jail in Oakland is the fifth best kept institution of its kind in the State of Maryland, according to the second annual report of the inspection of the county jails of Maryland by the director of the Department of Welfare, recently submitted to the Board of Welfare. The local jail is rated in the "B" class. Only the Allegany and Baltimore county jails have a rating of "A," all other county jails being below the standard of the Allegany county institution.

According to the report of the Welfare Board, after an inspection of all the jails in the State, the Washington county jail at Hagerstown stands eighteenth among the twenty-three counties of the State.

Sheriff Yutzy was commended by the Board of Welfare for the excellent condition of the local jail and for the interest taken in the welfare and comfort of the prisoners.

Sunnyside Grange

We certainly feel proud of the way the women responded to the literary program at our last meeting, which consisted of songs, readings and a duet. One brother favored us with a recitation.

We have two demits to be acted upon at our next meeting, September 8. They both have a good recommendatio and we shall be glad to welcome these people back in the Grange again.

We hope in the near future to have a minstrel for our literary program

Most all present at our last meeting took part in the Community Fair discussion and decided to hold same on September 23rd. We hope, all members will take an interest in this fair and help make it a success. Not only members are expected to take part but the community as a whole.

We also extend an invitation to Shady Dell Grange to take part.

At our next meeting we are going to debate on, Which is the most value to the farmer the cow or the horse? Mr. Yutzy you are expected to be present and bring some one along with you. We are increasing in members present at each meeting.

Every body hoost Sunnyside Grange Community Fair and work for it.

REPORTER.

KITZMILLER

Those who attended the Browning reunion at Oakland on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Smith, Miss Virginia Smith, Allen Smith and little "Dottie" and Carol Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hamill, Mrs. Loraine Bissel and little daughters, Catherine and Frances, Mr. M. A. Browning, D. F. Feichtner and George Pew.

Mr. Robert McKee, who has been the guest of Miss Gene Sprague, has returned to his home in Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Mrs. J. D. Miller and mother, Mrs. Willa Boyd, of Baltimore, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Fichtner.

Mr. Hollis Wilson has returned to Baltimore after spending his vacation with his mother, Mrs. L. Blanche Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pew have returned from a two weeks' stay at points in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Mr. Ray Harvey has returned to Washington, D. C., after a two weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Layman Harvey.

The Boy Scouts, accompanied by their scoutmaster, Rev. Geo. C. Stratton ,are on a camping trip this week on Savage River.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bane and Miss Lillie Bane, of Keyser, spent Sunday with Mrs. Geo. W. Coffman. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Mabel Winshoro and little son Bobbie, who have been the guests the past two weeks of Mrs. Coffman.

Billy Closterman, who has been visiting his uncle, Wm. Snyder, has returned to his home at Red Hill, a point near Cumberland.

The funeral of Mrs. Ray Davis, who died last Wednesday morning at 3:00 o'clock, was held at the Pentecostal church Saturday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Jeffries, of Westernport, Md. ,had charge. Mrs. Davis was aged 16 years, 10 months and 11 days ,and is survived by her husband and an infant child, 3 months old, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Harris, and several brothers and sisters.

Have They Been Vaccinated?

As the opening of the schools approaches, the attention of teachers and superintendents of schools, and also of parents and of guardians of young children, is directed by Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Health, to the State law which prohibits enrollment of any children in the public schools of the State, unless they have been successfully vaccinated against smallpox. "Maryland has been particularly fortunate," Dr. Riley said. "In having had very few cases of smallpox during the last two years, in spite of the fact that there has been a serious increase in the disease all over the country. But the disease has been kept under control in Maryland only by the closest vigilance and by strict enforcement of the school law. "Just why there has to be this rigid enforcement of the vaccination law can be better understood by comparing the situation in Maryland with that in other parts of the country where they either do not require vaccination or where whatever laws they have in connection with vaccination are disregarded. In every place in which routine vaccination of young children and the periodic re-vaccination of grown ups has been neglected, there has been a marked increase in the disease, and the outbreaks have been both virulent and fatal.

"The records show that there were over 37,000 cases of smallpox in the United States, last year, with over 700 deaths. And the only way we can keep the disease out of Maryland is by vaccination. The examinntions that have been made during the summer of the children who will enter school this fall have shown that not more than one third of these prospective first graders have been vaccinated. The rest will have to be vaccinated before they can be enrolled in the public schools. The State law is explicit, throwing the ultimate responsibility on the teachers. Here are some extracts from the law:

"No teacher in any of the public schools in this State shall receive into such school as a pupil any person who has not been successfully vaccinated * * * *If any person shall apply for admission as a pupil in any of the public schools of this State who has not been successfully vaccinated, the teacher shall give the parents or guardian or any other person having control of such pupil an order directed to any physician in the country or city as the case may be and requiring any physician to whom it may be presented to vaccinate such pupil and return of such vaccination when successful to the teacher giving such order * * * *Any teacher neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of this section shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace have jurisdiction over said offense, be fined ten dollars for each and every offense."

MEADOW MOUNTAIN

The annual Lutheran Sunday school picnic will be held in Brenneman's grove on Saturday, Sept. 4th.

Mrs. Clara Mason, who has been seriously ill for some time, is still in a critical condition.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Moon, of the North Glade settlement, were visiting relatives in Washington, D. C., recently.

Wade Bernard, who is employed at Listonburg, Pa., spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks here.

Quite a number of our folks attended the picnic which was held at Bittinger last Saturday. All report having spent a pleasant day.

Mrs. Columbus Mason, who recently underwent a serious surgical operation, is convalescing.

Lambert Bernard and Lloyd Brenneman spent last Monday in Cumberland.

The Pentecostal meeting at Sand Flat is being regularly attended by the people of this community.

The farmers of this section have been taking advantage of the dry weather of the past few days with the result that the oats harvest is almost completed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rosenwald and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Newman and son, of Charleston, W. Va., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Newman at their home near town.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE NOW BEING HELD IN OAKLAND

More Than Two Hundred Young Men and Women Are In Attendance at H. S. Building

The annual Garrett County Teachers' Institute, with more than two hundred earnest young men and young women in attendance, is in session at the Oakland High School building in Oakland this week.

The institute's first session was held on Wednesday and adjournment will occur tomorrow.

Instruction on how and what to teach is being given by a corps of able institute workers, several of whom are here from the State Department of Education. The teachers in attendance upon the institute are showing commendable interest in the proceedings and will go out better equipped for the work ahead of them with the opening of the public schools on Tuesday of next week.

The absence of Mr. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent, from the sessions of the institute, is regrettable. His condition following a hospital experience two or three weeks ago, shows some improvement, but he has been forbidden by his physician to become active in his work for some time to come.

BITTINGER

Early last Saturday morning, a small son of Mr. Dennis Detrick, who was returning from driving the cows to pasture, brought home the statement that he had seen a truck stop in the road a short distance from the Detrick home and three men clamber out and deliberately shot a yearling heifer that was grazing by the roadside. The boy says he distinctly saw the men shoot the animal and hastily load it into the truck and drive away in the direction of Accident. The alleged deed was committed in broad daylight, but as yet there is no clew to the identity of the parties and indeed the story has not been verified by the owner of the animal, as it was pasturing on the range, and it is not certain that she cannot be found with other cattle on the property.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Campbell, at the Lutheran parsonage, are the very happy parents of a son, who was born to them on Wednesday, August 25th.

Lester Hetrick and family, of Lumberport, West Va., are here on a visit to relatives.

Mrs. J. B. Emory, together with her son Richard and daughter Ruth, motored to Philadelphia one day last week where they will spend a few days with relatives and visit the Centennial, later returning via Washington, D. C.

DRUNKEN DRIVER FINED AND SENT TO COUNTY JAIL

Operator of Car Must Pay $150 and Spend the Next Thirty Days In Prison

Determined to break up the practice of men driving automobiles while under the influence of intoxicants, Justice W. A. Gonder, in court this morning, fined Ted Gilson, of near Deer Park, $150 and costs and sentenced him to serve thirty days in the County Jail.

Roy Ashby and Charles Paugh, also of near Deer Park, who were with Gilson when he was placed under arrest yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Yutzy, both entered a plea of guilty when they were arraigned upon the charge of being drunk and disorderly. Ashby and Paugh were each fined $1 and costs.

Come to the Knights of Pythias Picnic. Labor Day.

Today finds our fair city all agog with excitement, the advent of our picnic being at hand. Long before dawn of Monday, September 6th, a few of the dependables of the committee will be seen hurrying to and fro and the rumbling of wheels will be heard as trucks and other conveyances laden with supplies go to the picnic grounds with their burdens.

Do not fail to see the monster parade at ten o'clock a. m. when one may observe the fruits of the labor of our parade officials. Cash prizes will be given for the best decorated car, the most attractive float and the most comic or unique car or float. What kind of a world would this be without Fords? The great Ford to be given away on Monday will be exhibited upon the street that day. Examine it and then decide to own it.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

The season's program closed last Sunday with a fine all-day service. Dr. W. W. Davis was the speaker both in the morning and afternoon. Large audiences listened to him with deep interest.

Messrs. Raymond W. Brown and Clyde Murray, who have been associated in the Park management for several years past, will leave on Saturday for Delaware, Ohio, where they will re-enter Ohio Wesleyan College to complete their education for the ministry in the Methodist Episcopal church. Neither of the young men, both of whom are popular here, will return next year.

We very much regret to chronicle the painful illness of Mr. L. A. Rudisill, who was taken suddenly sick on Sunday last.

The Crellin Boys' Band, at the Sunday services, rendered some splendid music both at the afternoon and evening gathering. At the evening service "The Rolling Romance," a moving picture dealing with the building and development of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was the attraction.

The regular services will be resumed in the M. E. church next Sunday. Following the Sunday school session, which has been continued throughout the summer, Rev. Mr. Brock, of Cumberland, who has resided in the Park during the summer, will preach at 11:00 o'clock, and Rev. Aspinall, the regular pastor, will deliver the evening sermon.

The large amphitheatre, which has been undergoing repairs during the past few weeks, is now in good condition. A new roof has been placed upon and hereafter when an audience is present and it rains umbrellas will not be required to keep the people dry.

A. L. LEE, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER

ALBERT L. LEE.

To the Republican Voters and Citizens of Garrett County:—

The duties of the offic edemand all of my time and attention at this season of the year, which prevents me from making a canvass of the county to see the voters in person, so I have taken this method of saying a few words to you.

If government today is a failure, or partial failure, it is because we as citizens are not functioning as we should. When we vote for a candidate for public office for friendship or otherwise, without regard to intelligence, capability or moral integrity, we make ourselves a party to bad government and corruption. If we go on the assumption that by some miracle a person obtaining a majority vote falls heir to wisdom, intelligence or ability, then only dire results can follow.

Any propaganda you hear for or against any candidate should first be analyzed and verified before it should have weight or before it should be repeated.

It should be our civic duty to study the requirements of the different offices to be filled. Then we should analyze and study the capabilities of the different candidates to see if they meet the requirements. This being done then we should be sure to see that our vote is cast.

I feel that I am no stranger to the voters of Garrett County. After analyzing and studying my record as a public official, if you find that I have been faithful and true to the trust reposed in me, then, fellow citizens, I earnestly ask you for a vote of confidence in the coming primary election.

Thanking the voters and citizens of Garrett County for the confidence they have reposed in me through the past years, and soliciting their votes and influence at the primary election to be held on September 14th, 1926, I beg to remain,

Very sincerely yours,
ALBERT L. LEE,
Republican Candidate for County Treasurer.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF H. J. SPEICHER

HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

Since the earnest solicitation of many Republican voters and citizens of Garrett County, I have decided to become a candidate for the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket, subject to the result of the primary election.

I have had twelve years' experience as your representative, which I believe will better fit me to represent you and will enable me to accomplish more for an economical administration of affairs.

During my term of office I have voted for such mesures and legislation for the betterment of schools and roads—in fact all legislation that was for the betterment of conditions of the county and State.

I have made mistakes—that man doesn't live who hasn't made them—but listen: I have served you twelve years without criticism from any of the leading papers of the State.

If you will take the time to go back over my record and see what has been accomplished for the county during my term of office, I feel sure you will favor me with your support.

Assuring you of my appreciation for the confidence heretofore reposed in me and assuring you a faithful and conscientious discharge of duty if again nominated and elected, I have the honor to remain with respect,

Very truly yours,
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

Election District No. 2.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER

C. S. MAY.

In announcing myself as one of the many candidates for Treasurer, I want to say, if elected, I can and will keep as good a set of books as any man in or out of Garrett County.

No one solicited me to make the fight. Read my platform and vote as you please. It takes votes to elect, not promises.

MY PLATFORM.

1. I belive in God, Maker of all things. (Sin excepted).
2. I believe in the Bible, upon which all laws are based.
3. I believe in the Church and all of its branches.
4. I believe in all organizations that are in favor of the Schools and the building up of Humanity, Morality and the Church, including the K. K. K.
5. I believe America is the best Nation on earth.
6. I believe in and love the Constitution of the United States, and all its Amedments.
7. I believe when a man is elected to the highest office in the State, takes the oath to uphold the dignity of the Constitution of the United States, that he should do so.
8. I believe in the Law and the enforcement thereof.
9. I believe that when a man or a woman is not satisfied with our laws, he or she should get out and go over where Emma Goldman and her crowd are, where there are plenty of her kind.
10. I believe the Eighteenth Amendment was written by God, thru one of His agents, and that Mr. Volstead will reap his reward in Heaven. All of this slush and propaganda published and paid for by a bunch of lawbreakers and thugs will never turn the minds of the good people of America. To the man or woman that says the Eighteenth Amendment is wrong, Russia will hold him or her also.

This is my platform, with many more beliefs. I ask you support at the Primary as a candidate for Treasurer for Garrett County on the Republican Ticket.

LIBRARIES ON WHEELS

If people living in a rural community can not come to the library, the library will go to them. This is the spirit that is impelling State and county library authorities to send into rural communities automobile trucks equipped with shelves containing books belonging to the stacks of public libraries. Patrons may borrow books from these "libraries on wheels"and either return them by parcel post or keep them until future visits of the trucks.

According to the American Library Association, the first use of a wagon as a means of carrying books to people in rural districts was made by the Washington County Library at Hagerstown, Md., in 1905; hut it was not until the past few years that the plan was used to any considerable extent. The Delaware State Library Commission and the public library department of the State Department of Education of Vermont use automobiles equipped with bookshelves as a means of distributing books to people living in the rural communities. The Iowa Library Association has recently equipped a book truck and started it on a tour of the State for the purpose of demonstrating this service. Birmingham, Alabama; Clarksdale, Mississippi; Detroit, Michigan; Durham, N. Carolina; Elkhart, Logansport, and Rochester, Indiana; Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; and Portland, Oregon, are some of the cities that are working out the problem of county library extension by means of book trucks.

The success of the plan depends, largely upon having one in charge of the truck who knows books and is interested in children's and adult's reading. He must be able to select books which will appeal to the readers and be enthusiastic for the work he is doing.

GRANTSVILLE, MD.

Dear Friend:—

Did you ever hear of a business designed to be helpful to others? To be on the lookout to help the other fellow; to help him out of difficulties; to assist in solving his problems; to find a market for what he has to sell and to find the goods he wishes to buy?

Yes, mine is such a business, and in addition to all that, it's my business to help you SAVE instead of just simply suggesting where you may spend your money and how.

It's true that my principal business is to supply you with INSURANCE—something that stands by you in trouble, that helps to make good your losses and that helps you save. Did you ever think of it in that way?

I am also prepared to help you with other problems, such as writing, preparing various papers, keeping your books or installing a bookkeeping system; clerking you sale, and if necessary, acting as your trustee, executor or administrator.

When we can serve you, let us know and in the meantime, we shall be glad to see you; therefore, when in town, call around.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE W. DIEFENBACH.

A FALSE REPORT

To the Voters of Garrett County,

A report seems to have been circulated in certain sections of the county to the effect that if nominated and elected to the State Senate from Garrett county it is my intention to introduce legislation to exempt the Power Company operating near Oakland from taxation.

I cannot understand why anyone should circulate a report of this nature and it is absolutely false.

I will appreciate the favor very much if anyone to whom it is told will kindly drop me a note and let me know who is doing it. Certainly as one of the largest individual taxpayers in the county, I would not be in favor of an act of this kind, which by exempting a corporation from taxes would increase what the rest of us would have to pay.

I am not in favor of exempting any property, including the buildings or the property covered by water of the said corporation, or any one else from the payment of its or their proper proportion of the tax burden, and if nominated and elected I shall certainly take no such action to do so.

Very truly yours,
A. D. NAYLOR.

THE TENT OF MEETING.

Exodus 33.

Jehovah spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend.—Exodus 33:11.

THE PLACE OF THE TENT.

Law without the will to obey it becomes a shifting dune upon the shoreline of civilization. The winds of desire move it from place to place and it is like that Western hill that changes its appearance over night so that it is often unrecognizable after a few days absence. Israel had been given the great outlines of moral law that control all moral life. God had emphasised them because of their necessity. But the immediate need was to instill such a love for them into the life that they would become habits of action instead of a stone to be worshipped. They had revealed much of their low estimate of God in the interval of absence when Moses was in the Mount. They had cast a calf as a representation of Jehovah and had indulged in all the licentious orgies of their slave heritage. "They have broken loose" indicates the flood of passions that had merely been damned during the journey by the strong arm of Moses and his delay in the hills caused the exuberant surge of the pent waters to sweep the camp. It is the situation with the 18th amendment, with the spirit of nationalism in China, India and other wheres, with absolutism in Italy, Portugal and Germany. The fundamentals of successful living had been formulated, how were they to he induced? Here was the problem that is as old as life and as new as the latest law. God was to be understood and to be set in His proper place in their lives. "If I could give only one piece of advice to anxious parents all over the country, I would urge," said Judge John F. McIntyre of the Criminal Court of New York, "Send your boy or girl out into the world equipped with a definite set of religious standards. Such a boy or girl almost never finds his or her way into the criminal courts. All court officials with whom I have ever discussed this subject," he added, "have agreed that this is the one great safeguard which can—and must—be thrown about our young people." Moses and one of the keenest administrations of justice in America are fully agreed that the road of successful moral living has worship at its heart.

THE PLACE OF THE TENT.

No worship without a place for having it is as true as when Jesus refused to localize it in either Jerusalem or Samaria. But He took His way to synagog, or hill or Temple, and found a door to God in all of them. The cathedral is no holier than the chapel, high altar than unadorned chancel, nor Baptist fane than Presbyterian church. Wherever we may keep tryst with God there is our church and names grow meaningless if that is not the result of our visit. It was a "Tent of Meeting" that Moses established and any tent is holy when it houses God. I have felt my heart strangely warmed at a Catholic Mass, at Episcopal communion, at Lutheran ritual and at Methodist love feast. The supreme thing is that we meet God. And no law will be kept without the practice of it. This tent that Moses used was no different from any other skin tent in the camp save for the use of it and the Presence within it. When will we learn that God and not a denominational name is vital and will enter any church with joy if our partlcular name be missing from the town in which we find ourselves? All across our land are churchless folk because their brand isn't within reach. They cheer the devil, sadden God, and keep back the Kingdom.

His old tent was outside the camp. It was to be separated from the sin that had swept thru its spaces. There was to be no contacts with the foulness within its borders and it was a condemnation of the life that had been spent underneath their cover. It was a pictured story of man's march upward. "You must come out of your sin if you would find God," was its flaming message. And it is one that needs to be continually reiterated in these days when vice takes on new forms, sin wears new disguises and folk think they may keep the sin and find a Saviour also. It is everlastingly "Out to meet God."

THE MARK OF THE TENT.

Moses had to take his journey not because of his own sin but because of that of the camp. It was not the sin of Jesus but of the world that reared the cross outside the city walls. My sin imposes burdens upon others who are guiltless. My self-indulgence fires the revolver that brings death to an officer of the state because the man who holds it refuses to be taken while pandering to my appetite. My passion wrecks a home, sends a mother into sorrow and delays the coming of the day of self control. But my seeking God vitalizes all life. My own takes on new color. Moses went into the tent and met God speaking as friend to friend. He carried to Him not only his own troubles but the cares of the camp as well. And when he came bavk among the tents he was a man marked by a shining face. The radiance of God was on it. The peace of the Eternal was part of it. It was little wonder that men stood in their tent doors watching while he entered that place of meeting. "Old Shiney Face" was the title among the slum dwellers of East London for one who buried there in their sorrows. "My mother always came down with her face changed," was the testimony of Dr. Bank's concerning a prayer room. "Christianity has justified itself in the type of face it has created," is an artist's word. And all of us have seen the altar glow creep over the gloom of doubt and can accept without question this old story of Glory-Face Moses who veiled it lest the people see it vanish under the fret of the camp.

THE KEEPER OF THE TENT.

The tent had to have a care taker. Strangely enough it was the lot of that young soldier who had led the forces in the battle with Amalek that had determined Israel's right to the springs. He was the outstanding leader after Moses and was to become his successor in the perilous days of Conquest. And he was the janitor, the sexton who dusted the furniture, opened the flap at dawn and saw that the fragrance of flowers filled the air of the tent. And he felt himself honored to serve his God in any fashion and rejoiced at being a door keeper for Jehovah. When every member of the church of Christ catches his spirit there will come a new day in its history. Visiting orientals will not find our creeds beautiful but our living of them tawdry so that they question seriously whether we are really Christian.

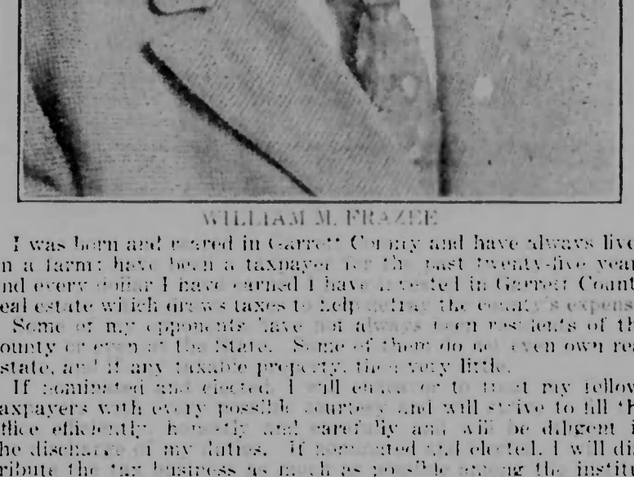
FOR NOMINATION FOR COUNTY TREASURER

WILLIAM M. FRAZEE

I was born and reared in Garrett County and have always lived on a farm; have been a taxpayer for the past twenty-five years and every dollar I have earned I have invested in Garrett County real estate which means taxes to help reduce the county's expense.

Some of my opponents have not always been residents of the county or even of the state. Some of them do not even own real estate, and if any taxable property, then very little.



If nominated and elected, I will endeavor to treat my fellow-taxpayers with every possible courtesy and will strive to fill the office efficiently, knowingly and carefully and will be diligent in the discharge of my duties. If nominated and elected, I will distribute the tax business as much as possible among the institutions of the county with fairness and honesty to all.

I therefore most earnestly and respectfully solicit your worthy vote at the coming primary, which will be on September 14th, 1926.

It is my aim and determination to see every voter. Should I miss any it will not be intentional.

Thanking you in advance, I am, Yours respectfully,
W. M. FRAZEE.

CONGRESSMAN FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

Thanking the voters of Garrett county for the confidence they have reposed in me through the successive years of my Congressional life, and again soliciting their votes at the primary election to be held throughout the District on September 14th, 1926, I beg to remain,

Very sincerely yours,
FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY

I have been informed by a number of friends that some of my opponents or somebody else has made the statement that I can neither read nor write,which statement is entirely false.

I think that I have sufficient education to perform the duties of County Treasurer.

I have been a taxpayer in the county for more, than thirty years. Yours truly,

ARTHUR LAWTON, FOR HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

To the Republican Voters and Citizens of Garrett County:—

The report that I have made a combination with certain other candidates in the primary contest has been broadcast in sections of the county, but for whatregaiwheitsened of the county and is being accepted as a fact.

What object the originator of this piece of political gossip had in view, I am unable to say, but I want to assure all that I have made no combination with any other candidate, nor shall I at this or at any other time Istand solely upon my own, and solicit the support of the people at the election to be held on the 14th inst.

Very respectfully,

ARTHUR LAWTON,

Republican Candidate for the House of Delegates.

H. V. LEIGHTON, CANDIDATE FOR COMMISSIONER.

A FALSE REPORT.

A report has been circulated in District Number 10 to the effect that my policy in getting hard surface roads over the county is that the farmer should furnish the rock along the roadway free of charge inasmuch as he is getting the stone cleared from the farm and also getting the benefit of a good road.

I want to say that such a report is unfounded and absolutely false and only circulated for effect. The farmer pays a very large per cent of the county tax and I see no reason why he should be expected to donate any part of the material or labor for the construction of these roads.

Very truly yours,

H. V. LEIGHTON.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

GREEN FAMILY, STRICKEN WITH MALADY, NOW HOME

Surviving Members of Household Back where Tropical Disease Was Contracted.

The surviving members of the once large family of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Green, a farmer residing in Garrett county just west of Lonaconing, who was stricken with the disease which was found to have been contracted through the use of cistern water for drinking and other purposes at their farm, are on the road to recovery.

All the members of the family, except the oldest boy, Alfred Green, have been discharged from the Miners' Hospital at Frostburg, where they were taken shortly after the third member of the family had died from the disease.

Mr. and Mrs. Green ,though still weak from their illness and the effects of the serum administered by the hospital physicians, have returned to their humble home. Preparations for a new water system are being made by Mr. Green whereby wholesome water may be supplied the members of the family.

Thomas Green, aged twenty, the second son who was stricken with the disease and who was sent to the hospital with his sister Edna, has also been discharged from that institution.

Since the disease made its appearance ten persons have died from its effects. Of this total, six were members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Green. The children's grandfather, William Henry Green, aged 67 years ,also fell prey to its ravages, along with two infants and a young woman, a relative of the family, who visited the Green home, was the tenth victim.

Maryland C. A. S. Reports Over 600 Children in Care.

Edward H. Cavin, the Executive Secretary of the Maryland Children's Aid Society has recently compiled a statistical report covering the work of the society during the first six months of 1926, which shows that 600 children under 18 years of age, of whom 429 are legally committed wards, are living under the supervision of the societies agents in foster homes located in every county in the state.

Upon further analysis the figures show that 62 of these children are contributing to their own support, 104 are being boarded at the expense of the society, 140 are living in the homes of relatives and 294 are placed in families which have assumed full responsibility for the cost of their education and up-bringing.

During the period under consideration, 92 children have benn accepted for placement by the society and 75 children have passed from care, of whom 4 died and 2 ran away. The remainder either attained their majority or were married, adopted or discharged to some other suitable custody.

In addition to caring for such children as need to be placed in foster homes, the society has served 972 families, involving more than 2000 children in their own homes during the past six months.

The jurisdiction of the Maryland Children's Aid Society includes the entire state with the exception of Baltimore City, which is served in a similar way by the Henry Watson Children's Aid Society. About 75 per cent of the total work of the organization is accomplished in its four rural branches located in Baltimore, Frederick, Montgomery and Talbot counties, which have become practically self-supporting in regard to finances. More that $65,000 was spent by the state organization and its various branches in their operations during the year 1925.

The chief cause for bringing families to the attention of the society during the period under consideration was desertion or non-support by the father which occurred in 25 per cent of the cases, the next most frequent cause was his unemployment or inadequate wage which occurred in 20 per cent. Children were brought before the Court as delinquents in 17 per cent of the families dealt with. In 15 per cent the parents were either divorced or legally separated, and in the same number one or both of them were dead. Immorality, temporary illness and improper guardianship each occurred as a factor in about 15 per cent of the cases, while drunkenness and feeblemindedness were responsible each for less than 8 per cent.

Today's Republican contains facsimile ballots to be used at both the Republican and Democratic primary election to be held throughout the State and county on next Tuesday. To vote the Republican ballot in full the voter will be required to indicate his or her choice of candidates by making 22 cross marks, while the Democratic ballot to be voted in full will require 11 cross marks. Under the new law governing the primary election there will be no sample ballot available, therefore the pages of The Republican containing the ballots should be carefully studied by the voters in order to become acquainted with the personnel and of the ticket and the proper marking the candidates' names.

YOUNG AUTO-JACK GETS TWO YEARS IN THE CUT

Jas. Digman, 19, Gorman, Sentenced to House of Correction for Taking Car at Cumberland

Charged with taking an automobile owned by the Malamphy Garage, at Cumberland, out of the State after hiring the machine on August 22, Jas. F. Digman, 19 years old, of Gorman, Garrett county, was found guilty at a hearing before Magistrate W. C. Korns in Cumberland on Saturday and sentenced to serve two years in the Maryland House of Correction at Jessups.

Digman hired a "drive yourself" car at the garage and made a $20 deposit, it was testified, and then drove the machine to South Carolina. He took another young man with him on the trip, but left him in the Southern State and returned to Baltimore, where he was picked up by the police from which city he was brought back to Cumberland by one of the State officers.

Another Garrett Countian in Trouble

At Frostburg Sunday Magistrate John Workman fined Raymond Durst, of New Germany, Garrett county, $100 on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants and an additional $25 for reckless driving, both of which fines were paid.

Durst was arrested on the National Highway at a point five miles west of Frostburg by Lieut. M. E. Pepersack and Officer L. D. Parker, of the State Police.

Oysters are Here.

September and oysters have come back, as usual, together, so the succulent stew and the appetizing fry are on the table again. Sounds mighty good, doesn't it?

In preparation for the oyster season, the State Department of Health through the Bureau of Food and Drugs, has sent a circular letter to oyster packers and to others engaged in the oyster industry, informing them of the requirements of the United States Public Health Service and of the State Department of Health which must be met if the shucked or canned oysters are to be accepted for sale or shipment either within the State or for interstate commerce.

The requirements include:

General cleanliness of each establishment; all floors and shucking benches to be cleaned and to be flushed with clean water at least once a day; and further safeguarded by a thorough flushing with scalding water or with an approved sterilizing solution.

Personal cleanliness of the employes and freedom from catching diseases; the use of an improved sanitary type of shucking bench; the use of non-corrosive, non-rusting utensils, shucking pails, skimmers, colendars, tanks and paddles, and of knives constructed in such a way that they will not retain particles of food or slime; the sterilization of utensile by live steam or boiling water.

Particular attention is paid, in the requirements, to the health of the employes. A careful inspection or medical examination must be made of every applicant. Bacteriological examinations will he made by the State Department of Health in connection with the examination of persons who may have had typhoid fever at some time.

Each concern that agrees to meet the requirements will be duly certified by the State Department of Health, after inspection of the plant while in operation, by a representative of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs. A number which will be registered with the Department will then be assigned to the concern and every can or receptacle shipped out by that plant will have the registered number stamped into the container. Approval of the conditions under which the plant operates, by the U. S. Public Health Service will also be necessary for acceptance of the product in certain States and in Canada.

"Maryland oysters are known all over the world and the industry is one of the most important in the State," Mr. A. L. Sullivan, Chief of the State Bureau of Food and Drugs, said in outlining the requirements. "Over five million bushels are handled every year, and every possible effort is being made by State, interstate and Federal authorities to protect the sources of supply; to prevent the pollution of streams in the neighborhood of the oyster beds and to advance the interests of the industry through the enforcement of the regulations now in effect."

TWO BARNS ON NATIONAL HIGHWAY GO UP IN SMOKE

Destruction Thought to be Work of a Firebug, With Total Loss Placed at Nearly $10,000

It is the generally accepted opinon in the community of Grantsville that a firebug has two large barns, and possibly three, to his credit at different points along the National Highway in close proximity to Grantsville. The man or men who are possibly responsible for the fires is being hunted by an organized group of searchers composed of farm owners of the county who are patrolling the road and searching in barns along the highway in hopes of finding the guilty party or parties.

With the burning of the Careywood Tavern barn on Piney Run, five miles east of Grantsville on the National Highway at an early hour Thursday, entailing a loss of $2,000, suspicion was aroused by its owner, Mrs. L. K. Calvin, that it was the work of a fire bug. The theory is based on the fact that Mrs. Calvin saw a man wearing a black coat and black slouch hat near the barn about dusk Wednesday evening. Nothing was thought of the incident as oftentimes travelers of the road sought a night's lodging in the barn, the request many times being granted by the owner of the farm. The man was known to have left the building at a very early hour and in a short time after his departure the barn was a mass of flames. Luckily there was very little hay in the building and no stock.

The blaze was spectacular and an effort was made by neighbors to save the structure, but with no effect.

When the large barn belonging to Gurney Shaw, filled with this year's crops, located on the National Highway, ten miles from the Calvin barn, was destroyed by fire at 12:50 o'clock Friday night farmers in that territory were aroused to action and every effort is being made to find the supposed guilty culprit.

The estimated loss on the Shaw barn and the crops contained therein is in the neighborhood of $7,000. The entire crop of oats placed in the barn last week was lost, part of the corn and wheat crops was also prey to the flames, the remainedr having been left in the fields. Crops alone destroyed by the fire it is estimated would have been marketed for at least $1,000.

The discovery of the fire was made in time to rescue five head of horses from the burning structure.

It has been reported by members of a family named McKenzie ,residing several miles from the Shaw farm, that a man answering the description of the stranger seen near the Calvin farm, was walking along the road in the direction of the Shaw farm the same night that the fire occurred.

The first fire that occurred in the Grantsville section that may have been the work of an incendiary was that which destroyed the barn of Marshall H. Lohr, on Keyser's Ridge, two or three weeks ago.

Browning Brothers to Play For Dance in Cumberland.

Elaborate plans have been completed for a dance to be given Friday evening of next week at the State Armory, Cumberland, by Cumberland Council, United Commercial Travelers. One of the most novel and worthwhile features of the event will be the presence of the Browning brothers, famous old time musicians of Garrett county, who will play for a series of old-fashioned square dances during the early part of the evening.

The Brownings are famous for their musical ability and during last winter broadcasted a program from Station KDKA, Pittsburgh. A part of the entertainment to be put on by the Garrett countians will consist of an exhibitioon of old-time fiddling, which will he given for those who do not care to dance and prefer merely to observe the gaiety.

The 1926 premium list of the Community Fair to be held at Grantsville next Thursday and Friday, has been distributed by the fair officials. The catalogue contains all information necessary concerning the fair which has been showing a commendable and steady growth since its inauguration several years ago. Community spirit and a determination to d ocouple! with co-operation on the part of the Grantsville people, contributes much toward the success of not only the Fair but with about everything else undertaken by the people in that section of the county. It pays to co-operate in everything of a publie nature.

Annual Sunday School Convention, Grantsville, September 18th and 19th.

As previously announced, the annual convention of the Garrett County Sunday School Association will be held in the Lutheran church at Grantsville on Saturday and Sunday, September 18th and 19th, commencing with a Saturday afternoon session. Dr. Charles Peters, of Philadelphia, Rev. H. E. Thompson, pastor of Central M. E. Church, Cumberland, Col. J. H. Cudlipp, state superintendent of Young Peoples' Work, of Baltimore, and Rev. G. A. Teske, of Cumberland, will be the principal speakers at the various sessions. An interesting and instructive program has been prepared and a large attendance of Sunday School workers is anticipated. All superintendents should be present and have with them delegations from their respective schools.

ALI GHAN TEMPLE MYSTIC SHRINE TO VISIT OAKLAND

Shriners To Enjoy Last Outing of Season at Oakland Next Monday Evening.

Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Cumberland, accompanied by their wives and daughters, will be guests of the Oakland Shrine Club on Monday evening next. the Temple as a body having accepted an invitation extended the members some time ago by the local organization.

On that date the Shrine Band, Patrol Drum Corps and Chanters will arrive in Oakland during the afternoon.

The parade, which will take place in the evening will consist of the uniformed bodies and Nobles, at 7:00 o'clock; an exhibition drill by the patrol at 7:30 o'clock; concert by the band, drum corps and chanters at 8:00 o'clock; reception and dance to be given by the Oakland Shrine Club at 8:30 o'clock. Ali Ghan Orchestra will furnish the music for the dance, which promises to be quite a social function.

This will be the first visit of Ali Ghan Temple to Oakland. Many of the Nobles will come by automobile over the National Highway from Cumberland in order to get a good view of the beautiful scenery which lines the roadway the entire distance, and will probably also be the last outing of Ali Ghan Temple and its uniformed bodies until next spring.

Big Company Helps Local Merchants Keep Business at Home

How one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the country cooperates with their dealers to keep local business in the hands of local concerns, was interestingly brought out in a talk with one of our leading tire merchants last week.

The company to which he pointed particularly for its work in this direction is The United States Rubber Company, which has perhaps gone further along these lines than any other tire concern.

There are several reasons, aside from the very good point of keeping home money at home, why our own local tire stores are the logical place to buy tires rather than the mail order houses.

Tires need looking after by an experienced tire man. He must have a well equipped and well stocked shop and be able to tell whether a tire is doing its work properly, and if not, why not.

For instance, an expert tire man can tell whether tires are wearing unduly because of the wheels being out of alignment and can correct the trouble in time.

If improperly equalized brakes are causing tire wear, the tire man can tell that and warn the owner.

This sort of service you cannot expect when you buy tires from mail order houses.

The United States Tire Company started eleven years ago to educate people to their interest in supporting the legitimate home town tire dealer.

In addition to running its own educational campaign in local papers without interruption for eleven consecutive years, the Company encourages the dealer to supplement it with advertising of his own and helps him do it. Under certain conditions it even shares the expense of the dealer's own advertising.

Recent improvements in production methods now enable the United States Rubber Company to market, through the local dealers, tires of known quality, bearing the Company's trade mark and full warranty, for as little money or even less than the cost of mail order tires or off-brand tires of uncertain value.

SEVENTH ANNUAL KNIGHTS OF PHTHIAS PICNIC OVER

Rain-Soaked Grounds Did Not Appear to Quell the Spirits of the Immense Crowd Present

A drenching rain and ankle-deep mud failed to dampen the spirits of over two thousand pleasure seekers at Helbig's grove Monday, and the seventh annual Labor Day picnic given under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Oakland was admitted by all to be just as advertised—bigger and better than ever.

The weather man had predicted rain but the sun, persistently peeping out of the clouds, discouraged the prediction which tended to lure the largest crowd present at any previous gathering of the seven years' history to the picnic grounds just on the edge of town, and they went early in order to avoid the rush.

The first thing of importance and one which started the day off right was the parade in which there were unique floats. This feature was quite an innovation and caused much favorable comment. One who witnessed it was heard to remark that it was the most attractive parade seen in Oakland in recent years. Many were of the opinion that had a prize been given for the cleverest float it would have been a difficult task to choose between that of A. D. Naylor & Co. and the one of Bittner & Stahl.

Following the parade, which covered a portion of town, came the address of welcome delivered at the picnic grounds by W. W. Dawson and the Labor Day address by Harry W. Starr, G. C., both of which addresses were well received and very favorably commented upon. At intervals during the morning ,afternoon and evening, the Crellin Boys' Band and Gilbert's Concert Band of Oakland, favored the people with numerous well rendered selections.

Addresses were made in the afternoon by Hon. Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican candidate for Congress; Worthington C. Wachter, of Hagerstown, Democratic candidate for Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, and Hon. William Milnes Maloy, Democratic candidate for the nomination for Governor of Maryland.

There was plenty of amusement afforded throughout the day and evening, which was brought to a close with the firing of a beautiful display of pyrotechnics.

The proceeds, which go for the benefit of the Knights of Pythias lodge, have not as yet been ascertained, but it is thought by those in charge that the receipts were slightly less than last year.

The sudden downpour of rain just at the dinner hour dampened more than one spirit for a time at least, but it was short-lived. The crowd was loyal and stood by the management of the affair nobly. Shortly after the shower, which was of torrential proportions the crowd drifted back to the grove, termed by some as the "politicians Mardi Gras."

It is estimated by some that a few over a thousand was in attendance all of the time, and at the peak this number was probably doubled.

The picnic on Monday was the seventh one under the auspices of the lodge and each succeeding year it is acclaimed as being bigger and better than ever.

Plans are already being laid for next year's picnic, according to the committee in charge.

Arthur Lawton, Candidate for House of Delegates

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County:—

Owing to illness in my family, it will be impossible to see all of the voters before the primary election, therefore I take this method of asking the support of all for the Republican nomination for House of Delegates.

Very respectfully

ARTHUR LAWTON.

On Friday night of this week the members of the Willing Workers class Mr. J. E. Harned, teacher, will entertain the members of the Men's Bible class at the Parish House. All the members of these two classes are urged to be present and take a band in the various amusements of the evening.

As Told by Irvin S. Cobb

SOLVING A DARK MYSTERY

WHEN you can say for a story that it is funny and that, moreover, it is the recital of an actual occurrence, I claim it carries with it a double value. I think this story funny, and I have knowledge that the thing happened substantially as it is here set down:

Achmed Abdullah, the novelist and short story writer, is an Afghan, a descendant of an old and noble family of Afghanistan and a son of a former governor of Kabul. He was educated in Europe and he has lived and adventured pretty much all over the world. Being a natural linguist, he has picked up tongues as he went, until today he knows as many languages and jargons as probably any living man knows.

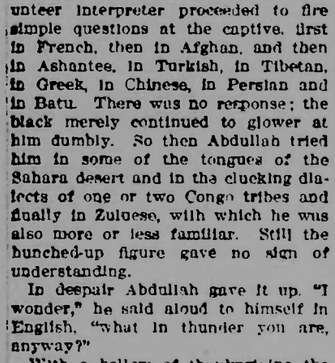
With the rank of captain he was on recruiting service once for the British army in Cairo. To him came an Egyptian officer of police to ask his aid. It seemed that two native constables had picked up in the bazaars a black man whose nationality was unknown and whose purposes were unfathomable, seeing that he could not be made to understand the questions put to him by his captors.

It seemed that for several days before his arrest the prisoner had been lurking about the bazaars, a butt for gamins and the despair of those who sought to interrogate him regarding his antecedents and his intentions. As much for his own protection as for any other motive the police had locked him up. Now the expert assistance of Captain Abdullah as translator was solicited.

Abdullah accompanied the puzzled functionary to the prison. In a corner of a cell crouched a huge black man staring with apprehensive, sullen eyes at the newcomers. It was evident that he was of some African stock; also it was plain that he was in a badly frightened state. He was clad in a nondescript costume of tatters which he had picked up somewhere—the sandals of an Arabian, a Turkish fez and the rugged remains of a donkey driver's white robe.

Being admitted to the cell, the volunteer interpreter proceeded to fire simple questions at the captive, first in French, then in Afghan, and then in Ashantee, in Turkish, in Tibetan, in Greek, in Chinese, in Persian and in Batu. There was no response; the black merely continued to glower at him dumbly. So then Abdullah tried him in some of the tongues of the Sahara desert and in the clucking dialects of one or two Congo tribes and finally in Zuluese, with which he was also more or less familiar. Still the hunched-up figure gave no sign of understanding.

In despair Abdullah gave it up. "I wonder," he said aloud to himself in English, "what in thunder you are, anyway?"



With a bellow of thanksgiving the prisoner leaped to his feet.

"Boss," he whooped, "I'se a Free Will Baptist!"

And so he was—a country darky from Alabama who had shipped on a tramp steamer out of New Orleans, had deserted off the African coast, swimming ashore naked, and had for days past been dodging about the native quarters, growing hourly more bewildered and more desperate in these strange surroundings.

Betty Byrne

Tiring of the humdrum existence of a social butterfly, pretty Betty Byrne, step-daughter of Chief Justice Stanton J. Peele of the United States Court of Claims, and one of Washington's reigning belles, has deserted society and turned to motion pictures for a career. Her first call is to play a part in "Mismates."

Good Combination

His wife was great on fixing up romances between young folks of their acquaintance and was spoiling the enjoyment of his evening paper gushing about a young couple who had been seen together.

"Yes," he grumbled, "they're ham and eggs 'll right."

"What do you mean by that?" she demanded.

"He's a fool and she's a dumbell, and so they belong together, like ham an'," he retorted.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WILLIAM D. CASTEEL, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR THE NOMINATION FOR SHERIFF, DENIES CERTAIN FALSE AND MALICIOUS REPORTS.

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County:—

It has been falsely circulated that I have made certain derogatory statements concerning churches, lodges and other organizations and that I am indifferent as to whether I receive the support of any or all of these churches and organizations.

Such foolish statements, which are undoubtedly made with a view of reflecting upon and injurying my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Sheriff, appear to me too ridiculous to warrant a denial of the same, but some of my friends who have confidence in me have suggested that I answer the same, so I will briefly and candidly state to all who have heard any of these malicious reports that I have neither, directly or indirectly, made any statement reflecting upon any church or organization; that I have made no compacts or alliances with any; that I respect and esteem them all, and that I will appreciate deeply the support of all church members and members of the several organizations, and will pledge to all of them and to all of the citizens of Garrett County, if nominated and elected Sheriff, that I will fill the office without fear, favor or partiality ,and that I will work earnestly to merit your support and confidence.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM D. CASTEEL,
Republican candidate for nomination for Sheriff.

A. L. LEE, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER

To the Republican Voters and Citizens of Garrett County:—

The duties of the offic edemand all of my time and attention at this season of the year, which prevents me from making a canvass of the county to see the voters in person, so I have taken this method of saying a few words to you.

If government today is a failure, or partial failure, it is because we as citizens are not functioning as we should. When we vote for a candidate for public office for friendship or otherwise, without regard to intelligence, capability or moral integrity, we make ourselves a party to bad government and corruption. If we go on the assumption that by some miracle a person obtaining a majority vote falls heir to wisdom, intelligence or ability, then only dire results can follow.

Any propaganda you hear for or against any candidate should first be analyzed and verified before it should have weight or before it should be repeated.

It should be our civic duty to study the requirements of the different offices to be filled. Then we should analyze and study the capabilities of the different candidates to see if they meet the requirements. This being done then we should be sure to see that our vote is cast.

I feel that I am no stranger to the voters of Garrett County. After analyzing and studying my record as a public official, if you find that I have been faithful and true to the trust reposed in me, then, fellow citizens, I earnestly ask you for a vote of confidence in the coming primary election.

Thanking the voters and citizens of Garrett County for the confidence they have reposed in me through the past years, and soliciting their votes and influence at the primary election to be held on September 14th, 1926, I beg to remain,

Very sincerely yours,
ALBERT L. LEE,
Republican Candidate for County Treasurer.

COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa.

He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., have never participated in this verbal competition.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection.

And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

Unexaggerated truth is not spectacular. But in the long run, implicit public confidence has been Dodge Brothers reward, and this they propose to preserve forever by continuing to build just a little better than they tell.

Election District No. 2.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER

C. S. MAY.

In announcing myself as one of the many candidates for Treasurer, I want to say, if elected, I can and will keep as good a set of books as any man in or out of Garrett County.

No one solicited me to make the fight. Read my platform and vote as you please. It takes votes to elect, not promises.

To the Voters:

Just a word to tell you that my platform is just the same. I am a taxpayer, and have been since 1896, that I am a graduated bookkeeper, have lived thirty-seven years in Maryland, thirty of it in Garrett county, am a 100 per center and glad of it. I love any organization that is trying to make this U. S. a nit place for a lady to live and a child safe.

Come out and vote. You get nothing by staying home. A vote for me will be greatly appreciated.

Yours truly,
C. S. MAY.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially for The Republican by Rev. Isaac Wright, D.D.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1926.
GIFTS FOR THE TABERNACLE.
Exodus 35:4-36:7.

Honor Jehovah with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase.—Proverbs 3:9.

LESSON EXPLANATORY AND PRACTICAL.

THE DREAM CHURCH. A perfect church without spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but holy and without blemish." Such was Paul's dream of the church of his love. It is a perfectly wonderful dream but it yet waits fulfillment since most of ours are wrinkled enough to be placed in the category of the spotted. Nevertheless there are many a bride adorned for her husband, more beautiful still must have been that dream that thrilled the mind of our Lord and made the cross a joy that He might bring to pass that long, exhausting, agonizing day. Each will read this old tabernacle lesson in the light of his own dream. Each will read this old tabernacle lesson in the light of his own dream born out of the passion of a man's soul to represent God's mind to men. Was it a part of the wilderness march? That is a question for the scholars to settle and as long as they are divided ordinary men may choose their own theories. But however that line beside the story of the traveling tent cared for by Joshua holds within it the pictured outlines of God's wish for His people.

There is symmetry, unity and holiness in every part of it. It is formed by placing two squares against each other. Drawing a line from one to the other, connecting the corners of one is the plan for the Ark of the Covenant, in the very middle of a smaller square which, as it is built up into a room, be Holy of Holies becomes a cube. Continuing the sides of this smaller square which outlines our Tabernacle to the edge of the large square, it is found that the length of the Holy Place just twice the length of the inner shrine. At the center of the other large square where its diagonals meet is located the Great Altar. Between it and the Tabernacle is the Laver and within the Holy Place are the altar of incense set against the curtain, the table of shewbread on the north and the golden candlestick on the south. Then, left and the table of holy bread, twelve loaves, is at the right. And all the contents of both squares are separated from the common world by a certain outside of which the worshipers must remain. It is a picture of the God of Israel. Perfect symmetry, perfect knowledge, love are all in their fullness and completeness. There is perfect unity for it is "one Lord" and no one may approach His holiness which makes Him separate from sinners. There is nothing like it in all other history. It is a dream of Deity represented in the world. It is an all time revelation of what God is like thru what is seen in His church. To give carelessly, on the mere basis of some appeal that rouses the emotions, is to belittle the intelligence of Christians and to render the dream incapable of fulfillment. But to give thoughtfully, as to God, to help create the church because it has created a Christian membership.

THE WAY OF ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT—WORK.

That is a fine picture of a busy throng of workers each of whom was intent upon making something that would serve in the completed effect. Every man was a worker in labor as well as material. And what a host there are today working Lord's dream church! Their cooperation in the building of the world with their music and much of it is free-will offering of exceptional talent. There are more than two million members in the Lutheran church in America, and if each one would give only one day's wages in the year there would be enough to build a church in every community where there is a Lutheran congregation. Then there are those who would give their services in the erection of the church. Their gifts of last year were 648 million dollars, or the average of about $6.00 for every person in the United States, twice that and it is a wonderful estimate of the liberality of American people. And much of it has been kissed by sacrifice and baptized with tears. It is an holy offering from the heart of our Christian life. And there is no other way to build the dream church than thru gifts that enable us all to carry out the ideals of our Lord for people an understanding of what God is like. Every gift is to give the church the opportunity to be what it was meant to be. Spirit-filled church is the hope of Paul. When the Mind of the Master is in full control of the activities of the church then shall the wrinkles disappear. Only we are so apt to think that the Spirit is meant only for the preacher, or for the Official Board. We think that it means an evangelism that will make men hungry for the grace of God seen in Christian folk but the story here is of men filled with the Spirit to work in brass and wood. Plain model workers and carpenters were filled with the Spirit. Almighty God was filling them with the Spirit that they might make clothes for wearing in the Tabernacle. If every textile operative whether in office or at the loom were filled with the Spirit for the making of clothes to be worn in the service of God we would have no Passaic strike. That old book Hiram Goff, Shoemaker, the late Joel Orendorf, of near Accident, died early Friday morning, following an illness of several months. She was past 73 years of age and was born near Bittinger. She spent her entire life in Garrett county and is survived by the following children: Mrs. Amelia Craft, Cumberland; Asa Orendorf, Bittinger; Mrs. Lawrence Bittinger, Mrs. Earl Stanton, Mrs. Lloyd Baker and Simon Orendorf, all of Grantsville. She also leaves twenty grandchildren and five great grandchildren. Funeral services were held Sunday from the Lutheran church at Grantsville, conducted by Rev. E. E. Campbell, of the Bittinger Lutheran church, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Edwards and daughter Cecil arrived Thursday night from La Feria, Texas, where they spent the past year in the Rio Grande Valley. Mr. Edwards made the trip by automobile in six days, the distance covered being over twenty-three hundred miles. The roads covered were mostly improved. The Edwards family like Texas and enjoyed the climate and time spent there, but they are glad to be back in Garrett county where they will resume his work as partner in the Grantsville Garage, which has been operated during his absence by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Engle.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Rader and son Glen from Harlingen, Texas, accompanied by Mrs. Jno Mardel, of Ohio, motored here last week and are guests for several days of their sister, Mrs. Effie Parmer and niece, Mrs. A. C. Stanton.

Miss Eveline Beachy, who is an instructor in the City Hospital, Parkersburg, W. Va., spent the week-end with her father, Martin Beachy, and family, last week. For no necessary work but is a holy task if it is done in the Spirit of God instead of in the spirit of greed.

Members of the Beall High School orchestra, Frostburg, were visitors at the National Hotel, Grantsville, Wednesday evening. After dinner they rendered a concert at the hotel under the direction of Miss Estelle Wilhoite, spend several days recently here with G. W. M. Zeiler and other relatives.

Grantsville announced the birth of a daughter on August 27th.

Mrs. Jennie Yost, of Roanoke, Va., and son Fay Yost, of Charlotte, N. C., arrived here last week and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker and other relatives in Grantville and Mrs. Elizabeth Yost has returned to Latrobe Hospital, where she will resume her course in training, which was interrupted by an illness of several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin and daughters Dorothy and Mabel, accompanied by Mrs. Emanuel Younkin, of Bittinger, motored to Pittsburgh Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stanton and son and Mrs. Effie Parmer will spend several days in the near future visiting in the Shenandoah Valley.

GRANTSVILLE

The annual Garrett County Sunday School convention will be held in the Lutheran church at Grantsville Saturday afternoon and evening, September 11th. Interesting addresses on the convention theme will be made by County officers and other speakers from out of the county. Everybody is invited to attend these sessions of the convention. All Sunday Valley school workers are urged to attend and send delegates from each school in the county.

The Grantsville high school opened Tuesday morning with the following corps of teachers in charge: Prof. Earl Stanton, principal; W. W. Whitehill, assistant principal; Miss Angela Gotwald, home economics; Miss Marian Price, of Buckhannon, W. Va., home economics; Miss Maust, St. Paul, Pa., mathematics; Miss Craft, Cumberland, English; Miss Amelia Craft, Cumberland, English; Miss Broadwater studied at Hannah Moore Academy, Reisterstown, Md.; Dana's Musical Institute, Warren, O.; Mount Union College, Alliance, O., completed the Hollis Dann course in music at Johns Hopkins University, in Baltimore, and graduated from the Maryland State Normal at Frostburg, Md.

Miss Evaline Beachy, who is an instructor in the City Hospital, Parkersburg, W. Va., spent the week-end with her father, Martin Beachy, and family, last week. For no necessary work but is a holy task if it is done in the Spirit of God instead of in the spirit of greed.

THE EVOLUTION OF RELIGION.

BY F. F. CORLISS.

The destiny of men and nations is determined by factors and forces that are cosmic, hence fundamental.

Our lives are moulded, made or marred according to our right or wrong use of these subtle universal laws.

A philosophy of life that is based on blind belief, on theories that are false to facts, on the optimism of man's self-assumed Divine authority, gives him no lasting good, but does fill his life with doubt, despair and trouble.

Every man needs a moral philosophy that is irrefutable, that is scientific, true, just, beneficial and beautiful and as logical as it is reverent.

We need not only a science of material things, but a science of things spiritual: that attacks and dispels both ignorance and superstition, their paralyzing dogmas, monstrous fears.

We must know that God is imminent throughout His universe. We can learn what God and man is only by an understanding of His universal laws in which His purpose and Himself He is ever unfolding and to man revealing.

Thus we must know that by evolution only has God made man and all else that is, that ever was or that ever is to be.

Because it's His only working, creating formula. Hence all things and all humanity are a growth, a development, an emanation, an unfolding expression from within His spiritual forces made visibly manifest in innumerable material forms.

Emerson says: there is no bar or wall in the soul where man, the effect, ceases, and God, the Cause, begins.

So man is true to his religion and his Maker only when he is true to man, his brother, because God and man are both one life, different expressions of one mind, one consciousness.

The conception of evolution held by those who believe in special creations, simply by impulse of the Divine will, dates from Darwin's Origin of Species which treats of but one phase of evolution.

So, many people restricts its wondrous workings to one form of life, and doubt and ponder on how a man from ape or monkey could come to be. But God makes and rules all things by laws that constitute His being. And evolution is the one law, inclusive of all others, which other laws it uses.

Hence evolution is the one force and method which changes, improves and enlarges our religion, as it also changes our language, literature, our business and social relations.

It is the one and only method by which men and material things are raised from lower to higher levels. It changes our mode of living and of doing things. It is what unites men in co-operation in industry, in forming colonies, villages, towns, cities and states. It effects changes in many ways in men and material for their improvement. It gives to nations increased wealth, position and power when they follow nature's laws by her unfolding process of gradual growth.

As yeast lifts, lightens and improves our daily loaf, so evolution in its use of cosmic forces, works like an enzyme to lift a latent, dormant life in the mineral kingdom to a higher level in the organic kingdom of vegetable and animal life.

Then it keeps on making life more and more dynamic, improves it physically in type and form, improves it mentally, morally and spiritually, and does not cease with men here and now as we find him on this planet.

So our religion is no exception to this universal law and its transformations.

As man changes, grows and improves morally and mentally from a better understanding of nature's laws, so in conformity his errors in religious belief and his outward forms of worship change to meet the conditions of new found truth.

Religion is instinctive in the human race—a Divine attribute born in us, and while in many minds it often lies dormant for years, when some crisis in life appears it is suddenly quickened into thought and action.

All religions had their conception in the childhood of humanity. They were born in the minds of tribesmen and shepherds, among crude and primitive people, and were adapted to the capacity of their limited understanding of what God, man and the universe really are. They served the needs of the people of that era when a so-called miracle or a graven image symholized as much of God to them as His immanence means to the thinking minds of today.

And as youth outgrows its childhood toys, its fairy tales and beliefs in Santa Clause, and as man matured outgrows the follies and games of youth, so the religious mind of present time has evolved and outgrown the myths, legands, creeds and traditoins of a crude and credulous bygone age.

The religion of humanity is in a state of transition, it's in the process of evoluting to higher levels of truth and sanity. It is bound to keep step with the march of man's moral and mental growth and scientific achievement.

So out of the world's crude and primitive religionos (based largely on myths, miracles, fables and formalities), there eventually emerges the nucleus of truth and a higher spiritual significance.

As the fly leaves its chrysalis for the better air of a higher altitude, so religion of today is casting off its worthless worn out vestments, its encumbering, unsound creeds, rites and rituals for a religion of truth as based on God's universal laws.

The religion of today must be scientific, humanized, brought up to date, made lovable and a rule for daily practice.

It must be an ideal truth that inspires us to live for it and to live by it and not a doctrine to die by for the remission of our sins or the salvation of our souls, which God only can care for.

God's one indelible, unmistakable revelation to man is found in the discovery of His laws and forces and their uses and their observance, in his infallible guide for all that is grand and good.

For the object of our living is for life's exaltation and for learning.

The religion of the future will be scientific, constructive and instructive and will teach men to rely on nature's changeless laws, her truths and facts and less on formalism and unreasoning faith.

Our choice will be between God's revelation of His self-evolviag, all-creative plan and the one by man devised in the book of Genesis. As it can't be God who makes mistakes we know that it must be man who's wrong.

The first step towards a useful, peaceful, happy life is to recognize the fact that natural laws govern us, each and all, here and everywhere, precisely as much in the realm of mind, manners and morals as in the chemical union of the elements.

We reap exactly what and as we sow. We cannot escape the consequences of our erroneous thoughts or our smallest unjust deeds. And death does not settle the score any more than moving to a new town pays our debts in the old one.

Science has no creed, no hobby, no selfish axe to grind and knows no such word as faith that has no fact behind it.

Religion is not a thing that men or institutions can fabricate, transcribe it in a holy book and then vote themselves to be holy men and by God inspired to just so make it.

If God ever inspired a man or men (and we are told it took fifty-seven) to reveal Himself in a sacred book, do you honestly think He would contradict Himself, repudiate His laws or allow one untruth to creep within it? No! Then why not to God and to yourself be just and admit that it is fallible? Accept what is good and true and reject the false and incredible.

Religion is one grand, sublime emotion that purifies our lives and lifts our souls to a glorious exaltation.

As a majestic, giant boulder is robbed of its grandeur and rugged beauty by lichens and accumulated moss and many climbing and overhanging vines, so the intrinsic values and virtues that religion is designed to bestow on man are lost in the obscurity of many kinds of denominational decorations, sectarian veneer, priestly vestiture and fashionable formalities.

On religion has been lavished great wealth. It has been duly organized, churched and housed in costly temples while God's poor have been kept in ignorance of His guiding laws and to bed have gone cold and hungry.

But rising out of and above bromidic, historic preachments, the one day perfunctory observance of rites, rituals, ceremonials and their ostentatious trappings, a religion of truth and human helpful service is emerging into the light of a brighter, better day.

Religion is a living, growing force, but it can not expand and thrive in the sterile soil of a long-forgotten past.

Religion concerns us in present time and it functions only when it puts righteousness into our lives while living.

As a mariner needs a compass, so every human soul needs a religion that is founded on God's laws—on truth—for nothing else so truly guides his life and exalteth all the attributes of his being.

But a religion founded on false premises, on a self-assumed institutional authority, requiring unreasoning credulity and blind faith, perverts the mind and is man's worst menace, as it makes men hypocrites, bigots, fools and fanatics.

It leads them into paths of sin and crime they otherwise would not follow because from their sins they are told there is a remission, a Redeemer who will save, and they "will be washed whiter than snow."

History is our evidence that nothing has caused more wars and injustice and so bitterly opposed all scientific discovery of truth and its teaching, and man's progressive rise morally, mentally and materially as an ill-founded, illogical religion.

BITTINGER

After two or three splendid days, at the beginning of last week, the skies again became gloomy and we are now in the midst of another rainy period which seems to have discouraged the farmers who have grain in the fields, but the sun will shine again and much grain will yet be gathered in.

While engaged in hauling oats from a field on the Thomas Platter farm, near Jennings, one day last week, Frederick Snyder fell from a load of grain and was thrown some distance down a steep hillside sustaining injuries from which he died at the Miners' Hospital in Frostburg on Saturday morning, September 4th. The remains were brought to this village for burial on Monday of this week. The deceased was a native of this immediate community and is survived by one son, Mr. Clark Snyder, two brothers and one sister.

Perry Bowser, an aged and life-long resident of this neighborhood, died at his home near here on Thursday of last week. Funeral services were conducted at the home by Rev. Thomas, of the Dunkard church, on Saturday afternoon, followed by interment in the family burying ground.

Misses Bernice and Belda Brehmen, of Sulphur Springs, Ohio, who were guests at the Lutheran parsonage in Bittinger for a few weeks, returned to their home in Ohio on Tuesday of last week.

Miss Ethel Fortney, of Lumberport, West Va., returned to her home last week after a visit of several days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fortney at this place.

Mrs. Noah Frickey, of Grantsville, spent part of last week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Stanton in this village.

G. W. Emory, of Elmira, N. Y., was the guest of his brother, J. B. Emory, and family, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. J. B. Emory, who in company with her son and daughter, spent several days in Philadelphia recently, returned to their home here last Friday evening.

SCHOOL REVENUE PROBLEMS

Tax rates payable in 1926 for grade school purposes in one school district of Illinois totaled $2.75 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation; the corresponding rates in another totaled 24 cents per $100. Such inequality in school tax rates is common throughout the State of Illinois and has existed for 20 years between these two districts. These facts are shown by a study recently made by the Research Bureau of the Illinois State Teachers Association.

In one county of this State there are six one-room school districts in which railroads pay 58 per cent of the local school tax. In one township of another county the railroad valuations amounts to 56 per cent of the total valuation, while another township has no railroad valuation. In this county the average school tax rate paid by twelve one-room school districts without railroads is more than double the average paid by twelve others with railroads. Great differences in school tax rates are found to exist between districts with low valuations and many pupils on the one hand and districts with high valuations and few pupils on the other.

How to guarantee an equitable distribution of public school costs is a troublesome problem, and constantly grows in importance with the increasing expenditures for education. More attention is continually being given to this question, and some States have succeeded in equalizing their school tax burden to a much greater extent than others. Such studies as the one made in Illinois are valuable to those working for the improvement of public school finance.

THE BOOK ETERNAL.

In refutation of the organized propaganda against religion, and vindication of the belief that the United States is essentially a God-fearing nation, the 1925 record of 9,215,243 Bibles distributed by the American Bible Society disposes effectually of all pretense to the contrary.

Whatever the churches may find to criticize in their own operations, however dissatisfied they may be with the progress they have made in memberships, at any rate there is no denying that to the mass of individual Americans the Bible plays a part in daily life. And to those who would break down the influence of Biblical teaching in the nation the fact that more Bibles were distributed in 1925 than in any previous year should serve as an admonition.

Attacks upon religion customarily have the effect of increasing religious interest and promoting a study of Holy Writ. The numerous movements directed against religion in 1925 had precisely the effect which might have been anticipated. They served to increase the faith of the faithful and to interest many unprofessed church members in the Book Eternal.

Pity is that the American philosophy of life and nationality should be so slightly impressed upon so many Americans. The Declaration of Independence is a confession of faith. The Constitution of the United States is an attempt to formulate into principles of human association the conception of the relation of man to his Maker. The Government of the United States is an expression of belief in the Divine origin of man, an effort to recognize the essential, innate worth of human individuality as a personification of universal significance.

The Bible has always been, and always will be an indispensable part of the nation and the nation's life.

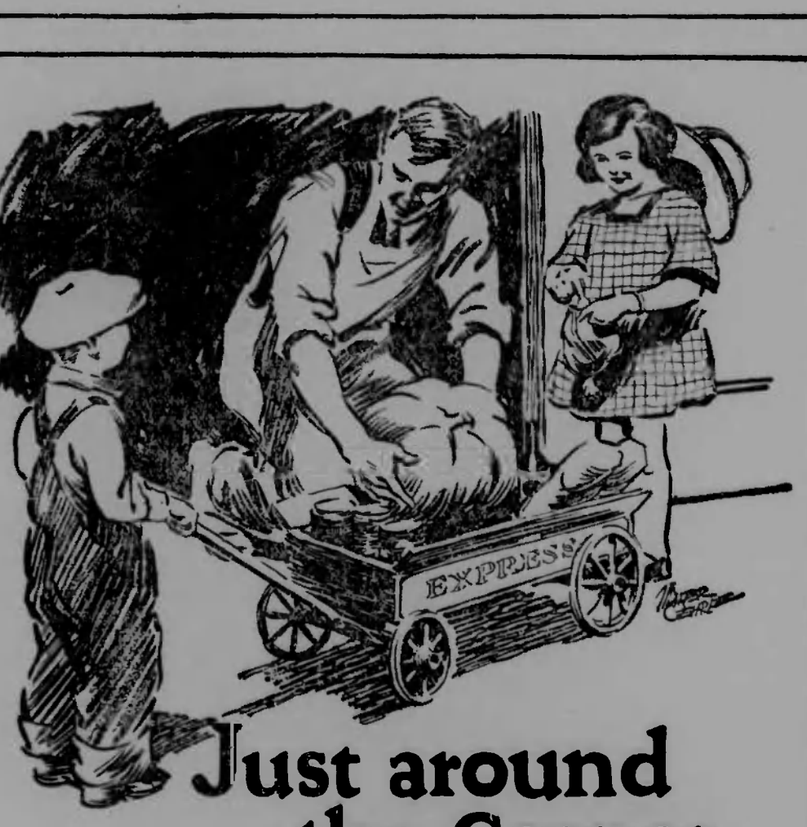
Bring us your old room heaters

COAL, WOOD, OIL, ELECTRIC or GAS

During our sale of

Radiant Gas Heaters

September 6-25



We will allow you $2.50 for any old room heaters replaced with a new radiant gas heater—the modern contribution to home comfort in cold weather. Pay only $3.00 down — and take 6 months for the balance. These terms, with the allowance, end with this sale.

A radiant gas heater is not a luxury. It's an out-and-out economy. It enables you to operate the furnace more efficiently, with a saving on coal. It takes the indoor chills out of wintry weather—and that may mean a saving in doctor's bills. And it brings instant comfort and good cheer to every room in which it is installed. Put in more than one — on long-time payment terms.

Just around the Corner

EVEN big-city folks must have their "neighborhood stores"! Most of them would no more think of going down town to fight their way through the crowds in search of a roast for dinner than they would of walking to the factory to get a pair of shoes.

City women know that their neighborhood stores can supply them just what they want — and that, in most cases, the service is more alert and friendly.

The same thing is true of this "neighborhood". Our merchants—the men whose ads you read in this paper —are in position to furnish your home with the best and most popular brands of goods. Not only can they save you money, but they gladly relieve you of a lot of worry and loss of time.

AMERICAN DOCTRINE

To use an expression of the day John R. McQuigg, national commander of the American Legion "said a mouthful" recently when he pointed out at a meeting of the Virginia state legion at Alexandria, the dangers which threaten the United States as the principal world creditor and the greater dangers we will face if we permit ourselves to be misled by misguided pacifists into neglecting the defensive machinery of the United States. Commander McQuigg said in part:

"The United States is the richest prize of the ages, the greatest inheritance since time began. It will be ours only so long as the world knows we are ready and prepared to defend it. World courts and similar tribunals cannot do away with man's cupidity, nor quench a nation's thirst for power and dominion when that nation thinks itself strong enough to win.

"The American Legion has no patience with those well meaning but misguided persons who, even now, are making strenuous efforts to palsy the arm of America and deprive us of the small defense we now have. They shut their eyes to the history of our country, and ignore all experience of the past. They apparently are willing and anxious to jeopardize all we have gained in the last century and a half, if only they are permitted to attempt the creation of all impossible Utopia."

Concluding, he said: "The men who compose the legion know what war is. They have seen it at its worst, and they want no more of it if it can be honorably avoided. But the legion recognizes that controversies and quarrels between nations are almost certain to arise, and that mere agreements not to have wars have been to a large extent futile."

Here is real sensible American doctrine. Uncle Sam never has a chip on his shoulder and never will have until national sentiment changes tremendously from what it is at present. But adequate defense is not militarism but national insurance. Every great American from George Washington down has recognized this fact and America must not be led from the traditional path by any misguided sentimentalism which might easily be fatal to our future progress.

THE MOTION PICTURE.

Even familiar as most of us are with the increasing number of moving picture theatres, the expansion of the business of making films and the great attendance on the showings of these pictures, we are likely to be astounded by the figures given to President Coolidge by Will H. Hays, general mentor of the film business. Although there are now more than 20,000 picture theatres in this country, it seems well-nigh incredible that the average weekly attendance is 90 millions, Mr. Hays's estimate for 1925. But even allowing for some shrinkage, the attendance admittedly is enormous, so enormous as to bring us to serious thought once more on the tremendous influence this form of entertainment is having on the American people, and the possibility of extending the usefulness of such a mighty ageney.

The primary functions of the moving pictures are to entertain the public. If the public does not respond sufficiently, the picture must be shelved. In all are involving large initial cost and expensive presentation, the public largely controls the character of the exhibits. Theatrical producers we know, do yield unnecessarily sometimes to what they believe to be public taste. The motion picture producer, we know, is handicapped, if he be of somewhat idealistic inclinations, in gauging his production to the averake intelligence and the average taste, for the hope is that his picture may be so popular that it will run the whole course of picture houses in this country and reach many of those abroad.

There still is room, however, for refinements in both character nnd process, for more consideration for the moral effects and instructive values without compromising the popular appeal. The overwhelmlng thought is that if a picture is essentially evil in its effects it may do incalculable harm, whereas if it is distinctively uplifting in its influence it may do immeasurable good.

It is gratifying to see that an average of 51 million Americans weekly see reels picturing current events. These vivid supplements of the big news of the day often are impressive, informative and helpful. They suggest the great use that might be made of the films in educational courses, especially in teaching geography, and along with it the showing of cities, peoples and outstanding characteristics of the counrties studied. Already we have in the film theatres illuminating glimpses of scientific progress.

Granting to film producers the commercial basis on which they must operate, the fact remains that the sweep of their industry has attained such scope as to have a sobering effect on all who contemplate it seriously. That it must have something of the same effect on the producers seems inevitable.

BLOOMING ROSE

The children have returned from their vacations and are going in different directions, where they will be enrolled as students in school.

Miss Frieda Frazee, of Cumberland, is spending the week-end with her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conneway, of Markleysburg, is spending Sunday with relatives here.

Miss Helen VanSickle returned home last Sunday, after having spent a week's vacation with friends in McKeesport, Pa.

Mrs. Jeremiah Teets was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Frazee last Sunday.

Miss Agnes VanSickle, Frank Teets, Miss Flossie Friend and Paul Hook motored to Addison, Pa., last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Frazee were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex Frazee last Sunday.

Mrs. C. W. Friend is quite ill at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Shears and two children, Jane and Harry, and Mr. James Young of McKeesport, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Grove and daughter Beatrice, of Friendsville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lott VanSickle last Sunday and Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee, of Point Marion, Pa., were visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Pysell, here last Saturday and Sunday.

The Sunday School picnic was held here last Sunday and a great number of Sunday School members were present. The day spent was enjoyed very much by all those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rush, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rush, and Mr. and Mrs. Orval Rush and little daughter, of Friendsville ,and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Watson, of Terra Alta, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Quinter Hook.

Mr. Charles Shears has returned home after spending a few weeks vacation with friends here.

Mrs. Alex Grove and daughter Beatrice were visiting the latter's parents several days last week.

Many of the people of this community attended the K. of P. picnic at Oakland on Labor Day.

Rev. Arbogast, our pastor, delivered a very interesting sermon here last Saturday night. There also will be preaching services here again next Saturday night. Everyone in the community is cordially invited to attend.

A FALSE REPORT

To the Voters of Garrett County,

A report seems to have been circulated in certain sections of the county to the effect that if nominated and elected to the State Senate from Garrett county it is my intention to introduce legislation to exempt the Power Company operating near Oakland from taxation.

I cannot understand why anyone should circulate a report of this nature and it is absolutely false.

I will appreciate the favor very much if anyone to whom it is told will kindly drop me a note and let me know who is doing it. Certainly as one of the largest individual taxpayers in the county, I would not be in favor of an act of this kind, which by exempting a corporation from taxes would increase what the rest of us would have to pay.

I am not in favor of exempting any property, including the buildings or the property covered by water of the said corporation, or any one else from the payment of its or their proper proportion of the tax burden, and if nominated and elected I shall certainly take no such action to do so.

Very truly yours,
A. D. NAYLOR.

WORTHINGTON P. WACHTER

Democratic Candidate for Chief Judge Fourth Judicial Circuit

To the Democratic Voters of Garrett County:—

I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit. This Circuit comprises Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

I was born in 1881 on a farm, where I spent my life until I became of age. After graduating from High School in 1899, I attended Roanoke College from which I graduated in 1902, after which I taught in the public schools for nine years.

I am a graduate of the Law Department of the University of Maryland and a member of the Washington County Bar where I have been practicing my chosen profession. I have also been admitted to practice before the Federal Courts of this State.

I am married and have three children. I am a member of the Lutheran Church.

Under the law of this State, the voters of the respective political parties select the candidates to represent the party at the general election in November. In pursuance of this law I am submitting my candidacy to you for your consideration with the hope that I may receive your endorsement by your votes at the coming primary on Tuesday, September 14th.

Very respectfully,
WORTHINGTON P. WACHTER
—Political advertisement, published by authority of the candidate.

Mr. Frank O. Glotfelty, accompanied by two of his sons, Ray and Carl, of Spokane, Washington, arrived in Oakland Saturday night where they will remain for upwards of a month. When they return to the West they will be accompanied by two of Mr. Glotfelty's brothers and their families who now reside in the vicinity of McHenry.

The public schools in Oakland as well as throughout the county, opened Tuesday morning with the usual first-day enrollments. High schools were the exception, however, as in these institutions enrollments were slightly higher than in previous years. The teaching force in all parts of the county shows a marked improvement with the assurance that better results will be accomplished during the school term.

Parents seldom think of the handicap they give their children when they tell them they are bad or naughty, unlucky or unfortunate. It is far better to impress them with the good there is in life and give them a lift towards achieving it than to hinder them by pointing out every hurt or mishap and attributing each to an unlucky tendency for "as a man thinketh . . so is he."

Mr. Hice R. Laughlia, of Cumberland, superintendent of the Cumberland-Grafton division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, spent a few days in Oakland and at the Park this week. As a young man Mr. Laughlin was telegraph operator in his home town, Deer Park, later going out into the world where his ability as a railroad man was recognized and he was steadily advanced uatil in recent months he was promoted to the important position he now occupies. Mr. Laughlin's visit here Monday was the first in more than twenty years.

"TAXPAYER" WRITES IN BEHALF OF A. D. NAYLOR, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County:—

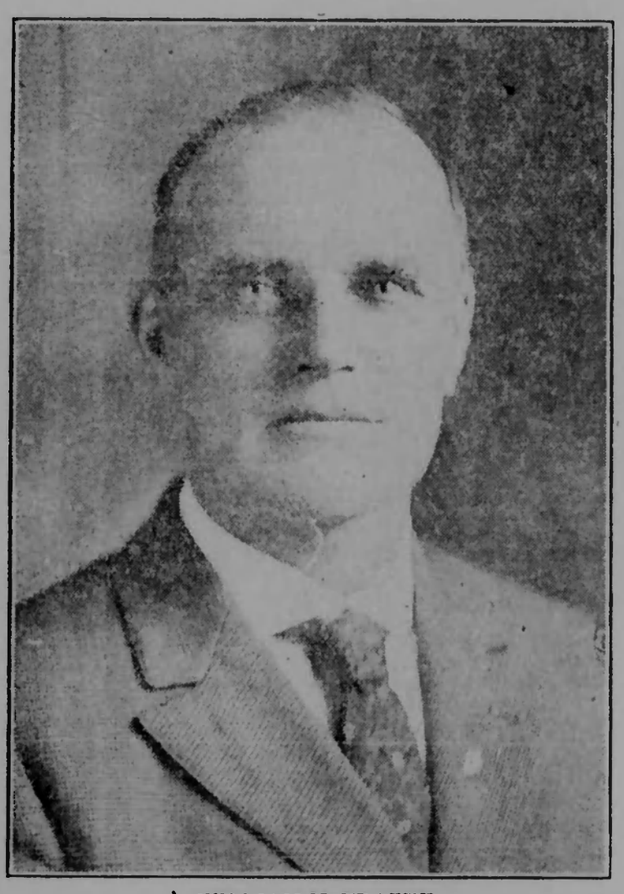
As this will be the last opportunity before next Tuesday's primary, I wish to say a few words to the voters of my party about the nomination of a State Senator.

I am interested in the nomination of Mr. Naylor because I believe that as a successful business man, a heavy taxpayer and greatly interested for years in the progress of our county, he would make us a good representative at Annapolis. I feel that in his hands our interests would be safe and that he would make every effort to secure for Garrett County our rightful share of State revenues, which we have not had in recent years, and reduce the burden upon the taxpayers of the county.

Two of his opponents have been spreading a story to the effect that Mr. Naylor expects to exempt the power company from taxation. Mr. Naylor has publicly and through both of the county papers denied that he has any such intention, stands pledged against any such move and has promised to work for a decrease and not an increase in the tax burden upon the people of the county. Have you noticed any similar promise from his apponents. I have been watching the newspapers but have failed to see any statement from them on this question. Mr. Speicher was in the Senate when the charter under which this power company started operations was granted by the Legislature, and may still be interested.

Mr. Naylor is a heavier taxpayer than any of his opponents and would be interested more than any in reducing the tax rate.

Mr. Naylor has made no extravagant promises during this campaign. He has not promised to build hard-surfaced roads in every section of the county, each one to be built first, as has one of his opponents, because Mr. Naylor knows, as everyone else does who is familiar with road building in Maryland that such a promise cannot be carried out and is only made to deceive you and win your vote. When the primary is over it would be forgotten. I recall that Mr. Speicher made these same promises in his campaign of some nine years ago and during his subsequent four years in the Senate we did not get one of the promised roads. When he made them he knew they could not be carried out, and the same is true today. Mr. Naylor has promised to work for the best interests of the county and will carry out that promise to the letter. We can depend upon that.



Mr. Naylor has always been a Republican and will remain so. He will not straddle the issue and have one foot in each party. At the same time, I believe that he will fairly and honestly represent all the people of the county.

You will make no mistake when you cast your vote for A. D. Naylor next Tuesday and I respectfully urge you to do so.

Very truly yours,
TAXPAYER.

FOR NOMINATION FOR COUNTY TREASURER

WILLIAM M. FRAZEE

I was born and reared in Garrett County and have always lived on a farm; have been a taxpayer for the past twenty-five years and every dollar I have earned I have invested in Garrett County real estate which draws taxes to help defray the county's expense.

Some of my opponents have not always been residents of the county or even of the State. Some of them do not even own real estate, and if any taxable property, then very little.

If nominated and elected, I will endeavor to treat my fellow-taxpayers with every possible courtesy and will strive to fill the office efficiently, honestly and carefully and will be diligent in the discharge of my duties. If nominated and elected, I will distribute the tax business as much as possible among the institutions of the county with fairness and honesty to all.

I therefore hereby earnestly and respectfully solicit your worthy vote at the coming primary, which will be on September 14th, 1926.

It is my aim and determination to see every voter. Should I miss any, it will not be intentional.

Thanking you in advance, I am, Yours respectfully,
W. M. FRAZEE.

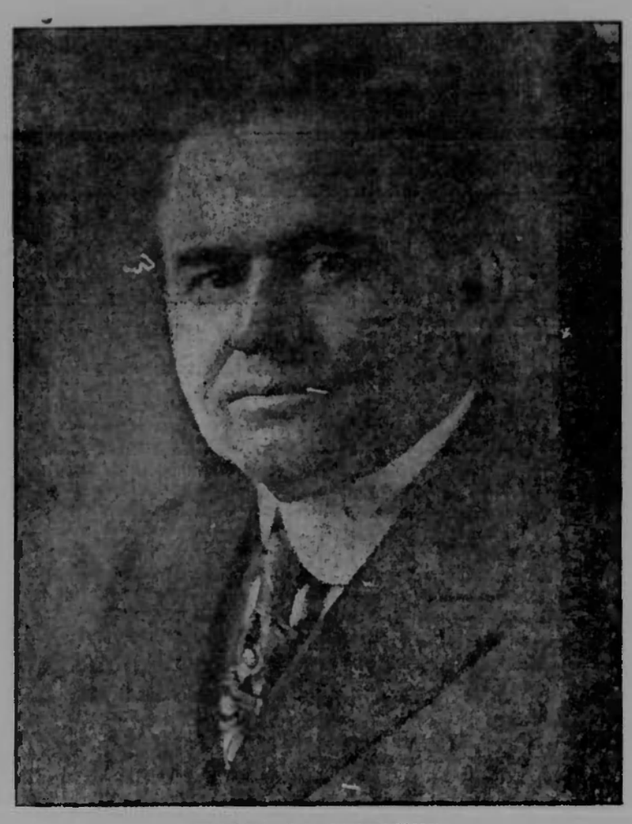
ARTHUR LAWTON, FOR HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

To the Republican Voters and Citizens of Garrett County:—



The report that I have made a combination with certain other candidates in the primary contest has been broadcast in sections of the county and is being accepted as a fact.

What object the originator of this piece of political gossip had in view, I am unable to say, but I want to assure all that I have made no combination with any other candidate, nor shall I at this or at any other time Istand solely upon my own, and solicit the support of the people at the election to be held on the 14th inst. Very respectfully,

ARTHUR LAWTON,
Republican Candidate for the House of Delegates.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF H. J. SPEICHER

HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

Since the earnest solicitation of many Republican voters and citizens of Garrett County, I have decided to become a candidate tor the office of State Senator on the Republican ticket, subject to the result of the primary election.

I have had twelve years' experience as your representative, which I believe will better fit me to represent you and will enable me to accomplish more tor an economical administration of affairs.

During my term of office I have voted for such mesures and legislation for the betterment of schools and roads—in fact all legislation that was for the betterment of conditions of the county and State.

I have made mistakes—that man doesn't live who hasn't made them—but listen: I have served you twelve years without criticism from any of the leading papers of the State.

If you will take the time to go back over my record and see what has been accomplished for the county during my term of office, I feel sure you will favor me with your support.

Assuring you of my appreciation for the confidence heretofore reposed in me and assuring you a faithful and conscientious discharge of duty if again nominated and elected, I have the honor to remain with respect, Very truly yours,
HARVEY J. SPEICHER.

HARVEY J. SPEICHER, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION FOR STATE SENATOR, MAKES APPEAL

LISTEN, FRIENDS:—

This will be my last opportunity to appeal to you for your votes and influence at the coming primary, September 14th.

Think this matter over carefully. Do your own thinking, and do not listen to someone who is my personal and political enemy, especially those who have boasted they are going to burn gas this week to defeat me for personal reasons only.

Look my record over and see if I have made you a good representative. Have I been fair to you as a citizen and taxpayer? Have I by my vote and influence burdened you with any bad laws? You believe that when you have a good representative in Congress he should be kept there because of the experience, influence and knowledge he has gained of the needs of the American people. Likewise men who represent us in the United States Senate, many of whom have served you a quarter of a century and over. Have they ever made a mistake? Yes, and still they are returned. You are as much interested in your local and State government as your National government, and I can say to you truthfully the same rule can be applied here.

I am a taxpayer, the same as most of you. Our taxes have been on a sliding scale upward since the war started and I believe you as a taxpayer will agree with me it is time to start the other way. Of one thing I can assure you, I am strictly opposed to turning over to the State of Maryland the property of a private corporation to escape taxation. I believe in the development of our resources and a fair and just tax to all. We have an agricultural county. Nothing can develop the rural districts more than good roads and good schools, both of which I have always supported. You who live in the rural districts should be accorded the same privilege to educate your children as those who live in towns or cities.

That I have been unjustly criticized is true, and true of every man in public life, which has been proved time and time again.

Some will tell you I can't be elected if nominated. TRY IT AND SEE.

The most critical time in the history of the Republican party was in 1909 when the People's Party was organized and we had a three-cornered fight. We elected our entire ticket that year. I was again honored by your vote in 1915 and renominated and we repeated what we accomplished in 1909; likewise in 1917. The same can be done again.

I believe in upholding the Constitution of the United States, which is the duty of every loyal, law-abiding one hundred per cent American citizen.

Again appealing to you for your vote and influence at the coming primary and assuring you that I will give you the best that is in me and the benefit of my experience and knowledge gained as your representative heretofore, and assuring you of my deepest appreciation for your support, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
HARVEY J. SPEICHER,
Republican candidate for nomination for State Senator.

JUDGE WALSH,

CANDIDATE FOR THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR CHIEF JUDGE OF THE FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, ENDORSED BY THE LEADING LAWYERS OF MARYLAND.

On August 28th, 1926, a large number of the leading lawyers of the State endorsed Judge Walsh in the following statement:

"To the Voters of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland:—

"Although the undersigned members of the Bar of Maryland do not reside in the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and would be most unwilling even to appear to intercede in the local affairs of that Circuit, we nevertheless deem it proper and fitting to express our esteem and high regard for the ability, learning and industry displayed by the present Chief Judge, Hon. William C. Walsh, and our earnest hope that he may be retained on the bench at the coming election.

"The Chief Judge of this Circuit is, by virtue of his office, a member of the Maryland Court of Appeals. This Court consists of eight judges, one from each of the seven Circuits in the counties of the State and one from Baltimore City. The people of the entire State are vitally interested in the personnel of this Court, as its decisions are final in all cases not involving the determination of Federal cases, and settles the law for all parts of the State.

"As practitioners before the Court of Appeals during the incumbency of Judge Walsh, we are glad to bear testimony to the deep, intelligent and courteous interest he has uniformly manifested in the cases on trial, and the opinions written by him evince such learning, clarity of style and soundness of judgment as to qualify him to add to the already splendid record of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

"We believe that the office of Judge is above political consideration, and when a member of the bench performs his duties as satisfactorily as Judge Walsh has done, the interests of the entire State are best served by his retention on the bench."

T. W. CASTEEL, FOR JUDGE OF THE ORPHANS COURT.

To the Voters of Garrett County:—

I would be pleased to see all the voters of the county in person, but this is impossible, nor do I think you would require me to do so, for a great many of you have known me all my life and most all have heard of me, for I have been a taxpayer for 60 years, and if you think you can vote for me at the primary on the 14th for the office of Judge of the Orphans' Court I will be thankful to you for your consideration. T. W. CASTEEL.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Mr. Lee M. Bender gave the people of the Park a most excellent discourse on the "Responsibility of the Church in this critical period of the Church life on Sunday morning. Rev. Brooks was unable to make the address, was called away.

Mr. Howard Hurst and family, of Shinnston, West Va., are now occupying the C. S. Thompson cottage, where they will be for a short vacation.

Mr. Joseph White, of Fairmont, W. Va., who is indisposed following a nervous breakdown, is now occupying the small Kimmell cottage opposite the Allegheny House.

Our public school opened Tuesday morning with Miss Emma Hamill, principal, and Miss Mildred Welling, assistant teacher. T. P. Robinson, of Williamsport, Pa., have rented the Sutton cottage on N street for the winter so they can send their children to school here.

Instead of our young people rushing off to school at distant points, we are hoping that in the not too far distant future we may have a well-equipped college, or higher educational institution located here where all may procure an education to fit them for future activities in many walks of life.

Mr. Richards, of Cumberland, had as his guest Sunday and Monday Mr. James Miles Staley, Democratic candidate for the nomination for Governor. Mr. Staley made a splendid impression upon all who called to pay their respects, and there were quite a number.

T. D. Richards, who recently returned home from the Sibley Hospital in Washington, is fast gaining strength and flesh and we hope will soon be entirely well.

JOHN H. BEITZELL
Republican Candidate for Commissioner

To the Republican Voters of Garrett County, Md.:—

If you are looking to the best interests of your county and desire a safe, sane and satisfactory administration of the public affairs of your county as well as a conservative and economic expenditure of the county funds, you should vote for John H. Beitzell, of District No. Twelve, a candidate for the office of County Commissioner.

Mr. Beitzell is a careful and efficient business man, a life-long Republican and is centrally located in the county, and if elected he will use all his best efforts in viewing and taking care of the interests of every section of the county.

It is therefore hoped that every taxpayer who desires the service of such a man will go to the polls on Tuesday, September 14th, and vote for John H. Beitzell for one of the members of the Board of County Commissioners.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY

I have been informed by a number of friends that some of my opponents or somebody else has made the statement that I can neither read nor write, which statement is entirely false.

I think that I have sufficient education to perform the duties of County Treasurer.

I have been a taxpayer in the county for more than thirty years.

Yours truly,
R. J. NICHOLSON,
Republican candidate for nomination for County Treasurer

GRANTSVILLE

Several years ago a committee was organized to see that the Grantsville cemetery was kept in a presentable condition, as it had been neglected for a number of years, and since the committee has been in charge the cemetery is mowed and kept in better order. The cemetery fund is very small and a canvass is being made of the citizens of Grantsville and district. Folks who have friends and relatives buried there for contributions for the general upkeep. Quite a nice sum has been given, so far, for which the committee is very thankful and hope others will respond.

Mr. Charles Compton of Webster, S. D., who has been spending several weeks in this vicinity and is interested also in repairing the road to the cemetery which will soon be constructed by the Town Council and others has given $10.00 for the road building and $3.00 for the upkeep. Also Mr. Ross Compton, of Akron, Ohio, has contributed. The Compton family, one of the very early settlers of Grantsville and vicinity and were very well to do. Several toward all improvements. The bodies of Mr. Compton's parents were interred in the Grantsville cemetery.

The forty-first annual meeting of the Somerset County G. A. R. Veterans was held in Somerset, Pa., Saturday, September 4, at the court house. About sixty-four of the old veterans held a most interesting meeting and banquet. The program consisted of music by the Somerset orchestra and addresses by various speakers.

The address of welcome was given by a prominent attorney of the World War, responded to be one of the veterans, 93 years of age. Addresses were given by Judge Berkey, of District Court, Hon. Samuel A. Kemball and Dr. J. H. Dorsey, followed by music and reminiscences of the Civil War.

After the dinner was served each one present was presented with a pound of candy. Grantsville was represented by Comrade Christian Lantz, 89 years of age, and Dr. J. H. Dorsey, Spanish-American War veteran.

Changes in long distance telephone rates for interstate service from Maryland points will become effective October 1, according to information just received by G. H. Warren, division manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City at Baltimore. These changes involve a general readjustment in long distance rates and in the evening and night period during which reduced rates apply.

The changes, Mr. Warren states, have been made for the benefit of users of long distance service and to eliminate service difficulties which the present schedule has brought about.

To points 150 miles or more distant the rates are substantially reduced. The greater the distance the greater the reduction. On calls for distances between 24 and 110 miles a few rates will be adjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of the basic station-to-station rates will be only five cents.

The net result of the readjustment in rates will be a saving to the telephone users of the states of [illegible] approximately $ [illegible] a year. Improvements in the art of long distance cables, carrier systems, vacuum tube repeaters, loading coils and other improved devices and methods, resulting from continuous scientific research and development applied to the telephone industry, have effected economy on the longer circuits, and have a share in making these reductions possible.

Under the new schedule reduced rates on station-to-station calls will begin at 7:00 p. m. instead of 8:30 p. m., as formerly. Between 7:00 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. the discount will be approximately 25 per cent of the day station-to-station rates, and from [illegible] p. m. to 4:30 a. m., about 50 per cent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cts. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount is discontinued.

Under the new schedule station-to-station calls may be made at substantial reductions as early as 7 p. m., and persons wishing to take advantage of the lowest rates of the 24 hours may make their calls any time after 8:30 p. m. Another change that will be welcomed is the extension of the privilege of reversing charges to include station-to-station calls—whether placed during the day, evening or night—where the rate is 20 cents or more.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Salina Oester vs. Irvin Thomas, Amy Bowser, his wife, Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester, Matilda Burrow. No. 2698 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree declaring void a deed to Irvin Thomas from George Oester and Salina Oester, his wife, and declaring void two subsequent mortgages given by said Irvin Thomas; and to secure the appointment of trustees to sell the property described in the said deed, and for other and further relief.

The Bill states: That a certain farm of approximately 150 acres of land, was conveyed to George Oester and Salina Oester, as tenants by the entireties, by deed from Catherine Diehl, duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That George Oester and Salina Oester made a deed of trust of the said farm to Edward T. Bowser, Trustee for Perry Bowser, to secure payment of a certain debt, said Deed of Trust is duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and its validity is not questioned by the plaintiff in these proceedings.

That except for 17¼ acres of said land previously conveyed to John Gatherman, Salina Oester and George Oester, her husband, did convey the aforesaid farm together with certain personal property to Irvin Thomas by deed dated the 10th day of October, 1917, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That the consideration set forth in the last mentioned deed, required the grantee to provide a comfortable maintenance for grantors during their lives, and decent burial at death, and to pay $2500.00 in cash as directed in said deed; the bill further states, that the said Thomas provided a living for said grantors, from November 1917, until April, 1923, at which time grantee, totally abandoned said farm and the grantors, said abandonment has continued without interruption to the present time, and said grantee has not contributed toward the support of grantors, or either of them, did not pay funeral expenses of George Oester, now deceased, has not paid any part of the $2500.00 required to be paid by condition in said deed. That the said Irvin Thomas and wife, executed a mortgage of said farm, to Perry Bowser, dated June 10th, 1918, recorded in Land and Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $500.00 which had been advanced by said Bowserto said Thomas; and the said mortgagee, accepted said mortgage as security for the money so advanced, although he knew, or was charged with knowledge, that said Thomas had only a defeasible title to said land, and that security for said mortgage was liable to be destroyed by failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land, and that said defect in the title of said Thomas, was apparent upon the face of the deed to said land to the said Irvin Thomas, the said mortgage was later assigned by the said Bowser, to Amy Bowser, his wife.

That the said Irvin Thomas, later executed another mortgage of the same property to Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester and Matilda Burrow, dated the 3rd day of July, 1923, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $4320.85, advanced to the said Thomas; and the said mortgagees accepted said mortgage as security for the money advanced, although they knew, or were charged with knowledge, that the title of said Thomas was only a defeasible title, apparent upon the face of the deed from the said George Oester and Salina Oester, to the said Irvin Thomas, and the said security was liable to be destroyed through failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land. That the said George Oester died intestate, sometime in the month of April, 1924.

That the aforesaid farm conveyed by George Oester and Salina Oetter to Irvin Thomas, is now abandoned and is depreciating in value through neglect, and on account of said deed to Irvin Thomas, and later mortgages given by said Thomas, the title of the said Salina Oester, is under a cloud and she can not sell it or derive any profit therefrom on this account. That the said deed to Irvin Thomas is wholly without legal consideration, is fraudulent and void, and should be set aside, and the two mortgages subsequently given by said Thomas are void as against the title of your oratrix in and to said land.

The Bill then prays, that an order of publication be granted giving notice to Irvin Thomas, Anna Oester and Matilda Burrow, all non-residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them, and each of them, to be and appear in this Court on a certain day to be named therein, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

And also that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties in the Bill named.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 8th day of September, 1926, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff give notice by publication in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 8th day of October, 1926, to the said non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of October, 1926, to answer the allegations of said Bill of complaint, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises, and that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties named in said Bill of complaint.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924 an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to preserve to the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

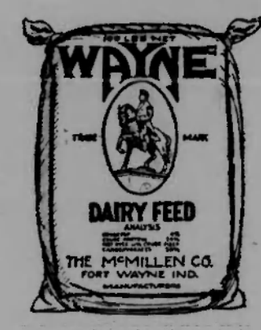
AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.



Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

The Great Seal of Maryland

ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

A. D. NAYLOR EASY VICTOR IN FOUR-CORNERED FIGHT FOR SENATE

Returns From 19 of 21 Precincts Show That Weller and Zihlman Have Overwhelming Majorities Over Their Opponents and That Sloan Has Sweeping Victory Over Watson

Unofficial returns at noon today from nineteen of the twenty-one voting precincts of Garrett county indicate that Governor Ritchie has a three to one majority over Maloy and that Congressman Zihlman has piled up a more than four to one majority over Eppler, his opponent. Judge Walsh maintained a big lead over Wachter, while D. L. Sloan, who had as his opponent for Chief Judge Charles G. Watson, leads the latter by nearly a thousand votes which will be increased slightly with the receipt of the returns from the districts still missing.

O. E. Weller,for United States Senator, put it all over John Philip Hill in the contest, altho a determined fight was put up against the present Senator in parts of the county.

Naylor is an easy winner in the four-cornered fight in which he was a participant.

The official canvass of the returns will not be completed until late this afternoon and will be printed in The Republican next Thursday.

The unofficial totals of the districts thus far received give the following results:

Keyser Ridge Garage Robbed.

The Keyser Ridge arage, located on the National Highway at Keyser's Ridge, was robbed of $700 worth of tires and the contents of the cash register on Saturday night of last week. No trace of the robbers has been discovered. The same night a motor cycle in L. G. Bittinger's motorcycle garage at Grantsville was laso stolen.

Calf Club Members Visit State Fair at Timonium.

Monday, the 12th inst., three Dairy Calf Club members from the northern section of the county competed with eleven other club teams representing other counties in the State at the Timonium Fair. In the contest were teams from the leading dairy counties of the State and the champion Pennsylvania team from Franklin county in that State. Although the Garrett county team did not win all of the high honors in the contest, it made a very creditable showing and won over the Pennsylvania team. The members of the local team were Casper Loechel, Allen Baker and Carlton Livengood, of the Grantsville club. The team was coached by County Agent Jester, who accompanied the boys to the fair.

CHURCH SERVICES.

St. Paul's M. E. Church, Oakland.
Rev. Archibald Moore, Pastor

9:45 a. m., Sunday school hour, Mr. E. R. Jones, Superintendent. Classes for all who wish to study and learn more about the bible. Next Sunday morning the temperance lesson, dealing with law enforcement, will be studied. The opening exercises will be in charge of Miss Esperanze Ashby, temperance superintendent of the school.

The Men's Bible Class meets at ten o'clock and will have Mr. Walter W. Dawson as teacher next Sunday morning. The men of this class have a cordial welcome for all other men of the community, as well as visitors.

11:00 a. m., morning worship hour with sermon by the pastor. The aim of this service is to bring those who worship together in this way into a closer touch with the great things of life. The hour is one of helpfulness.

7:30 p. m., evening worship hour with sermon by the pastor. No more fitting way to close the Sabbath than this can be found.

Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., regular midweek prayer service in charge of the pastor.

A cordial invitation is always extended to all who will come and join in these various services.

St. Mark's Lutheran, Oakland.
"The Friendly Church."
Rev. C. A. Shilke, Pastor.

9:30 a. m., is the Sunday school hour at the "Friendly Church," at which everyone in the community who is not now connected with some Sunday school, will find a most cordial welcome. The school is directed by Mr. G. J. Altstetter and has a teaching force in all departments of earnest, devoted Christian men and women who throw their whole souls in driving home the truths of the lessons as they are presented for study Sunday after Sunday.

Owing to the absence of the pastor there will be no morning or evening public worship service in this church.

St. Matthew's Parish.

Rev. L. S. Will, former rector, will conduct the usual services in St. Matthew's P. E. church during the month of September and the first weeks of October.

Accident Parish, Lutheran Church.
Rev. G. W. W. Amick, Pastor.

Accident—9:30 a. m.,Sunday school; 10:30 a. m., worship.
Cove—1:30 p. m., Sunday school; 2.30 p. m., worship.
Friendsville—10:00 a. m., Sunday school; 7:30 p. m., Harvest Home services.
Everybody cordially invited to all of our services.

To The Republican Voters:

Please accept my thanks for your consideration on last Tuesday at the Republican Primaries. While my vote was not large enough to nominate me for the office to which I aspired, nevertheless I feel grateful to you.

GUY O. YUTZY.

Fraley Wishes to Express His Thanks.

To The Voters of Garrett County
Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is with deep gratitude that I express my sincere thanks to one and all for the handsome manner in which you supported me at the Republican Primaries on Tuesday.

LAWRENCE M. FRALEY.

To The Republican Voters:

I am indeed grateful to you for your splendid support in nominating me for the office of County Commissioner.

Trusting that you will give me the same loyal support in the General election in November, I am, Yours very truly,

DANIEL ORENDORF.

ALI GHAN TEMPLE PAYS VISIT TO NOBLES HERE

Town Was Alive With Shriners Monday Night Who Gave an Exhibition Drill at School

Nobles of Ali Ghan Temple, Cumberland, accompanied by their ladies, the band and drum corps came to Oakland by motors on Monday night and from the moment of their arrival until their departure at eleven o'clock the town was theirs.

The Shriners met and formed at the grammar school building and the parade headed by Potentate Harry A. Manley, marched through the principal streets of the town, returning to the place of starting where music was rendered by the band and an exhibition drill given by the patrol. The chanters also contributed much to the pleasure of those present when they rendered several selections.

At the close of the drill the Shriners, with the members of the Oakland Blue Lodge as their guests, went to the skating rink on Third street where they enjoyed dancing for an hour or more and were served with refreshments. The affair was brought to a close at eleven o'clock when the visitors returned to Cumberland.

The visit of this organization to Oakland was greatly enjoyed by every resident of the town.

O. H. S. Glee Club Notes.

On Wednesday afternoon a meeting composed of all the members of the Junior and Senior classes who wished to join the Glee club was held in the school auditorium. McClelland Dixon presided and the following officers were elected: President, Ralph Blake; secretary, James Lee; treasurer, Mitchell Franklin.

The club hopes to present several plays during the schhool year. It is their desire to make the club a combined dramatic and musical organization.

To The Republican Voters of Garrett County,

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to my many friends who showed their faith and confidence in me by aiding, supporting and nominating me their Republican candidate for State Senator. If elected in November I pledge to all the people of this county my earnest efforts to discharge the duties of that important office.

Again thanking you for the honor, I am,

Yours for all of Garrett Co.,
ALONZO D. NAYLOR.

Courtesy and Efficiency Are Paramount.

Courtesy and efficiency are the most important factors involved in the new operating method just placed in effect at Oakland and other towns by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. Eugene Bowers, manager of the company, on heing asked concerning the new practice whereby the operator says "Thank you," instead of repeating the number called for by the subscriber as heretofore, said, "The new operating method that has been in effect for the past few days marks enother advance in telephone operating methods.

"This new practice, known as 'restricted repetition,' generally does away with the operator repeating the number after it is received from the subscriber. Instead of repeating the number as formerly, the operator says 'thank you.' It is believed that this practice will meet with almost universal approval of every telephoone user, since it will increase the efficiency of the operating force, which means a quicker service.

"People generally speak clearly and distinctly in giving the number of the telephone wanted and it is felt that with the new operating practice in effect, the public will be well pleased. However, in case of doubt as to the number wanted as she understands it, the operator will repeat as formerly, 'What number, please?' In the majority of cases, however, she will merely say 'thank you' and complete the call or give a definite report.

"Under the new operating method calls can be established much quicker than heretofore, which means an improved service for the suhscriber and we believe that everyone will accept this operating practice in the spirit of courtesy and efficiency as it is intended by the management of the company.

WELLER RETAINS LEADERSHIP IN PARTY AND WINS PLACE AS "DRY"

United States Senator Assured Eighty Votes in State Convention, or Six More Than Necessary, To Make His Nomination Sure—Thirteen of the Counties Are Doubtful.

HILL CARRIED BALTIMORE CITY BUT LOST OUT IN THE COUNTY BALLOTING

Mullikin Practically Assured the Gubernatorial Nomination—Ritchie Given Every Seat in Convention—Zihlman Leads Eppler By More than Two to One in Th eDistrict.

United States Senator Ovington E. Weller, in the outstanding contest of the Maryland primary election conducted throughout the State Tuesday, has preserved for his own shoulder the toga of State party leadership and won for himself the Republican renomination on a dry platform.

Representative John Philip Hill, "anti-organization" leader and avowed wet, in and out of Maryland, swept the city of Baltimore impressively and carried with him to a certain extent, his candidate for the Republican gubernatorial preference, Marion A. Humphreys, of Salisbury. The county vote, altogether incomplete, due to slow counting and indifference to Republican issues in some districts, was steadily growing in Weller's favor. He is assured of eighty votes in the state convention—six more than necessary to nominate. With only thirteen counties definitely in the doubtful column, Colonel Hill, it appeared could not hope to overtake his opponent, although he should finally gather in all the counties where the vote was slow in coming.

In the absence of official returns, St. Mary's County was claimed by observers to have gone for Hill by a comfortable margin while in Howard County, where official returns also could not be had, the estimate was that Weller had carried.

Weller's popular statewide vote, with seven counties and Baltimore City complete and the other sixteen counties for the most part, lacking scattered precincts except Worcester, St. Mary's, Queen Anne's and Howard, which were nearly blank was 35,606, while Hill was 32,661.

Addison E. Mullikin, the Weller candidate, appeared practically assured of the gubernatorial nomination, although the standing of Mullikin and Humphreys was such that the later reporting of missing precincts might upset the Mullikin lead.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie swept through to the Democratic gubernatorial nomination on the crest of a triumphal wave of popular votes aggregating more than 102.000 with all counties complete or nearly so. William Milnes Maloy, former Ritchie appointee on the public service commission, was given slightly better than 24.000 votes. Ritchie took every seat in the State Convention.

The Republican nomination for clerk of the court of Appeals, was going to Mrs. Eva C. Chase, with slight chance of an upset. Mrs. Chase last night had polled, with 1594 of the states 1184 precincts missing, a state-wide vote of 27,348 against 21,080 for A. Kingsley Love.

Millard E. Tydings, of Belair, was unopposed for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

In the First Congressianal Distriet, Representative A. Alan Goldsborough, dry incumhent was winning nearly five to one over Franklin Upshur, wet aspirant, and in the Sixth District Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, also dry, was winning more than two to one over Louis Eppler, wet.

With sixteen precincts of the First District's 144 missing, Goldsborough's vote was 24,411 and Upshur's 5,015. In the Sixth District, with 17½ precincts missing, in 192. Zihlman's vote was 15,896 and Eppler's 6,277.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

There is waiting for you at our showroom, today, a charming new Paige. It is a 4-door Sedan, mounted on the same chassis as the extremely popular Paige Brougham. This beautiful new body, though somewhat smaller than the biggest Paiges, is larger than most sedans. It is also less costly.

The costliest custom-built cars seldom present a more enchanting interior than that found in this newest 4-door Paige Sedan. Luxury is everywhere. You sit on finest mohair upholstery over nested springs, instead of cheaper, less attractive, less comfortable corduroy or cotton plush. You look at beautifully clustered instruments in one indirectly lighted panel. You admire the skill that so cleverly placed the arm rests, and inlaid the walnut-finish panels. Silk toggle grips, twin smoking sets, charming corner lights all enchant you. See this Paige—soon—we know you'll like it immensely!

A real discovery in motor lubrication

—ALREADY proved on the cars listed below

BEFORE offering the new "Standard" Motor Oil to the public, road tests aggregating hundreds of thousands of miles were made with every type of car and truck.

Every test showed astonishing results; increased oil and gas mileage; better lubrication; smoother operation of the motor at all speeds, no carbon; more power and less drag on hills.

Buicks, Hudsons, Dodges, Packards, Fords, Nashes, Macks, Whites, Overlands, Studebakers — and many others prove that the new "Standard" Motor Oil gives results never dreamed of in a motor oil.

Verify its performance in your own car. Just get your crank-case filled at the nearest "Standard" Service Station or dealer. Then expect results. You can actually feel the difference.

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing—smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

PESSIMISM BAD DIET.

Secretary Jardine of the Agricultural Department, is not a loquacious man, but when he does talk he usually has something to say.

In a recent speech to farm organizations at Syracuse, N. Y., the Secretary of Agriculture said:

"The end of the war which found American farmers as well as all other business, suffering from over-production, caused a general come-down all over. We went down in proportion to the effectiveness of our organizations.

"Steel companies and such highly organized industries, could readjust themselves to meet new conditions quickly. Within thirty days they colud accomplish what it would take the different agricultural enterprises months to do. Where you have animals to take care of and when you have crops planted, it is not possible to make the readjustment quickly, at least eighteen months are needed, and as a consequence agriculture went down longer than other organized industries.

"But we have gone a long way in three years. Agriculture in the west is getting on its feet. We have marketed our surplus, maybe at a loss, but we have marketed our surplus.

"Now the farmers there are getting on their feet. They went down. But they are coming back, and what is more they still have their homes. These they didn't lose, though their families suffered many hardships and had to go without many things. Now prices are somewhere near the prewar level. Feed is cheaper in comparison with the prices you are getting for your milk, and the crops throughout the country promise to be good.

"With the purchasing power of the farmers bettered after they have made their turn-over on these crops, we will see business improved all along the line."

Here is a real note of optimism for the farmer and the student of general business conditions in the United States will feel that it is justified. And what the farmer needs just now, almost as much as he needs good crops and higher prices, is a little optimism mixed with his daily diet.

Since the period of deflation the farmer has had nothing much in a publicity way but a diet of pessimism. He has been told he is going to the dogs so many times that he became discouraged and wondered what was the matter with him. The price of farm land went down and it has not gone up yet to any considerable extent.

One reason it continues to be flat is that so many people have said that farming doesn't pay and never will pay again. How long would the business men of any community remain in business if they persisted in declaring that the town was going to the dogs and that their particular business was on the rocks? How much would the real estate of any progressive city be worth if the newspapers, commercial clubs and other civic organizations would declare to the wide world that it was a dead town, would never be any better and that people ought to stay away from it? It is just as logical to think the farm values can he increased by declaring that farming as an industry is forever ruined.

Of course everything should be done to help the farmer, and he should run his farm on business principles and do everything he can to help himself, and one of the first helpful things to do is to get over our agricultural pessimism and look to the future.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially For The Republican's Readers by Rev. U. S. Wright, D.D.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1926

OBEDIENCE TO THE LAW

(Temperance Lesson)

Leviticus 26.

THE RULE BOOK.

Genesis records God's first institution in its story of the family. Exodus tells us of His second one—the Church—and pictures its ideal perfectness. The third book, Levitieus, is a school book, conned again and again by these practicers of the will of God in the world. Instruction follows dedication always if progress is to be made. He who is born in the home and consecrates himself in the Church immediately finds that there are rules for the game of Christian living that he must know if he would be worthy of his calling. Churchly laws they are because that is as far as Israel had traveled, but they were, as is true of all laws of universal application among the people of the pilgrimage. They were meant to promote the best type of community life and bring a fuller understanding of God and His attitude toward the life of His world. For unless the will of the Almighty lies behind the laws of our following then there is no moral sanction to command obedience.

The first section contains the laws of the offerings. The burnt offering entirely consumed spoke of the consecration of the life and the claim of God. The meal offering was filled with thanksgiving and with the goodness of the Eternal. The peace offering declared the possibility of access to the Throne and of the friendliness of its Occupant. Both the sin and the trespass offering brought penitence into view while revealing the mercy of God and His justice that demanded restitution to the neighbor who had been wronged.

The second section pertains to the leadership chosen in the priest. He should be a separated soul who gave himself wholly to the exercise of the qualities necessary for leadership, who should be reverent in his attitude toward God and sacred things. The carelessness of Nadab and Abihu that resulted in death underscored both this necessity and that of living exemplary lives that took no stimulant to muddle brains while serving God.

The third section makes provision for the cleanness of the people in their food. It does make a difference whether man eats fit food or not and buzzards are poor substitutes for turkey. They must be clean in their sickness and the modern isolation of diseased is merely the enlargement of 3,000-year-old regulations. Clean habits and clean houses follow and the section closes with the great day of atonement in which the priest having first of all made an offering for his own sin presents the blood for the cleansing of the nation and releases the scapegoat to bear their sin into the wilderness.

The fourth section is known as the "Holiness" one from its emphasis upon the holiness of God.. There rings through it continually like the stroke of a bell the expression "I am Jehovah! Ye shall not defile yourselves! I am Jehovah! Ye shall not steal; I am Jehovah! Thou shalt not hate thy brother; I am Jehovah!" Ye shall be holy, for I am holy, presses the demand for likeness to God, in the home, in word and in work.

The book closes with the catalog of feasts giving joy and prosperity as the result of following the laws of Jehovah. Everywhere right relations with God are placed as the basis of right living and their establishment through worship is the means for promoting civilization.

THE RESULT OF OBEDIENCE.

The form law takes varies with the age in which it is made and with the needs to be met. The general rule is that the higher the civilization the greater the number of laws to be followed. This is due to the need of regulating the ever increasing number of contacts that come with the closer packing of people. The solitary bushman is a law unto himself but set him in the heart of a modern city and the rules imposed thereby are bewildering in their complexity and number. Twenty-five years ago traffic cops were unknown, and just now radio regulation is being considered, the League of Nations is in session and China has become a vexing question to the chancellories of the world. The closer the contacts, the higher the civilization, the more intimate become the laws regulating all the relationships. Child labor, school attendance, licenses for physicians, spitting, and a thousand more were never even thought of in days gone by. Their presence spells the advance we have been making. To obey is to live. The whole emphasis of these statutes of Israel was upon the blessings of obedience. Economic success, fruitfulness of land, peace with other nations, physical healthfulness, increasing population and moral robustness were the promised rewards, and these follow today the keeping of this last much criticised law prohibiting the use of strong drink. It goes without saying that these results accompany soberness more surely than they do drunkenness and the nation's prosperity is accompanying its operation.

THE RESULT OF DISOBEDIENCE.

Sickness, poverty, soul-impoverishment, defeat and ultimate overthrow are among the results of breaking laws. A drunken driver imperils everybody on the road and his permit is taken from him. A drunken workman speeds a high-powered machine and a dozen men are killed. A drunken switchman makes a mistake and a train is ditched with dire results. Even the delegates to a convention against the Eighteenth Amendment insisted on a sober engineer to carry them there. Society in its present form of interrelationships can not exist and drink also.

But we only ask for wine and beer! Grant them and what happens? There must be a place to sell them and the old saloon with its blight to home and business, to life and success in any field, is back in its old place. Grant them and the old crowd that is making all the noise now because profits and power have been taken away, will once more be in the saddle and the second stage will be worse than the first. Grant it and the lawlessness which they uphold will be no longer the exceptional, but the regular thing. And the man who makes the bootlegger possible is the one who offers him enough money to give him a chance to make his price and attempt to evade the law in doing it. He who puts personal desire before the public good may be only potentially a criminal, but he is certainly an anti-social citizen.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Salina Oester vs. Irvin Thomas, Amy Bowser, his wife, Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester, Matilda Burrow. No. 2693 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree declaring void a deed to Irvin Thomas from George Oester and Salina Oester, his wife, and declaring void two subsequent mortgages given by said Irvin Thomas; and to secure the appointment of trustees to sell the property described in the said deed, and for other and further relief.

The Bill states: That a certain farm of approximately 150 acres of land, was conveyed to George Oester and Salina Oester, as tenants by the entireties, by deed from Catherine Diehl, duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That George Oester and Salina Oester made a deed of trust of the said farm to Edward T. Bowser, Trustee for Perry Bowser, to secure payment of a certain debt, said Deed of Trust is duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and its validity is not questioned by the plaintiff in these proceedings.

That except for 17¼ acres of said land previously conveyed to John Gatterman, Salina Oester and George Oester, her husband, did convey the aforesaid farm together with certain personal property, to Irvin Thomas, by deed dated the 3rd day of November, 1917, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That the consideration set forth in the last mentioned deed, required the grantee to provide a comfortable maintenance for grantors during their lives, and decent burial at death, and to pay $2500.00 in cash as directed in said deed; the bill further states, that the said Thomas provided a living for said grantors, from November 1917, until April, 1923, at which time grantee, totally abandoned said farm and the grantors, said abandonment has continued without interruption to the present time, and said grantee has not contributed toward the support of grantors, or either of them, did not pay funeral expenses of George Oester, now deceased, has not paid any part of the $2500.00 required to be paid by condition in said deed. That the said Irvin Thomas and wife, executed a mortgage of said farm, to Perry Bowser, dated June 10th, 1918, recorded in Land and Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $500.00 which had been advanced by said Bowser to said Thomas; and the said mortgagee, accepted said mortgage as security for the money so advanced, although he knew, or was charged with knowledge, that said Thomas had only a defeasible title to said land, and that security for said mortgage was liable to be destroyed by failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land, and that said defect in the title of said Thomas, was apparent upon the face of the deed to said land to the said Irvin Thomas, the said mortgage was later assigned by the said Bowser, to Amy Bowser, his wife.

That the said Irvin Thomas, later executed another mortgage of the same property to Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester and Matilda Burrow, dated the 3rd day of July, 1923, and recorded among the Land and Morotgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $1320.85, advanced to the said Thomas; and the said mortgagees accepted said mortgage as security for the money advanced, although they knew, or were charged with knowledge, that the title of said Thomas was only a defeasible title, aparent upon the face of the deed from the said George Oester and Salina Oester, to the said Irvin Thomas, and the said security was liable to be destroyed through failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land. That the said George Oester died intestate, sometime in the month of April, 1924.

That the aforesaid farm conveyed by George Oester and Salina Oester, to Irvin Thomas, is now abandoned and is depreciating in value through neglect, and on account of said deed to Irvin Thomas, and later mortgages given by said Thomas, the title of the said Salina Oester, is under a cloud and she can not sell it or derive any profit therefrom on this account: That the said deed to Irvin Thomas is wholly without legal consideration, is fraudulent and void, and should be set asside, and the two mortgages subsequently given by said Thomas, are void as against the title of your oratrix in and to said land.

The Bill then prays, that an order of publication he granted giving notice to Irvin Thomas, Anna Oester and Matilda Burrow, all non-residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them, and each of them, to be and appear in this Court on a certain day to be named therein, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

And also that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties in the Bill named.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 8th day of September, 1926, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff give notice by publication in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 8th day of October, 1926, to the said non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of October, 1926, to answer the allegations of said Bill of complaint, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises, and that a writ of subpeona be directed to the resident parties named in said Bill of complaint.

BITTINGER

September's days are glowing,
Her breath is crisp and bright;
She bears a cup o'erflowing
With beauty and delight.

The monotony of the week just ended was relieved by the daily visitation of some bright-faced candidate, but the shadow of regret was behind it all, for after clearing of the clouds of battle and the gathering of the ballots on Tuesday, there were many disappointed office-seekers who have our sympathy, as they fight now against the blues that come to the heart of the defeated ones.

G. W. Engle, of Baltimore, was called to this village a few days ago by the serious illness of his aged mother, Mrs. Patterson Engle, who resides near Bittinger.

Messrs. Peter and William Kahl, of Accident, are engaged in painting the Lutheran church in this place at the present time.

C. J. Sechler and family, of St. Paul, Pa., visited here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brenneman and little daughter, of St. Paul, Pa., visited Mrs. Brenneman's parents here on Sunday.

Thomas Wiley, formerly of this village, and Miss Grace Brenneman, of North Glade, were quietly married a few days ago and left at once for Marathon, N. Y., where Mr. Wiley is employed. They are very excellent ynung people, well known in this section and their many friends wish them a long and happy adventure in the world of matrimony and abundant success in business.

It is reported that the barn on the Truman Wilt farm, which is located near Jennings, was hurred to the ground one night last week. The report also says that the fire started following the explnsion of a distilling apparatus which had been operated in the building.

Merchant C. E. Ellitharp's condition is still improving, and it is the hope of his many friends that he will soon be sufficiently recovered to be about among his neighbors again.

J. F. Glotfelty returned from Reisterstown, Md., a few days ago, after a brief visit with his daughter, Mrs. B. H. Wiley, at that place.

Elmer Shawley and family and F. M. Bittinger and family, of this place, motored to Pinto, Md., last Sunday, for a view of the large peach orchards of that vicinity.

Hervey Bittner and wife, of Mt. [illegible] Sunday.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Preliminary to setting under way a movement backed by the residents, property owners and the Mountain Lake Park Association and the business men of Oakland, a meeting was held in Oakland one day recently and tentative plans made to bring more people here next summer. The interest of both towns has been so closely allied that it is next to impossible to separate them in a movement for the common good. While the meeting was not largely attended the spirit attending it was splendid and potent results are sure to follow

Long before the Park was opened, Oakland took care of many summer people, but now the Park, with its attractions has gained many others from different points of the compass. As a result Oakland through its stores and banks share in the business thus created by the coming to this resort of the hundreds every year. The volume of business can be greatly augmented by a pooling of interests and both towns catering more to the comfort and convenience of those coming in from time to time. Let every business man of the two towns get to work, for our interest is their interest.

A few of the cottagers and hotel guests are still with us.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr are back in their cottage after being away for a few weeks.

Mr. Hee Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the B. & O. Railroad, was here for upwards of two weeks with his sister, Mrs. Jack Grimes, and other relatives, returning to Cumberland Monday morning.

Miss June Dunnington, we are glad to state, is now very much improved after an illness of more than two weeks of influenza.

The Creelmore Cottage, opposite Sunset Cottage, is being re-roofed.

Mr. Winters has his new cottage fronting on E street near the State road, well under way.

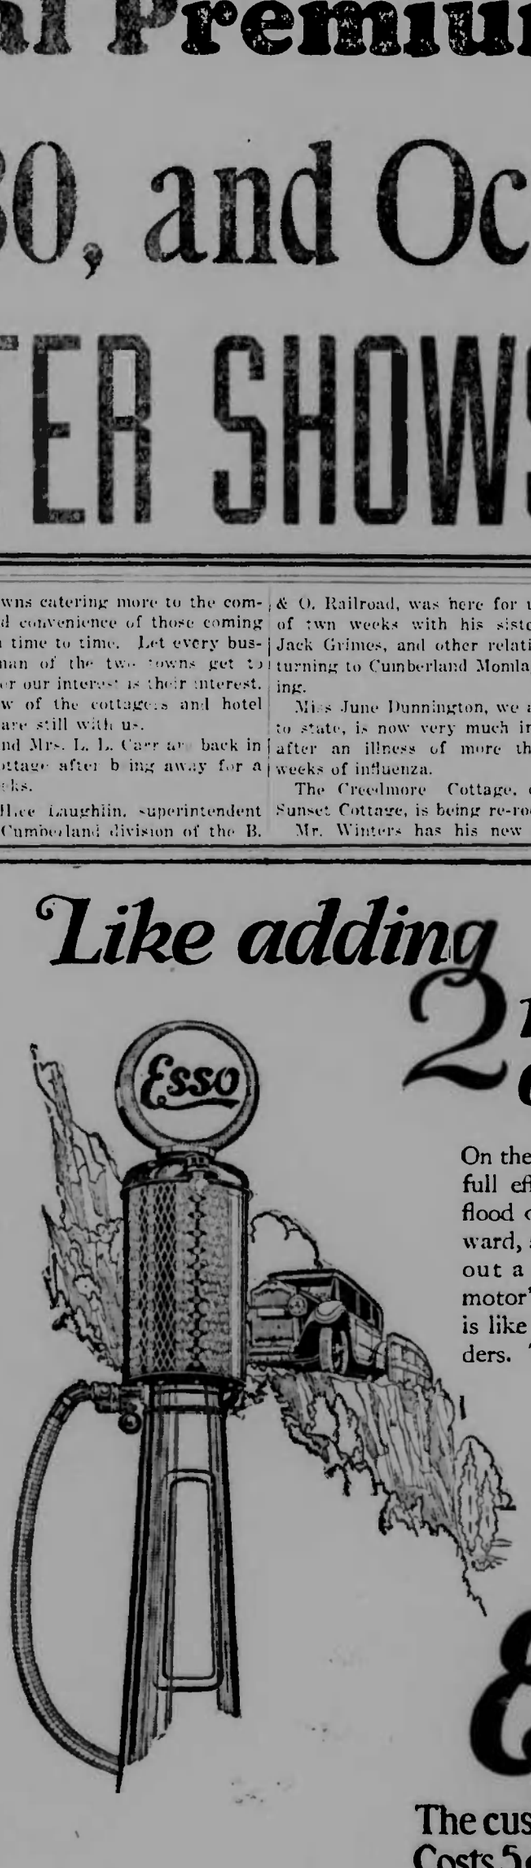
Mr. F. P. Arnold boasts of the most fruitful plum tree in this community, and J. A. Enlow has a tree of the same fruit bearing its second crop this year. Some of the fruit measures five inches in circumference.

Who remembers the old-fashioned girl whose blushes would come and go as the occasion warranted it?

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.



The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

Thomas Wiley, formerly of this village, and Miss Grace Brenneman, of North Glade, were quietly married a few days ago and left at once for Marathon, N. Y., where Mr. Wiley is employed. They are very excellent young people, well known in this section and their many friends wish them a long and happy adventure in the world of matrimony and abundant success in business.

It is reported that the barn on the Truman Wilt farm, which is located near Jennings, was burned to the ground one night last week. The report also says that the fire started following the explosion of a distilling apparatus which had been operated in the building.

Merchant C. E. Ellitharp's condition is still improving, and it is the hope of his many friends that he will soon be sufficiently recovered to be about among his neighbors again.

J. F. Glotfelty returned from Reisterstown, Md., a few days ago, after a brief visit with his daughter, Mrs. B. H. Wiley, at that place.

Elmer Shawley and family and F. M. Bittinger and family, of this place, motored to Pinto, Md., last Sunday, for a view of the large peach orchards of that vicinity.

Hervey Bittner and wife, of Mt. [illegible] Sunday.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Preliminary to setting under way a movement backed by the residents, property owners and the Mountain Lake Park Association and the business men of Oakland, a meeting was held in Oakland one day recently and tentative plans made to bring more people here next summer. The interest of both towns has been so closely allied that it is next to impossible to separate them in a movement for the common good. While the meeting was not largely attended the spirit attending it was splendid and potent results are sure to follow.

Long before the Park was opened, Oakland took care of many summer people, but now the Park, with its attractions has gained many others from different points of the compass. As a result Oakland through its stores and banks share in the business thus created by the coming to this resort of the hundreds every year. The volume of business can be greatly augmented by a pooling of interests and both towns catering more to the comfort and convenience of those coming in from time to time. Let every business man of the two towns get to work, for our interest is their interest.

A few of the cottagers and hotel guests are still with us.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr are back in their cottage after being away for a few weeks.

Mr. Ilice Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the B. & O. Railroad, was here for upwards of two weeks with his sister, Mrs. Jack Grimes, and other relatives, returning to Cumberland Monday morning.

Miss June Dunnington, we are glad to state, is now very much improved after an illness of more than two weeks of influenza.

The Creedmore Cottage, opposite Sunset Cottage, is being re-roofed.

Mr. Winters has his new cottage fronting on E street near the State road, well under way.

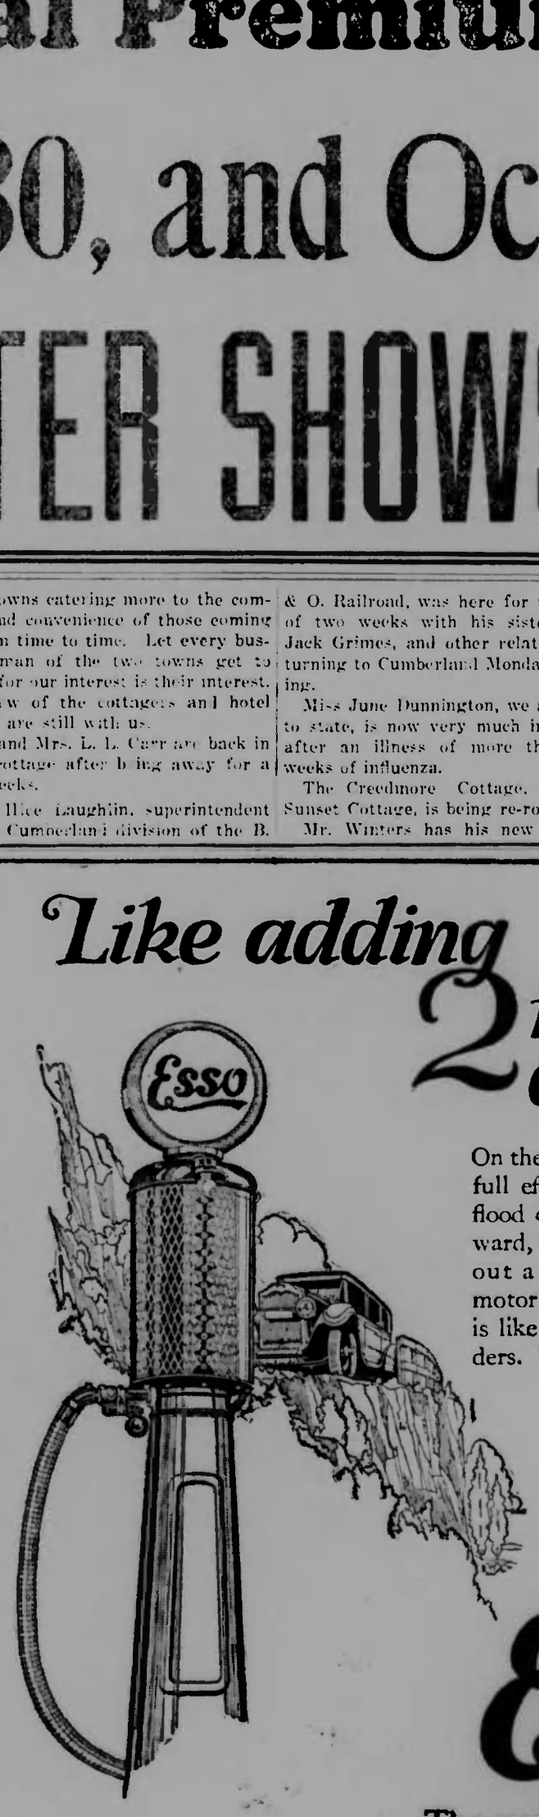
Mr. F. P. Arnold boasts of the most fruitful plum tree in this community, and J. A. Enlow has a tree of the same fruit bearing its second crop this year. Some of the fruit measures five inches in circumference.

Who remembers the old-fashioned girl whose blushes would come and go as the occasion warranted it?

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.



The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

GREATER GARRETT COUNTY FAIR WILL OPEN TUESDAY

Tenth Annual Show of Garrett County Products Promises to be the Finest and Best Yet

The gala event of the year for Garrett county will be ushered in on Tuesday morning when the Tenth Annual Fair of the Garrett County Fair Association opens at the fair grounds adjoining Oakland, with what is expected to be the best exhibits in the line of farm products and fruits, live stock and domestic articles ever before shown under the auspices of the local Fair.

Attractions which have been secured by the officials of the association are said to be many and of a high character. They include five tent shows and four rides, namely, a ferris wheel, merry-go-round, whip and airplane swings. The shows are the product of Smith's Greater Shows, a corporation with attractions which came to the attention of the officials of the Fair wtih high recommendations from officials of other fairs. Madam Marbee and Pals will furnish a high-class free act daily on the fair grounds. Their show is one of trained ponies and dogs and promises to be of interest to the old as well as to the young. One of the features of the free act is a high dive executed by one of the dogs. Madam Marbee and her company are already here, having arrived on Tuesday.

Concerning the fair grounds and the property. They are in splendid contion. A new building is now under construction and will be completed in ample time for this year's exhibit. The structure will house the community booths and industrial exhibits. The construction of the building is under the direction of Mr. Stanton D. Whipkey, who is supervising the work gratis. Several donations in the way of lumber, nails, fixtures, etc., have been made by citizens who are interested in the furtheranee of the Fair.

Cinder walks and roadways have also been built through the grounds and drain tile has been laid in the low places which will aid materially in keeping the grounds free from mud in case of rain.

Four big days will constitute the Fair this year, which begins early on Tuesday morning and closes late Friday night.

The first day will be devoted to Fraternalism, and it is the desire of those in charge that all attending the fair this year on this day will get the fraternal spirit and enjoy the day fraternizing together. A street parade of fraternal organizations and floats will occur at 10:30 o'clock A. M.

School day will be observed on Wednesday, the second day of the fair. A holiday has been proclaimed by County Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathbun, and all the school children of the county are expected to reach Oakland early in the morning in time for the street parade which will be held at 10:30 o'clock. In view of the fact that the County Athletic Meet, which was postponed last spring on account of weather conditions then prevailing, will be held on this day and at the Fair grounds, a record breaking crowd is expected to be present. A quarter-mile track is being made on the fair grounds for the running events of the meet. Ample room is reserved for high and broad jumping, dodge ball, volley ball and the other events wheih will be run off during the day. The officials of the Athletic Association of Maryland will be present and the proper awards will be made to the winners of the various events.

County Agent Jester, assisted by the agricultural teachers in the several high schools of the county, will have charge of the third day of the fair, which has been designated as "Garrett County Day." A program of interest has been arranged by these gentlemen in charge and as stated in the catalog it is the desire of the committee to show "What Garrett county farms have and what they can produce."

The last day, or "National Day" will he a big one. The local Post American Legion, assisted hy the Senior class of the Oakland High school have charge of activities on this day, and a very unique parade will be held on the streets of the town at 10:00 o'clock that morning. The history of America will be depicted by floats of an elaborate nature, horseback r[illegible] and marchers.

The parade will he headed hy the "Spirit of '76," and before the parade has passed any particular point of march, the spectators will have seen Betsy Ross, George Washington, The Goddess of Liberty, the covered wagon and the gold rush, the Vanishing American, veterans of the recent wars red eross nurses and "over the top." The Boy Scouts will add greatly to the procession.

Lunches will be served during each day of the Fair on the grounds. The Pastor's Aid society of the Oakland Lutheran church will also serve lunches in the exhibition building on the grounds.

Boy Scout Notes of Interest.

Last week brought a new experience to the Scout troop of Oakland. For the first time we lost several Scouts at one time—all being troop officers. These boys have gone away to school and, of course, will be absent from troop meetings and other troop activities indefinitely. We are going to miss these buddies, but we feel sure that they will be with us at heart and that they will carry their scout spirit with them wherever they go. The absence of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Ernest Townshend, Sr. Patrol Leader Julius Renninger, Patrol Leader Carl McIntire and Assistant P. L. Edwin Hamill made it necessary for us to select new officers to fill the vacancies.

Last Friday night was the occasion of the election which was accompanied by lots of speeches, cheering,etc. Here are the new officers:

Mitchell Franklin..Asst. Scoutmaster
McClelland Dixon....Jr. Asst. S. M.
Kenneth Stahl.....Sr. Asst. S. M.
Robert Stanton....Sr. Patrol Leader
Richard Stemple.Eagle Patrol Leader
Bernard Gonder.Beaver Patrol Leader
Robert Stemple..Crow Patrol Leader
Thomas Gonder...Fox Patrol Leader

After the election the new officers were addressed by Mr. W. W. Dawson, who gave them some excellent advice. A short talk by the Scoutmaster followed and then the eats. After the eats the new officers were given a little welcome by the troop:just a thump or two on the back, after which the troop was dismissed for the evening.

After a regular metting a short conference of the officers was held at which the Scoutmaster assigned the different officers their work for the coming year. The Scoutmaster and all the men well acquainted with the affairs of the troop are very much pleased with the new line-up and are confident that the coming year will be one of great success in Scouting.

Lutheran Conference at Bittinger.

The regular annual conference of the West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran church will be held in the Lutheran church at Bittinger, Garrett county, on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 28th and 29th. The first session of the conference will be held Tuesday evening, the 28th, at 7:30 p. m. There will be a forenoon and an afternoon session on Wednesday. A lamb roast and outdoor session will be held Wednesday evening. The members of the Bittinger congregation are requested to bring baskets for an outdoor dinner on Wednesday and everybody is invited to attend all the sessions of the conference.

Injured on National Highway.

Lewis Hachman, a farmer residing south of the National Highway, near Jeol A. Beachy's residence, was painfully injured last Sunday afternoon when his car wrecked just as he was turning into a by-road leading to his home from the Highway. A passing motorist was hailed, who proved to be a physician from California and who gave first aid. Mr. Hachman was later treated by a Grantsville physician and sent to his home.

Parent-Teacher Association Meeting.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Oakland Grammar School will hold its first meeting of the present school year at the school building on Thursday, September 23rd, at 7:30 o'clock. A short program has been arranged which will be rendered at the meeting as follows:

Song .....Seventh Grade
Report of committees.
Address .....Mr. W. Clayton Jester
Explanation of several items of interest in regard to the school.
Song.

May we not have a large attendance and an increase in membership? Prove your interest in your children by a closer contact with teachers and an understanding of our aims and methods... COMMITTEE.

Card of Thanks.

We desire in this manner to express our sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so generously aided us during the period of our recent great hereavement in the death of our wife and mother.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED IN SUNDAY EVENING ACCIDENT

One Victim in Cumberland Hospital Where She Is Recovering While Others Are at Home

As the result of a collision at a point on the Oakland-Mountain Lake Park road just at the edge of town last Sunday evening about eight o'clock, four persons were more or less painfully injured, two automobiles were wrecked, one of the victims of the accident is in the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland and the drivers of one the cars is being held in the County Jail.

The injured persons are Misses Nellie Fulk, who is in the Cumberland Hospital, Martha and Margaret Fulk, all three being daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulk, of Silver Knob, and Mrs. George Bissell, of Bayard, West Va.

Nellie Fulk, immediately after the accident, was taken to Cumberland by Dr. Broadwater, who was of the opinion that her injuries were of such nature that a major operation would have to be performed in order to save her life, her injuries being internal. At the hospital the surgeons upon making a thorough examination were of the same opinion but decided that immediate measures were not necessary with the result that this morning reports are to the effect that the young woman has improved to such an extent that she will not have to submit to the surgeon's knife. The other daughters of Mr. Fulk were badly bruised, and are recovering at their homo six miles south of town.

Mrs. Bissell, of Bayard, accompanied by her five children, were in a car driven by Berkeley Mosser, of Bayard, and were enroute home when the accident occeurred. Mrs. Bissell was badly cut and bruised about her shoulder, arm and back and with her children following the accident and first aid rendered by a local physician, were taken to their home my Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Dixon.

The three girls were in a Ford coupe driven by Gladstone Morris, of Oakland. The driver escaped injury, but the car was a complete wreck.

Mosser's car was also badly damaged.

Following the accident and pending the result of the injury received by Miss Nellie Fulk, Mosser was placed under arrest and is being held in the local jail in default of $1500 bond.

Teets Reunion.

The Teets family had a reunion at Blooming Rose last Sunday at which a delicious dinner was served and a most enjoyable day was spent by all present, namely: Mrs. Jeremiah Teets and son Frank, of Hazelton, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Teets and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Frazee and family, Mrs. Albert Frazee and two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Riley, Misses Agnes Vansickle, Silvia Thomas and Pauline Friend, Mrs. Isaac Meyers, of Friendsville; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Fike and family, of Markleysburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William Herring and family and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Herring and family, of Glade Farms, W. Va.

Business Men's Meeting At City Hall Tonight

The business men of Oakland and vicinity are urged to be present at a meeting to be held in the City Hall this evening at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Business Men's Boosters Club. It is the desire of a committee appointed recently by Mayor Fraley, to have all of the business men of this vicinity present in order to perfect the organization which has for its purpose the advertisement of the valuable natural resources of Garrett County.

Maryland Tuberculosis Association Clinic.

A clinic for diseases of the chest will be conducted in Dr. Strachan's office, Kitzmiller, Wednesday, September 29th, at 10:30 a. m. Individuals complaining of any of the following: Cough, expectoration of blood, tired feeling, loss of weight and appetite, indigestion, hoarseness, etc., should see their family physician and obtain permission to attend clinic at the place above announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Wilson celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary with a big chicken dinner at their home near Frostburg, Md., Sunday, September 19th. A very enjoyable day was spent by the relatives and friends of the couple, more than a hundred of whom were present upon the occasion.

ANNUAL SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING AT GRANTSVILLE

Sessions Held Saturday Evening And All Day on Sunday—Resolutions Adopted—Officers

The sessions of the annual convention of the Garrett County Sunday School Association, held at Grantsville on last Saturday and Sunday, were successful both from the standpoint of interesting addresses and conferences and the number who were in attendance. Some sections of the county were not well represented, but the attendance generally was very good and much interest was manifested in the work of the Sunday school.

The various sessions were presided over by County President E. R. Jones and addresses on different phases of Sunday school work were delivered by Dr. Charles Peters, of Phiadelphia; Col. J. D. Cudlipp, acting State Secretary and Young People's Superintendent, of Baltimore; Rev. H. E. Thompson, pastor of Center street M. E. church, Cumberland; Rev. G. A. Teske, president of the Allegany County Association and Field Secretary for this county; Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, Oakland; Mrs. E. J. Travers, Cumberland; Mr. H. M. Lohr, Grantsville; Mr. G. W. Diefenbach, Grantsville; Revs. E. E. Campbell, Bittinger, and L. G. Robinson, of Grantsville, also took active parts in the convention.

The following officers were elected and installed on Sunday afternoon: President, E. R. Jones; vice-president, J. G. Kolb; secretary, Miss Coral McRobie; recording secretary, Mrs. E. E. Sollars; treasurer, J. W. Ream; executive committee, Dr. E. E. Sollars, Rev. E. E. Campbell and C. J. Otto; Division Superintendents: Elementary, Miss Alverta Miller; Young People's, Miss Esperance Ashby; Adult, M. H. Lohr; Home Department, Mrs. M. H. Lohr; Teacher Training, Harold Miller, Rev. Arthur Serogum, Rev. E .E. Campbell, E. C. Cuppett; Cradle Roll, Mrs. B. H. Sincell; Sabbath Observance, E. C. Cuppett; Finance committee, H. V. Leighton, H. M. Speicher, C. A. Bender; District Presidents: No. 1, Delbert Davis; No. 2, Georgre W. Diefenbach; No. 3, F. G. Fox; No. 4, Leslie Rodeheaver; No. 5, George Pritts; No. 6, E. C. Cuppett; No. 7, Rev. Arthur Serogum.

The following resolutions were submitted by a committee composed of C. S. Zeller, O. C. Buckle, Miss Alverta Miller, Miss Elizabeth Leary and George M. Brown, and were adopted by the convention and ordered printed:

The members of the Garrett County Sunday School Association gratefully acknowledge the kindly providence of Almighty God during the past year. The health, happiness and manifest prosperity in spiritual affairs of pastors and people are a source of true joy. We thank the great Head of the Church for the many souls that have been won into His kingdom. May devoted pastors and faithful people be much encouraged and blessed thereby.

Our sincere sympathy and interest goes out to those brethren who for any reason have been unable to attend this convention. May God deal most graciously with them.

RESOLVED, That we extend our sincere thanks to the officers of the State and County Associations for the faithful and efficient administration of the affairs of the Association, as also to the Council of the Lutheran Church for the privileges extended. Also to express our appreciation for the fine display of Christian hospitality in throwing open their homes and providing entertainment and fellowship for their visiting brethren.

RESOLVED, That this convention approves and recommends the establishment of at least two community training schools along the lines suggested by Rev. G. A. Teske, Field Secretary.

RESOLVED, That we approve the idea of institute conventions.

RESOLVED, That we recommend the adoption of graded schools with graded instruction.

RESOLVED, That we approve of the work done at Camp Royal and we recommend and urge that each school in the county send at least two students to this training camp to receive training in leadership.

RESOLVED, That each school in the county be urged to contribute at least ten cents per member for the support of the County Association.

RESOLVED, That the importance of furnishing prompt and complete annual reports he brought to the attention of the proper officials of each school in order that the County Secretary may he ahle to give proper assistance and support to the State officials.

RESOLVED, That this Association heartily endorses the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States as well as the Volstead Act, and pledges its support and encouragement in the enforcement of the same and urges all Christian men and women to support this measure with their prayers and acts.

The recently elected Republican State Central Committee for Garrett county, composed of Messrs. L. M. Fraley, E. R. Jones, H. C. Myers and B. H. Sincell, organized Tuesday evening with the election of Mr. Fraley as chairman and Mr. Jones as secretary-treasurer.

The committee will direct an aggressive campaign is every section of the county at the proper time.

The name of Charles M. Sincell, of Oakland, was directed to be placed on the ballot as the Republican candidate for County Surveyor at the general election, this position being the only vacancy on the ballot.

DIED.

MRS. JOSEPH P. HELBIG.

She passed her useful life in building herself a smooth road to heaven. On Thursday, September 16th, she bid us a long, long farewell, and taking up the most precious jewels from among her life's savings, her purest gems, her offerings of a faithful wife, an unselfish, devoted mother, her generous sacrificing for her Savior's sake in the cause of her church and in the unending cause of charity to offer at the foot of the throne of her Master, to hear His holy voice proclaim in the words of that ever beautiful old-new song, "Well done, thou good and faithful," and the chorus of angels joyously but solefuly in response their rapturous, sublime, grand "Amen."

The bereaved husband, the sorrowful, tearful children, the many near and distant relatives, the army of friends arriving on every train to gather around her casket, and in dismay through silent tears mutely gaze upon her dear face and breath their secret prayer, "May thy place be this day in sweet peace and may thy abode be in holy Zion. We commend thee, dear, to the tender care of thy Maker who called thee home."

They bear thee hence, and I can see
The passing of thy funeral train;
I may not clasp thy hand again
This side the great eternity.

And when thou gav'st thy parting kiss
I knew it was the last, and yet
Thy words seemed unto music set,
So fraught wit hfaith and heavenly bliss.

And then I wept not; that farewell
Was bright with an undying trust;
Thy brow now turning baek to dust
Grew brighter when death's shadows fell.

Another soul has gone to heaven
To lay her eross at Jesus' feet;
Her earthly work He deemed complete—
Another saint to Him is given.

Jerusalem, thy reaper yields
Thee golden grain and blooming flowers
Transplanted from this vale of ours
To strew thy glimmering radiant fields.

Farewell; farewell! thou sweet'st of flowers;
Wave softly o'er her, murmuring breeze,
Softly, softly, whispering trees—
The palm is hers; the cypress ours.
K. R. R.

Mrs. Helbig was the daughter of Owen and Ellen Hart. She was born in Oakland, May 28, 1863. At maturity she became the wife of Joseph P. Helbig, who with a large family of sons and daughters, survive her, the children being Messrs. Joseph, Robert, Carlton, Leon, John, Charles and Douglas; the daughters are Mrs. Kathleen Nightengale, Mrs. Regina Hoyt and Miss Ella Helbig. Another daughter, Mrs. Marie Peddicord, died several years ago. The funeral of the deceased lady occurred Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church where a high requiem mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Eckenrode. Interment was made in the family lot in the church cemetery.

At the service Miss Ruth Conley sang very beautifully "Face to Face," Mrs. James P. Treacy being the accompanist.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Peter Pendergast, Owen T. Treacy, J. M. Stanton, P. J. Garrett, Richard Maroney and James Garrett.

GEORGE F. PFEIFFER.

The remains of George F. Pfeiffer, aged 65 years, a native of Oakland, were brought here last Friday evening and on Saturday interred in the cemetery following services conducted by Rev. Archibald Moore, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Little. The deceased met his death Thursday afternoon of last week when he fell beneath the wheels of a shifting engine on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Frederick street in Cumberland. He was a son of the late John Pfeiffer and was born in Cumberland. He was a carpenter and is survived by his wife and a daughter, Miss Violet Pfeiffer.

ELWOOD PRICE LAYMAN.

Elwood Price Layman, aged 69, a native of Grantsville, died at his home in Newall, Iowa. He was a son of the late George Layman and a brother of Mrs. Ralph Engle, of Grantsville. The funeral, held in Newall, was so largely attended that plans to hold the services in the church had to be changed and instead the funeral rites were conducted in the city park by Rev. J. F. Moore, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Margaret Francis, the eight months old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fisher, of Selbysport, died on the 17th inst. Her remains were taken to the Cove and after funeral services conducted by the Rev. G. W. W. Amick pastor of the Lutheran church, were interred in th echurchyard. The child is survived by its parents, seven sisters and two brothers.

EDITH SHOCKEY.

The remains of Miss Edith Shockey, 21 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Shockey, of near Mountain Lake Park, were received there on Friday, following her death which occurred in a Cumberland Hospital, death being due to an attack of appendicitis and complications. The deceased girl was well known in Oakland, having graduated from the local high school with the class of last year.

CAR WRECKED BY PLANE AUTOISTS ESCAPE INJURY

Pilot, Lost in Fog, Strikes Automobile, Uproot Tree and Tear Down Fence Near Grantsvile

Two government mail planes, which were wrecked in an apple orchard a few miles east of Grantsville and near the National Highway on Saturday, were dismantled and shipped to a repair shop near Warshington, D. C., on Sunday.

The accident was one of the most extraordinary in the history of air navigation, as in the double accident not only were the planes wrecked, but two automobiles were also damaged and no one was injured.

The two planes were sighted before dark and had circled over Grantsville and the Stone House Farm, three miles east of the town, several times. A heavy fog was rising, when it occurred to a farmer living midway between the two points above mentioned that the planes were seeking a place to land when he took from his dwelling a number of sheets and laid out upon the ground, indicating to the flyers that they could effect a landing at that point. The first plane eame down and landed safely. The second plane followed a few minutes later, but in the meantime the fog had become denser and two automobiles, one owned by Floyd Yoder and the other by Sherman Miller, had been driven into the improvised landing field. The second plane in making the ground first struck a barbed wire fence and tore down several panels, the wires becoming wriapped around the propeller and its shaft, then striking an apple tree and uprooted it and the pilot losing control the machine plunged into the two parked cars, the occupants of which had just alighted when they were struck by the careening plane.

BOOTLEGGING PAIR IN JAIL

Charges Against One Is Simply Selling, While Against Other Is a Multiplicity of Charges

David Collins, following a series of brawls with his wife and other members of his family which kept the neighborhood in which he resides in an uproar for several days and nights, was arrested Tuesday and placed in jail on the charge of beating his wife and daughter, manufacturing and selling moonshine, operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants and operating a car without license to do so. He will have a hearing today.

Dick Coddington, who is alleged to be conneeted with Collins in the trade, was placed under arrest Monday evening and sent to jail on the charge of selling moonshine. He will also have a hearing today.

The arrests were made by Deputy Sheriff Casteel and Constable Andrew Shartzer.

Review: EARLY LEADERS OF ISRAEL.

Book of Exodus.

Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith.—Hebrews 12:1, 2.

BUILDING THE CHURCH.

Against the background of centuries Exodus opens with Israel enslaved in Egypt. Dates are uncertain but the movement we have covered that has brought the freed people to Sinai and has kept them in its neighborhood is to be measured within a single year. We have come to the spring of 1498 If we follow the chronology suggested by Beecher, but the actual year is a matter of indifference. Soul time is the concern of the lessons. And the progress registered during these months of intensive teaching are simply tremendous. It was an adult movement working out a project plan that culminated in the building of the tabernacle contrasting vividly with the accomplishments of the ordinary adult class or department of the church school. They had a great teacher. And what he did with no equipment, with sodden-minded folk who were continually protesting about the methods used, challenges us to produce results commensurate with what we have to work with today. We are awfully "cheesty" about ourselves —perhaps a study of what these slaves did may produce a decided deflation. If it doesn't then we are hopeless.

Force impelled by fear set the bonds of slavery upon the freedom-loving posterity of Jacob and they speedily were driven to bodily exhaustion. In such conditions the child Moses was born, cherished by Jocebad and through her shrewd management coupled with Miriam's resourcefulness his life was safe, his heritage of faith preserved and his future made secure. God was planning all the days for their release, but needed a man thru whom to work His will. In the desert he saw a light and heard a voice. Our usual situation is that of seeing while we are deaf to the voices that speak from the thing we see. Men had always known the lightning's flash but heard nothing but thunder until Franklin changed its rumbling notes into a voice. Men had always seen birds fly, but the Wright brothers heard a voice and took to the air. Men had climbed Pilate's stair for long years, but Luther heard a voice and a new day dawned for the world. Moses caught God's voice and set out upon his adventurous journey to succor the slaves and changed all the history of all the years.

He seized the natural forces that troubled Egypt and ruined her economic life and interpreted them to both Israel and Egypt as the voice of God demanding a new social order in which class should not prey upon class and did it so well that the sons of Jacob took up their march and Pharoah permitted it, though he tried to revoke his decree. The passover marked the bloody earnestness of Israel in obeying God's order and the passage of the sea wrought an enthusiasm for their faith that was never lost thru all the centuries that have scattered the Jew about the world without a country but with faith undaunted still.

Across the waterless wastes they marched to find sustenance among the impossible places and to be fed of God through their wearying journey. The battle for the springs where they crept from cover to cover and hurled rocks at their foes added to their growing sense of power that is so necessary a foundation for any permanent character-building among any people. Flushed with that feeling of success they readily accepted the perfecting of an organization, employing their new-found ability in practical affairs so that it might grow. As a teaching method it has no superior. That it was suggested by shrewd old Jethro proclaims that the uncultured mind may often strike upon a device that the trained thinker has overlooked and the greatness of the latter is the acceptance of unpedigreed plans. The leader who will take only ideas bearing his particular label (union, capitalist, racial, denominational, K. C. or K. K. K., etc.) is doomed to spend the end of his days in the idealistic poor house.

Under the shadow of Sinai they encamped for months. Reared along the low reaches of the Nile the rugged grandeur of the mountains took them out of their old grooves of thinking and the echoing thunders that were megaphoned through the defiles from the storm-swept, lightning-infested summit induced an awe that was overpowering. Then up into the cloud-covered region Moses crept to bring out with him the Ten Words that have been the foundation of all stable civilization since. Their sense of God grew keen, their obligation and duty to Him was clarified and Jehovah became the driving force in the developing character that expressed itself in the attitudes they assumed toward others. Hands were to respect the property of others whether it be life, chastity or wealth; tongues were to respect the reputation of others, and hearts were to respect the rights of others. It was a marvelous code that has found no successor save in the words of our Lord.

Having brought the people so far upon their toilsome character journey, Moses set them to perfecting a ritual and a symbolism that would aid the growing life. Life first always; then its shrining in institution and form. They had their tent of meeting, their Ark of the Covenant, their holy ground. Then the tabernacle was to become the heart of the life of the marching Israel, and gifts of money were necessary, gifts of work were solicited and gifts of the Spirit of God in its activities were all part of their lesson leading to perfection of life. Then came the school of law-making and law-observance cementing the community into the nucleus of the nation yet to be set in place.

The review will vary with the class having it. The adult group can very well study its own activities and organization and program in the light of what this largest bible class in the world did. It may be made to follow the developing Christian life from its release from bondage to its liberty in the law of God's life. Younger classes will gather up incidents of the journey and may well spend time upon the geography of the situation and drill upon the events and persons of the quarter. Pictures like Perry's or Wildes', to be had for a penny or two will best serve the younger ones in forming the basis for a recall of the events and stories. Whatever the group, let there be sought to bring into it the vivid sense of God's care and interested presence that is manifest in this old record of Israel's childhood.

GRANTSVILLE

The Miller family reunion (descendants of the late Jeol B. Miller), which was postponed several weeks ago on account of wet weather, is to be held Saturday, September 25th, beginning at ten o'clock in the Brenneman Grove located a mile and one-half north of Grantsville. Those coming should bring baskets prepared for the occasion, as lunch will be served on large tables. At two o'clock an open program will be given consisting of addresses and music. The committee in charge is composed of Rev. Milton B. Miller, chairman; Olin R. Miller, secretary, and Simon S. Miller, treasurer.

Oscar McKenzie, owner of Buckeye Lodge and the camp grounds around it located 2 miles west of the town on the National Highway, recently sold the property to Reginald F. Livengood, of Meyersdale, Pa. Mr. Livengood took possession on the 13th inst. Mr. McKenzie, formerly of Frostburg, has been quite successful since he opened for business at the location sold and which he recently remodeled and greatly improved the camp ground. Mr. McKenzie, since the sale of his property, has purchased the home, garage and two lots of Mr. U. M. Stanton at "Little Crossings" and will move there shortly.

Rev. L. G. Robinson, who has been the pastor of the Grantsville Methodist charge the past five years, will hold his last preaching service Sunday morning, September 19th, at 10:00 o'clock. He will administer the Holy Communion after the regular service. Rev. Robinson will not return another year as he expects to be moved to another field after the annual conference which will be in session on the 28th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Walker, Lester and John Warnick and Miss Dorothy Warnick, of Cumberland, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. T. O. Broadwater recently.

Miss Elizabeth Steichen, of New York City, who has been visiting Miss Ruth Stanton for several weeks, returned to her home on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Bamford, of Patterson, N. J., and daughter, Mrs. George P. Barbarow, son and daughter, of Norristown, N. J., motored here Tuesday and will be guests this week of Miss Christina Winterberg.

Miss Florence Bugler and mother, of Brownsville, Pa., are guests at the Casselman Hotel this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ringler, of Wadsworth, Ohio; Mrs. Samuel Miller and Norman Ringler, of Fredonia, Pa., attended the funeral of the late Frederick Hachman at the Cove last week and while in the east visited at the homes of H. P. Miller and William Wright in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smouse, of Cumberland, and son Murray C., of New York City, were recent guests of Mrs. Marian Broadwater.

Miss Dorothy Younkin and Mr. Allen Jones, of Frostburg, visited Miss Younkin's brother Frank at Perry Point, Md., Government Hospital a few days ago.

Miss Shepard, of Scranton, Pa., who has visited Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey for several weeks, has returned to her home.

Miss Elizabeth Ann Crowe, of New Germany, died at her home Friday, September 17th. She was past 71 years old and is survived by one sister, Mrs. Margaret Wiley, and four brothers, D. W. Crowe, Robert, Nelson and H. S. Crowe, all of near New Germany. Funeral was held Sunday at 2:30 p. m., from the Methodist church with interment in the cemetery adjoining. Rev. L. G. Robinson officiated.

Clayton Diehl has returned to Gettysburg College at Gettysburg, Pa., where he is enrolled as a student.

Merle Hershberger and Harvey Stanton returned Sunday to the University of Maryland, at College Park where they will resume their course of study.

Miss Martha Engle returned to the Western Maryland College at Westminster, Md. ,to resume her studies.

Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Ryland and daughter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Dr. and Mrs. Harry Ryland and children and Mrs. Susan Durst, of Meyersdale, Pa., were Sunday guests of Mrs. Lillie Younkin.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Otto and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Otto, all of Springs, Pa., and Miss Barbara Wisserman, of Negro Mountain, have returned from a trip to Gettysburg, Philadelphia, New York City, Niagara Falls and points in Canada.

Misses Elizabeth Leary, Coral McRobie and Irene Smouse and Mr. E. R. Jones, of Oakland, and Rev. G. A. Teske, of Cumberland, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bender.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson and son, of Cumberland, are guests at the Dixie Tavern, Little Crossings.

Dr. T. O. Broadwater attended the Maryland State Dental Association meeting held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel in Cumberland Tuesday.

The work and aims of the Agricultural department of the Grantsville High School was demonstrated at the Community Fair held here on Thursday and Friday of last week. On the first day of the fair the judging teams from Oakland. Accident and Friendsville high schools came over to judge dairy cows. A purse was made up by the First State and First National banks of Grantsville and a prize will be given the winning team. Mr. W. C. Jester, County Agent, is the judge of the contest.

The agricultural classes of the local school had exhibits at the fair. The booth of garden and crop products grown by the boys, was attractively displayed. Their project records were shown, giving accurate accounts of work, time and money spent on their projects. Other work done by the boys in the school room was shown, such as grafting fruit trees, rope tying exhibits, different kinds of fertilizers, grasses, cereal crops, corn and corn products. Some of the shop work shown consisted of seed potato cutter, seed testing box, self-feed hopper for chickens, flower boxes, miter box, egg tester, etc.

There were also several demonstrations given on how to produce clean milk. A clean boy, milking a clean cow into a clean closed top bucket as against a dirty boy milking a dirty cow into an open top bucket. The spectators upon viewing the milk and operations agreed that they would rather use the first mentioned milk than the latter. The value of low bacteria count in milk was also explained and the requirements of the Department of Health of Baltimore of the producers of city milk was told by the agricultural instructor. Another demonstration given was a milk test for butterfat and the uses of the Babcock tester explained. The next was a soil testing demonstration for lime requirements. A sample of soil was taken from the fair grounds that had been unknown to have been treated with lime. The Turog test showed the requirement to be 6000 pounds per acre.

Many questions were asked and much interest shown by the farmers in the work of this department of the high school.

BIRD'S ROOFS

ART-CRAFT Roofing

Bird's Art-Craft Roof right over the old roofing will improve the appearance and increase the value of your home.

By re-roofing right over the old roof you not only avoid the cost, dirt and litter of tearing off the shingles; but you have double insulation, smaller fuel bills and a home that is warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

Art-Craft is a durable, lasting roof — a protection against weather conditions and the menace of fire from burning embers, sparks and red-hot cinders.

There are two colors to choose from — Red or Green in natural crushed slate finish with the patterns clearly outlined in black.

Art-Craft is made by Bird & Son, Inc. (Est. 1795), manufacturers of Bird's Twin Shingles, Bird's Shingle Design Roofing, Paroid Roofing, Neponset Black Building Paper and Neponset Board. There's a Bird product for every sort of building!

We are headquarters for Bird's roofings, building papers and wall board.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1926.

This Correspondent Is of the Opinion that the Primary Election Law Has Not Eliminated the Political Schemers and Bosses Within the Party Ranks And Deprecates the Fact That Its Workings are Responsible In Large Measure, for the Unrest and Dissatisfaction Evident in Certain Sections of the County.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Out of the strife and turmoil of the primary campaign over the summit of the misty mountain of September 14th into the peaceful afterglow, the G. O. P. winds its weary way. In the forefront of the advancing host there is seen a group of splendid representative men, successful candidates, who are now the deserving nominees of the party, if the primary election is to be accepted as the medium of the expression of the voters' preference. Behind this small group is seen a larger group of equally representative citizens, staggering and wavering, with uncertain step, as they manfully recover from the shock of disappointment and defeat, and in the rear the band plays "Hail Columbia."

The passing of this scene upon the screen calls to the mind of the sober minded and thoughtful citizen several important questions: Is the show worth the price? Does the primary election law, as now existing, become the medium by which the preference of the voters is expressed? Is party harmony and loyalty encouraged by its operations? and finally, do not political manipulators and bosses find opportunity for practicing their mechinations to further ulterior motives?

The individual citizen must find the answers to the questions, in his own mind, after careful reflection.

There is an expense bill of possibly five thousand or six thousand dollars to be paid when the primary election is over, which the taxpayers must pay and he asks himself is it worth so much to me or are we justified in this extravagance when the same ends could be obtained for less money?

Again he asks himself, in the light of past experience, do the voters of the county and State find it possible to express their preference at the polls and more completely than they did under the old system of conventions? If not, why not?

The atmosphere within the ranks of the partry seems charged with a feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction after the campaign and election are over, which indicates the presence of discord and disloyalty, which is one of the most destructive elements in any organization.

The handiwork of political schemers and bosses may be seen in many results of primary elections in the selection, grouping and nominating of many candidates, which is perhaps responsible for the disorganizing influences at work in the party today.

If the primary election does not afford an equal chance to candidates from every section of the county and does not restrain the hand of party bosses, it does not serve the end for which it was intended and is a burden rather than a benefit. CITIZEN.

Mr. Shartzer Has Not Been Promised the Appointment of Deputy Sheriff in Case Mr. Casteel is Elected, Nor Would He Accept the Position Were It Tendered Him, He States in the Following Brief Note to The Republican.

To the Editor of The Republican.

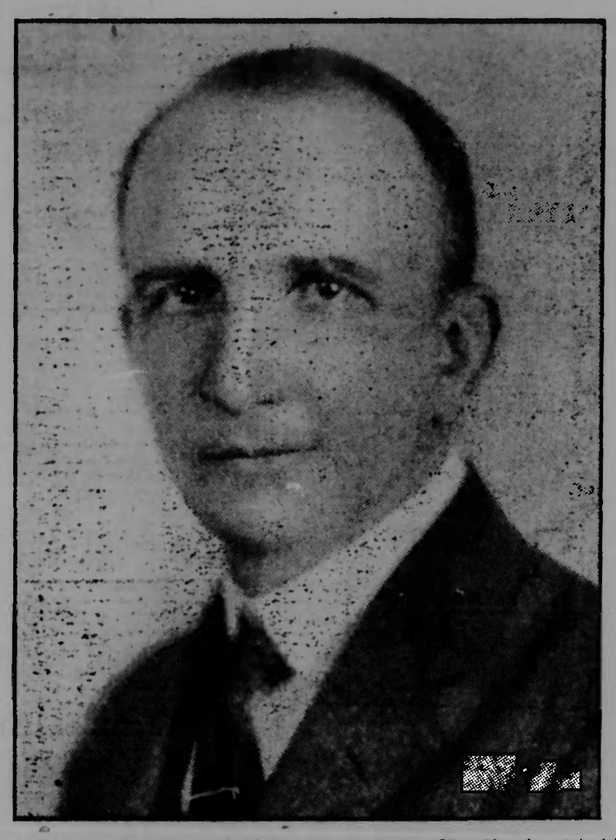
It has been reported in various sections of Garrett county that Mr. W. D. Casteel, candidate for Sheriff, has promised me the appointment as his deputy if elected. I wish to state that this report is absolutely false and that Mr. Casteel has never mentioned the matter to me. Furthermore, if Mr. Casteel should offer the position to me I would not accept the same.

I make this statement publicly in order to correct this false report.

Very truly yours,
ANDREW SHARTZER.

Oakland ,September 22, 1926.

George D. Browning, Candidate for County Commissioner, Is Grateful to the People.



To the Republican Voters of the County:

I feel grateful to each and ever yone of you for the splendid vote given me at the primary on Tuesday of last week, feeling that as a result the people in every section of the county have voiced their approval of my official acts as one of their public servants and it shall be my sole aim and desire not to abuse the confidence thus reposed in me should you again elected me as a member of the Board at the general election to be held in November.

Again extending my thanks, and soliciting your support at the general election, I beg to remain, Sincerely yours,
GEO. D. BROWNING.

D. L. SLOAN, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CHIEF JUDGE

At the primary election held last Tuesday, Mr. D. Lindley Sloan, of Cumberland, was nominated for Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit, defeating his opponent by more than 7,000 votes. Mr. Sloan's majorities in each of the three counties comprising the district were: Garrett, 817; Allegany, 4602; Washington, 1657, a total majority of 7076.

Thanks to the Voters from Arthur H. Green.

To the voters of Garrett County:

I wish to thank you for the hearty support given me in the Republican primary election and to express my greatful appreciation to my friends who worked so hard in my behalf during the campaign. I solicit your further support at the general election in November, and if elected, I promise to faithfully fulfill the duties of the office and to fully protect to the best of my ability your interests in any pending legislation.

Respectfully yours,
ARTHUR H. GREEN.

A Card of Appreciation from W. D. Casteel. Republican Nominee for Sheriff of Garrett Co.

I address myself to the Republican voters of Garrett county for the purpose of conveying to them my thanks and appreciation for the wonderful support they accorded me at the primary election on Tuesday whereby I became the nominee for the office of Sheriff. I assure my fellow citizens that should they elect me in November I will devote my every energy in carrying out the obligations imposed upon me by virtue of the office.

Again thanking one and all and soliciting your undivided support, I am,
Very truly yours,
W. D. CASTEEL.

—Poltiical advertisement authorized by the candidate.

A Card of Thanks from Mr. H. V. Leighton.

I want to thank the 1001 voters of the county who voted for me in our recent primary and especially those who made a personal effort to secure my nomination, and while I did not receive sufficient votes to elect, I want to express my appreciation for the interest and confidence imposed in me.

Very truly,
H. V. LEIGHTON.

A Mock Wedding.

The Willing Workers Sunday school class of St. Paul's M. E. church entertained the Men's Bible class on Friday, Sept. 10th, at 8:00 o'clock in tbe Parish House at a mock wedding. The cast of characters was as follows:

Bride .....Mrs. Mabel Sollars
Groom.....Mrs. Nell Stemple
Maid of honor....Mrs. Naomi Harned
Best man.....Mrs. Pearl Aronhalt
Ring bearer.....Mrs: Madge White
Ribbon bearers, Mrs. Ruth Naylor, Mrs. Edna Ashby.
Preacher.....Miss Helen Townshend
Bride's mother.....Mrs. A. L. Lee
Bride's father.....Mrs. J. W. Butt
Groom's mother..Mrs. Gladys Sincell
Groom's father...Mrs. Mary Feather

Ushers—Mrs. Bess Smith, Miss Lucille Mitchell, Mrs. Lucille Peddicord, Esther Davis, Elsie Ashby, Elizabeth Naylor.

Bridesmaids— Ethyl Lowdermilk, Rose Mitchell, Mrs. Alma Rathbun, Mrs. Lulu Dawson, Mrs. Georgia Whipkey, Mrs. Juanita Thayer.

Flower bearers—Mrs. Etta White, Miss Rebecca Thayer.

Mrs. Anita Mealy sang "Abie's Father" and "That's My Baby," with Mrs. Elinor Fraley at the piano. The wedding march was also played by the latter. The altar and room were very beautifully decorated with laurel, goldenrod and candles.

The bride wore a white crepe (paper) dress and veil and carried a shower bouquet of white asters, gladioli and baby clematis. Eleanor Jane Fraley carried the bride's train.

The maid of honor wore a lavendar (paper) dress and carried a bouquet of purple asters. The bridesmaids, two of whom wore rose crepe (paper), two blue crepe (paper), and two yellow crepe (paper) gowns, carried arm bouquets of goldenrod and cosmos.

The groom wore a dress suit (borrowed) of the conventional black, as did the best man and the ushers. The men wore boutonieres of sunflowers.

The ceremony was performed by the preacher, Helen Townshend, not the pastor of any church, the double ring ceremony being used.

An informal reception followed, at which, by the preacher's request, no one kiss the bride more than thirteen times after the ceremony.

The bride received many useful presents, including three rolling pins, tin spoons, shoe strings, darning needles, towels, etc.

Bountiful refreshments were served by the committee with Mrs. Grace Shirer in charge, to about seventy-five persons.

The happy couple, Josiah and Mariah, were serenaded and then started on their honeymoon by a few clever gentlemen by being hoisted on chairs, carried away to a waiting automobile, driven down town to Sturgiss' Pharmacy and treated. Those present reported having enjoyed it all.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

(The Great Seal of Maryland)

ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

By the Governor:

DAVID C. WINEBRENNER, 3d,
Secretary of State.

"Haste makes waste"

"I have never yet seen persons really get anywhere who were always in a hurry with never time to care for their motors—picking up gas, all kinds—here, there and everywhere. They soon find this policy makes their car shy at a hill-climb—whine for second gear—pine for a rest.

"Best to make haste slowly. Play safe. Always fill up with 'Standard' Gasoline. It's the result of fifty-six years' experience—always dependable. Right handy everywhere."

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Salina Oester vs. Irvin Thomas, Amy Bowser, his wife, Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester, Matilda Burrow. No. 2688 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree declaring void a deed to Irvin Thomas from George Oester and Salina Oester, his wife, and declaring void two subsequent mortgages given by said Irvin Thomas; and to secure the appointment of trustees to sell the property described in the said deed, and for other and further relief.

The Bill states: That a certain farm of approximately 150 acres of land, was conveyed to George Oester and Salina Oester, as tenants by the entirities, by deed from Catherine Diehl, duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That George Oester and Salina Oester made a deed of trust of the said farm to Edward T. Bowser, Trustee for Perry Bowser, to secure payment of a certain debt, said Deed of Trust is duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and its validity is not questioned by the plaintiff in these proceedings.

That except for 17¼ acres of said land previously conveyed to John Gatterman, Salina Oester and George Oester, her husband, did convey the aforesaid farm together with certain personal property, to Irvin Thomas, by deed dated the 3rd day of November, 1917, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That the consideration set forth in the last mentioned deed, required the grantee to provide a comfortable maintenance for grantors during their lives, and decent burial at death, and to pay $2500.00 in cash as directed in said deed; the bill further states, that the said Thomas provided a living for said grantors, from November 1917, until April, 1923, at which time grantee, totally abandoned said farm and the grantors, said abandonment has continued without interruption to the present time, and said grantee has not contributed toward the support of grantors, or either of them, did not pay funeral expenses of George Oester, now deceased, has not paid any part of the $2500.00 required to be paid by condition in said deed. That the said Irvin Thomas and wife, executed a mortgage of said farm, to Perry Bowser, dated June 10th, 1918, recorded in Land and Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $500.00 which had been advanced by said Bowser to said Thomas; and the said mortgagee, accepted said mortgage as security for the money so advanced, although he knew, or was charged with knowledge, that said Thomas had only a defeasible title to said land, and that security for said mortgage was liable to be destroyed by failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land, and that said defect in the title of said Thomas, was apparent upon the face of the deed to said land to the said Irvin Thomas, the said mortgage was later assigned by the said Bowser, to Amy Bowser, his wife.

That the said Irvin Thomas, later executed another mortgage of the same property to Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester and Matilda Burrow, dated the 3rd day of July, 1923, and recorded among the Land and Morotgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland. to secure the payment of $1320.85, advanced to the said Thomas; and the said mortgagees accepted said mortgage as security for the money advanced, although they knew, or were charged with knowledge, that the title of said Thomas was only a defeasible title, aparent upon the face of the deed from the said George Oester and Salina Oester, to the said Irvin Thomas, and the said security was liable to be destroyed through failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land. That the said George Oester died intestate, sometime in the month of April, 1924.

That the aforesaid farm conveyed by George Oester and Salina Oester, to Irvin Thomas, is now abandoned and is depreciating in value through negleet, and on account of said deed to Irvin Thomas, and later mortgages given by said Thomas, the title of the said Salina Oester, is under a cloud and she can not sell it or derive any profit therefrom on this account: That the said deed to Irvin Thomas is wholly without legal consideration, is fraudulent and void, and should be set aside, and the two mortgages subsequently given by said Thomas. are void as against the title of your oratrix in and to said land.

The Bill then prays, that an order of publication be granted giving notice to Irvin Thomas, Anna Oester and Matilda Burrow, all non-residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them, and each of them, to be and appear In this Court on a certain day to be named therein, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

And also that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties in the Bill named.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 8th day of September, 1926, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff give notice by publication In some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 8th day of October, 1926, to the said non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of October, 1926, to answer the allegations of said Bill of complaint, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises, and that a writ of subpeona be directed to the resident parties named in said Bill of complaint.

FAIR SPIRIT MOUNTS HIGH NOTWITHSTANDING CLOUDS

Annual Assembly of Garrettonlans Promises to be Successful if J. Pluvius Behaves Himself

The Greater Garrett County Fair opened for its tenth annual time on Tuesday morning under weather conditions discouraging and disheartening to everybody everywhere.

Rain, which had pelted down all day Monday, all night Monday night, did not let up in the least except at intervals of uncertain duration during the entire day, with the result that attendance at the fair was not worth mentioning, but through it all farmers, farmers' wives and daughters, farmers' sons and towns people took exhibits to the fair buildings in unending streams, and the result is that there are more exhibits of more different kinds and better kinds than in the history of tbe fair during its past ten years of varying fortunes—and misfortunes, for it must be remembered that during the two years preceding weatber of the same brand as that of Tuesday prevailed during fair time.

Tuesday had been scheduled as Fraternal Day. A parade and other features were on the program, but these were abandoned after the parade of a number of the members of the local lodge Knights of Pythias had marched from the Pythian building, headed by the combined Oakland and Crellin bands to the corner of Second and Liberty streets.

Yesterday was School Day and with it came brightening skies and hundreds of school children from all parts of the county, accompanied by their teachers and a real parade of the future men and women of the county was held. Many schools, of course, were not reprsented, but large numbers of pupils were present from Crellin, Hutton, Swan Meadow, Loch Lynn, Accident, Grantsville, Sunnyside, Deer Park, Oakland Grammar, Parochial and High schools and others, the combined number parading is estimated at a thousand. Each school had its own design of headgear and many of them were unique which tended to make the affair beautiful and entertaining.

The County Athletic meet had also been scheduled for yesterday, having been postponed from the early spring, but on account of wet grounds at the fair lot it was again postponed and the events will occur tomorrow, at which time representatives of the Maryland Athletic League will be in attendance to supervise the rares and other features to be put on by the high and grammar schools of the county.

Notwithstanding the wet iondition of the athletic field yesterday two soccer games werre played by contending high school teams, the results being Grantsville 1, defeated by Kitzmiller, which school scored 5, and Oakland 3 against Accident, 0.

Friday will have a double attraction, for in addition to the athletic meet all schools located on improved roads within a radius of fifteen miles are expected to have large reprresentatives present and the American Legion as an organization as well as all others who saw service in the late World War will march in a spectacular, history portraying parade. The Legion is having the assistance of members of the Oakland High School Senior Class and faculty in arranging for and carrying out the program mapped out for the day, which promises to be one of more than ordinary interest and beauty. The Oakland Rotary Club will also have a part in the parade, having been invited by the Legion to turn out with that organization.

The Fair officials, on account of Tuesday's unfavorable weather, decided yesterday that the Fair should go on Saturday and hence Saturday will be observed as Fraternal Day when all fraternal bodies in the county are expected to take part in the doings of that day.

Many residents of this community who became financially interested in the local gas service organization during its customer-ownership offering of Southerrn Gas & Power Corporation 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock will receive their quarterly dividend checks for $1.75 a share on Friday, October 1, it was announced today at the gas company's office. This is the eleventh consecutive quarterly dividend paid by this corporation, which is constantly growing and has never missed a single dividend payment to its preferred stockholders.

G. O. P. CANDIDATE HITS WET GROUP IN HOT REPLY

Linwood L. Clark, For Congress, Tells A. A. P. A. He Wants To Be Classed as Dry

Linwood L. Clark, Republican candidate for Congress in the Second Maryland District, attacked the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment Saturday in a letter replying to a questionaire sent him by that organization.

Declaring he is "not in sympathy with the spirit or purpose of the organization" and asking them to put him on their list as unsatisfactory, Mr. Clark's reply states:

"I regard the Federal anti-liquor amendment as the greatest single stroke for economic gain and social advancement and the finest expression of the 'law of betterment' since the Declaration of Independence.

"By opposing it now you are headed up a blind alley that leads to nothing and nowhere.

"If respect for the support of the Constitution, which as an attorney I am under oath to honor and obey, make me 'a dry,' then put me down dry and keep me there."

AMERICAN LEGION PLANS AFFECT MARYLANDERS

Ritchie Wants 79th Division Reunion Committee at Philadelphia Centennial.

Perhaps the largest aggregation of bands ever gathered in one city will take part in the eighth annual convention of the American Legion in Philadelphia, October 11-15.

One of the foremost musical organizations of the world will be represented in the parade, Colonel Vincent A. Carroll announced, but when he was questioned about details he declined to identify the band. "The mystery band" is often a topic of conversation at convention committee meetings.

Uniformed musical organizations from every corner of the country will take part, many of them organized in Legion posts and departments at the close of the war. The celebrated Racine, Wis., Drum Corps will be among the strong entries in the national contests.

At least 120 cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey will send their best musicians to march with their posts in the annual parade on Columbus Day, October 12. Massachusetts will be represented by 1000 marchers and bands.

One of the interesting features of the convention will be a series of concerts to be given each morning, afternoon and evening in the Sesqui-Centennial grounds, at City Hall plaza and at the various other important centers of Philadelphia.

Members of the 79th Division, A. E. F., who reside in Maryland, are urged by Governor Albert C. Ritchie to communicate immediately with the 79th Division Reunion Committee, 135 S. Broad street, Philadelphia, for the purpose of having their names permanently enrolled on the records of the Division.

John B. Geraghty, publicity director, 79th Division, said:

"Col. H. Harrison Smith, of Philadelphia, who is president of the 79th Division Association ,has requested me to assist in locating 7,000 Maryland men who returned with the Division, or who once belonged to it, many of whom have lost contact with the Division Association by reason of addesses being changed and removals to the cities.

"I therefore urge veterans of this distinguished Division to communicate immediately with Col. Smith at 135 S. Broad street, Philadelphia. I made the same request of relatives of men who have removed from the State.

"The contemplated reunion to take place in Philadelphia, September 24, 25 and 26 next, is a worthy undertaking as a means of renewing friendships which were created and cemented on the battlefield. A worthwhile entertainment program will be given."

The administration has reduced the public debt many hundreds of million dollars in the past few years and now some folks want it to wipe out the European debt too. Some folks are never satisfied.

ALL COUNTY OFFICERS TO SERVE FOUR YEAR TERMS

Under New Fewer Elections Law Effective After Coming November Contests

Under the Fewer Elections law, enacted by the last Legislature, all State and county officials elected to office in November, will serve terms of four years. There will be no more county elections after November until the year 1930. However, in 1928 there will be the usual Presidential election in Maryland with the congressional contest.

Under the new law, the six year terms of Clerk of the Circuit Court and Register of Wills is cut down to four years, while that of the County Treasurer, Sheriff and all other officers heretofore elected for terms of two years is automatically increased to terms of four years.

In former years, the selection of State and county officers was an expensive one to the taxpayers, there being an election of some character held in the county every year under the two and six-year tenure of office, with the Congressional election every two years and the Presidential election occurring at intervals of four years.

After the November election, the county officers elected will enter upon their terms of office December 1st.

The Question of Tonsils.

The question as to whether a child's tonsils and adenoids should be removed when they are enlarged or infected can be satisfactorily answered only after careful examination by a physician, of the individual child. It is not a matter for the lay person to decide," Dr. J. H. Mason Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said, referring to the large number of children among those who have been examined at the health conferences held throughout the State under the auspices of the Bureau, and who were found to have unhealthy or diseased tonsils.

"Undoubtedly," he continued, "these structures aid the mouth and nasal passages in catching and fitering out particles of dust and other material that might do in jury if they passed into the lungs. Fortunately, however, there are other glands in the mouth and throat which have a similar function, so that so far as we know at present, the body does not suffer when the tonsils and adenoids are taken out.

"The reasons for the operation, when it is advised, are two-fold. First, because the tonsils, which are found at each side of the opening into the throat, catch dust and germs of various kinds which enter with the air and food, and often become diseased. That is, they do not destroy the bacteria, but through their many crypts or tiny hollows, furnish places in which the bacteria flourish andgrow and produce poisons which may spread through the whole body. Diphtheria is an example of this kind of action. The germs of diphtheria find a lodging place ready for them in unhealthy tonsil tissue and the first evidence of the disease is often noticed in the tonsils.

"Second. The other reason for the removal of the tonsils is that they may become so large as to partly fill the throat and make it difficelt to beathe easily. When this is the case, there is almost always at some time, an enlargement of the adenoid tissue in the upper part of the throat back of the nose.

"A child with these enlargements cannot breathe comfortably through the nose. He keeps the mouth open and is known as a 'mouth breather.' The nose is especially adapted for warming and filtering the air before it reaches the lungs and children who have not this protection are much more liable to colds and bronchitis than others.

"Of course tonsils should not be removed from every child. Even large tonsils may be left alone safely if their surfaces are smooth and the child is not subejct to frequent attacks of tonsilitis.

"In the examinations that have been made at the health conferences held under the auspices of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, many of the children whose health was definitely impaired were found to have diseased or greatly enlarged tonsils or adeneids. These children were all referred to their own doctors for a final decision.

"We know that enlarged and diseased tonsils and adenoids are common in childhood and it would seem to be the duty of those who are responsible for tbe welfare of children to take them to their doctor to be sure that their tonsils and adenoids are in normal condition.

SILVER MINE IN GARRETT COUNTY TO REOPEN SOON

Western Minerologist Interested In Developing Abandoned Pit Which Has Abundance of Ore

It is reported that tentative plans for the recovery of silver ore in the Silver Bell mine in Garrett county, about 12 miles from Lonaconing, which has been abandoned for over 30 years, will be made in the near future, according to William J. Miller, mineralologsit, of Hereford, Ariz., who was a business visitor at Lonaconing on Tuesday.

Mr. Miller told business men the mine was as rich and deposits of ore were as abundant as many of the Western mines of the country, and he planned to reopen the mine in the near future.

The Silver Bell mine was opened about 65 years ago on the farm of Hiram Duckworth, in Bear Pen Hollow, familiarly known as the Back Woods settlement, by William Hacker, a mineralologist, who then resided at Westernport. Shortly after it was opened the mine was abandoned when the seam ran out. Tests showed that other seams were nearby, but no effort was made at that time to locate them. From that time the mine remained idle.

When the mine was opened many local men became interested in the project and became stockholders in the first company, along with the men of science from Colorado, Utah and other western points, who came and made tests. From their tests the mineral was found to be a native and worthy of development.

Among the learned men was Mr. Miller, who no doubt has located another seam. Mr. Miller seems very desirous to reopen and talked at length with men interested in the project.

Another mine known as "Black Lick" is also in that section, and is said to be one of the finest in the country. Extensive deposits of silver occur at the mine, in combination with other elements, such as lead, magnanese, and some gold. This mine is owned by a local man who was one of the first to discover the silver ore on the Duckworth farm, but it too, was not developed.

The mine is now on the farm of Harvey Broadwater, the Duckworth estate having been sold by court action at his death.

SEVEN STATES JOIN TO BOOST NATIONAL HIGHWAY

Consolidation of National Highway Boosters and Old Trails Body Is Being Planned

When the National Highway Boosters Association, organized a month ago at Uniontown, Pa., met on last Thursday at Zanesville, Ohio, with representatives from seven states, it was disclosed that there already was a similar organizatioon, known as the National Old Trails Association in existence, a fact which few of those in attendance knew about.

J. P. Eagleson, of Washington, who is vice-president of the National Old Trails Association, told the gathering at Zanesville that the association had been formed in 1912, covering the highway from Maryland to the Pacific Coast.

The purpose of the meeting at Zanesville was to form a permanent organization known as the National Highway Booster Association, and to discuss ways and means of perpetuating the traditions and history of the Old Trails, advertising its scenic beauty and many points of historical interest and to promote additional tourist travel on the highway.

When Mr. Eagleston explained that a similar organization already was in existence, but had been inactive of late years because of lack of funds, George W. Lutz, temporary president of the National Highway Booster Association, urged that a committee be appointed with the view of consolidating the two bodies, the suggestion being favorably acted upon.

While several Garrett countians are members of the National Highway Booster Association, none of them could attend the meeting in Zanesville on account of business engagements at home.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE ORGANIZED MONDAY

U. O. Blocher, Grantsville, Made Chairman On Fourth Ballot

The Democratic State Central Committee for Garrett county was organized Monday afternoon with the election of Mr. U. O. Blocher, of Grantsville, chairman; Norval Speelman, of Friendsville, secretary, and Miss Frances C. Hamill, of Oakland, treasurer.

The election of Mr. Blocher as the chairman of the committee came as a great surprise to the party workers and members as well.

It was generally thought that either A. T. Matthews or W. R. Browning would be chosen as head of the committee, but a switch in the voting on the fourth ballot threw the election to Mr. Blocher.

Vacancies on the Democratic ballot or at least some of them will be filled at a meeting of the committee on Monday was the forecast of one who stands pretty close to some of its members.

SCHOOL RALLY IN OAKLAND COUNTY-WIDE SUNDAY

Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon, October 17, With All Schools of the County Participating

Plans are now being made for a county-wide Sunday school rally to be held in Oakland on Sunday afternoon, October 17th, and all of the Sunday schools of the county are not only invited to come in a body but are urged to be present and take part in the program of the day.

Included in the program a parade is scheduled to take place at 2 o'clock and this will be followed by a mass meeting at which Mr. Paul Smith, General Manager of the Potomac Edison Electric Company at Hagerstown, will be the principal speaker.

A more definite announcement of the program for this rally will be made later, but those in charge of the plans request that all pastors and Sunday school superintendents take the matter up with their congregations and Sunday schools this coming Sunday and make arrangements for participating in the parade and program of the day. It is hoped that every Sunday school in the county may in this way be interested and will have a place in the line of parade.

Sunnyside Grange Notes.

At the regular meeting, through the absence of the secretary owing to illness and inclement weather, we were unable to hold the session because of the lack of the necessary equipment which the secretary carries. But all present were willing to lend a helping hand and the hall was soon decorated and put in readiness for the fair the next day, which was a wonderful success.

There were two hundred and fifty entries with forty-six exhibitors; 95 exhibits won blue ribbons.

The next regular meeting will be held on October 13th. Don't forget the date. Come to the meeting and come fully prepared to take part in the literary program.

Let's make Sunnyside Grange a booster grange. Let's all adopt the motto: "I will try when called upon to do something," and then watch results.

REPORTER.

To the Voters of Garrett County

I want to thank you all for your kind and hearty support you gave me on September 14th by giving me so large a vote and how proud I feel over it to know I have so many friends. I have been living with you for 70 years and I must especially thank my home district and my old district, No. 6, Sang Run, where I left 70 years ago. They all remember me and I am glad to say I own my grandfather's farm, where he settled 126 years ago and could shoot a deer off of the porch. He had one deer which raised him 52 deer. Now thanking you all again, I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Thanking you all for your support in advance at the election in November.

T. W. CASTEEL,
Candidate for Judge of Orphans' Court.—Advertisement.

Tuesday of this week was the first registration day prior to the general election. If you failed to have your name placed on the voting list that day another opportunity will be presented on Tuesday of next week, the last day for the sitting of the registration officers this year. It is important that every individual coming of voting age prior to November 2nd be registered that he or she may have the opportunity of casting a ballot at the fall election.

U. S. COURT SENT NINETEEN PRISONERS TO OAKLAND

All Were Convicted In Cumberland Court of Violating The Volstead Law

Nineteen Federal prisoners, all of whom either entered pleas of guilty when they were arrigned in the Federal Court at Cumberland on Monday, or were found guilty by a jury when they went on trial Tuesday charged with violations of the Volstead Law, were received at the Garrett County Jail in Oakland Tuesday evening by Sheriff Yutzy, the men having been brought here from Cumberland that afternoon.

All of the prisoners with the exception of two are residents of Allegany or Washington county and will serve terms ranging from thirty days to five months and pay fines varying from $200 to $500 each.

Of the nineteen prisoners, two hail from Garrett county: Floyd Williams and Perry Dennis, of near Bayard. Williams, a first offender, will serve 60 days. Dennis, who was convicted at a former term of the Court and served 60 days in the Oakland Jail, will remain here again for another sixty days stay and in addition will pay a fine of $500.

The prisoners were brought in by a Deputy Marshall accompanied by a guard, both of whom returned to Cumberland Tuesday evening where Court is still in session.

At the term a number of Garrett countians charged with having violated the Statute prohibiting the sale or manufacture of intoxicants, remain to be tried, among them being Emil Crowe, Clarence Crowe, Fred Sowers, Dewey Harvey, Charles R. Pratt.

DIED.

REV. JOHN HAMILTON HOWARD.

Rev. John H. Howard, a former pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland, died on Sunday, September 19th, following a stroke of paralysis—the third successive one in a few weeks—at a point in Virginia where he was on a visit to a sister, having gone to her home about two months prior. Dr. Howard was born on December 17, 1861 and was engaged in the active ministry of the M. E. church from 1881 until he retired in 1921. Mrs. Howard died at Rowlesburg on January 26, 1926.

JAMES A. DELAWDER.

James A. Delawder, aged 70 years, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Delawder, died at his residence on Second street this morning about 8:30 o'clock. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Tabb, of Oakland, and Mrs. W. L. Boughner, of Morgantown, West Va., and by one brother, John A. Delawder, of Washington, D. C. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

Fike Family Reunion.

The second annual reunion of the David Fike family was held at the old Fike homestead near Red House on Sunday, September 19th. There were a hundred present, five generations being represented. The oldest member of the family in attendance was Moses Fike, aged 90 and the only living member of the Peter Fike family, he being a brother of David Fike. The youngest member of the family present was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Wolf, aged two weeks. The day was ideal and after all bad partaken of the bountiful dinner which had been spread on a big table on the lawn the rest of the day was spent in talking over old times and singing old songs and hymns. Relatives were present from Bayard, Chicago, Oakland, Morgantown, Terra Alta, Gorman, Rowlesburg, and other points. The next reunion will be held the first Sunday in September, 1927 in the city park at Terra Alta.

Commercial Men's Club Organized.

Quite a large representative body of the business men of Oakland met in the City Hall last Thursday evening and organized a Commercial Club. A bord of directors, composed of Messrs. L. M. Fraley, Howard Stuck, H. C. Sincell, Cecil Smith, Thomas A. Gonder, C. N. McIntire, A. R. Martin, R. D. Houck, Geo. D. Sprogue, F. A. Smouse and Dr. H. W. McComas was elected. The directors, at a meeting held after the session of the members of the club, elected Mr. Thomas A. Gonder as their chairman. The directors will outline a plan of work to be accomplished before again calling a meeting of the entire membership of the club.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN.

Numbers 10:11-36.

Come thou with us and we will do thee good.—Numbers 10:29.

THE YEAR BOOK.

Genesis and the family, Exodus and the Church, Leviticus and the schoolbook bring one to the story of teaching in Numbers. It is exactly the order that one expects and is a sign of the wonderful care with which the Bible has been put together. There is unity in all its pages, but there is orderly advance as well. The book of Numbers has its name from the numberings of the Israelites at its beginning and at its close. It divides itself into three sections; the preparation for the advance made at Sinai following their passover celebration in the spring after their leaving Egypt and included within the first ten chapters, the wilderness of Paran covering thirty-eight years of varying experiences in chapters 11 to 21, and the march from Kadesh to the Jordan in the remainder of the book.

This school term starts with what we always find: an enrollment of pupils matriculating in the class. Again at the close of the session there is another listing to determine how many have stuck through the course. And all that lies between may well be the record found in the Year Book of the class. For it is the gathering up of varying experiences along the way, of directions given that supplement earlier settlements, of changes in the faculty and such things as would be of permanent interest to later scholars in the School of God. There had been vast changes wrought by the stay at Sinai and standards had been set up that were to be long unreached but they were to be goals toward which advance might be made. Forms into which the religious and social life was to be poured had been fashioned and motivation had been provided for their doing. Now we get the account of the dedication of the tabernacle and the arrangement of the marching parties. The sense of Presence rested upon the whole assembly, for God had grown very near during those days, and now the Tent of Meeting kept its cloud and fire, a perpetual sign of God,at whose word they moved or stayed.

THE GUIDE OF THE DAY.

God was leading. That was the outstanding thing in the history of these Israelites, as it is the necessary thing in any great movement today. America was born under the deep-rooted convicition that God was leading His people into a land of promise where they migbt build homes and rear churches that gave freedom for the whole life. Slavery vanished from the lagal phrases of America long after it had been outlawed in other places, but it did not budge until it was attacked as contrary to the will of God for his children. The saloon dominated our land until conscience cried against it. That sense of the leadership of God is the essential thing in any democratic progress. To imbue the mass of people with the knowledge of His will, to quicken the conscience of the crowd, to call men to advance with God, is that task of the Church. And Israel at Sinai learned to look for God to make His will known. They had grown better acquainted with Him and were watching for His advance. Then came the day when there was no longer question of what was necessary to do. It followed their celebration of the Passover, the though of God's leading was freshened in the minds of all and it was in that high hour of quickened spirit that the signal came. It is always true of both nations and men. God needs the attentive mind that His orders may be perceived. So the camp was broken up and each day found them following the commands of the Eternal. There may be no cloudy pillar for us, but there is always the Guide. Out of the prayer hours of Jesus emerged the sure certainty of direction for His day. It came at His baptism in a conviction that He was pursuing the right course. It came at the Transfiguration in the same thing. The temptation was the illumination of memory that gave sure guidance and the choice of the twelve followed upon a night of payer that illumined His judgment. The same spiritual guidance is offered now as then and we may have it if we will to follow it for "he that willeth to do my will shall know."

THE GUIDE OF THE WAY.

This was not the motley throng that left Egypt setting out upon another journey. It was an ordered procession marching toward a goal. To follow God does not mean to discard common sense. Each tribe had its place, each group its assigned duties; each leader its definite orderings. Then came the invitation to Hobab to join the march and share in its success. To this there was no response except a curt "No." The Church has much over worked the heavenly reward appeal. There is nothing wrong with it except that in many cases it does not get the man. Hobab was valuable to Israel and Moses was not going to be dispossessed of his ability if there was any way to prevent it. "What d oyou do if the fish don't bite?" was the query to an experienced fisherman. "Change my bait," was the significant reply. He who fishes for men must be as ready and as determined. It seems that Moses got his man. And it was upon the basis of the need of Israel. And again we find that God's guidance does not discredit the experience of men. Hobab knew the desert, its trails and its watered spots, and if God's beacon was to be followed places must be found for the fect of the marchers. God marks the way, but men must build the roads. Hobab became a helper at the task.

THE GUIDE OF THE DAWN AND DUSK.

Before the march and after its completion are the two periods that are perilous. Moses saw to it that the dawn was set to the key of prayer and the dusk settled under the same tune. The Ark might be regarded by some as the actual possessor of such qualities as compelled the presence of God, but Moses kept the fires of the spirit alight. And the marcher of today will find the same habit wonderfully helpful in the press of a dust-fogged march across the day of business. Start the day with a prayer, close it with a bit of praise and all life will be sweeter thereby. Israel marched to a music that held God in its heart and gained immeasureably by the doing and the presence of God became more certain to each heart that bowed at dawn and dusk.

GRANTSVILLE

The descendents of Joel B. Miller held their reunion Saturday at Earl Folk's barn, near Springs, Pa. Regardless of the disagreeable weather 256 persons were present, 200 direct descendents assembled to spend a happy day together.

After a bounteous dinner was served the following program was given:

Song, "Happy Welcome," male quartet; devotion, Rev. C. B. Shoemaker, Scottdale, Pa.; "Come Where the Lilies Bloom," quartet; address, Rev. N. E. Miller; "Advantages and disadvantages of Family Reunions;" recitation, "Yesterday," Alton Miller; song. "Life's Changeful Dream," male chorus; reading, "Master Has Come," Mildred Styvanest; history, Rev. G. D. Miller; song, "Beauty for Ashes," male chorus; address, Dr. J. E. Miller, Elk Lick, Pa.; song "Our Parting Song," mixed octette; "Sweet Bye and Bye," sung by all present. Rev. G. D. Miller pronounced the benediction.

The local committee was composed of Rev. W. B. Miller, Olin Miller and Simon S. Miller.

The old covered bridge which spanned the Casselman river at Casselman, about three miles from Grantsville, has been replaced by a new concrete structure, erected by the Concrete Steel Bridge Co., of West Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gnegy, proprietors of the National Hotel, announce the birth of a son at Western Maryland Hospital, Sunday morning.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid Society was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. C. Miller Saturday afternoon. A large attendance was present.

Miss Ida V. Engle, who had spent the past month with her parents, returned to Bartlesville, Okla., where she is employed at the W. C. M. Hospital.

Mrs. Marian Broadwater, daughter Ethel, and son, Dr. T. O. Broadwater, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk, Brownsville, Pa.

Mrs. Ida Hershberger received word from her son, Daniel, Miami, Fla., that he escaped injury in the hurrican of last week. Mrs. Hershberger's sister and husband, Mr and Mrs. Thaddeus B. Miller, Fort Lauderdale, also escaped injury.

U. O. Blocher attended the Democratic state convention in Baltimore, last week.

Rev. G. L. Robinson and family left Monday for Buckhannon, W. Va., to attend the annual West Virginia Methodist conference, in session this week at the First Methodist church. Bishop F. J. McConnell will preside.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey are spending several days in Baltimore.

Melvin Durst has returned to Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., where he will resume his studies for the ministry.

Mrs. Michael Nathan and daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Anderson, is visiting friends in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards and sons spent the week-end with her parents at Grindstone, Pa.

Miss Mary Dorsey, Mrs. Annice Getty, Daniel W. and James Dorsey, spent several days in Johnstown and Bedford, Pa.

Rev. Father Aloysius, of Dover, O., visited friends in town last week.

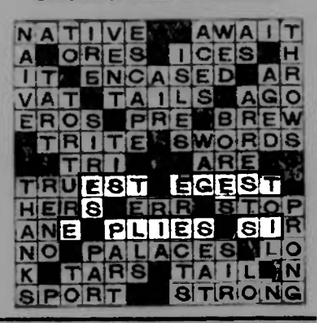
The girls' preliminary declamation contest will be held in Grantsville early in November instead of in the spring, as has been the custom in previous years.

The boys contest along the same line will also be held in November.

The study of French and Latin will be introduced in the high school this year, as it has not been taught for several years.

Milton Younkin, janitor at the school building, is doing splendidly and has recently completed the painting of the portico and windows of the old building, which greatly improves its appearance.

It is hoped that the entire building will be painted this fall, and with the grounds in much better condition than in former years, the citizens of town and the community should feel proud of the added improvement.



Misses Frances and Laura Swan, of Brownsville, Pa., and Mrs. Geo, of Grindstone, Pa., are guests of Mrs. Joseph Faherty.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Herrold and daughter Josephine, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. W. H. Bugler and daughter Florence, of Brownsville, Pa., have returned to their homes after a two weeks' rest at the Casselman Hotel.

Miss Harriett Wilson was the guest over Sunday of her sisters in Cumberland.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respectve salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Salina Oester vs. Irvin Thomas, Amy Bowser, his wife, Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester, Matilda Burrow. No. 2698 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree declaring void a deed to Irvin Thomas from George Oester and Salina Oester, his wife, and declaring void two subsequent mortgages given by said Irvin Thomas; and to secure the appointment of trustees to sell the property described in the said deed, and for other and further relief.

The Bill states: That a certain farm of approximately 150 acres of land, was conveyed to George Oester and Salina Oester, as tenants by the entirities, by deed from Catherine Bichl, duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That George Oester and Salina Oester made a deed of trust of the said farm to Edward T. Bowser, Trustee for Perry Bowser, to secure payment of a certain debt, said Deed of Trust is duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and its validity is not questioned by the plaintiff in these proceedings.

That except for 17¼ acres of said land previously conveyed to John Gatterman, Salina Oester and George Oester, her husband, did convey the aforesaid farm together with certain personal property, to Irvin Thomas, by deed dated the 3rd day of November, 1917, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That the consideration set forth in the last mentioned deed, required the grantee to provide a comfortable maintenance for grantors during their lives, and decent burial at death, and to pay $2500.00 in cash as directed in said deed; the bill further states, that the said Thomas provided a living for said grantors, from November 1917, until April, 1923, at which time grantee, totally abandoned said farm and the grantors, said abandonment has continued without interruption to the present time, and said grantee has not contributed toward the support of grantors, or either of them, did not pay funeral expenses of George Oester, now deceased, has not paid any part of the $2500.00 required to be paid by condition in said deed. That the said Irvin Thomas and wife, executed a mortgage of said farm, to Perry Bowser, dated June 10th, 1918, recorded in Land and Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $500.00 which had been advanced by said Bowser to said Thomas; and the said mortgagee, accepted said mortgage as security for the money so advanced, although he knew, or was charged with knowledge, that said Thomas had only a defeasible title to said land, and that security for said mortgage was liable to be destroyed by failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land, and that said defect in the title of said Thomas, was apparent upon the face of the deed to said land to the said Irvin Thomas, the said mortgage was later assigned by the said Bowser, to Amy Bowser, his wife.

That the said Irvin Thomas, later executed another mortgage of the same property to Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester and Matilda Burrow, dated the 3rd day of July, 1923, and recorded among the Land and Morotgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $1320.85, advanced to the said Thomas; and the said mortgagees accepted said mortgage as security for the money advanced, although they knew, or were charged with knowledge, that the title of said Thomas was only a defeasible title, aparent upon the face of the deed from the said George Oester and Salina Oester, to the said Irvin Thomas, and the said security was liable to be destroyed through failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land. That the said George Oester died intestate, sometime in the month of April, 1924.

That the aforesaid farm conveyed by George Oester and Salina Oester, to Irvin Thomas, is now abandoned and is depreciating in value through neglect, and on account of said deed to Irvin Thomas, and later mortgages given by said Thomas, the titie of the said Salina Oester, is under a cloud and she can not sell it or derive any profit therefrom on this account: That the said deed to Irvin Thomas is wholly without legal consideration, is fraudulent and void, and should be set aside, and the two mortgages subsequently given by said Thomas, are void as against the title of your oratrix in and to said land.

The Bill then prays, that an order of publication be granted giving notice to Irvin Thomas, Anna Oester and Matilda Burrow, all non-residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them, and each of them, to be and appear in this Court on a certain day to be named therein, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

And also that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties in the Bill named.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 8th day of September, 1926, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff give notice by publication in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 8th day of October, 1926, to the said non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of October, 1926, to answer the allegations of said Bill of complaint, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises, and that a writ of subpeona be directed to the resident parties named in said Bill of complaint.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET—STATE AND LOCAL

The Republican ticket, nominated at the recent primary election, is displayed at the head of this page of The Republican today, and it shall be the endeavor of The Republican, as the Republican newspaper representing Garrett county, to aid in the election of every candidate nominated, for the men are all of the highest type, there being not a single objectionable nominee on the ticket which should be successful on election day.

These men were nominated in a primary entirely free of interference of any kind with the expression of the voters except the usual pre-primary endorsements of individual choice, but the expression of the voters settled all individual opinions—the choice of the voters of the county should be the choice of every Republican on election day.

The charge of machine politics, has, in the past, entered largely into the defeat of Republicans in the State, but no such charge can be made this year. The contest was a friendly, free-for-all race, in which good men entered—good men were nominated—and good men defeated. There is no ground for soreness. Those who were defeated for nomination are men of honor and sportsmanship and are not political quitters or cry-babies.

They will come back—for they know the way to come back is to help the successful ones. Sympathy has, sometimes in the past, contributed to the defeat of Republican candidates; at other times other causes have contributed, but there is no excuse for Democratic candidates now.

An old-time Republican victory in Garrett county this year would give added strength to the party and make future successes easy and place it in the Republican column where it belongs by right of heritage.

GROWING INTEREST IN EDUCATION.

The interest taken in their schools by the taxpayers and teachers of Marion county, Arkansas, was considered of enough importance by the Mountain Echo, a newspaper of that county, to justify the dedication of an entire number to the public schools of the county. This paper dated June 10, 1926, gives the relative school tax rates for several Arkansas counties, the district tax rates of Marion county for a period of years, and the scholarship requirements for teachers' certificates in the State compared to the standards advocated by the Marion county teachers.

The people in 80 per cent of the districts of Marion county this year voted the maximum legal school tax levy of 12 mills, and two districts each voted an additional 3 mill voluntary tax. Each of the two preceding years 67 per cent of the county districts voted the maximum levy. "This shows the voters' genuine interest in better schools, as the State apportionment has more than doubled in the past four years."

The certification standards approved by the Marion county teachers require a minimum in academic training of high school graduation for the lowest grade certificate. Standards for the State are much lower apparently, as one-fifth of the rural teachers have only an eighth grade education or less. Teachers realize better than anyone else that good schools demand qualified teachers.

AN AMERICAN FLEET.

The expression of the President's views in behalf of a merchant marine under the American flag was a needed utterance. It came with particular timeliness following the extraordinary interview with Mr. Matthew C. Brush, advocating the sale of the government ships to foreign owners, if need be.

In defence of this move this American shipping expert argued that an American fleet was unnecessary for national defence. We could seize sufficient ships in our harbors in the event of hostilities, he declared. Just how we could take over the ships of neutrals he did not explain. Nor did he discuss the relevant fact that our present giant fleet was built to meet an urgent war need that no amount of seized shipping could fill.

Mr. Coolidge laid down a sound rule in declaring that no ships should be sold save to be operated under the American flag. A possible exception might be made in the case of small vessels of the tramp class. The national need of the faster freighters is as great in time of peace as in time of war. Regular fast service under our flag is essential to develop and protect American commerce. As the President suggested, the country is ready to spend enough money to operate these ships pending sale.

The pity is that Congress is so slow to face the realities of this cost. The present methods of operation are wasteful, and, in many cases, do not develop bona fide American lines. The vices of government operation, demonstrated repeatedly in many fields, cannot be avoided by leases or similar methods of control. The country desires a powerful merchant marine. It is willing to pay for it. Why not expend this price in the most efficient possible way by payments to private lines upon a basis of mail service or whatever other basis seems most effective?

With such a system of government support there would be little difficulty in selling the fleet to American owners. The wastes of government operation would be ended and the upbuilding of our American shipping personnel, ashore and afloat, would be certain of accomplishment. Meantime it is good to know that the fleet will not be dispersed among foreign owners.

NO CHANGE IN RUSSIA.

A non-official commission on Russian affairs, made up of lawyers, educators and clergymen, headed by Dr. Sherwood Eddy, has suggested that it is now time for the United States government to recognize Soviet Russia, and along with this comes the report that Russia is about to send a commission to the United States to make an agreement for the settling of the Russian debt.

In view of these occurrences and rumors it is gratifying to know that the views of the national administration on the recognition of the Russian government have not changed, and that there is no likelihood that they will change in the near future.

President Coolidge's statement to newspapermen on the Russian situation many months ago was:

"There is no change in the American policy, which, as I understand it, is that of awaiting evidence of the existence of a government there that in accordance with our standards, would warrant recognition, one that has such a form and has adopted such policies that we should be warranted in saying to the American people: 'This is a government that meets these requirements, and you will be justified in making commitments accordingly, and expecting, when these commitments are made, the usual support from your own government.'"

It is understood that there has been no change in position. There is little likelihood that Russia can give satisfactory assurance that she will maintain international obligations until there has been a complete change of government, and with the experience of Great Britain and other European nations who recognized Soviet Russia in mind there is no reason why America should change its settled Russian policy. The result would be increased communistic propaganda in the United States without any counterbalancing advantages.

Painful Discovery.

"Well," said the dentist as with a steel instrument he tapped Mr. Ackin's tooth, "I told you when I put that crown on that it might give you trouble. I never guarantee a crowned tooth." "Oh, I know. I wish I'd had the blame thing pulled!" moaned Mr. Ackins sadly. "I've found out to my sorrow that uneasy rests the tooth that wears a crown!"

MINISTERS OF GOSPEL THE POOREST PAID WORKERS

One way to increase interest in the churches and to cause a general revival in things religious would be to increase the pay of our clergymen, who are the poorest paid class of citizens in America today.

Recently The Republican contained an editorial touching upon this subject which is one affecting every man and woman in every community of the country.

If a movement were inaugurated to raise the level of compensation for the clergy fifty per cent within the next five years, the effort of itself would increase the interest and loyalty of churchgoers, and put new heart into underpaid clergymen, which would help to vitalize the churches. It woud put "religion on the map" as nothing else could do. That accomplished, the churches should not stop short of providing adequately for the old age or wornout pastors. Millions are being poured out by American philanthropy at this time on schemes far less worthy than this. What object more important than to put more heart and hope into all of the hundred thousand clergymen who are carrying to millions of Americans the one message that is to be depended upon to maintain not only the church, the state and ordered society? Surely the laborer not only in the industrial, but in the moral vineyard is worthy of his hire."

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Rev. Roland Aspinall has gone to attend the annual conference of his church after closing three successful years as pastor of the Park Methodist church. He is to be ordained elder at this session of the church gathering, which is being held at Buckhannon, West Va.

Dr. O. K. Widdoson has sold his last remaining piece of Park property to Mrs. Hill, of Washington, D. C., who purchased another of his properties here last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gnegy have announced the birth of a son, Robert Clyde Gnegy.

Superintendent F. E. Baker was here for a few hours yesterday engaged in closing up the business of the past season.

Mr. C. W. Schoupe has returned to his winter home at Homestead, Pa.

Mrs. F. I. Reed has closed her confectionery here and has moved her effects back to Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Mrs. Utterback and son Bobby have returned from Chicago where they had a delightful visit.

Miss June Dunnington continues to improve slowly. Her many friends trust that she will soon be restored to good health again.

BITTINGER

Farmers of this section are still hindered in the prosecution of their fall work by occasional rains.

Miss Mildred Wiley, of Akron, O., spent last Saturday night with her home folk here, returning to Ohio on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Sampson Bittinger, of Crellin, is spending a few days by the bed side of Mrs. Patterson Engle, who is seriously ill at her home here.

Wade H. Hinebaugh, of Oakland, was in this section last week calling on representatives of his party, with a possible view to the placing of a democratic ticket before the people at the November election.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp, who has been ill for some weeks is still convalescing.

Reports from some sections say that farmers will suffer considerable loss from the rotting of their potato crop.

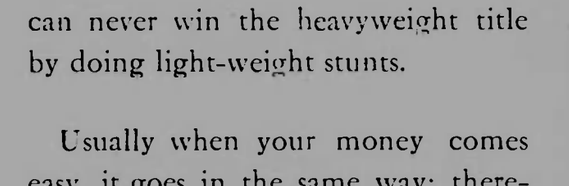
Safeguards

the household Water Supply

This all-galvanized, self-oiled installation is suitable for pumping from shallow wells or cisterns. Capacity, 240 gallons an hour. Automatic. Needs no attention. Noiseless in operation. Built to give a lifetime of every-hour-in-the-day water service.

Is your home water supply as convenient as you would like to have it? Does the present method of pumping water assure a constant water supply, uncontaminated and as pure as it comes from the ground?



Here is a Hoosier Water Service installation which provides the last word in home water supply convenience, and which will positively safeguard your household water supply. The famous Galvazink surface, of pure zinc, prevents corrosion, or any metallic impurities, delivering the water at the faucet as pure as it comes from the well.

The galvazink coating, inside and out, materially lengthens the usefulness of Hoosier Water Service, for there is no deterioration.

We recommend this complete, compact installation as an ideal one for providing plenty of water, under pressure for your home. You will be more than pleased with the advantages this modern convenience brings into your home. Come in and let us tell you how little it will cost to enjoy these advantages.

New Ways For Old.

In connection with the opening of the schools, Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Health, urges parents to have their children protected against diphtheria, one of the most dreaded of the "catching" diseases likely to flare up at this time of the year, as a result of the coming together of large groups of young children.

"The old way of treating diphtheria," Dr. Riley said, "was to wait until a child was ill, and then the most desperate measures had to be resorted to to save the child's life. Diphtheria anti-toxin was used and still is used to cure the disease. But we also have at our command a substance, called toxin-antitoxin, which will protect—or to use the scientific word—immunize—against the disease.

"The newer way is to prevent diphtheria by immunizing the children against the disease while they are well ,thereby saving untold suffering. When this method was first tried it was thought that it was necessary to find out whether or not a child would be likely to take diphtheria—that is, was susceptible to it—before immunizing against it. The susceptibility test was first tried out by an Austrian physician, Dr. Bela Schick, and it was accordingly named after him, the Schick test. But the studies that have been made since then of large groups of children have shown that practically all young children, beginning with babies six months old, are susceptible, so it is no longer regarded as necessary to have the preliminary test made.

"What is done is to give a child 3 inoculations, each a week apart, of the toxin-antitoxin. Then a follow-up test is given six months afterwards to be sure that the child is really protected from the disease.

"The State Department of Health has supply stations scattered through the counties at which both the antitoxin for curing the disease, and the toxin-antitoxin for preventing it, may be obtained by physicians or health officers. The protective dose is furnished free ;the curative dose, at cost.

"Parents who wish to have their children protected from the disease should go to the family doctor, or to the county health officer, to have it done.

"Since the newer ways of controlling diphtheria have been used in Maryland, we have had only half as many cases of the disease and less than half as many deaths. In 1921, five years ago, there were 1167 cases of diphtheria with 92 deaths, in the counties. In 1925 there were 613 cases with 40 deaths. We could stamp out diphtheria completely if parents would have their children protected against it and would join with the State Department of Health and the county health officers in the fight against it."

A Parent-Teacher Association has been formed at Corunna school in Garrett county with Wesley Harvey, president; Mrs. Harvey, secretary; C. L. Blamble, treasurer. The first meeting was held at the school house Friday night, September 24th. An excellent program was rendered by the scholars and music was furnished by the Oak Grove Cornet Band. Refreshments were served.

Victory Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Bayard, held their annual picnic in Nugent's Grove near Bayard, Saturday. A great day had been anticipated and a large crowd expected, but rain fell in torrents, preventing the out-of-town speakers arriving and putting a damper on the whole affair. However, the amusements and refreshments were moved to Emmons' Hall and there the Pythians and their friends gathered and spent a pleasant evening. Potomac Six Orchestra and Bayard Concert Band furnished music for the occasion.

Congressman Upshaw addressed a large audlene in the United Brethren church here on Tuesday afternoon. His subject, "Christian Citizenship," was ably handled.

Proof positive

See road test on Dodge cars 40% less oil, 10% less gas

For instance, a Dodge, run 1,080 miles from September 24th to October 22d, 1925, showed 40.9% increase in oil mileage; 10% increase in gas mileage; smoother operation at all speeds; more power; less drag on the hills.

Here's performance you have never dreamed of getting from any lubricating oil. Drive around to the nearest "Standard" Service Station or dealer and get a crank case full. Then expect results. You can actually feel the difference.

(New Jersey)

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing—smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

Ponder the basic elements underlying Dodge Brothers remarkable success and one simple fact stands boldly out:

The public not only believe in the goodness of Dodge Brothers Motor Car, they believe in the men who build it and the men who sell it.

That is why the word DEPENDABLE is associated the world over with Dodge Brothers name. It goes beyond the product and embraces every department in Dodge Brothers great organization.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 51. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, OCTOBER 7, 1926. NUMBER 33.

MARYLAND G. O. P. ADOPT A DRY PLANK PLATFORM

Fight Led By Congressman Hill To Defeat Prohibition Plank Was Lost in Committee

Maryland Republicans in convention assembled in Baltimore last Thursday adopted a platform aimed at the head of Governor Albert C. Ritchie and including a dry plant in direct contrast to the Democrats, who, a week preceding, declared for amendment of the prohibition laws.

"We condemn Governor Albert C. Ritchie for his open and flagrant laws," said the prohibition plank approved by the Republican delegates. "The attitude of the governor has created widespread disorder and lawlessness. Lack of respect for law is the forerunner of failure of government. Under the course pursued by Governor Ritchie, respect for law and order will continue its decline."

Governor Ritchie's states rights doctrine was asserted in the platform to be "not only deplorable," but "mentally dishonest in thnt it seeks to create an atmosphere of antagonism, which does not exist, in fact."

The convention nominated United States Senator O. E. Weller for another term, and Addison E. Mullikin, Senator Weller's candidate for Governor.

Representative John Philip Hill, who lost the State to Weller at the September 4 primary, was given an ovation in the hall, where he sat as a delegate by proxy. Colonel Hill seconded the nomination of Senator Weller, ratifying the primary returns.

A fight led by Colonel Hill to defeat the prohibition plank and substitute a wet plank was lost in committee without reaching the convention floor. No vote was taken in the committee but Chairman Lawrence B. Towers said it was ninety per cent dry.

The platform also demanded an investigation of the Conowingo deal.

"We charge," the platform says, "that the present Governor has demonstrated his utter indifference with respect to the vital interests of the people of this State.

"By the provisions of the contract, for which the Governor has assumed full responsibility, there is created a monopoly in the development of electrical power, exceeded in size only by the similar enterprises at Niagara Falls and Muscle Shoals.

"Such a resource should primarily have been devoted to the industrial upbuilding and prosperity of our own State; it would have resulted in the enlargement of the taxable basis and consequent reduction of the tax rate; in the reduction of the rates for house current to householders, and would have immeasureably increased the prestige of the State for manufacturing.

"It has been given away and will be enjoyed by others to the exclusion of the people and the industries of Maryland."

One other point the convention condemned: "the attempt of the present Governor to obtain a third elective term, whereby all activities of the State will be even more completely under his domination," and advocating rotation in office.

It also urged that a bridge over the Chesapeake be constructed, to open the Eastern Shore counties a market nearer than Wilmington or Washington.

The convention favored the adoption by Congress, of economically sound legislation for the amelioration of agricultural problems and such amendments to the immigration laws as may be necessary to eliminate needless hardships.

Support of the convention was pledged to the appointment "of capable county magistrates who will administer the automobile and other laws with fairness and justice" and to "progressive legislation in the interest of the farmers of the State, particularly with regard to a practical method of cooperative marketing."

Colonel Hill suggested four amendments to the platform, advocating opposition to the Volstead Act, the entrance of the United States into the World Court, the upholding of the right of each state to order and control its own Democratic institutions and of religious freedom. Only the latter amendment was adopted.

The Republican stand on law enforcement was further stated:

"Our candidate for Governor is contending for election to a State office, entirely legislative and not executive in character. Irrespective of what his views may be, it is his duty, under his oath of office, when elected, to uphold the legislation and enforce the law. We pledge our candidate to enforce the law."

Following the session of the convention there was a meeting of the State Central Committee in which Galen L. Tait was reelected chairman.

TWO WEEKS TO COMPLETE ROAD TO MORGANTOWN

Contractor Says Stretch From Kingwood May Be Finished By October 20th.

Two weeks dry enough to permit the pouring of concrete will see the completion of the hard surfaced road from Morgantown to Kingwood, according to W. H. Schimmel, of the Keeley Construction Company, the contracting concern having the work in charge.

Recent rains have greatly hampered the work, but only one mile and a quarter remains to be paved, according to Mr. Schimmel.

The concrete slab has now been poured beyond Sturgisson to a point within about 1,400 feet of the Greer tipple. In 12½ days of pouring last month, the company poured only 400 feet less than a mile, so they have confidence of being able to complete the road not later than October 20, unless there are unusual rains during the intervening period. The company had only six days in August on which it was dry enough to pour and only 16 days in September.

The bridge at Dellslow will be completed by the time the road is finished. The arch was finished on September 15, and the forms have been built for the wings and side-rails. Mr. Schimmel said that the roadway over and approaching the bridge could be poured in one or two days.

When the stretch of road is completed the long awaited outlet from Preston county into Morgantown will be provided, as well as the new route from Washington, Pa. ,via Waynesburg, Morgantown, Kingwood, Terra Alta, Oakland and Romney to Winchester, Va., that will be more than 60 miles shorter than over the National Highway. This road will find an outlet not only to the National Highway but also to the Northwestern Pike though Oakland, where connection will be made with the Maryland system of roads east, north and south.

It is possible that the celebration of the opening of this road may be made a part of the sesqui-centennial program for Morgantown on October 21, 22 and 23, even if the road is not actually opened by that time.

DIED.

JAMES A. DELAWDER

The funeral of the late James A. Delawder, whose death occurred at his home in Oakland on last Thursday morning, took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, Dr. Archibald Moore, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, conducting the services. Mr. Delawder was the eldest son of G. W. and Martha Delawder, and was aged 69 years and 11 months. He was born in Howard County, Md., and came to Oakland with his parents as a boy. For many years he was employed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company as its local agent and while thus employed he suffered a stroke of paralysis. He continued in charge of the railway company's interests here, however, for some years following, resigning about twenty-five years ago, and engaging in other pursuits. For a time he was a justice of the peace but in recent years lived a retired life. He was married to Miss May Jamesson, of Piedmont about forty years ago. Mrs. Delawder died in 1918 of influenza.

MRS. CLARA B. MASON.

Mrs. Clara B. Mason, residing near Swanton, died on September 7th, 1926. She was born on August 22, 1853, and grew to womanhood at a time when educational advantages were very limited. However, she acquired some education and her ability to read was a great blessing in her declining years, she spending her hours in perusing her bible and religious literature. She was converted at the age of eighteen years at a revival at North Glade and from that time until her death she led a good, Christian life. During her decline she suffered greatly.

Harland Hardesty, of Pittsburgh, who spent last week in Oakland with his parents, returned to Pittsburgh on Sunday, being accompanied by his brother Olin ,who will remain in that city a few dnys before returning to his home.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS MET IN CONFERENCE TUESDAY

When Various Persons Were Suggested As Candidates To Fill Local Ticket

Democrats to the number of sixty or more from nearly every section of the county assembled at the Court House in Oakland for the purpose of a conference with the recently elected county committee and to make suggestions relative to candidates to fill the local ticket to be voted at the November election.

The meeting was held at the suggestion of the committee, of which Mr. U. O. Blocher, of Grantsville, is chairman, who called the assembly to order at two o'clock. Mr. William Miller, of Accident, was selected as the presiding officer, who, upon taking the chair stated the object of the gathering and asked that suggestions be made as to possible candidates, resulting in the following:

For State Senator, John W. McCullough; House of Delegates, J. M. Nugent, B. I. Gonder, J. C. Johnson; Sheriff, Charles Welling, George J. Pool, Wade H. Hinebaugh, Jefferson Ralston; County Commissioners, Harvey Gortner, Fred. P. Miller; State's Attorney, A. Totten Matthews, Stuart F. Hamill.

The committee, it was said by a leading member of the party following the conference, will be bound by the suggestions made at the conference and will therefore be compelled to select the candidates from among those suggested for the various party places unless they refuse to be candidates following their selection as such by the committee.

FRIENDSVILLE CLASS GET THE SILVER LOVING CUP

As Prize in Third Annual Dairy Cattle Judging Contest

Boys representing Friendsville department of vocational agriculture carried away honors in the third annual dairy cattle judging contest held on September 29th in connection with the Garrett County Fair in Oakland. The boys in the Friendsville team were Coddington and Ryland.

The contest consisted in placing a class of pure bred Jersey cows and giving reasons for the placing. One hundred points were allowed for perfect placing and one hundred points for perfect reasons, making a possible score of two hundred points for each boy, or four hundred points for a team. Each of the four departments of agriculture in the county were represented by a team in the contest and that competition was keen is indicated by the following scores:

Friendsville: Coddington, 145; Ryland, 155; total, 300.

Grantsville: Loechel, 150; Baker, 145; total, 295.

Accident: Callis, 130; McGettigan, 145; total, 275.

The handsome silver loving cup was presented by the four vocational agricultural clubs of the county and becomes the permanent property of the department winning it for three consecutive years, otherwise it is held by the winners for only one year.

It will be remembered that the same Friendsville team won a similar contest in connection with the Community Fair at Grantsville on September 16. As consecutive winners, may they again show their abilify as dairy cattle judges at the State contest for vocational boys at the Frederick Fair on Octoher 20th, from which the highest three boys are selected to represent Maryland in the National vocational boys judging contest held each year in connection with the National dairy show.

The judging and selection of dairy cattle is but one phase of the year's work in vocational agriculture. It enables the boy to more accurately select the profitable dairy cow. Can it be that such training and work is valuable to the boy of today who will be the dairymen and farmers of tomorrow? We believe it will and that this type of instruction is worth while and that in judging contests a good movement has been started.

Those in charge of the contest wish to express appreciation to the Oakland Jewelry Company for securing the cup at a minimum cost; to Mr. Conover, of the University of Maryland, and to Mr. Clayton Jester, the county agent, who were judges in the contest and to others who aided in making it possible to hold the contest.

FINE OF $200 IMPOSED OR 4 MONTHS AT JESSUPS

Intoxicated Driver Draws Salty Sentence In Justice Gonder's Court Monday Morning

Charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants, without having a registration certificate or driver's license in his possession at the time of his arrest following a collision with another car driven by a young man named Weeks of Mountain Lake Park, Sunday night about ten o'clock, Arthur O. Cooper, of near Wilson, at a hearing before Justice Gonder Monday morning entered a plea of guilty to all three charges. The magistrate imposed a minimum fine of $1 in each of the second and third charges, but on the first charge a fine of $200 and 30 days in the County Jail was imposed. In default of paying the fine Cooper will spend four months in the House of Correction at Jessups.

The collision occurred on the Oakland-Mountain Lake Park road. Fortunately the occupants of neither car were injured, but the automobiles in both cases were badly damaged.

The convicted man is a well-to-do farmer residing in Election District No. 8. The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff W. D. Casteel.

ROAD WORKER INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Skidding Car Strikes Grantsville Man who Sustains Broken Ribs

Struck by an automobile operated by Harry Waxman, of Cleveland, O., while walking along the National Highway near Grantsville at 8:50 o'clock Monday morning, McClelland Butler, 62 years old, of Grantsville, employed as a road patrolman by the State Roads Commission, sustained two broken ribs and painful bruises about his body.

Following the accident, Waxman was arrested by Officer L. D. Parker, of the La Vale sub-station of the State Police, charged with reckless driving, and was fined $15 and costs at a hearing before Magistrate C. S. Zeller at Grantsville.

According to the testimony at the hearing Butler was walking along the edge of the highway when the machine operated by Waxman and owned by L. Richard Marcus, of Cleveland, also an occupant of the car, skidded on the slippery road and swerved across the highway, striking the aged man. The officer said that the car was being driven at an excessive speed at the time.

Butler was taken to the office of Dr. Davis at Grantsville where his injuries were dressed and later takea to his home.

In-service training for county school superintendents through intensive short courses is becoming more and more extensive and the courses offered more and more professional in tone.

Last July a conference of these officers, three weeks in duration, was held at Laramie, Wyoming. County superintendents from 13 of the 23 counties were in attendance. Among the topics for discussion were the replacement of eighth grade examination questions by objective tests; preparation of daily programs in one-teacher schools; time allotment for civics, agriculture and hygiene; county school organization. A similar conference was held at about the same time, of one week's duration, for the county superintendents of North Dakota. Considerable time in both of these conferences was given to the instructional supervision phase of the county superintendent's work.

Car Demolished On Railroad Crossing.

The Hudson coach of J. Sloan Arnold, of Keyser, West Va., who with a party of friends had been in Oakland Thursday where they engaged in the clay bird shooting match held under the auspices of the Oakland Gun Club, was totally demolished Thursday night at Wilson, twelve miles east of Oakland, when it was struck by passenger train No. 21. The night was dark and extremely foggy and Mr. Arnold drove onto the crossing unaware of its close proximity when his motor stalled just as the train came into view. The occupants of the car had time to jump from the vehicle before it was struck and thus escaped serious injury or probably instant death. Mr. Arnold's party consisted of his son John Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders and Edgar McDonald, all of Keyser.

GARRETT COUNTY FAIR ENDED SATURDAY EVENING

Weather Conditions Poor, But a Successful Meet Was Had

The annual Garrett County Fair for 1926 closed on Saturday afternoon and while the weather man appeared to be against the fair and the people who did attend and the hundreds who wanted to attend but who were afraid to venture out in the elements, the Fair closed passably successful and may have sufficient funds to meet all the expenses when everything owing the association is collected.

The weather throughout the fair with the exception of Friday was almost intolerable, but Friday was an ideal day and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowds present.

The main attraction on Friday was the parade sponsored by the American Legion in which several other organization joined, including the Boy Scouts and the local Rotary Club, a number of the local and rural schools with their teachers and various floats depicting National events, such as the Betsy Ross incident when that old lady designed and made the original Stars and Stripes; Liberty with her burning torch enlightening the world; the boomers with their covered wagon and a troop of mounted Indians.

As was stated in The Republican last week the exhibits at this year's Fair were superior in number and in quality over any previous Fair held in Oakland.

It has been suggested to the Fair management that next year an earlier date be set for the fair, which has met with the approval of many interested.

Three Injured in Wreck on Pike Last Night.

Rev. J. E. Johnson and his son, who is manager of the Oakland Laundry, and Mr. James Kerins, of Kerins Bros. Garage, Oakland, were all more or less painfully bruised last night when the automobile, a new Paige car owned and driven by the younger Johnson, skidded and left the National Highway at the top of Purseley Run hill, going over the embankment a distance of twelve feet or more and turning upon its side. The elder Mr. Johnson was the more seriously injured, his hurts being confined to his shoulders and arms, while the younger Mr. Johnson was cut by glass and was more or less bruised. Mr. Kerins received injuries to his legs and back. The car was damaged considerably.

THE COUNTY WIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY IN OAKLAND

Will Occur Sunday Afternoon, October 17th, Followed by an Open-Air Mass Meeting.

As announced in The Republican last Thursday a Sunday school rally and parade will be held in Oakland on the afternoon of Sunday, October 17, in which all of the schools of the county have been asked to take active parts. Many of these organizations have signified their desire and willingness to do so and therefore it is fair to presume that a large crowd of Sunday school pupils and officials will be present to make this the first county-wide rally the success it should be.

The various Sunday schools will assemble at 1:30 o'clock at the grammar school building where the parade will be formed which is scheduled to move at two o'clock. If the weather is favorable the parade will disband at Helbig's Grove where a mass meeting will be held, but if the weather should make it inadvisable to hold the meeting out of doors, then it will be held either in one of the cuhrches or in the Maryland Theatre.

At least two and perhaps three bands will be in the parade and will also render music at the meeting to follow.

There will be an address by Mr. R. Paul Smith, superintendent of the Potomac Edison Electric Railway of Hagerstown, music by a male quartet from Loch Lynn Heights, as well as other features of interest and entertainment.

The meeting will be open to everyone, whether a member of a Sunday school or not, and the people of the county are urged to turn out and encourage this work.

The mothers of the Cradle Roll babies are requested and urged to bring their babies in carriages and join in the street parade.

Allegany Countian Fined for Violating Hunting Law.

James R. Keller, of Lonaconing, Allegany county, was before Justice W. A. Gonder Saturday following his arrest charged with hunting in Garrett county without having first procured from the proper officials a permit. Keller was fined $15 and costs. His arrest was made by a deputy game warden residing near Bloomington in which community the offense was committed.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Glover and family, of Uniontown, Pa., were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McGettigan over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hetrick and daughter Bernadette, of Morgantown, West Va., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Beeghley recently.

Mrs. Wm. Rumbaugh and family, of Lemont Furnace, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bowman were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Whitehair and daughters Helen Louise and Josephine were visiting Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Keller on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glass, of Uniontown, Pa., were visiting friends and relatives near Hazelton, W. Va., recently.

Mrs. John Hetrick is visiting relatives and friends near Hazelton, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harmon and family were Sunday dinner guests of Miss Clara Georg.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Miller attended the funeral of the late Mr. Welch at Friendsville on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Scrogum and family were guests of Mrs. J. A. Speicher on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Okey Friend were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Friend Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Harvey spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Harvey at Paradise.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Richter were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller, Sunday.

Mrs. Florence Schlosnagle, of the Cove, spent Sunday in Accident with Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Haenftling.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiliam Zinkan were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lohr.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fearer were visitors at the home of Mrs. Allen Glover on Sunday.

Misses Rose Frickey and Violet Beitzel, who are attending high school here, walked to their homes in Bittinger on Friday evening. The jaunt of eight or ten miles was enjoyed by these two young women very much.

Miss Edna Margroff, who is employed at Akron, Ohio, has returned to her work after having spent her vacation here with relatives.

Miss Ruth Neutzling spent the week end at her home in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Mr. Coit Speicher, who is employed in Cumberland, spent Sunday at his home in Accident.

Mr. Carl Harmon, a seminary student at St. Louis, Mo., occupied the pulpit in Zion Lutheran church here on last Sunday evening. His discourse was listened to with much interest by those assembled to hear him.

Mr. Arthur Speicher, of the Frostburg State Normal School, was at his home here over the week-end.

Mr. W. H. Miller, principal of the high school, visited friends in Terra Alta, W. Va., Saturday and Sunday.

The members of the faculty of Accident high and grammar schools held a get together meeting on Friday evening, October 1st, in the school auditorium where they met the parents of the children who are pupils in the school. The purpose of this meeting was to get the parents and teachers better acquainted with one another and to bring about a better school spirit. The evening was spent with talks and singing. Refreshments were prepared by the home economics department and were served by some of the girls who are taking this course.

The total enrollment in the high school is 67. The senior class has 13; the junior class, 13; the sophomore class, 13 and the freshmen class 28. Each Monday morning for a few minutes there is held a chapel exercise which all the children of the grades and the high school attend.

On Thursday, the 30th of September, John Speicher and Edward Glotfelty gave a demonstration of knot tyeing and soil testing at the county fair. The object of this work was to show the farmers the kind of teaching done in the department of agriculture in Garrett county. This department at Accident will be willing to test soil at any time.

The third place seems to be as far as the cattle judging team can advance. The members of the team are John McGettigan and Marvin Callis with Raymond Kolb as substitute.

The Accident high school soccer and volley ball teams played their first county league games of the year on Wednesday of last week at the county fair grounds with the Oakland high school teams as their opponents. The girls with only three girls from last year's county champions played like veterans and defeated Oakland 32-5. The boys did not fare so well. With only one regular left from last year's team they took the field, most of them to get a first trial in a real game. They played a good game but could not stop Oakland's attack. The final score was 3-0 in Oakland's favor.

On Friday the Accident athletic teams journeyed to Oakland again for the county athletic meet which had been postponed from last spring. When the day's totals were computed they revealed the fact that Accident had won the meet with a total of 99 points—thirty more than their nearest rival, Oakland.

NEW GERMANY

The Parent-Teacher Association of the New Germany school met on Wednesday evening, September 29th, for the purpose of reorganizing for the year. Mr. R. L. Gauer, who recently purchased the Arch Baker farm, is moving to his new home with his family.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

Rev. Roland Aspinall, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, has been reappointed minister on this charge, it being his fourth appointment as such. His parishioners are extremely pleased that he is be again their pastor.

Roland Ready, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ready, received painful injuries Sunday evening when he fell down a steep embankment, breaking his right leg and left arm. Dr. Broadwater, of Oakland, was called to aid the youth and after giving him first aid he was sent to the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland where he is being given the best of care. Mr. and Mrs. Ready have been very unfortunate in recent months. During the past winter their daughter fell and broke her leg from which she has not yet recovered. Roland's accident Sunday was the second misfortune he has met with during the past year. The first time he was thrown from a bicycle, when his leg was broken and from which he has only recently recovered.

Wiley Welling moved into the Thompson cottage last Saturday.

Mr. C. C. Gnegy, who recently completed his new home located on the State road near the western edge of the Park, moved into it on Saturday. The dwelling is one of the most substantially built and handsomest in the Park.

Rev. A. Bailey has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church at Loch Lynn Heights and is moving into the parsonage this week.

Mr. R. C. Tassie and family are on their annual visit to relatives and friends in the State of Vermont.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further encated by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to he held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Salina Oester vs. Irvin Thomas, Amy Bowser, his wife, Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester, Matilda Burrow. No. 2698 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree declaring void a deed to Irvin Thomas from George Oester and Salina Oester, his wife, and declaring void two subsequent mortgages given by said Irvin Thomas; and to secure the appointment of trustees to sell the property described in the said deed, and for other and further relief.

The Bill states: That a certain farm of approximately 150 acres of land, was conveyed to George Oester and Salina Oester, as tenants by the entireties, by deed from Catherine Diehl, duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That George Oester and Salina Oester made a deed of trust of the said farm to Edward T. Bowser, Trustee for Perry Bowser, to secure payment of a certain debt, said Deed of Trust is duly recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and its validlty is not questioned by the plaintiff in these proceedings.

That except for 17¼ acres of said land previously conveyed to John Gatterman, Salina Oester and George Oester, her husband, did convey the aforesaid farm together with certain personal property, to Irvin Thomas, by deed dated the 3rd day of November, 1917, and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

That the consideration set forth in the last mentioned deed, required the grantee to provide a comfortable maintenance for grantors during their lives, and decent burial at death, and to pay $2500.00 in cash as directed in said deed; the bill further states, that the said Thomas provided a living for said grantors, from November 1917, until April, 1923, at which time grantee, totally abandoned said farm and the grantors, said abandonment has continued without interruption to the present time, and said grantee has not contributed toward the support of grantors, or either of them, did not pay funeral expenses of George Oester, now deceased, has not paid any part of the $2500.00 required to be paid by condition in said deed. That the said Irvin Thomas and wife, executed a mortgage of said farm, to Perry Bowser, dated June 10th, 1918, recorded in Land and Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $500.00 which had been advanced by said Bowser to said Thomas; and the said mortgagee, accepted said mortgage as security for the money so advanced, although he knew, or was charged with knowledge, that said Thomas had only a defeasible title to said land, and that security for said mortgage was liable to be destroyed by failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land, and that said defect in the title of said Thomas, was apparent upon the face of the deed to said land to the said Irvin Thomas, the said mortgage was later assigned by the said Bowser, to Amy Bowser, his wife.

That the said Irvin Thomas, later executed another mortgage of the same property to Anna Oester, Adam J. Oester and Matilda Burrow, dated the 3rd day of July, 1923, and recorded among the Land and Morotgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, to secure the payment of $1320.85, advanced to the said Thomas; and the said mortgagees accepted said mortgage as security for the money advanced, although they knew, or were charged with knowledge, that the title of said Thomas was only a defeasible title, aparent upon the face of the deed from the said George Oester and Salina Oester, to the said Irvin Thomas, and the said security was liable to be destroyed through failure of said Thomas to complete the purchase of said land. That the said George Oester died intestate, sometime in the month of April, 1924.

That the aforesaid farm conveyed by George Oester and Salina Oester, to Irvin Thomas, is now abandoned and is depreciating in value through neglect, and on account of said deed to Irvin Thomas, and later mortgages given by said Thomas, the title of the said Salina Oester, is under a cloud and she can not sell it or derive any profit therefrom on this account: That the said deed to Irvin Thomas is wholly without legal consideration, is fraudulent and void, and should be set aside, and the two mortgages subsequently given by said Thomas, are void as against the title of your oratrix in and to said land.

The Bill then prays, that an order of publication be granted giving notice to Irvin Thomas, Anna Oester and Matilda Burrow, all non-residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them, and each of them, to be and appear in this Court on a certain day to be named therein, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.

And also that a writ of subpoena be directed to the resident parties in the Bill named.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 8th day of September, 1926, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff give notice by publication in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 8th day of October, 1926, to the said non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warning them to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of October, 1926, to answer the allegations of said Bill of complaint, and abide by and perform such decree as may be passed in the premises, and that a writ of subpeona be directed to the resident parties named in said Bill of complaint.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

For Bladder Relief Is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience.

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 824 No. Park St., Columbus, Ohio, says: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation until we used lithiated buchu (Keller Formula). She would have to get up 6 or 8 times each night. Will gladly answer any letter."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epsom salts on the bowels. Drives out foreign matter and decreases excessive acidity, thereby relieving irritation. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. THE SCHOOLHOUSE FLAG

The sight of the United States flag floating to the breeze makes a patriotic appeal to every American. Such an appeal is more impressive when the flag is sufficiently large, is in good repair and is properly mounted on a staff. It is particularly appropriate this year, which marks the sesquicentennial anniversary of the birth of the Nation, for "Old Glory" to float above every public school in the land.

The statutes of more than three-fourths of the States require the display of the United States flag on or near every public school building. Thousands of schools throughout the land take great delight in carefully performing this duty; some schools are somewhat careless in this respect. A deputy superintendent of Nevada says in his annual report that he often finds, as he visits the schools, the flag rope broken, or the flag pole inaccessible, because of its location on top of the building, or the school without a flag. It is not uncommon to find in other States, especially in the rural districts, conditions similar to those described. School officers, teachers, and pupils, should know the laws of their respective States regarding the display of the flag and should cooperate in their enforcement.

A DISCREDITED "REFORM."

Now that the primaries of the campaign of 1926 are a thing of the past and a general survey can be made of the situation, one fact stands out very clearly, and that is that the primary has outlived its day of usefulness, if it ever had any. This year's primaries have proved again that the system is expensive and that it will not bring out the voters in anything like sufficient numbers to make good the theory of majority rule. From every state comes the same story—that a comparative handful of voters, a minority and in many cases a small minority, have selected the candidates to be voted on at the November election.

There is some evidence, too, that in many of the states the voters have decided that it is about time to get rid of this cumbersome system. Ohio in the coming election will hold a referendum on the subject, and it is expected that the primary laws will be materially changed, as a result. In New Jersey an effort is being made to get rid of the primary and in Indiana both political parties have declared against the system in their state platforms.

There are many objections to the primary. Among these is the one that it is a necessarily expensive system. It has placed a haidicap on the poor man who desires to run for office and given him the choice of remaining out of the race or binding himself to some wealthy interest or constituent in order to get the funds for a campaign. The primary has so increased the number of elections that many people have lost interest and now refuse to vote at all.

But the greatest objection of all is that the primary violates the system of representative government designed by the Constitution. It has substituted pure democracy for representative government and the change has not worked well. Every time, we, as Americans, have legislated in a way to take us further from the Constitution and its fundamental principles, we have suffered. The primary affords us an eloquent proof of this fact. The sensible thing to do is to get rid of it.

LOOK TO THE SOUTH

According to Dr. Julius Klein, Director of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the sales of the United States to the countries of South America have doubled in the last five years. This means that the business men of the United States are shipping twice as much to these countries as they were sending in 1921 and this in spite of the fact that the competition from Europe in the South American field is much stronger than it was then.

We have heard a great deal during the past few months about what was going to happen to us when Europe quits trading with us on account of our high tariff. Of course, nothing is going to happen along that line because the tariff is not a handicap in our trade as evidenced by the fact that our imports from Europe have greatly increased during the past few months. But at any rate it is well to keep in mind that it is going to be increasingly hard to sell in Europe as the industries of that continent recover from the effects of the World War and its aftermath.

This means that it would be well for us to be looking around for other markets, and indeed we will need markets anyhow, if our foreign trade is to continue to grow. The best market in sight at this time is that of the southern countries of our own hemisphere. Here are twenty nations which are now taking our goods in increasing quantities. We ought to encourage this by seeing to it that our relations with South America are always of the friendliest character. The value of our business with South America is coming to be realized more and more each year. The teaching of Spanish in our public schools and colleges is on the increase. This itself is an evidence of our growing interest in our neighbors to the south, an interest which ought to be cultivated in every way possible.

McHENRY

Virgil, Playford, Bruce and Paul,
Who you see are Glotfeltys all;
Left this town and went away—
We hope they'll come back some day.

They went to Friendsville to work, I guess,
But that doesn't make us miss them less—
They're keeping house, too, by themselves
With palatable food on pantry shelves.

Miss Mabel Glotfelty, who spent the past week with friends in Crellin, returned to her home Wednesday.

Miss Knapp, teacher in Kitzmiller high school, accompanied by Mr. Mark Bender, spent Sunday and took dinner with Miss Florence Whittaker at the home of Mr. George Glotfelty.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ault, of Accident, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Glotfelty at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Glotfelty and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Glotfelty.

Among those present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Brenneman on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Glotfelty, Jr., and family, Misses Annabelle and Ellie Glotfelty and Mary Reynolds.

Mr. Asa Glotfelty and family, Mr. Walter Glotfelty and family departed from here one day last week for Spokane, Washington, where they will reside in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Sweet and Mr. and Mrs. Larn Herbert, of Washington, who were in Oakland to attend the funeral of their uncle, the late J. A. Delawder, were callers at the home of George Glotfelty at this place on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Samuel Suter, of Terra Alta, W. Va., has been visiting Mrs. John Glotfelty at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Beeron Glotfelty and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Railey and family on Sunday.

Mr. Edward K. Glotfelty was the guest of Mr. Webster Brenneman on Sunday.

NEARBY FORESTS ARE PROTECTED BY FIRE TOWERS

Maryland Has No National Forests But State Looks After 2,000,000 Acres Timberland

Years ago many of America's best forests, some in this section containing millions of feet of valuable lumber, were wiped out by fire. Even today we read of serious fires which rage through valuable timberland in Garrett and Allegany counties, but this menace and waste is being checked greatly by the organized efforts of the National and State governments.

In fact, nearly every State, as well as the Federal government, recognizes the necessity of conserving our forests in every way possible, and the State and Federal forest services are using every means at their disposal to prevent destruction of existing forests as well as promote the growth of additional timberland.

Much of the timber that once grew in the virgin forests of North America has been cut to be put to man's uses, but a considerable part—that which fell prey to flames—had been a pure waste. One big part of the work of the forest services, therefore, is to prevent fire and, when fire does break out, to check it as quickly as possible.

Forest rangers who are on the constant lookout for incipient forest fires naturally cannot depend on their individual efforts to extinguish a blaze once they do find it, nor can they always locate a blaze, single-handed, since they must use lookout points which often are far away from the wisp of smoke they discern. One of the chief weapons of the fire-fighters, then, would naturally be supposed to be a quick means of communication. And whereas it might at first seem incongruous to find telephone lines strung throughout the uninhabited wilderness, the need of the forest service for such excellent means of communication explains the paradox.

In Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia there are four natural forests comprising 700,000 acres. The forestry departments of these three states have supervision over 20,000,000 acres. There is an old saying that "self-preservation is the first law of nature." With this thought as an object lesson each of these states has done much toward the preservation of the forests within its borders, so that timber which has been ruthlessly destroyed in the past may be renewed and waste lands reforested for the benefit of future generations.

The United States is a great agricultural and grazing country, and naturally the very life of these industries is dependent on the forests, it is reasonable to understand why the Forest Service should come under the general supervision of the Department of Agriculture. The keynote of forest administration is service. When the national forests, limited in number and acreage were turned over to the Department of Agriculture in 1905, Secretary James Wilson issued an order to the foresters and rangers to conserve these public properties "to the greatest good of the greatest number in the long run."

With this as an objective, the National Forest Service and the departments of forestry in the states have performed wonders in making the national and state forests a real place of recreation as well as increasing the monetary value of the properties.

To the camper, sportsman and seeker after health, rest and recreation, the national forests offer unriveled opportunities for outdoor life and enjoyment. Roads and trails marked by signs make the forests reasonably accessible, and thousands of people visit these natural playgrounds each year. Especially is this true of the State forest at Swallow Falls and other forests of note in Western Maryland. There are countless secluded spots along the banks of streams and lakes where the camper may pitch his tent and stay an indefinite time. The sites are free and generally require no permit. He may choose his own camp ground and help himself to dead wood for fuel and to forage.

In localities frequented by large numbers of people "recreation areas" are being established and log shelters, camp fireplaces and other conveniences are provided for the visitors. The only restriction that the forestry department imposes is that the fish and game laws of the state be observed and that the visitor look to the fire protection and proper sanitation of his camp.

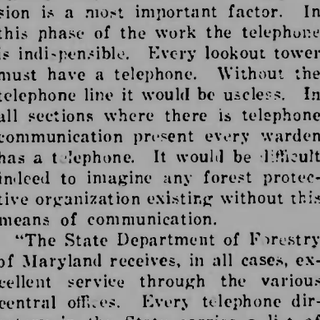
Fire is an ever-present danger in the forests. The great size of the forests compared with the size of the patrolling force, the difficulty of reaching remote areas, the prevalence of lightning in the mountains and the constant use of fire in the daily life of the people in the industries all combine to make the hazard an exceptional one.

Among the chief causes of fire, according to William B. Greeley, U. S. Forester at Washington, are lightning campers, railroads, incendiarism and steam sawmills. A small fire may spread into a conflagration, and fire, matches and burning tobacco should be used as carefully as they are in the home. Carelessness in respect to the use of fire may mean the loss of lives homes, stock and forage and of the vast amount of timber which belongs equally to all citizens.

Fires may start in regions remote from supplies and water and reach vast proportions before fire fighters can get to the scene, no matter how promptly the start is made. By far the best plan, therefore, is to prevent fires rather than to depend upon fighting them once they start. This subject has been given the most earnest attention by the forest service.

The method of fighting fires once they start was aptly illustrated at the Garrett County Fair by Forest Warden A. L. Sines, who had a complete miniature equipment on hand and demonstrated its use very aptly and entertainly.

During the danger season, which is now coming on, the main attention of supervisors and rangers is devoted to prevent fire. Extra men are employed, the forests are systematically patrolled and a careful lookout is maintained from high points. Roads and trails are being built so that all parts of the forest may be quickly reached. Tools and food for fire fighters are stored at convenient places. The ranger stations and lookout points are connected with the offices of the supervisors by telephone so that men may be quickly assembled to fight dangerous fires which the patrolmen cannot subdue alone.



In Maryland there are no National forests, but about 2,000,000 acres of the timberlands are looked after by the State Department of Forestry. As in the National forests, the forestry department finds telephone service vitally important in protecting the state's timber.

John R. Curry, Assistant State Forester at Baltimore, recently said: "It is universally recognized by forest fire protective organizations that the time elapsing between the start of the fire and the reporting of the fire to the agency responsible for the suppression is a most important factor. In this phase of the work the telephone is indispensible. Every lookout tower must have a telephone. Without the telephone line it would be useless. In all sections where there is telephone communication present every warden has a telephone. It would be difficult indeed to imagine any forest protective organization existing without this means of communication.

"The State Department of Forestry of Maryland receives, in all cases, excellent service through the various central offices. Every telephone directory in the State carries a list of the forest wardens in that section which the book serves. Forest fires may be reported directly to the telephone exchange and the operator will relay the message to the proper authority."

"Because of these services the Department of Forestry is much interested in the development of telephone communication throughout the state."

SOLUTION OF LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

As To Breakfasts.

The Health Gnome, who occasionally visits the State Department of Health, is something of a Quaker. He gets a "concern" over things that aren't going as they should. Then he speaks out in meeting. He blew in as usual a few days ago ,through one of the open windows of the office of the Bureau of Child Hygiene. Nobody saw him perched on the edge of a desk until he whisked off his little green cap, thereby becoaing visible. Then he voiced his concern. It was about the kind of breakfast children eat before going to school.

"I've been dropping in on some of my small friends," he said, "and they aren't eating the right sort of breakfasts. Instead of eating some fruit—a baked apple, some stewed prunes or something of that sort—a dish of cooked cereal, with plenty of milk on it, a glass of milk, a soft boiled egg, or a slice of crisp bacon, with a couple of slices of nice crusty bread and butter, some of them rush off to school without anything to eat, or just grabbing something off the table and swallowing it down almost whole.

"One morning last week I heard a little fellow in a kindergarten tell his teacher that he had coffee and buns for his breakfast! and judging from the looks in the faces of some of the other children, I believe that more than half of them had eaten the same things.

"Now, of course, you know, and so do I, and so do most people, that little children should never drink coffee or tea. Instead of coffee, a cup of cocoa made with plenty of milk, is good for them and will help to make them grow. Milk toast and cocoa make another fine breakfast and give a good start for the day.

"The trouble with these children is that they stay up too late at night. Then they get up late in the morning; get excited about getting off to school and their breakfast doesn't amount to a row of pins. If little children—and the bigger ones, too, for that matter—are to keep well, they must have plenty of sleep and must eat nourishing meals, and must take time to eat them properly. These are two of the best prescriptions I know of for keeping sickness away."

He wrinkled his brow and looked very serious. Then his face lighted up. He had thought of some way of solving the problem. "Ask the man who prints the newspapers," he said, "to put that in the paper as a message to the children and their mothers."

There was a flourish of the little green cap and he was off again.

Numbers 13:1-14;45.

We are well able to overcome it.—Numbers 13:30.

THE MAN OF FAITH.

That was a wilderness journey all right. Plodding through hot sand under a scorching sun is never a cheering exercise, and Israel found enough to vex their spirits as they advanced. They had been in camp in the mountain shadows for a year where cool water gushed for their refreshment. Their muscles were unused to the burdens of the road and their spirits were soon as raw as their shoulders. Were there murmurs? Ask any of the boys who were in France if there were any there and compare their reply with the lesson. Perhaps the "burning" of which so many died was sun-stroke. In contrast some were caught up in a religious ecstacy and the coming of the quails brought on an epidemic through overeating. Then Aaron and Miriam quarrelled under the strain and headed a revolt against their brother's authority. Finally they reached the southern borders of the land and caught a glimpse of green and were cooled by the breath of the hills. Moses carefully planned for advance by sending out a dozen men who tramped, possibly by twos, over the country likely in the guise of traders, and sought to discover whatever might be of service for the conquest of Canaan.

The outstanding thing in these days of gruelling march was the faith of Moses, which never wavered. God had promised and the word was good. The daughter of a Christian mother who was an invalid lost her job, stopping all income and broke into a tirade against God who did not care. But her mother never faltered and when the new job and better days came heard the girl whisper, "Mother, you'd have died trusting, wouldn't you?" Moses believed God in a fashion not known to most of us. But his belief in Israel was no less striking. In spite of their progress there are many who would hesitate long over committing the destiny of our land to the guidance of colored folk. Yet Israel was but a year out of slavery while our Negroes are in the third generation, but Moses was planning to cross over to their land of promise immediately. Talk about Lincoln's belief in the common people and then compare it with that of Moses and see where we are. There's nothing like it in history.

THE FOLLOWERS.

Two men came back from the forty-day exploration with spirits stirred by the opulence of the land that was so rich with rivers of milk and rivulets of honey from its hills. There would be pasturage for all their flocks and an abundance they had not known since leaving the fertile valley of the Nile that had nourished their fathers even in famine. Of course they saw the struggle, for the location of each fighting clan was known and the fortresses had been mapped. They knew the enemy were strong but they were undaunted by size and were counselling advance in a great crusade, for did not "God will it?" Perhaps Peter the Hermit caught his cry that roused Europe out of its lethargy and hurled her colmuns against the Turk was borrowed from these earlier men whose faith was like that of their leader. In the minority they might be hut they would advance with God and keep pace with His plans. Little wonder that theirs are the only names that have survived the dust of the centuries. For the years are wiser judges than the hour. Flowers bloom where fagots glowed and the scattered ashes were worth a king's ransom today. Men who have kept the faith and followed it are the makers of all the history that is worth recording.

THE FAILERS.

Ten men talked and the dream of empire crumbled—such is the power of words. To be sure, their fear outweighed their logic, for they reported both a land that ate up its inhabitants a very unhealthy place, and all the people of giant stature. And so contagious was their fear that nobody laughed. It ushered in one of the blackest nights that Israel ever knew. They had been in a perfect fever of expectation of finding a settled home after their distress in the desert. They had seen the fruit that made their mouths water with sheer eagerness to possess the orchards and vineyards from which it came. But they had no desire to battle against giants and be trampled like grasshoppers beneath their feet. Tears and despair marked the early hours and then excited planning swept the camp. They would elect a new leader and go back. They were still in slavery and a far worse one than Egypt had known. A fettered limb cannot check a free spirit, but when the soul is in bonds there is no possibility of progress. Under the lash of fear they knew no reason and could pronounce no judgment. It is always the case and the embittered man is not the wise leader.

THE FOLLY.

Joshua and Caleb protested in vain. To no avail was their torn garments and assuring words. The minority came near being stilled by stones as it has often been. The majority ruled, there was utter rejection of all the plans of God, of Moses and of these two determined souls. Then Moses pronounced judgment. They were not to go up and most accept the doom of their refusal to enter. Their children would be ready, but they were too craven. Again they proved the inability of passion to reason. They would go up. The camp divided and a part of them advanced with neither the brains of Moses nor the leadership of Joshua. They were impregnated by the pessimism of the camp in spite of their bravado and at the first onslaught of the hill men they turned and ran. Let passion rule and folly troops after.

But there was no dimming the vision of Moses. He understood that these men were impossible colonists. They had had too much cramming and even under the teaching of such a man as he they flunked their first examination and were sent back to a lower grade. The great, old man took on a new class and joined the ranks of the thoroughly modern builders of civilizations in beginning with the children. Into their plastic mind he would press the face of God and charge them with his own unquenchable faith. And we are just beginning to realize how wise he was and to apply his old method in the making of a new world.

GRANTSVILLE

A Government airplane en route to Washington, D. C., from Moundsville, W. Va., was forced to land at Samule Hershberger farm near town on Wednesday on account of the dense fog which covered this section at the time. The airmen had to remain a day or two pending clearing weather. During the past two months or more fog has interfered greatly with the regular air service over this section, making flying extremely hazardous.

The Grantsville high school took part in the school parade at the Oakland Fair on Wednesday. A large crowd assembled to see the various games played which resulted in the defeat of the Grantsville soccer team by Oakland 5-1. The point made by Grantsville was scored by Casper Loechel.

The dairy cattle judging contests of the agricultural classes of the four county high schools were held at the Grantsville and Oakland fairs. The Friendsville class won the silver cup, purchased by the agricultural clubs of the county. Grantsville was second; Accident, third, and Oakland, fourth. Casper Loechel, of Grantsville, tied for high score in the contest.

The final contest will be held at the Frederick Fair during the present month, when all the agricultural vocational departments of the State will compete.

M. W. Whiteford, agricultural instructor in the local school, has a large class and is doing splendid work.

Mrs. Harry J. Bender gave a very enjoyable five hundred party for her husband in honor of his anniversary. Four tables were in play, the guests being Messrs. W. E. Stanton and son Edgar, Wm. Winterberg, Allen, Otto and Byron Bender, C. O. Keller, M. W. Whiteford, Dr. T. O. Broadwater, J. R. Gnagey, Dr. B. T. Keller, John Zehner, Prof. P. R. Webster, C. A. Bender. J. R. Gnagey won the high prize and Allen Bender the consolation award.

"Measure for Measure" was the comedy read and enjoyed by the Shakespeare Club on Tuesday night, Sept. 28. As this play treats of problems which are agitating the public mind today as well as in Shakespeare's time, the club found opportunity for much discussion. Practically the entire play was read, only a few scenes being omitted.

Charles Bevans, son of Mrs. Marshall Beachy and a graduate of the Grantsville High School class of '26, has entered George Washington University, Washington, D. C., and will study medicine.

Mrs. Lillie Younkin spent several days this week with Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Welch at their home in Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Frank Keenan and grandson Frank Younkin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin in Grantsville.

Miss Grace Hershberger and Hobart Speicher and brother Glenn, of Accident, motored to Baltimore Saturday where the latter will resume his medical studies at the University of Maryland.

James B. Dorsey, of Everett, Wash., who has visited his sisters, Misses Mary and Margaret Dorsey and Mrs. Annie Getty and Dr. J. H. and D. W. Dorsey for several weeks past, returned to his home Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Keller quietly celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary on September 28th. Dr. Keller has been confined to his bed the past two months with heart trouble, but he thoroughly enjoyed the day.

Baltimore, Maryland

Mail and Phone Orders Given Prompt Attention.

Mrs. P. C. Boucher is ill at her residence near Grantsville.

Miss Jewell Simpson, of Baltimore, state supervisor of elementary schools in Maryland, visited Miss Kate Bannatyne in Grantsville Tuesday and visited the schools in Grantsville and vicinity.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun, of Oakland; Miss Helen Kinnick, grade supervisor of the Oakland unit; Miss Mary Selby, of the Friendsville unit; Miss Marion Reunion, of Accident unit, held a supervisors' conference with Miss Kate Bannatyne of the Grantsville unit, at the Casselman Hotel this week.

Lyman Folk, who has been employed by the Motor Service garage until recently and lived in Grantsville, has been employed by James S. Todd, the owner of Spring Valley Farm on Negro Mountain, and has taken charge of the new position. He moved his household goods and family to the farm on Tuesday.

SAND RUN

The Parent-Teacher Association of Sand Run met again on October 1st. An excellent program was rendered by the children, followed by an impromptu class of older folks. After this an old fashioned spelling match took place, the parents spelling against the children. Ernest Ritchie was declared the winner.

The following officers of the association have been elected for this year: President, David Lower; vice-president, A. G. Cullers; secretary-treasurer, Myrtle Ray. The association meets the first and third Friday nights in each month. Everybody will find a welcome. Come out and enjoy an evening with the members of the association.

The following named pupils of Sand Run school have 100 per cent credit in attendance for the first month of school: Elsie Nine, Myrtle Lower, Ruby Nine, Robert Nine.

The P.-T. A. of Sand Run school will meet again on October 15th and there will be "music in the air."

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Gilbert, of Oakland, were calling on the former's parents in this section one day last week.

Mrs. James Gilbert had the misfortune of scalding her foot and as a result has been confined to her home for several days.

Raymond Shreve, of Oak Grove, was visiting in our community one day last week.

Charles Dyche, of Keyser, was visiting at the home of J. F. Rodeheaver over the week-end.

Mrs. Anna Kight, of Westernport, was visiting her brother, J. J. Gilbert, recently.

Several children have been unable to attend school on account of very sore arms following vaccination.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cullers, of Chambers' Hill, were visiting at Lee Ritchie's this week.

Edward Gilbert, who spent the summer with his grandfather, returned to Piedmont Saturday where he will attend school this winter.

L. H. Fike, who has been sawing timber on the Anderson place, is at Keyser, W. Va., for a few weeks.

Albert Bowman has taken over the Gilbert mine and will have coal at the old place.

Quite a number of the people of this community attended the fair in Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lower and family were visitors in Greenland Gap on Sunday.

James Gilbert, of Gormania, W. Va., was in this vicinity the first of the week rounding up his cattle. He expects to make shipment of a carload some time this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nine and family were guests of Grant Burgess on Sunday.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick MOTOR CARS

A-10-40

THE motor car industry was startled when Buick presented the new Buick with an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

If you have driven this great new car, with this remarkable engine, you know why.

Its fluid smoothness makes other motor cars seem rough, harsh, noisy.

People who have driven Buicks for years and people who have owned much more expensive cars, are captivated by the luxury of this one.

BITTINGER

He rose with great alacrity
To offer her his seat—
'Twas a question whether he or she Should stand upon his feet.

Saturday evening. The Lutheran parsonage; a blushing maiden; a timid youth; a staid old minister; a list of misty questions; a flurry of hurried responses; the trembling clasp of hands; the benediction, and Miss Bertha Bittinger, of Bear Hill, was the newly wedded wife of Mr. Stanley Wiley, of Jennings. A chuckling Ford carried the happy couple away with the good wishes of their friends.

The protracted controversy over the road right of way between the Back Creek Lumber Company and a resident farmer has at last been settled and arrangements are now being made to place a saw mill on the timber tract of the Henry B. Wiley farm near Bittinger.

Misses Flora and Olive Engle, of Baltimore, paid their aged grandmother a brief visit at her home here last Saturday, returning to the city on Sunday morning.

The rainy weather continues to prevail here and the buckwheat is sprouting in the shock, much as did the oats crop early in August.

The annuel conference of the West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran church, which was held here last week, was well attended by ministers and lay delegates belonging to the several charges in the Synod. The final session, on Wednesday evening, was held in the open air about some blazing log heaps, and was supplemented by a lamb roast, which was enjoyed by all present.

William Winterberg, of Grantsville, was a business caller in this village one day recently.

LOCH LYNN

Miss Lola Belle Green, Home Demonstration Agent for Garrett county, with an instructor from the University of Maryland, will meet the women of the Mountain Lake-Loch Lynn Community Club at the Aid Hall on Wednesday, October 13th, during the morning to which meeting all members of the club are most cordially invited. Come and bring your make-over problems.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Biggs and sons and Robert Ream, of this place, have returned from a motor trip to Philadelphia, New York City and points in Canada.

Messrs. B. L. Martin and A. L. Spiker motored to Washington, D. C., recently.

Rev. and Mrs. F. L. Fultz and family have returned from a pleasant trip to home folks in and near Buckhannon, West Va.

Miss Myrtle Kerins died at her home near this village Monday night, September 27th, after an illness of a year from tuberculosis. Funeral services were conducted at the Pentecostal church in the Park on Thursday with interment near Deer Park. Her mother, five sisters and one brother survive.

Rev. A. Bailey has been appointed pastor of the Baptist church here.

Rev. F. L. Fultz has been returned to the United Brethren charge here for another year.

REUNITED CHURCH MEETS IN RICHMOND THIS MONTH

Old Confederate Capital To Be Host to Lutheran Hosts of the North and South.

In Richmond, the old capital of the Confederate States of America, delegates from the reunitd Lutheran churches in the North and in the South will meet from October 19th to 25th at the fifth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America. Three times in the past eight years Lutheran delegates from the South have gone forth into northern cities to confer on ecclesiastical matters and plan the work of the church. Once, in 1920, the convention met at Washington. This year for the first time delegates from the northern cities will meet their southern brethren on southern soil.

At the time of the War schisms appeared in the ranks of the great churches, and the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Lutheran denominations divided into northern and southern groups, the separation of three of these denominations continuing until today. In three of these groups almost herculean efforts have been exerted to reunite the divided churches, but without success up to the present time. In the Lutheran church alone the reunion has been effected and for the past eight years through the United Lutheran Church in America the Lutheran people of these two sections of the country have worked together for the common good.

After overtures toward merger on one side or the other had been made during a period of four decades, the first approach being made in 1876, delegates of three outstanding Lutheran bodies met in New York City in 1918 to organize the present United Lutheran Church in America. Two northern bodies, the General Synod and the General Council, and one southern body, the United Synod of the South, had previously taken definite action favoring the merger and sent representatives to the convention instructed to vote in favor of union that would at once submerge the animosities and differences of half a centuyr before and pave the way for effective cooperation of all groups in planning the future great work of the church. Their unity in the faith outweighed all sectional and political issues, and inner unity found its triumphal expression in union for service. Outside the Lutheran church eager eyes have watched the progress of the United Lutheran Church in America for eight years in the hope of finding therein the solution of their own problems of merger.

When delegates, representing nearly a million and a-half members, who are grouped together in 34 district synods, arrive this month for the fifth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America at Richmond, they will learn of the great gains that have been made in number of pastors, number of members, totals of money raised for benevolences and congregational expenses and in property valuation. They will hear reports on the increasing effectiveness of home missionary work in hundreds of communities throughout the land and the plans for a consolidation of such work under one leadership. They will note the development of American Lutheran work in the foreign fields of India, Africa, Japan, South America and the West Indies, and the purchase and occupation of a new field in China. They will receive summaries of vast educational and social service activities of the church, and of the efforts made to lighten the burdens of Lutheran immigrants to the United States and Canada from foreign lands. And having passed approval on the accomplishments of past years, they will plan the most effective methods of extending the work into vast new fields as yet almost untouched.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

DOGS AND DEATH

IN LABRADOR and in New Orleans they say that when a dog is seen digging a particularly large hole in the ground it is a sign that you will soon hear of the death of a friend or relative. And in various localities between Labrador and New Orleans will be found a like superstition, sometimes slightly modified—as, for instance, in some places the dog must bury sticks in the hole he digs in order that the omen may have its full significance. The superstition as far as the digging by the dog of an unusually large hole is concerned is easily explained by homeopathic magic. The dog digs a grave, or rather, he digs an imitation grave, which, by sympathetic magic, causes a real grave to be dug—the natural philosophy of our respected ancestors, the cave-men. But there appears to be something further as the dog is evidently regarded as a proper agent for the death announcement and we find that in some localities it is believed that if you meet a dog in crossing a bridge you will hear of a death within twenty-four hours and in others there is a belief that if a dog rolls in the grass under your window you will soon hear of the death of a friend, acquaintance or relative. The ingubrious howling of a dog at night suggests wailing for the dead and to primitive man what was associated in appearance or suggestion was associated in fact. These peculiar senses of the dog which enable him to realize the proximity of unseen animals—including man—gave him in primitive times his reputation as ghost-seer. To the ancient, migratory peoples—and all of them were so more or less—the soul after death must cross a river. Hence the significance of meeting a dog while crossing a stream. When the dog rolls under your window has he not "sensed" the disembodied spirit of the friend of whose death you will shortly hear and is trying to simulate his demise?

THE SMELL OF HARNESS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I DONT deny we don't agree
On what we don't like, what we do;
What seems to me perfumery
May seem quite different to you.
Now, there's a perfume past and gone
I always liked, and that was this:
The smell of harness hanging on
A hook, a perfume that I miss.

The automobile's mighty nice,
I must admit, in lots of ways;
However nice, it has its price—
I sort of miss the good old days.
The automobile's mighty fine
To ride to town, or loads to haul
And yet I miss one joy of mine,
The smell of harness, after all

Now, I was raised—and who was not?—
With cows and colts, with Don and Kit;
And what's a lot of bolts you've got
Besides a harness and a bit?
There's something—what I cannot tell—
You maybe know just what I mean—
They had a sort of honest smell
That you don't get from gasoline.

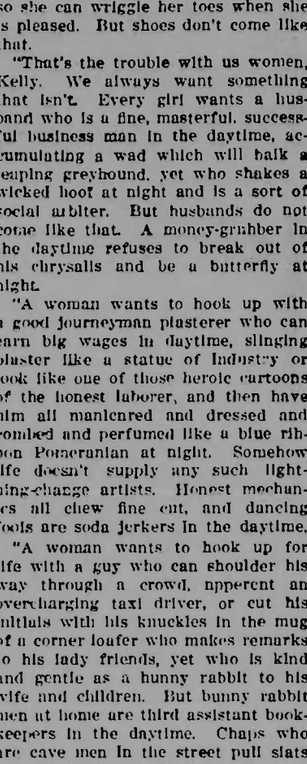
The Hotel Stenographer

"I GOT to buy a pair of shoes," Kelly," announced the Hotel Stenographer.

"That so?" asked the House Detective, uninterested.

"Yes, and it's quite a chore, too," said the girl. "Every woman who buys shoes wants a pair that are neat and snappy, very small on the outside, but with plenty of room inside, so she can wriggle her toes when she is pleased. But shoes don't come like that.

"That's the trouble with us women, Kelly. We always want something that isn't. Every girl wants a husband who is a fine, masterful, successful business man in the daytime, accumulating a wad which will balk a leaping greyhound, yet who shakes a wicked hoof at night and is a sort of social arbiter. But husbands do not come like that. A money-grubber in the daytime refuses to break out of his chrysalis and be a butterfly at night.



"A woman wants to hook up with a good journeyman plasterer who can earn big wages in daytime, slinging plaster like a statue of Industry or look like one of those heroic cartoons of the honest laborer, and then have him all manicured and dressed and combed and perfumed like a blue ribbon Pomeranian at night. Somehow life doesn't supply any such lightning-change artists. Honest mechanics all chew fine cut, and dancing fools are soda jerkers in the daytime.

"A woman wants to hook up for life with a guy who can shoulder his way through a crowd, uppercut an overcharging taxi driver, or cut his initials with his knuckles in the mug of a corner loafer who makes remarks to his lady friends, yet who is kind and gentle as a bunny rabbit to his wife and children. But bunny rabbit men at home are third assistant bookkeepers in the daytime. Chaps who are cave men in the street pull slats out of the bed with which to beat their wives at home.

"If it can't be had, Kelly, a woman wants it, and mostly it can't be had; so we women enjoy a lot of misery in this world."

Book's Long Service

A law book printed in 1771 by Robert Bell, a Philadelphia typesetter, still is in active use in a Livermore (Cal.) library. The publication, known as the first book of Blackstone's Commentaries, is in good condition despite its 155 years, and is as readable as many recently printed books.

First Atlantic Cable

In July, 1865, the first permanent Atlantic cable was laid from Valentia bay, Ireland, to Trinity bay, Newfoundland, and in September of the same year a cable that had been lost in 1865 was recovered and its laying completed. These lines were known as the Anglo-American cable, and were managed by a company of the same name. Messages are transmitted by submarine cable by means of electric currents in much the same way as messages are transmitted by land telegraph lines, but the sending and receiving instruments of the cable are more delicate and more complicated.

Map Hunting Good Game

Increase in vocabulary and fresh interest in geography are products of the interesting game of map hunting. Problems may be selected from the news of the day or from the map itself, says the Pathfinder Magazine. For instance, what does Peking mean to the Chinese?

Equidistant from Peking are Nanyuan and Pelyuan. The syllable "pe" or "pei" is familiar in Chinese names. So is "nan," and the mention of "nan" causes one to think of Nanking as Nanyan does to Pelyuan; that is, the "pe" is north and the "nan" is south.

CASSELMAN VALLEY RAIL ROAD MAY BE EXTENDED

Under Its New Management To Connect With B. & O. Railroad Near Swanton.

The Casselman Valley Railroad, entering Garrett county from Worth, Pa., where it connects with the Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and extending to Jennings, Garrett county, was originally built by Jennings Brothers, lumbermen who entered the industry in this county many years ago. Later the road became the property of private owners and still later was taken over by coal operators having fields of fuel in the neighborhood of Jennings and Bittinger.

Recently, however, the property again changed owners and became that of S. H. Bracey, of Philadelphia, along with the interests he represents and since coming into the possession of the new owners portions of the road have been rebuilt and rehabilitated. For two years prior to Mr. Bracey's ownership the road remained idle. In recent weeks a number of local laborers have been employed and work on the repair of the roadbed generally was started with the result that traffic has been resumed and the people of the community through which it operates and which it serves as a freight hauling road are highly elated.

It is said that the plans for the future development of the road include the extension of the railway through the heart of Garrett county to connect with the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio at Swanton where delivery will be made of coal and timber for transportation east and west.

A new station is also planned for the convenience of the people at the Little Crossings stop, which will be more convenient for the business men and others of Grantsville who receive freight over the road and who will again have their goods shipped direct to Grantsville by rail instead of to West Salisbury, Pa., from which point they were compelled to truck it into Grantsville, thus adding to the expense of merchandise and consequent higher cost to the consumer.

COUNTY WIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY TO BE HELD

In Oakland Next Sunday Afternoon, October 17th, In Which Many Schools Will Join.

As heretofore announced the first Sunday School Rally and parade held in Garrett county for a long time has been scheduled for next Sunday afternoon, in Oakland, and all of the various Sunday Schools have been urged to participate. From the responses received by those having the plans in hand it is to be presumed that there will be a large attendance.

The parade will form on Pennington Street, back of the Oakland Grammar school, at two o'clock. The line of march will be down Pennington to Second Street, to the corner of Second and Alder at the First National Bank Building, up Alder to Third and then out Third Street and the State Road to Helbig's grove where the parade will disband and a mass meeting be held. The Crellin and Oakland bands will be in the line and all others in the county are also urged to take part.

At the meeting in Helbig's grove Mr. R. Paul Smith, of Hagerstown, will deliver the prineipal address, there will be some selections by the bands, singing by a male quartette from Loch Lynn and community singing.

Whether you are a member of a Sunday school or not you are urged to be in Oakland Sunday afternoon and take part in the exercises.

If weather is inclement the meeting will be held in the Maryland Theatre at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Florence Porter is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Boggs, at Bretz, West Va.

Piedmont Rotarians Visit Oakland Club.

Several members of the Piedmont Rotary Club accompanied by others who are members of the commercial organization of that town, visited the Oakland Rotary Club on last Friday evening and had luncheon with the members of the local organization. The purpose of the visitation, as stated by the speakers was to get Oakland people interested in the construction of a hard surfaced road leading from Bloomington up the mountain to Oakland, thus cutting the mileage as now traveled from Piedmont to Oakland from about 65 miles over the National Highway to less than 30 miles by the proposed new road. A committee of local Rotarinas was appointed by the presiding officer of the club to investigate and present a report [illegible] of the matter.

TWO MEN CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION BROUGHT HERE

Following Their Arrest Near Hagerstown Last Night by Sheriff Guy O. Yutzy.

Following their arrest a ta point on the National Highway near Hagerstown last night by Sheriff Guy O. Yutzy, of Garrett county, George Earl Arthur and "Spike" Kelley are in the Garrett County Jail on the charge of abduction, while Esther Zepp has been restored to her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Zepp, of Mountain Lake Park, and Elva Kitzmiller is again with her guardians, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hutchinson, in Loch Lynn Heights.

The two girls, both students in the Oakland High School, and less than 16 years of age, were pursuaded, it is alleged in the information furnished Justice W. A. Gonder, who issued the warrant for the arrest of the men, by them to leave Oakland Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of joining a carnival company supposed to be at the Hagerstown Fair this week. As arranged the girls met Arthur and Kelley at the Helbig Grove on the State road Tuesday afternoon and from that point they started to walk to their destination. At a point along the road between Oakland and Keyser Ridge they were picked up by a passing motorist and taken on to the Ridge. From that point on they traveled on foot and by ear to a short distance west of Hagerstown, where the local officer overtook them and made the arrest, bringing them back to Oakland last night.

Arthur, who is 21 years of age, was married on last Friday to Mary Clara Thompson, of Cincinnati, according to the marriage license records in the Court House. Prior to and following the ceremony the couple boarded at the Casteel boarding house on Third street. The couple came to Oakland with a carnival company showing at the recent fair and remained here when the fair closed, the property of the carnival company being stored for the winter at the fair grounds.

After the wife of Arthur discovered she had been deserted by her husband of only a few days she got busy and dug up some evidence against Arthur which she exhibited to the authorities, showing that he is a deserter from the Marines and that he is wanted by the government on this charge. Arthur, according to the marriage license records, is 21 years old and his home is in Baltimore. His wife is 19 years of age and hails from Cincinnati, O.

To further the apprehension of the men and girls Station KDKA, Pittsburgh, upon request of the local officials, broadcasted a description of the parties last night at 7:45 o'clock. The efforts of the station officials are appreciated by the local officers.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I have noticed with'n the last few days a few photographs of J. W. McCullough, and under them the inscription, "Candidate for State Senator."

I wish you would tell me whether Mr. McCullough placed himself on the ticket or is the Democratic candidate. He does not state which he is. If he is the Democratic candidate he must be ashamed of it or else he would mention that fact.

An early answer would be appreciated. A GARRETT COUNTIAN.

MASON

Gone hath the spring with all its flowers,
And gone the summer's pomp and show,
And autumn, in his painted bowers
Is waiting for the winter's snow.

Last Thursday evening the patrons of the school met and organized a Parent-Teacher Association. They also enjoyed addresses made by Miss Kinnick and Miss Henion. The pupils rendered a short program which was enjoyed by all. The following officers of the association were elected: Mr. Ernest Ridder, president; Mrs. Ada Martin, vice-president; Mr. Charles Kelley, secretary; Mrs. Hurley Miller, treasurer.

Master Garry Ridder, of Kitzmiller, who spent the summer with relatives here, has returned to his home.

Mr Charles Kelley and son were business visitors at Thomas, West Va., Thursday.

Under the direction of Miss Marin Fike our school is making excellent progress.

Miss Vida Miller, who spent the summer in Illinois, is now at her home in this community.

The farmers of our section are very busy picking apples and digging potatoes.

Members of Mr. W. P. Warsaw's family were visitors at Mr. Ernest Ridder's on Friday afternoon.

At the beginning of the school term our school organized a club, electing the following named pupils as officers: Lulu Kelley, president; Genevieve Martin, vice-president; Allen Kelley, secretary; Irene Martin, Opal Fike and Lillian Miller, progra mcommittee.

Miss Dorothy Fairlee, of Keyser, W. Va. ,spent Thursday evening and Friday at the home of Rev. L. H. Fike.

Mr. William Martin and family motored to Twin Mounains last Saturday where they purchased several bushels of peaches.

Mr. Ernest Ridder and daughter Ruth visited at William Martin's on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Noah Lichty was a visitor at the home of Jacob Swartzentruber on Sunday afternoon.

The following named pupils had perfect attendance records and no tardy marks for the month of September: Carl Ridder, Garry Ridder, Carroll Martin, Opal Fike, Vivian Fike, Freda Lichty, Annie Lichty, Genevieve, Lona and Eloise Martin, Lillian Miller, Blanche Ridder and Ruth Ridder.

Improvement in Gas Utilities.

(From Gas Progress of Sept 27)

In a recent interview, Walter Whetstone, President Southern Gas and Power Corporation, Philadelphia,said:

"Substantial improvement in the business of our operating utilities in 1927, especially during the first six months of the year, is confidently expected.

"Our optimism, not only at the immediate outlook but also at the prospect for subsequent years, is best indicated by the general program of expension that is now engaging us. In recent months we have been huilding up our management organization so that it will be ready to cope with prohlems incident to greater business in 1927.

"While our properties are located mainly in smaller communities, and therefore our total improvement expenditure might not seem so huge in comparison with those in larger centers of population, we are planning this improvement all along the line in the belief that better business is assured in practically all of the 89 cities and towns where we supply gas or water service.

"Strong evidence of continued industrial progress and consequent growth in population, comes to us from the South where a majority of our gas companies operate. The Northern communities served are, for the most part, thriving and substantial towns whose industries are long-established and whose increasing business we can surely count on. Considerable interest is being taken throughout our territory in the industrial use of gas, and we have every expectation of getting a full share of this business in addition to new business from residential heating and cooking."

Mr. Whetstone is the president of the Southern Gas and Power Corporation, at Philadelphia, Pa., which company owns and operates the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, as well as seventeen other companies.

The American Gas Association is now in annual convention at Atlantic City, N. J., which is being attended by several thousand natural and manufactured gas men from all over the United States.

Mr. J. A. Mayers, General Manager of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, as well as Mr. L. H. Ware, assistant General Manager, and Mr. D. B. Bear, Commercial Manager, are attending this meeting, at which the latest improved gas appliances are being exhibited as well as modern improvements having to do with production and distrihution of hoth natural and manufactured gas.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

BE DEPENDABLE

IF YOU will look about you and note carefully the characteristics of the much-talked-about men and women who seem always to be in the glare of the spotlight, you will find that one of their strong traits is dependableness.

In many cases these people began life in lowly positions, hardly able at times to keep the wolf from the door.

They were beset hy common trials and difficulties.

The roads they traveled were just as full of ruts and rocks as they are today. Disappointments came as they come now, singly, in pairs and in swarms, but the stout hearted kept moving ahead, showing their mettle and faith.

They made it manifest to the world that in fair weather or foul they were dependable.

When confronted by stern or humiliating duty, they accepted the challenge unafraid, unconquerable.

Benjamin Franklin, in his trying days, was sneered at while carrying home a loaf of bread. In later years the young woman who had made fun of him became his wife, possibly because she had repented, but more than likely for the reason that she had found a man in whom she could trust, and upon whom she could depend without a qualm of fear.

The dependable man is the successful man.

He refuses to sidestep the hard path or to shift his burden to another's shoulders. He does his share of work with happy heart and willing hands.

He controls his tongue when prompted to answer back with a snarl; he knows his weakness and strength, and is capable of taking care of his opportunity and his job.

When put to the test he proves his worth.

In a crisis he has courage to act on his own initiative.

Then he breaks loose, but with the same old earnestness and good sense, and makes a bee-line for the spotlight, which through all his trials he has kept in mind.

If you would have a proud place among the world's notable workers, rise with them to the eminence so often pictured by your imagination, and enjoy the pleasing sensation which comes to those who have done their best, you must first make yourself worthy of the honor by becoming dependable.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

THOSE who are fond of cabbage are always delighted with the following simple salad prepared from it. Shred a hard head very fine and plunge it into cold water to stand until crisp. Drain and dress with a little salt, sugar, a dash of vinegar and enough sweet, thick cream to moisten.

Rochester Soup.

This is a rich dinner soup and may not in all places or seasons be called an economical one. Blanch two-thirds of a cupful of almonds; chop and pound them in a mortar; add gradually while pounding four tablespoonfuls of water, one-half teaspoonful of salt, then add three cupfuls of chicken stock, one sliced onion and three stalks of celery. Simmer one hour. Rub through a sieve and bind with two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour cooked together and mixed with soup, cooking until well done.

Cream Pie.

Cook in a double holler one cupful of top milk, two tablespoonfuls of flonr mixed with a cupful of sugar, then add two beaten egg yolks, a pinch of salt and cook nntil thick. Set aside to cool, then add flavoring and fill a haked shell. Cover with a meringue, using the two egg whites beaten stiff and mixed with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Set in the oven to brown.

Minced Chicken With Peppers.

Cover a green pepper with holling water and parboil for ten minntes. Cut the pepper in strips with the scissors, removing the seeds and white fiber. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, cook nntil well blended with two-thirds of a cupful of chicken stock. Add one cupful of diced chicken and the pepper and serve on buttered toast.

DEER PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Filsinger, of West Newton, Pa., visited relatives here this week-end.

Mr. Friend, the Boiling Spring school teacher, spent Saturday and Sunday at his home in Friendsville.

Miss Willard Goss is visiting in Rowlesburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Josephine Thrasher is spending a few days in Mt. Lake Park as the guest of Mrs. Dunnington.

All Sunday School members of the Deer Park M. E. church are requested to be at the church on next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, from which place we will go to a suitable place to eat lunch. Would like all to bring lunch with them. After lunch we will go to Oakland and take part in the Rally Day exercises.

Mr. Frederick Reis was a Westernport visitor on Monday.

Mrs. Gilmore Walters and little daughter, and Mrs. James Walters, Jr., arrived in Deer Park Saturday eve after having spent the past several months in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. James Annan spent Monday in Cumbarland.

Mr. and Mrs. Salem Broadwater and son Robert, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Hardesty.

Mrs. John Haines and daughter, Katherine, were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. F. N. Reis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bittinger and two sons have moved their household effects to a point beyond Morgantown where Mr. Bittinger is employed.

Mr. James Junkins has moved into the late L. D. Thrasher property.

Mrs. J. O. Harvey spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Cumberland. While there she attended a local talent play in which her daughter, Miss Thelma Harvey, took part.

Mr. Charles Montgomery has traded his property on Church St. for one of the new houses constructed by J. W. Walters on the edge of town close the State road and has moved into his new home.

Mr. Twheits, of Cumberland, spent Friday of last week in town on busines.

GRANTSVILLE

At the congregational meeting following the services in the Lutheran church here on Sunday morning it was decided to carry the church improvement project through by excavating the basement and thus providing the modern Sunday school rooms, social hall and other necessary improvements planned by the committee. It is proposed by the official body of the church to have the work done during the winter. Plans and specifications are being prepared and will be ready at an early date.

Dr. G. Charles Keller, president of the First State Bank of Grantsville and resident dentist of the town for more than forty years, is critically ill at his home here with heart affection. Dr. Keller has been under the care of Dr. John E. Legge, of Baltimore, and Dr. Bruce Lichty, of Meyersdale, for several months, and Dr. James T. Johnson, of Cumberland, has also visited him as well as Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, but recently his illness assumed serious proportions and he has been confined to his room since August and to his bed for the past month His daughter, Miss Ruth Keller, who has been studying French at the University of Poiters at Tours, France, was cabled for and arrived in New York Friday last. His three sons are also at home during his critical stage of illness.

Mr and Mrs. Ellis Frantz and Thos. McKeag, of Braddock, were guests of Mr .and Mrs. Marshall Beachy a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs Elkins Goshon and family, of Piedmont, W. Va., visited Mr .and Mrs. J. J. Bender during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barker and daughter and Hess Winterberg, of Lancaster, Pa., were week-end guests of the latter's father, Wm. Winterberg and aunt Miss Christina Winterberg.

Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Edwards and daughter Dorcas and Miss Freda Stephens spent the week-end at Oakland with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ashby.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bittinger is quite ill at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bishoff, of Norfolk, Va., were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Miller

Miss Viola Swauger entertained members of her Sunday school class one evening last week. A very pleasant social hour was spent and refreshments were served.

Frank Jack, of Brownsville, Pa., spent the week-end here with Miss Marion Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bender will leave on Tuesday by auto for Haines City, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wingelt, Mrs. James Swan, Miss Margaret Swan, Mrs. Henry Marshall, Dr. Mm. R. Marshall and Miss Marion Ward, all of South Brownsville, Pa. were guests of Mrs. J. U. Stanton on Sunday.

Better lubrication

from the moment the motor starts —that's the secret of the new oil

HUNDREDS of road tests on all types of cars and trucks prove that the new "Standard" Motor Oil produces results never before associated with motor oils.

Typical of these tests is one with a Dodge, run over a 1,080 mile course from September 24th to October 22d, 1925, under engineering supervision. This test revealed 40.9% increase in oil mileage; 10% increase in gas mileage; smoother operation of the motor at all speeds; more power; less drag on the hills—all due to the remarkable lubricating properties of the new oil.

You can verify these astonishing results in your own car. Just have your crank-case drained, flushed and filled with the new "Standard" Motor Oil. Then expect results. You can actually feel the difference.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(New Jersey)

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing—smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

U.S.S. PENNSYLVANIA AT CHAGRES RIVER CROSSING

Increase of Freight via Panama Route, Largely Due to Oil Shipments, Indicates Rise of United States to Leadership of World's Commerce.

By JUDSON C. WELLIVER

One of the striking evidences of America's rapid rise toward commercial and industrial leadership of the world, is the Panama Canal, will almost certainly handle more freight in 1926 than will Suez. For several years the two canals have been in a neck and neck competition whose implications are the more interesting because the Panama ditch is owned by the American Government, and that at Suez by the British Government.

Of course both Canals are open to the ships of all nations; and the competition between them is not only between the United States and Britain, but in a larger and even more significant view it is competition between old world and new world.

When the Panama Canal was opened in 1915, Suez was already transiting about 25,000,000 tons of freight annually. Almost nobody believed Panama could ever attract anything approaching such a volume. But during the war fear of German submarines in the Mediterannean caused many vessels to take the Panama route between the far east and European or American ports. This gave Panama its introduction and it has not only held but greatly increased its business since the war. In 1923 Panama transited 5037 vessels, against 4621 for Suez; Panama handled 25,160,000 cargo tons against 22,770,000 for Suez. This was the first year of Panama's lead.

A Close Race

The following year Suez barely exceeded Panama's tonnage; and in 1925 comfortably held its lead. But reports for 1926 to date indicate that Suez is losing, owing to Britain's industrial depression, while Panama is doing better and is pretty certain to resume the lead.

The present Suez Canal has been in operation nearly sixty years, Panama only eleven. Although few people except antiquarians know it, the first canal at Suez was built more than 3,000 years ago. It was in operation as early as B. C. 1380; how long before, is mere conjecture. Before the Christian era began the ditch had been built, destroyed, rebuilt, silted up and built up again, time after time. When Alexander the Great conquered Egypt the Canal was one of the oldest of engineering works.

Between 1904 and 1915 the present Panama Canal was constructed. It cost about $400,000,000, Suez about one-fourth that sum. But Suez is a simple, sea level ditch across a sandy plain; while Panama is a lock canal, the greater part of its length lying 85 feet above sea level, so that most of the distance from ocean to ocean is through an artificial freshwater lake.

Early Profits Unexpected

When Roosevelt started building at Panama, neither he nor any other prophet of optimism would have dared suggest that within its first decade the Canal would earn a profit. Its chief justification concerned the national defense, and the establishment of competition with the transcontinental railroads.

Although both Canals are open to shipping of all nations, British vessels constitute the majority of those using Suez (55.8 per cent), while American vessels are 54.5 per cent of those using Panama.

For 1924, ships of 21 nations used the Suez route, while 24 nations were represented in the maritime caravan at Panama.

The World War was not the only unexpected factor in bringing Panama so quickly to equality with Suez, nor the most important. The enormous increase in Panama traffic in 1923 was represented almost entirely by petroleum and its products, moving from California to the east coast and Europe. In the year ended June 30, 1924, tolls aggregating $24,290,000 were collected, of which $9,071,000 was from tankers carrying petroleum. An even more striking statement of the matter is that for the same year exactly 50 per cent of all tonnage through the Canal was between the two ocean fronts of the United States; that is, 13,500,000 tons; and of this, considerably over 9,000,000 tons, or more than two-thirds was petroleum. It was of course chiefly from California, en route to eastern refineries. In the succeeding year this petroleum movement fell off heavily; but for 1926 it is again increasing and the increase is likely to continue for many years. But for the petroleum traffic, the Canal would have shown a deficit in every year of its operation.

The enormous petroleum business has been in other ways advantageous to Panama. A constantly increasing proportion of maritime shipping nowadays uses oil fuel. Oil-burning ships seek routes on which they can most cheaply buy oil; and because California oil can be put so cheaply into the bunkers of vessels passing through the Panama ditch, there is a substantial inducement to prefer this route. This will increasingly favor Panama and militate against Suez, as the number of oil burners increases. Moreover, Panama's advantage will still further increase as the enormous oil resources of Venezuela, Colombia, and other South American countries are developed.

Great Service of Panama

If cheap petroleum has thus served Panama so well, Panama in turn has equally served the American motorist, who consumes most of the world's petroleum products. For Panama has brought the Pacific Coast petroleum to the eastern market at costs which, but for the Canal, would be vastly greater. Thus the Canal has given the United States the cheapest petroleum products in the world, and helped build the automobile industry and our modern highway system.

This mutually helpful relationship between the Canal and the petroleum users is the more impressive when one realizes that it was not even remotely anticipated at the time President Roosevelt started building the Canal. So late, indeed, as 1910, when Admiral Evans wrote his articles about the Canal and decided that it could not be profitable for several decades at least, he based all his calculations on the probable cost of coal for bunkering ships. He did not dream that merchant marines were on the verge of the revolutionary change from coal to oil. So he figured that, as there is practically no bunker coal in the countries bordering on the Pacific, that ocean could not compete, by way of Panama, for a greatly increased share of shipping. The oil development overturned the prophecies of Admiral Evans, and of all others who had foreseen that fuel problems would make Panama unprofitable.

BITTINGER

As an evidence of the passing of the "good old summer time" we experienced two frosts of consiiderable intensity during the past week and as a result the vegetable world is taking on an autumn-like hue.

Mrs. Patterson Engle, of this place, died on Wednesday evening of last week, in her seventy-seventh year. The deceased is survived by one son, Mr. George W. Engle, of the Custom House in Baltimore. Funeral services were held in the village Lutheran church on Friday morning, the Rev. E. E. Campbell officiating. Following the service interment of the remains was made in the local cemetery.

County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun, visited this neighborhood recently in the interests of the schools.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Engle returned to their home in Baltimore last Tuesday after spending several days here following the death and funeral of the former's mother.

Messrs. Ray Seehler and Carl Bittinger have recently secured employment in Cumberland, where they expect to spend the winter.

C. C. Beachy, a well known farmer and good citizen of this community, had the misfortune to fall from an apple tree in his orchard last Friday, sustaining serious injuries. Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, of Accident, was called to attend the injured man and at last reports he was recovering satisfactorily.

Mrs. T. B. Wiley returned to her home in Grantsville last Sunday afternoon, having been in attendance upon Mrs. Patterson Engle during her last illness.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924, an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

PROSPERITY.

Answers to a questionnaire regarding present and future trade conditions sent out by the National Association of Manufacturers show that the industrial and business situation is regarded as favorable by 90 per cent of the members. By 83 per cent of the membership prospects for the winter are viewed as "good to fair."

Reports from railroads, steel and iron manufacturers, automobile companies, mail order houses and other recognized barometers of business fully confirm the trend of the answers to the questionnaire. Even in the usually dull month of August, according to the federal Department of Commerce, production broke the previous national records.

Former doubters andpessimists no longer deny that the country is enjoying substantial and well-distributed prosperity. Only the textile industries complain of continued depression and they attribute it to inadequate tariff protection, or overexpansion, or both. Moreover, there is general confidence in the indefinite continuance of prosperity. Some leading directors of industry go so far as to affirm that the so-called busines cycle may be a thing of the past.

Elbert H. Gary said the other day that in his judgment there was no necessity for any serious slump in the business of the country at any time. What Mr. Gary meant, probably, was that the growing home market and the steady, if slow, rehabilitation of Europe and the rest of the world should insure a constant and virtually stable demand for the commodities efficiently produced in the United States. That would mean the disappearance of the business cycle—the recurrent recessions and the periods of unemployment and poor trade.

Many experienced men of affairs agree with Mr. Gary, but not all. Some believe that the problem of the business cycle has not been solved, and that the prevalent belief to the contrary is based chiefly on the new policy of hand-to-mouth buying by railroads, manufacturers wholesale and retail merchants and the great body of consumers. Hand-to-mouth buying was at first the result of the bitter lessons of postwar deflation, but appreciation of its many advantages—economy in the use of capital, the elimination of risk, the disappearance of speculative production and so on—caused the deliberate continuation of the policy.

Still, hand-to-mouth buying is not free from disadvantages, and it may prove a temporary policy. In that event, the possibility of overproduction, cancellation of ill-advised orders, sudden declines in prices, with consequent depression in many industries, will return. That possibility is another name for the apprehended business cycle.

Modern industry faces many new problems, especially in the United States, and the ablest economists find it difficult to forecast future developments. Meanwhile the safe course is that which American bankers, financiers and manufacturers have followed in recent years—the course of prudence and conservatism in the extension of credit and in new commitments and expension, the perserveranee in the promotion of efficiency and cost reduction.

MARRIED.

Glotfelty—Dodge—At Cumberland, on Saturday, October 2nd, Miss Bessie Alice Dodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dodge, of Terra Alta, became the bride of Mr. Adrian F. Glotfelty, son of Mr. Charles Glotfelty, of Oakland. The couple will reside in Terra Alta where they have already gone to housekeeping.

DIED.

MISS NELLIE FULK.

The funeral of Miss Nellie Fulk, whose death occurred on Monday at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, was conducted yesterday afternoon at St. John's Lutheran church, Red House, by the Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, of Oakland. Miss Fulk was injured in an automobile accident on Sunday evening, September 19th, at a point on the Mountain Lake Park road, following which she was taken to the hospital for treatment. After remaining at the institution a few days she was sent back to her home south of Oakland. On Sunday morning her condition was such that it was deemed advisable that she be sent back to the hospital, which was done on Sunday morning and an operation was performed Monday, from which she did not rally, her death occurring that day at noon. Miss Fulk was nineteen years of age and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulk, of near town.

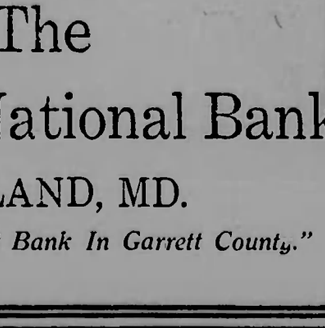
Safeguards

the household Water Supply



This all-galvanized, self-oiled installation is suitable for pumping from shallow wells or cisterns. Capacity, 240 gallons an hour. Automatic. needs no attention. Noiseless in operation. Built to give a lifetime of every-hour-in-the-day water service.

Is your home water supply as convenient as you would like to have it? Does the present method of pumping water assure a constant water supply, uncontaminated and as pure as it comes from the ground?
Here is a Hoosier Water Service installation which provides the last word in home water supply convenience, and which will positively safeguard your household water supply. The famous Galvazink surface, of pure zinc, prevents corrosion, or any metallic impurities, delivering the water at the faucet as pure as it comes from the well.
The galvazink coating, inside and out, materially lengthens the usefulness of Hoosier Water Service, for there is no deterioration.
We recommend this complete, compact installation as an ideal one for providing plenty of water, under pressure for your home. You will be more than pleased with the advantages this modern convenience brings into your home. Come in and let us tell you how little it will cost to enjoy these advantages.

A new type of heavy duty electrical locomotive, built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia, was given a trial test on Saturday over the mountain division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the equipment passing through Oakland about the noon hour. Diesel engines, burning crude oil, drive the electric motors. It is unlike the usual type of electrical-driven locomotive and is constructed on the lines of a large steel coach. Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad aecompanied the engine from Baltimore in a test car attached to the locomotive.

In addition to the candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties the voters of the State generally will be called upon to cast their ballots for or against a proposed Constitutional amendment, the text of which is published in full in another column of The Republican, and in Garrett county the electorate will again have the opportunity of voting for or against the act passed at the 1924 Legislature proposing a bond issue for the purpose of building and equipping a county home for the indigent. It will be remembered that this same question was submitted to the people two years ago and was defeated.

Mr. N. R. Selby Thanks the Voters for their Support at the Recent Primary and Pledges His Support to the Ticket.

To the Editor of The Republican,
Oakland, Md.,

Dear Sir:—Will you knidly publish the following card of thanks to the voters of Garrett County:

I wish, even at this late date, to express my thanks to the voters of this county who supported me so loyally in the primary election.

Even though I was defeated, I am still the same loyal Republican I have always been and stand ready to further the Republican forces of county, State and Nation, and to back their program of sound government. I have always been able to appreciate the fact that the Republican party and its principles are worth more to the country than my personal aspirations are to me.

With high hopes for success in the coming election, I am, Sincerely,

N. R. SELBY.

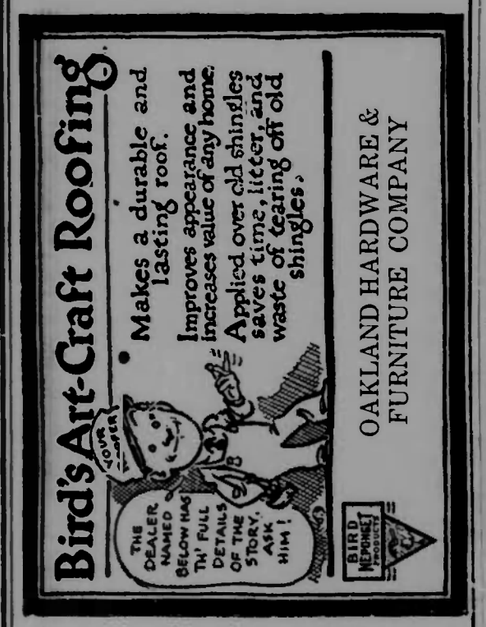
A. D. NAYLOR



REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE

FOR

State Senate

Naylor was nominated in an open Primary and is the choice of the Republican party for the State Senate. He was not placed on the ticket by a committee or small group of party leaders.

A vote for Naylor is a vote for the best interests of the County. He will represent in the State Senate ALL THE PEOPLE AND EVERY SECTION OF THE COUNTY, not any particular one. He believes in a square deal to all.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially For The Republican's Readers by Rev. U. S. Weigle, D.D.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1926.

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH.

Deuteronomy 32:48-52; 34:5-8.

Golden Text—Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.—Psalm 116:15.

THE DEVOTION OF MOSES.

Israel turned back from Kadesh Barnea. They in whom he had believed and to whom he had given such unique training had failed him. It was a tragic hour in the life of this great leader and the added heartache was that he was blamed for the failure. It must have been for many that came to him during his long career. With the hills ahead and the call of faith echoing his own desire for rest and quiet to give the order "back to the desert" must have whitened his hair a bit as well as the lips that spoke it. But there was no replying. The trail ahead was the one marked out by the God he had learned to trust and obey. Now he was called to continue his service, but instead of retiring she entered a medical school from which she later received her diploma. A grandmother graduating from a class in Northwestern of which her grandchild was a member serves also to emphasize the fact that even age may not be a deterrent to achieving great things upon new fields. The greatness of Moses appears in that it was not a new field with the stimulus of new surroundings but his new venture was among those who had shared the failure of Kadesh. For he loved them and was determined to give them all he had and whatever personal cost it might involve.

Our present lesson comes long years afterward and marks the close of his schooling of youth that had caught his fire and was ready to press into the promise that their fathers had denied. All the weariness of the desert years was behind him and anticipation in the heart of the still undaunted leader. The book is his swan song that drips with love unmentioned in what has gone before. For Deuteronomy is the account of his last addresses given to the men who peopled his affections. It looks retrospect, interrogation and forsight. It gives God the honor for all he has been and for all the way they have been led. It is the book that our Lord used in His own hour of testing and is one that may hearten our own in many a time of need.

THE DEFEAT OF MOSES.

He had marched with Israel through all the dreary days of desert dust and had cared for their sorrows and for their sins. Now he was at the end of the road and could not enter the land that God said, "No!" He might climb the hill of vision but he should not pass over. Again there is no self-pity nor word of complaint. He goes up into the mountains of Moab and gazes long across plain and sea at the billowing mountains beyond. What kept him perfectly in the will of God was not a perfect record. He was human. And not near as great a sin as Israel had indulged in on many occasions. Just the loss of temper once. If that is true it looks mighty dark for the rest of us. But in these days of reinterpretation of almost everything under the sun, with the love of God so distressingly cold, with world problems with new liberties born with every dawn, it is desperately needful that we see the bitter consequences of personal sin. It bars the way to every land of promise. And as it robbed Israel of the high comradeship of Moses on its further march, so it endangers us. It is a dark day for nations abroad. A soldier's night of debauchery let loose upon New Jersey the terrific record of the Jukes that has cost millions in the care of its imbeciles, in the court docketing of its criminals, in the hospital charges for its diseased, blind and syphilitic progeny. And it was but one night. It is not the size of the hole that sinks the ship; it is the water it lets in. Moses had one day of self-indulgence and paid the price of it on demand—as we all must do.

THE DEATH OF MOSES.

Up in the glory of the hills with the sweep of winds about him Moses waited his call. His brother had climbed Mount Hor; his sister had fallen on the journey; now he faced the summons alone. Towering like a mighty pine that has breathed the wrestling winds for centuries but finally feels the tornado touch it and stoops its top to the ground and falls to the spiked Jew. But beaten, baffled, persecuted or feared, they have lived across the centuries and build their faith about the name of the great lawgiver. And Christ was one of that race and the millions of those who name Him Lord honor the name of him that Jesus honored. Moreover, all the wonder of moral influence is shrined in the Law; brief, comprehensive, fundamental and going back to its author. Not only that came his own loyalty to its precepts. What would be the worth of a stone upon a lone hill compared with these living things that have grown out of his life? Instead of being a pile of stones it is a mountain of the world's bits of holy ground, he had traveled to all climes and has his monument in the hearts of those who revere greatness and who follow God.

music of the skies, so this man dies. In the tender language of the old Hebrew, "Moses died by the kiss of God." For his last hour was spent with Him who had spoken with him as a "friend with friend." And in such company there can be no fear. It would be a wonderful way to go. We can not guess, but all would agree that that mountain disappearance was sive, a fitting close for such a life. He died as he lived, in the heights with God.

THE MONUMENT OF MOSES.

There is a building upon that old mountain in the memory of the man who died there, but that is not the monument of Moses. There is a scattered people who do business in all the world's marts and whose numbers are often known as the dots on the maps of the world. But there is a greater monument than that. It is the book that our Lord used in His hour of testing and is one that may hearten our own in many a time of need.

Unseen Sources of Long Life

The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye.

A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is.

Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment.

The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car as with the seen.

The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.

Mrs. H. Z. Gibson was hostess for the October meeting of the U. B. Ladies' Aid Socitey on Friday afternoon. Ten members and two visitors were present. A social hour followed the business meeting.

Mrs. B. L. Hardesty and son Oliver left Loch Lynn Sunday morning for Madison, Wisconsin, to visit relatives.

Mrs. George Sisk and sister Miss Beulah Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Morris Sisk and daughter Mary are visiting the former's mother at Christensburg, Va.

Mrs. Walter Combs is visiting in Harper's Ferry, West Va.

Mr. Sam Weeks, of Fairfield, Va., is visiting his son Wm. Weeks at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Auman and family have gone to Akron, Ohio for the winter months.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held on Thursday evening at eight o'clock. All patrons of the school are urged to attend.

There will be the usual services in both churches here next Sunday.

Mrs. A. T. White spent several days here recently putting her house in order for renting. Mr. H. M. Weeks has the property in charge.

ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kelle and Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Keller spent Sunday at Evansville, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Georg and Miss Marie Gochringer spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Zinkan.

Miss Oma Friend, who is attending the Frostburg Normal School, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clark Glotfelty, of McHenry.

Mr. Fred Miller and Miss Rose Miller, Alexander vonSchlichten and Miss Margaret vonSchlichten were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Snyder.

A very exciting volley ball game was played on Friday afternoon at the high school between the girls of the Freshmen class and the Sophomore and Junior classes combined. None of the players had ever before been in a game. This helped to make the set-to all the more interesting. The final score was 10-7 in favor of the Sophomore-Junior team.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the English Lutheran church held a so-cial entitled "Trip Around the World" on Saturday night. There were five of the homes of our town decorated most beautifully to represent the different countries, they being England ,the first country visited, where a short program was rendered and refreshments were served according to the customs of England. Italy, France, Japan and the United States followed the same example. There was a large attendance and the trip was enjoyed very much.

Friday afternoon, October 8, Kitzmiller found that Accident's small soccer players were made of good stuff. The time was spent rushing the ball from one side of the field to the other, but no scores were made. The Kitzmiller goal keeper handed some pretty good shots from the Accident players. The line-up for Accident was Marvin Callis, John Speicher, Robert Friend, Lloyd Hoover, Clayford Detrick, George Miller (Captain), Edward Glotfelty, Lawrence Georg, John McGettigan, Stewart Bowman and Lloyd Fike.

AN OPEN LETTER

EROM

Senator McCullough

To the Voters, Citizens and Taxpayers of Garrett County, Md.

I take this opportunity ,through the columns of the press, to announce to you that I am a candidate to succeed myself to fill the high and honorable office of State Senator in the November election.

Five years ago, when nominated by the Democratic State Central Committee, I had no opposition by contending candidates for the office. You all know the large affiliated Republican majority in our county and that I was elected to the office by a nice, substantial majority.

I have no personal political aspirations, and would prefer to have turned the nomination to a more worthy candidate, but the sentiment of the State Central Committee and my friends in both political parties was so strong for me to accept the nomination that I could not honorably refuse.

Chiefly for the reason, when I was elected five years ago by the majority I received, and the large affiliated majority against me, I have a feeling of gratification that I was the people's choice to fill this high and honorable position. It is under these conditions as they exist and the pressure that has been brought to bear on me to run for this office, that I accept the nomination.

I feel that it is not a light between me and my worthy opponent—it is a matter for the people to decide. We are both well known in the county. But I do feel, when a man seeks to serve the public the public has a perfect right to investigate the individual's record, both public and private, and I feel the people should decide whom they prefer to represent them. We both have public and private records, and persnoally I invite the people to investigate mine.

I have served you in the Maryland Senate the last two sessions. I was present all the time and voted on every measure of importance .and I do not hesitate to say in every instance my vote is recorded to enhance the moral, social, religious and financial interest of our county and State.

I was on a great many committees, the most important in the Senate being the Finance Committee. I was chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment of Expenses of State Govenment, and introduced the following resolution, which was passed in both Houses of the Assembly:

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 9.

RELATING TO RETRENCHMENT OF EXPENSES OF STATE GOVERNMENT

"Whereas, There is a strong sentiment in our State, as well as in every State of the Union, for a general and substantial reduction in taxes, both State and Federal; and,

Whereas, During the World War there developed an unavoidable condition of high prices, large expenditures and extravagances, both private and public; and,

Whereas, The business men of the State are seeking to establish a normal condition whereby business can be conducted with reduced expenditures and small profits, thus enabling them to give to the consuming public one hundred cents worth for a dollar, which the public demands, and it will have to be speedily brought about or the business enterprises of the country will be brought to a comparative stand still, which will bring disaster and suffering to many classes of deserving people; therefore be it

RESOLVED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF MARYLAND, That no salaries be raised in the present budget over 1923 salary list, and in cases where such requests are made they should be thoroughly investigated; and if these salaries are in keeping with salaries of like responsibilities in other public positions or in private business, they should not be raised; and be it further

RESOLVED, That wherever in the State budget appropriations are made for improvements and such improvements are in excess of the general growth of the public and the State as a whole, such appropraitions should be cut from the budget. The taxpayer is demanding of us reduction of taxes, and the only way it can be done is to cut down expenditures; and be it further

RESOLVED .That all committees be requested to discourage the creation of new boards and offices, or any increase in the personnel of existing boards and offices where it does not interfere with the health and general welfare of the public; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Chairman of all committees be requested to pass upon as rapidly as possible all bills comnig before their committees, giving all questions due consideration, so that the General Assembly can keep up with its duties, and pass all legislation in an intelligent manner, so when it comes to the closing days of the Legislature that all bills will have had careful consideration; and be it further

RESOLVED, That all members who have any bills to introduce or know of any bills to be introduced that will increase the budget or tend to increase the State tax rate, or increase the State's indebtedness, to introduce them promptly so that they may be carefully considered and disposed of in a proper manner.

This resolution was my thought and sentiments at that time, and under the present conditions they are still my sentiments, and if re-elected I will try and carry them out in the next Assembly. It will always be necessary to budget sufficient funds to maintain our State government and institutions, which we did in the last session.

I want to draw your attention to the growing sentiment and increasing demand for additional institutions and the extension of the present ones. The management of those institutions come in with large delegations and ask tremendous for the further extension of their institutions. The men who are managing those institutions are on the public pay roll—paid by the taxpayer—and they do not realize how difficult it is for the taxpayer to raise the money they are expending and that the taxpayer and the public should be first considered. Under the present demands, it is up to the representatives to see if their claims are justified, and the taxpayer to see that men of ability, reason, character and judgment—men who know the value of a dollar—are sent to fill these most important positions.

In the last session of the Legislature there were bills introduced and came before the Finance Committee for new appropriations of various kinds that would have increased the State's indebtedness over seventeen millions of dollars, and we were able to let not one of them pass the Legislature. A few of them were submitted on the floor with an unfavorable report and passed over the heads of their opponents. The Governor vetoed them and they lacked two votes of passing them over the veto. Consequently there was not one appropriation bill passed in the last Legislature that was not in the general budget.

There is a feeling among a great many people that their representatives do not get anything for their people. It would have been easy for me to have gotten some institution for our county if I had joined with the extravagance of passing the bills mentioned. I do not believe in collusion of interests for personal honors and gain against the best interests of my constituents and the public, and will never give my consent to such principles. I believe in prosperity and in doing all I can to develop our county and use all the influence I posses to bring industry to our county, great or small, so long as they are willing to help bear their rightful share of taxation and development of our county and State on an equal basis with the people of old heritage and the taxpayers who have borne the burdens to bring our present standards of living in effect and are striving to better them. We welcome industry who will join us on this basis.

It is true I did not bring any large monument home with me in honor of myself and people, but I want to remind you while I have represented you in the last two sessions of the Legislature we have been able to reduce the State tax rate about nine cents on the hundred dollars with an unusual extravagant condition to contend with and overcome with all the State's bonded indebtedness on the tax lists to pay the bonds at maturity. I feel the people need tax reduction more than they need monuments or institutions to some one's credit. Personally, I am proud of the record made by the General Assembly of the State while I have been a member of that body.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN W. McCULLOUGH,
Democratic Candidate for State Senator.

AN OPEN LETTER

ADDRESSED TO

Senator McCullough

Oakland, Md., October 14th, 1926.

Hon. J. W. McCullough,
Friendsville, Md.,

Dear Sir:—Prior to the recent primary there was circulated by some one a story to the effect that if nominated and elected to the State Senate I would exempt the power company, operating near Oakland, from taxation. This story was and is absolutely false and when it came to my attention I inserted in both county papers a denial and stated that I had no intention whatever of exempting that company or any other corporation or individual from its or his just share of taxes. I am quite sure that you read those statements as I take it for granted that you are a subscriber to one or both of our county papers. I further wish to state that I have never had any communication or connection with the company or any of its representatives either directly or indirectly.

In view of this I have been very greatly surprised to learn from men with whom you have talked during the past few days that you are not only repeating this story as though it were true but that you intend to make the same a campaign issue. I am still more surprised that a man who has served for five years in the State Senate and who knows the utter absurdity and impossibility of this story would use this form of cheap deception as a means of winning votes.

I think that it is high time to call a halt to this method of conducting a campaign in Garrett County and accordingly I wish to advise you that it is my intention to hold you personally responsible in damages for any further spreading of this story. I wish also to give you an opportunity to come out into the open and either produce proof to substantiate your statement or acknowledge that you were misinformed and were repeating a story about which you have no personal knowledge.

I, therefore, challenge you to submit to "The Republican" and "Mountain Democrat" for publication in their issues of next week, the evidence in detail, in the form of sworn statements, to back up your version of this story. Your failure to do so will be taken as clear proof of the fact that you have simply been trying to deceive the people of Garrett County, and due publicity will be given to the same.

This letter is being sent to you by registered mail and a copy thereof published in "The Republican" of this date.

Very truly yours,

A. D. NAYLOR.
Republican candidate for State Senator.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 51. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, OCTOBER 21, 1926. NUMBER 35.

SAYS CONOWINGO LED TO CHOICE OF GOV. RITCHIE

Mullikin Asserts Consummation of Deal Resulted in Third Term Candidacy.

Before a crowd which filled to capacity the Maryland Theatre in Oakland on Tuesday night, Addison E. Mullikin, Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, continued to train his guns on Governor Ritchie and the active participation of the State Executive in pushing the deal through to the exclusion of Maryland interests, practically giving away the second largest hydro-electric project in the United States to the Pennsylvania Railroad interests and its associates in Philadelphia.

The Oakland meeting Tuesday evening brought to a close a five-day campaign in the Western Maryland counties, in which Hon. William F. Broening, Republican candidate for Attorney General and Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman also participated, all of them speaking to interested audiences in Friendsville and at Grantsville earlier in the day.

The meeting held at Friendsville, an open-air gathering, was especially pleasing to the State candidates as well as some of the candidates on the local ticket who accompanied the party from Grantsville where they met following meetings held at various points in Allegany county. The meeting at Friendsville was presided over by Mr. Nathan R. Selby, who introduced the speakers.

Tuesday evening the audience was composed of representative men and women from every part of the county. The auditors faced a stage which had been handsomely decorated for the occasion by some of the women of Oakland, the setting being composed of the national colors, autumn leaves, palms and cut flowers.

Mr. E. Ray Jones, member of the Republican Central Committee of the county presided after being presented by Chairman Fraley of the committee, and he introduced the speakers in a very happy manner. On the stage in addition to the members of the committee and the State and National candidates were Mr. D. Lindley Sloan, candidate for Chief Judge; A. D. Naylor, Arthuur Lawton, Arthur H. Green and Albert Markley, Republican legislative candidates, and Mr. Julius C. Renninger, Garrett county's Republican candidate for State's Attorney.

Using new ammunition, Mr. Mullikin, after paying a glowing tribute to the women of the nation and of Garrett county, charged that consummation of the negotiations in the disposal of the natural resources of the State was the deciding factor in Governor Ritchie's nomination.

He repeated the charge that the deal was hurried through and declared that the settlement of the Conowingo contract was rushed necessarily, politically speaking, in order that the Democratic party might determine its choice of a Gubernatorial candidate. In less than thirty days after the matter was settled ,he said, Governor Ritchie announced his third-term candidacy.

"Conowingo is the price we have paid for the Governor's third term amhition," Mr. Mullikin asserted. "The Conowingo deal was done quickly and public opinion did not have a chance to express itself . Public opinion is beginning to have its innings now.

"We must remember, of course, that politically speaking there was some reason for hurrying up the Conowingo matter which was announced in the closing days of January. At that time there was much discussion as to who was to be the next Democratic candidate for Governor.

"There must be alignments of forces and influences in order to determine the nomination. Apparently the settlement of the Conowingo matter was a vital factor in deciding who was to be the Democratic candidate

"Of course, the Governor had a very good reason to hurry the preliminaries that had to he settled. Conowingo was adjusted to the satisfaction of the big Interests in January and in less than thirty days Governor Ritchie announced his third-term candidacy. When the people learned that the preliminaries had thus been disposed of they knew, of course, he had to be renominated."

As Mr. Mullikin delved into the Conowingo matter Tuesday night, along with his condemnation of the Democratic administration on the line of extravagance and [illegible] declared the power negotiations marked the climax of many sacrifices in Maryland to subserve political ends.

"In the palmy days of old political organizations," he said, "no stroke as bold as this was ever attempted. The controlling forces of Governor Ritchie's party constitute a super-government within our State. This super-government has dealt a deadly blow to othe welfare of Baltimore City and Maryland.

"This super-government is stifling public opinion in the State. It creates a Public Service Commission composed of three members under its control and acting upon its dictation. It induces the commission to give away the most valuable resource within our State.

"It brushes aside the advice of the People's Counsel,who sounded a warning regarding the injury that is to be perpetrated on the State. Not only did it disregard the advice of the People's Counsel but it so manipulated its plans that the people were kept in the dark regarding the Conowingo transaction until it was closed. The Governor is at the head of this super-government and combined with it are his officeholders and other powerul interests."

Following Mr. Mullikin's address, Congressman Zihlman was presented by Chairman Jones, who received an ovation when he arose to address the assemblage. The Congressman reviewed briefly the accomplishments of the National Republican party following the war, showing conclusively that it is the party of economy and not of wilful extravagance; the party of good and equitable government and appealed to the voters to support not only the candidates assembled in the theatre but to return to the United States Senate Mr. Weller, thus giving to the National administration the endorsement of the people of Maryland.

Mr. Zihlman was followed by Hon. W. F. Broening, former mayor of Baltimore City, at present the Republican candidate for Attorney General. Mr. Broening produced arguments that are unanswerable in his denunciation of the extravagance of the State administration notwithstanding the fact that from the same platform upon which he was standing the Democratic candidates just the night preceding made the bold assertion that taxes had been reduced in Maryland and that the State administration was economical in every department.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the combined Oakland and Crellin bands, which added materially to the pleasure of the evening.

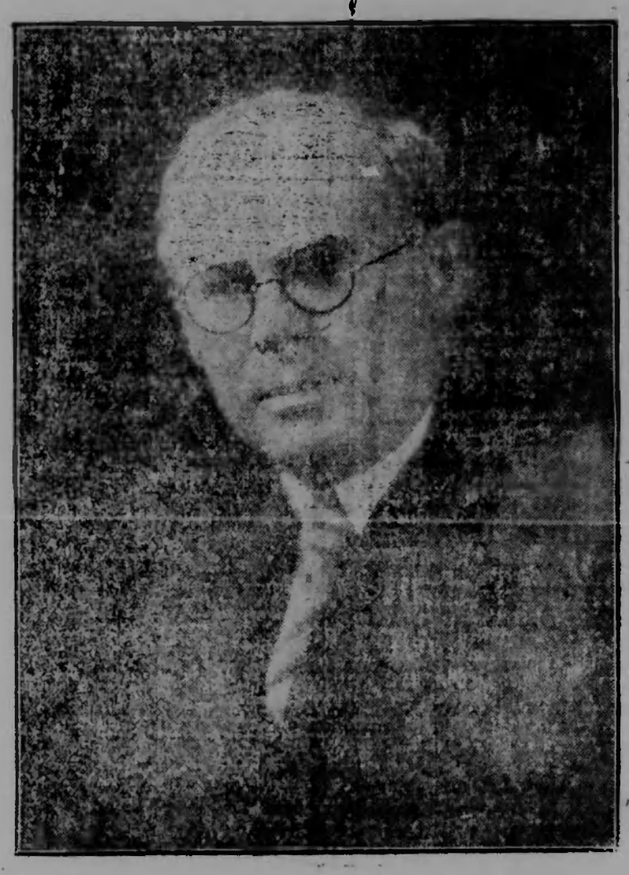
DIED.

MRS. ELLEN MARTIN.

Mrs. Ellen Martin, aged 85 years, widow of the late Thomas Martin, died at her home on Oak street this morning at one o'clock after a lingering illness due to advancing years. The deceased is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ellen Kennedy, of Parkersburg, West Va., and Misses Arabel and Dora, at home. Mrs. Martin was a life long member of the Presbyterian church in Oakland. She was born in Ireland and came to oAmerica when quite young.

GEORGE E. FULLER.

George E. Fuller, aged ninety years, a veteran of the Civil War, died at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Chesley, in Loch Lynn Heights this morning at an early hour. The deceased came to this section more than fifteen years ago from Cumberland. During the war he was attached to a battery of Massachusetts artillery and fought in every major operation of the Army of the Potomac with one exception. He was born in Boston where he enlisted in the service hut never returned to his native city. The funeral of the deceased will occur tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with interment in a lot purchased for the purpose this morning by the local post of the American Legion. Mr. Fuller had no known relatives. He was a member of the G. A. R. post at Cumberland.



MISS MARTHA ELLEN MASON

Miss Martha Ellen Mason, aged 81 years, 9 months and 5 days, died at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. D. M. Mason on Third street, last Friday, and was buried in the Oakland cemetery Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The deceased had been an invalid for several years following an injury whereby she sustained a fracture of her hip. Miss Mason was a deaf mute from birth and was a beautiful character in Christian simplicity.

MISS EDITH MURPHY

Miss Edith Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Murphy, of New Germany, and a member of the Sophomore Class of the Oakland High school, died very suddenly at noon on Saturday, of acute indigestion. Miss Murphy was at her home when she was stricken, not more than twenty minutes before her death. She made her home in Oakland during the school terms of last year. This year she was late in registering at the school on account of ill health, having enrolled with her class on the 4th inst. The young lady is survived by her parents, five sisters and five brothers: Miss Nellie Murphy, a senior, and Miss Gertrude Murphy, a junior at the High school here; Miss Bertha Murphy, a registered nurse, who resides in Ohio, and Misses Clema and Helen at home. Clyde and John at home as is also three other brothers whose names could not be learned. It is said by a number of the classmates of the deceased young lady that she was a splendid student and popular

ADOLPH C. FREY DIES VERY SUDDENLY AT JOHNSTOWN

Local Theatre Manager Succumbs To Attack Saturday Night in Pennsylvania City.

Adolph C. Frey, manager of the Maryland Theatre in Oakland and a prime favorite with all who knew him, died suddenly on Saturday night at Johnstown, Pa., from a heart attack. He was aged forty-five years.

Mr. Frey, in company with Mr. Howard Rineheard, manager of the Mount Airy Canning Co., of Oakland, with other friends, had gone to Johnstown early Saturday morning to witness a football game between Washington and Jefferson and Carnegie Tech. After the game they motored to Stoyestown, Pa., a distance of about nineteen miles, for dinner and later in the evening the party returned to Johnstown and went to the home of friends. Mr. Frey and Mr. Rinehard were preparing to leave for their hotel when the former experienced a peculiar sensation in his arm. The pain was so intense that the stricken man was almost overcome before he could cross the room where he reclined upon a couch and within a few minutes he passed away.

Mr. Frey was the son of Mrs. Annie and the late Adolph Frey of Frostburg, Md. He was born on July 3, 1881, at Frostburg and had lived in his native town until about two years ago when he came to Oakland to take over the active management of the Maryland Theatre. Aside from his mother he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bessie Coulehan Frey, and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Hitchens and Mrs. Emory G. Hitchens, all of Frostburg. In addition to the interests in Oakland Mr. Frey, was associated with the Palace Theatre Company, which control and operate picture houses in Frostburg, Brunswick and at Mount Savage.

Mr. Frey had been seriously ill three years ago, suffering with blood clots and it was only after a year of patient nursing that he recovered from that illness. Since that time he was in delicate health and was prohibited from over exertoin.

He was a member of the Frostburg Rotary Club, Frostburg Fire Department, the Loyal Order of Moose, B. P. O. Elks and the Knights of Columbus, being a fourth degree member of the latter order. He was one of the first Boy Scout masters in Frostburg and it was largely due to his efforts that an organized Hallowe'en celebration was instituted in Frostburg years ago.

By trade Mr. Frey was an electrician and in that capacity held a position with the Consolidation Coal Co. for several years prior to entering the motion picture theatre business.

Mr. Frey's body was taken to Frostburg Sunday evening and on Tuesday at 9:30 o'clock the funeral was held from St. Michael's Catholic church, being largely attended by friends from Oakland, Frostburg and other points.

Swat the Autumn Fly.

Have you noticed how persistent and insistent each fly has been that has buzzed into your house or your office or into the school room since the cooler days have come? Because the ounce of prevention in this particular case will yield such positive results, the advice of Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health is, to be equally persistent in getting rid of the left-over flies.

"The best thing to do," he says, "if you want to keep down next summer's crop of flies is to treat each fly of the late fall as your deadly enemy and swat at it until you lay it low. The descendents of the pair of flies that is taking up winter lodgings in some sheltered spot under your porch, in your attic, in your barn, or elsewhere around the place, will swarm down upon you next summer millions strong unless you put an end to them now. Like the goblins in the rhyme, the flies will surely get you if you don't watch out. Don't leave a single one to live through the winter.

"A single fly lays from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and forty eggs at a time. A single pair will produce from eight to ten generatioons in a season. The descendants of a single pair run up into the billions. They breed in filth and they carry disease from sick to well. For every fly you kill this fall, you can say to yourself, 'That means that much less danger to the babies next summer from intestinal diseases; that much less to the grown-ups—and to the children, too—from tuberculosis and typhoid and from other catching diseases.

"Do the job well while you are at it. Don't let a single fly escape. Swat

FIRST ANNUAL SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY A SUCCESS

Organized Schools From All Sections of the County In the Parade Sunday Afternoon

With flags flying, bands playing, the sun shining and the air being just snappy enough to make walking a pleasure, the first annual County-wide Sunday School Rally to be held in Garrett county was voted a tremendous success after a thousand children, young men and young women and older persons of both sexes had paraded through the streets of Oakland last Sunday afternoon, and ending at the Maryland Theatre where R. Paul Smith, of Hagerstown, Md., addressed the body in a most forceful manner.

In addition to the Oakland units, large contingents of the Loch Lynn Heights, Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park, Friendsville, Crellin, Oak Grove, and perhaps a dozen other schools located in different sections of the county were present and participated in the parade and enjoyed the message of Mr. Smith and the program as carried out in connection therewith at the theatre, it being deemed too cold to hold an open-air meeting as was first intended by the originators of the plan.

The cold rain and overcast skies of the early hours of Sunday was disheartening for any outdoor pleasures, hence the idea of holding the rally was almost given up until the sun shone out and warmed the atmosphere to some extent.

Had the morning been bright and warm the probabilities are that the crowd would have two or three times as large as it was, but with the success attending this first effort plans are already under way for a larger effort next year, when the rally will be held about the middle of September or possibly earlier.

At the theatre Dr. Archibald Moore, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, presided. Mr. E. R. Jones, president of the Garrett County Sunday School Association, assisted and Rev. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, introduced the speaker, whose theme was cooperation and service. Mr. Smith's address was listened to with marked attention and was enlightening in many ways.

Music was furnished during the parade and also at the theatre by the Crellin and Oakland bands.

MARYLAND DAIRY PRODUCTS SPECIAL TRAIN

To be Operated By the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to Oakland

The Dairy Products Special of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company will be operated in eleven counties of Pennsylvania, nine counties of West Virginia and eight counties of Maryland, between November 1 and 20. The train has been scheduled to reach Oakland on Monday, November 15th, at 8:00 o'clock a. m.

The railroad company, in cooperation with the National Dairy Council, a health and child welfare organization of Chicago, has arranged a special exhibit for the benefit of the county school children.

A feature of the special will be the daily talks of the humorist, "Happy" Goldsmith, to junior and senior high school students. Mr. Goldsmith has made a specialty of lecturing to senior and junior high school students thruout the country and the National Dairy Council has arranged for him to accompany the Baltimore and Ohio's special during the three weeks of its operation, so that pupils living on or near its lines may have the benefit of his talks.

The Dairy Products Special is another of many agricultural trains which the Baltimore and Ohio has run to help the communities which its lines serve. It is its way of putting the "Good Neighbor" policy into practice.

Former State Senator Brown left Oakland yesterday for Baltimore to remain a week, when he will return to Oakland. Mr. Brown and sister occupied Mrs. Hayes' property here during the summer, Miss Brown preceding her brother to Baltimore a few days ago.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the Lutheran church will hold their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon, October 27th, at the home of Mrs. Roy O. Winters, instead of on Thursday, the latter date being the day of meeting of the State Sunday School convention in Cumberland.

Be strong and of good courage; for Jehovah thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua 1:19.

THE PRAYER.

Moses had gotten his declaration of doom. He who had planned and prayed and hoped for the settling of Israel in the land of promise knew that he was debarred from entry. It was as tragic an hour in his life as ever comes to any in this day who reach the inevitable "dead line." "How old are you?" is the fateful question from the employment clerk. "Fifty-one," comes back quickly enough and is met by a slow shake of the head and the explanation that they do not take on any men over fifty. And yet his eyes are undimmed and his natural force unabated. The thing that came to Moses has touched him and he must stand aside and see younger men do work which he is confident he could do even better if he could but be given a chance. "I can't use you in Canaan," was God's fateful word to the old leader. For he must not only see his application for a new job refused, he must lose his old one. The desk must be turned over to some one else which is a still more trying situation than the simple refusal of a new place. And though it be done in kindness there is still the sting of feeling the usefulness of one's self to the business that gives poignancy to the keen disappointment. How a man takes this hour is all sufficient test of his character quality. Moses does not even suggest his preference in the matter. There is no pleading for continuance. There is eager urgency that a new leader be selected, that no delay be put upon the movement, that the cause be not hurt in any way. For Moses had buried himself in his work and was destined to a resurrection in glory in the position of his dream in the days of Jesus. Now he turns to eager planning for his supersession. He had been coaching Joshue for long years, and in the presence of all the people lays his hands on him and honors him in the eyes of Israel. There is to be no heredity leadership—it is to be given for ability only. Great standard to set up but it was the only one possible with such a man as Moses He would give the new administration every possible help in its inauguratoin. Moses was a booster and not a blocker. He was never greater than in these days preceding his retirement from public life.

THE PROMISE.

They mourned for Moses—they did well in the doing, for no greater figure walks the pages of history. And Joshua was the sincerest of them all for he was beginning to feel the weight of the new office and questions without number were in his mind if only Moses were there. It was a phrase passing through his mind every hour of the busy days. Then suddenly there came another on its heel—the God of Moses was as present now as He had ever been. The plan did not perish with its inaugurator. God spoke in his soul and the conviction of His support reached all the being of the staggering man. God did not die with his old spokesman, nor does He ever do it. Cheer enough there is here for all of us. The pledge of God to give the land to Israel would be fulfilled. Joshua was being justified in his own mind over the selection for such an unprecedented task. But they must walk over it themselves else it would not be theirs. God never hands out provisions to the one refusing to work. Somebody may give us an arithmetic, but having the book does not make a mathematician. He who owns the book must walk through its pages and wherever he has stepped in mastery he enters into possession. Joshua was practical to his finger tips, and religion that involved no work would not satisfy him. He would rejoice in free grace, but he would mingle it with free grit also. Under the tutelage of God he began to vision the boundaries of the new estate. He had walked over it years before, going as far as Hamath. It should all belong to Israel. It was included in the promise, but Israel failed to secure it because of her refusal to "walk.' We miss our own in the same fashion. But the real thrill of soul was in the inborn voice of a living Presence with him as he had known it to be with Moses. God with him and he could go anywhere.

THE PLAN.

Courage flooded the whole being of the new leader. He faced the future without a tremor. What should be the guiding principle of advance? Before him lay a swift river, frowning fortresses and hostile people, so that the vital thing was to be strong and very courageous and fight. At least that would be the judgment of most of us. But the ending was different here. It was to keep the law. That was fundamental to successful advance. Practical old Joshua again and a much needed figure in our own day. And if it was to be the basis of all other things then it must be known and understood. Joshua was to go to school, to mull it over in his mind and gather its full meaning. There has never been a Know-It-All who has been a real leader. And he who discards the bible and its study and understanding in these days of perplexing relationships becomes uunfit even to be a follower of the great movements in a world ruled by moral laws and founded upon its Maker's rules. You may sit in the smoker, day coach or Pullman, but you can't ride on the train unless you stick to the rails. The whole advance of God is based upon laws that refuse to spread or be switched, and the train will reach its destination after a while, but some fellows who are fooling with the swith may get run over in the process.

THE PROGRAM.

There was no long hesitancy on the part of Joshua and his selection is fully justified by the actions of the days that followed his memorable interview with God. If that does not tune up a man he is hopeless. Foch spent one known hour kneeling in a battered cathdral—how many that are not known may only he surmised—and then the whole line from Egypt to England advanced. "Pack up; in three days we cross the Jordan," swept the great company facing the future uncertainly but obediently. The tribes that had been settled into the conquered territory east of the river were called upon for their levies of fighting men and they marched swiftly into line. If Joshua had anything to do he would get at it and Israel had no other recourse than to follow. If it would keep pace with him it too must march. And such men are always leaders in any age.

To Prevent That Common Cold

"Don't forget that sunshine and fresh air—indoors as well as out of doors—are two of the best preventatives we have against the common cold that so often makes its appearance as soon as the chilly weather approaches," is the advice of Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health.

"There is a great tendency," he continued, "as soon as the fall comes, to close all doors and windows, and to shut out all the outside air. The air inside the house becomes impure from being breathed in and out, over and over again. Germs of the common cold, as well as of other catching diseases, thrive in air of that sort. They can't flourish where there is a constant circulation of fresh air. And you are doubly safeguarded when the sunshine is brought in as an ally of the fresh air.

"Fortunately for the grown-ups of the future, the children of today are acquiring health habits as a matter of course, while they are mastering the three R's in school. And they are teaching some of their lessons to the grown-ups in the homes as was proved by a recent experience of one of the public health nurses of the State Department of Health.

"She noticed that the baby of the family was kept out of doors every sunshiny day, in a screened kiddie coop, comfortably dressed according to the weather, but a real, open air baby, instead of being kept indoors like so many of the neighbors' children. When the mother was questioned about it, she said that about three years ago her oldest boy ,then about eleven years old, come home from school one day early in the fall and old her that his health lesson for the day was, 'Sleep with your bedroom windows open.' That night Johnny's bedroom windows were wide open, while mother slept in the next room, sure that Johnny would wake up with a sore throat and she would have him and all the rest of the children down sick.

"But Johnny was down in the morning with no sign of the threatened cold or sore throat. The next night his windows were open and the next, and so on for the entire winter. The mother was at last convinced that the open window was a preventive against colds and the following winter the windows in every bedroom in the entire house were open at night.

"There are two morals to the story," Dr. Fulton added. "First, Johnny's baby brother is getting the benefit of Johnny's example and is being brought up as a fresh air baby.

"Second, and this is worth thinking about: For the first time since entering school Johnny went through that whole winter without losing a single day from school because of colds."

A REAL HEROINE

Edith May Adams of Barrington, N. J., the first American School girl to be entered as a candidate for the American Youth Award. The American Youth and Teacher Award was established by the Board of Directors of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia as a tribute to the youth and teachers of the nation. Miss Adams is a candidate for the Golden Eaglette, the highest gift in the hands of the Girl Scouts. She was cited recently for exceptional bravery for remaining inside a blazing building helping physicians to give first aid treatment to injured firemen.

HISTORY IN CAKE

This replica of historic Independence Hall in Philadelphia is a fine example of the baker's art. It was made by the chef of one of Philadelphia's leading hotels to advertise the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, which will open in that city June 1 and run to December 1 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of American Independence. The "State House" stands on a table at the entrance to the main dining room of the hotel.

Federal Commissioner

Rear Admiral H. O. Stickney, retired, who has been appointed by Secretaries Hoover and Kellogg as Federal Commissioner to the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition commemorating the 150th anniversary of American Independence and which will be held in Philadelphia from June 1 to December 1. Admiral Stickney will be in full charge of the United States Government exhibit, which will be the largest of its type ever made.

GRANTSVILLE

The Mutual Telephone Company of Springs, has rebuilt its line from West Salisbury, Pa., through Springs to Grantsville and is renewing the line through the last named town. The company has purchased the Mrs. Ellen Younkin property from Henry P. Miller and it will be used for the central office. The switchboard was moved from C. J. Yoder's home this week to the new exchange office, after which continuance service has been maintained. Individual line service will be given and direct connection will be made at Meyersdale with the Johnstown Telephone Company lines; also direct connections with the Economy Telephone lines at Salisbury, through both of which companies direct connections will be available with the Bell system. Pay stations will be located at Gransville and at other points.

A large assembly of the citizens and school children of Grantsville grected Governor Ritchie, Millard E. Tydings, Thomas J. Robinson, James A. Young, Frank W. Mish, Senator John W. McCullough and Harvey Gortner, of the Democratic State and local tickets, at the school Monday at noon. The meeting was called to order by U. O. Blocher, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. C. A. Bender was chosen chairman of the meeting and introduced the speakers.

The reorganization of the Senior Christian Endeavor Society was accomplished Sunday evening with the election of the following officers: Mrs. H. C. Edwards, president; vice-president and corresponding secretary, G. W. Diefenbach; recording secretary, Ralph Younkin; treasurer, Mrs. C. U. Edwards. The various committees will be appointed by the president.

Prof. M. W. Whiteford, agricultural instructor at the high school, with Casper Loechel, Alvin Baker and Wm. Turner, left on Tuesday afternoon for Frederick, Md., where they will attend the fair. The youths are pupils of Mr. Whiteford in the local school and will take part in the final cattle judging contest with all the agricultural classes in the State.

Mrs. J. J. Bender and sons Clyde and Otto, left here Sunday night to spend the winter in North Pomona, California. They will spend some time with Mrs. Bender's sister, Mrs. Maddox, and visit other cities in the western State.

The Reformed Missionary Society was entertained at the home of Mrs. Harold Boucher. A very interesting meeting was held with a large number of members present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cochrane and daughter, of Masontown, Pa., spent the week-end with Miss Dorothy Younkin.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kitting, of Lewistown, Pa., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meager.

J. A. Taylor, of Mountain Lake Park, visited friends in town several days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. During and daughters, of Pittsburgh, are guests of the Misses Blocher at Dixie Tavern.

Miss Margaret Dorsey has returned from a two week's visit with James Callaghan and family at Dennison, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Galusha and son Harold and Miss Edna Sines, of Morgantown, W. Va., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. U. and H. C. Edwards.

The officers and directors of the Grantsville Fair Association held a meeting recently and transacted the final business for the year. The premium checks are ready for distribution by the secretary, Mr. A. C. Stanton, at the First State Bank. The members of the Association were well pleased with the fair this year. While it was not as profitable as the past two or three years, it was a success. The exhibits were not so many as in previous years ,but the quality was superior and all who were interested worked for the success of the fair.

The magazine contest just completed by the pupils of the high school was very successful, thirty-five dollars being the percentage received by the school. It will be used to buy reference books and periodicals for the students.

At the Grantsville Musical Club meeting held at the Holmes and Wallace studios, the fifth program of the second year was rendered as follows: Piano solo, Mrs. G. W. Diefenbach; solo, "Crusaders," Miss Christina Winterberg; solo, "Life," Mr. G. W. Diefenbach. The study of the Epoch of the Netherlands from the fourteenth to the sixteenth centuries, was discussed by the club, with singing of 16th century hymns.

Miss Alverta Miller, principal of the Boucher school, held a social recently and the proceeds received have been used to buy a table, chairs and some equipment for the playground and other necessary articles for the school.

Those on the honorroll of this school for the month of September were Gilbert and Austin McKenzie and Fred. Gardner.

Mrs. Rhoda Paul has moved her family from West Salisbury to the town where she will have charge of the Mutual Telephone Company's office as operator.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin and daughter Mabel and son Emmons, of Pittsburgh, and James Younkin left Friday to visit their son Frank, who is a patient in the Government Hospital at Perry Point, Md.

Henry Patton is confined to his bed with an attack of grip.

Dr. Bayard T. Keller and son Bayard, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, motored here on Tuesday to visit the former's brother, Dr. G. C. Keller, who remains critically ill.

The following teachers and graduates of the Maryland State Normal School, class of 1926, attended the dance given Frdiay night: Misses Esther Zehner,Elizabeth Engle, Frank Getty and Prof. R. R. Webster; Misses Virginia Kalbaugh and Vivian Powers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Bender, Miss Grace Hershberger, Hobart Speicher and Prof. R. R. Webster attended the Carnegie Tech and W. & J. football game at Johnstown, Pa., Saturday and spent Sunday with Miss Helen Stanton in Johnstown.

Miss Viola Broadwater, of Union Bridge, Md., spent the week-end with her mother Mrs. Marion Broadwater, in Grantsville.

Mrs. Henry Patton spent several days last week in Uniontown with her daughter.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK

The Mountain Lake Park Association has announced its annual meeting to be held here next Saturday, October 23d, for the purpose of transacting routine business in relation to the Park and its interests.

Revs. Fultz and Aspinall began their special meeting at Pleasant Valley on Monday evening of this week. The people of the community show great interest in the meeting and success may be looked for.

The forests here are gorgeously clothed with beautiful foliage, indicating that winter is approaching.

The families of Mrs. A. A. Richards and Rev. T. D. Richards will go to their winter homes this week.

A reunion of the Grimes family of Pittsburgh was held at the home of Mr. Bushrod Grimes in the Park on Sunday. All the members of the family with one exception were present.

It is generally known that the Association wishes to sell the Park. Should another opportunity come to them to dispose of the property to men of financial standing ,as they had in 1925, it is hoped that the objectors who defeated the sale at that time will change their attitude.

The electric light system in the Park is being greatly improved at this time. The West Penn is erecting new poles throughout the Park, stringing new wires and otherwise improving the service.

We have been having some very delightful weather during recent days. Two frosts have come and left their marks on vegetation.

Ronald Reedy, who sustained a fractured leg and arm some days ago, is still in the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland from which reports come indicating that he is improving.

Mrs. C. S. Graef, of Chicago, is visiting her home folks here.

The large Maxwell cottage is being painted which adds much to its beauty.

DEER PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Soelters and two sons returned Sunday morning from a week's trip to different points in West Virginia.

Miss Genevieve Lee returned to Piedmont on Monday after spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, in Deer Park.

Mr. Marshall Bobet, of Pittsburgh, spent a few days with his parents in Deer Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Watson, of Fairmont, who occupied their summer residence during the past few months, returned to Fairmont one day last week.

Mr. T. H. Mosser visited in Westernport on last Friday.

Rev. D. B. Brown came to Deer Park on last Saturday evening to resume his pastoral duties in connection with the Deer Park charge.

Mrs. Harry Beckman was taken to a Cumberland hospital on Monday for a surgical operation.

Miss Alice Campbell left here on Monday for Detroit, Mich., where she will spend the winter months.

There will be a baby's clinic on Friday, October 22, at the M. E. church. Dr. Gardner, of Cumberland, and Miss King, County Health Nurse, will be in attendance. All mothers are requested to bring their babies to the above place for a free examination.

Miss Eunice George has returned to her home here from a visit to a sister residing near Morgantown, W. Va.

Mr. C. R. Savedge was struck by an automobile on Sunday night and sustained injuries such as will keep him indoors for some time to come.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further encated by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by hallot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed hy the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

"Shall Tourists Butter Our Bread," Is a Pertinent Inquiry Made By Superintendent Frank E. Baker, of Mountain Lake Park, Who Cites the Cumberland Way of Treating Strangers Within Her Gates, and The Republican, Along With Lots of Other Folks, Believes That Courtesy and Politeness Pays Every Time and Under All Circumstances.

To the Editor of The Republican.

In the Pittsburg Post of October 13, is the following editorial under the heading "Politeness Here and Abroad." We quote in part as follows:

"In pleasing contrast with the brusqueness of communities which say to automobile tourists entering their precincts, 'Go slow and see our city; go fast and see our jail,' is the polite salutation offered to visitors by Cumberland, Md. Cards are handed out reading in part as follows: 'We are glad you came this way. . . . Our parking laws do not apply to tourists. Park where you want and as long as you want. We request that you do not park near fire hydrants and do not speed through our streets. If anyone overcharges you, please report to the authorities. We want you to come again.' In this inexpensive way Cumberland is creating a pleasant impression; it is getting itself talked about as a community of courteous people."

In unpleasant contrast to the Cumberland way, which draws editorial space in a metropolitan daily, is our local way as carried out by an overzealous constable I cite one of two cases that was called to my attention last season

A college president from a midwestern State had a new automobile delivered to him at Chicago while en route east. He attached to it, front and rear, the printed white cards that his dealer had furnished and ordered the regular steel plates mailed to him to Mountain Lake Park as soon as they could be issued. He arrived two days ahead of the plates, having crossed three states without challenge or thought of trouble. But Old Man Trouble may be lurking just around the corner for any of us.

When the plates arrived, he drove to Oakland to purchase bolts with which to attach them, and while in front of the hardware store in the very act of bolting on the plates and removing the temporary markers furnished him by his own State, he was placed under arrest by a constable.

Courtesy makes friends. Friendly advertising is the best as well as the cheapest that can be had. Brains were given us to use and no amount of brains used by merchants, professional men and hotel keepers in being courteous to strangers can overcome discourtesy by others.

A college president does not court the publicity of a court. He explained who he was, but to no avail. He was ordered into court. He and his family, four, are not now friends of our community for they have not been treated in the Cumberland way. They would spend one hundred dollars a week with us, and would be worth more than that shouting our praise after leaving. They will not come back another year, but they do go some place each year

Laws are made to give us needed protection, not to be offensively technical. If it's technicality we want, Dr. McComas could have all of us arrested each month for spitting on the walk, unsanitary garbage cans, or what not.

This is one case I know about. I know of one other just as bad. How many parties have been kept from returning by some lack of courtesy by some one.

Let us put our heads together and make a plan that will go Cumberland one better.

Superintendent Mountain Lake Park.

LET THE STATE HELP PAY YOUR TAXES

BERNARD I. GONDER
Candidate for House of Delegates

Eastern Shore counties receive much larger State appropriations than Garrett County. Why?

The State administration is controlled by the Democratic party; both State houses of representatives are Democratic. Eastern Shore sends Democratic representatives to Annapolis and get what they want. Garrett County sends Republican representation and receives what party in power chosses to give them, which for the past twenty years has been zero.

I pledge, if elected, to secure equal State appropriations for Garrett County as received by Eastern Shore counties and thereby reduce your taxes to a minimum.

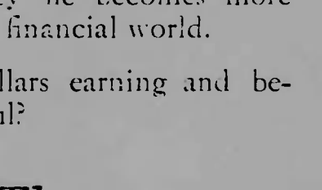
Safeguards
the household Water Supply

This all-galvanized, self-oiled installation is suitable for pumping from shallow wells or cisterns. Capacity, 240 gallons an hour. Automatic. Needs no attention. Noiseless in operation. Built to give a lifetime of every-hour-in-the-day water service.

Is your home water supply as convenient as you would like to have it? Does the present method of pumping water assure a constant water supply, uncontaminated and as pure as it comes from the ground?

Here is a Hoosier Water Service installation which provides the last word in home water supply convenience, and which will positively safeguard your household water supply. The famous Galvazink surface, of pure zinc, prevents corrosion, or any metallic impurities, delivering the water at the faucet as pure as it comes from the well.



The galvazink coating, inside and out, materially lengthens the usefulness of Hoosier Water Service, for there is no deterioration.

We recommend this complete, compact installation as an ideal one for providing plenty of water, under pressure for your home. You will be more than pleased with the advantages this modern convenience brings into your home. Come in and let us tell you how little it will cost to enjoy these advantages.

For the Constitutional Amendment, against the Constitutional Amendment, said proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland being as follows and known and designated as—

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all members of both Houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow Section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of five hundred dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be deminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, by the authority aforesaid, that the said aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in the State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the direction contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said Amendment, as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved: April 9, 1924.

41DD. The County Commissioners aforesaid shall maintain and supervise the management of the County Home and the County Farm and make such rules and regulations for the management and government of them and of the inmates of the said County Home as they may think proper.

41GG. The County Commissioners shall require the Superintendent, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, to give a bond with security approved by them, payable to the County Commissioners of Garrett County, in the penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000), conditioned as follows, to-wit: "The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bound A. B., as superintendent of the County Home and County Farm in Garrett County shall well and truly perform and discharge his duties in said station, then the above obligation to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue in law."

41HH. The said Superintendent shall receive such fair salary as to be agreed upon by the County Commissioners and the Superintendent for services to he rendered by him and his family per annum and so pro rata during his continuance in office. This salary to be exclusive of board and lodging for himself and family. The assistant and assistants, if they are appointed, shall receive such compensation as the County Commissioners shall deem proper.

41II. The Superintendent shall have charge and custody of the lands, goods and chattels of the County Home and the County Farm and of the inmates committed to the County Home and take charge, manage and govern the same under the supervision of and according to the rules and regulations laid down by the County Commissioners.

41JJ. The Superintendent shall keep a complete set of account books for the County Home and the County Farm, showing receipts and expenditures, including receipts from the sale or sales of the produce from the County Farm and from the labor of the inmates of the County Home. He shall render the County Commissioners a monthly statement under onth showing the receipts and expenditures for the past month with vouchers thereof, together with a statement of his requirements for the coming month.

41KK. The County Commissioners shall also keep a complete set of ac- County Commissioner shall sell sup- County Farm. This set of books shall not only include items relating to the maintenance of the County Home and County Farm, but also items relating to the original cost of the County Farm and the erection of the County Home and outbuildings, if it is necessary to erect the same, or any of them, and of the equipment and other things placed on the Farm and in the Home.

41LL. The County Commissioners shall meet at the County Home at least once in every three months. They shall use every effort to make the cost of the purchase and maintenance of the County Home and County Farm as economically as possible and consistent with the proper care of the inmates. Especially shall they use economical methods in the purchase of supplies and other materials. No County Commissioner shall sell supplies or materials or be in any way interested in the sale of them to the County Home or County Farm.

41MM. The County Commissioners shall be compensated for their expenses in connection with the County Home and County Farm in the same manner and at the same rate as for their services and expenses in connection with other county matters.

41NN. The Superintendent shall keep a list of the inmates committed to the County Home, showing their names, place of birth, nationality, age at the time of commitment, date of discharge or of death, as the case may be, cause of death if inmate died at the County Home, whether or not the inmate was previously committed there and, if so, how often and for how long each time A true copy of the list shall be furnished by the Superintendent to the County Commissioners semi-annually on the first day of January and June of each year and whenever they shall require.

41OO. The Superintendent shall compel all of the inmates of the County Home, if of sufficient ability, to work.

41PP. Upon complaint and due proof made by the Superintendent to a Justice of the Peace of the County that any person in the County Home has behaved in a disorderly manner or has refused or neglected to obey any of the rules or regulations of the County Home, the said Justice of the Peace may direct such moderate and proper correction to be given to such offenders as the nature of the case may require.

41QQ. Upon complaint made that any person from his disorderly conduct gives disturbance to the neighborhood and is likely to become chargeable to the county, any Justice of the Peace, if, upon hearing he shall adjudge the complaint to be well founded, may commit such person to the County Home for any time not exceeding three months, unless he shall find security, in the discretion of the Justice of the Peace, in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00) for his good behavior for the space of six months.

41RR. Any Justice of the Peace of the county or any person authorized by him may apprehend and commit to the County Home any rogues, vagabonds, vagrants, beggars and other idle, dissolute and disorderly persons found loitering or residing in the said county and having no visible means of subsistence and following no trade or occupation, there to be kept at hard labor for any period not exceeding three months and the Superintendent shall receive and employ them accordingly.

41SS. The County Commissioners as a body, may appoint what poor, insane, feeble minded, aged, crippled and others who are or are likely to become public charges, shall be received in the County Home; provided that any one Commissioner may, during the interval between meetings of the County Commissioners as a body, commit a poor, insane, feeble minded, aged, crippled or other person who is or is likely t obecome a public charge, and he or she, as the case may be, shall be received into the County Home and there remain until the next meeting of the Commissioners as a body, at which time they shall determine whether or not the said person shall remain there longer.

41TT. The County Commissioners shall have full power and authority to receive into the County Home all such lunatics, insane, feeble minded, crippled, aged persons and paupers as may be committed thereto by any of the Courts of this State and also such lunatics, insane, feeble minded, crippled or aged persons and paupers as may be placed in said County Home by their friends for safe keeping or treatment and shall be entitled to receive as compensation for the board, treatment and support of such persons such compensation as may be reasonable and just, to be paid hy the County Commissioners of the counties from which said persons may be sent, when committed by order of any Court, and to he paid by their relatives, friends, trustees or committees of such persons when placed there by their friends, relntives, trustees or committees.

41UU. All the fines, penalties and forfeitnres imposed by this sub-title of this Act shall he recovered in the Circuit Court by action of debt or indictment for the use of the County Home.

41VV. All sheriffs, constables and other officers shall assist the County Commissioners and the Superintendent and other officers appointed by them in the discharge of their respective duties.

41WW. If any person shall be sued or prosecuted for anything done in pursuance of this sub-title of this Article of anything therein contained, he may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence; ant if upon trial a verdict shall be nonsuited or discontinued, the defendant shall receive treble costs, and if the plaintiff shall be unable to pay them, they shall be paid by the attorney who brought or prosecuted the suit, unless the plaintiff shall give security for them to be approved by the Court.

41XX. The County Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized, funds necessary for the purchase of the County Farm, for the building of the County Home, if it becomes necessary to build one, for the erection on the County Farm of such outbuildings, fences, etc., as they deem necessary and for supplying the necessary equipment, furniture, farming implements and live stock, by issuing bonds of the county, either coupon or serial, for such an amount, in such denomination or denominations, bearing such interest and maturing at such date or dates as the County Commissioners deem proper, or by paying for the same out of the funds of the county raised by the regular tax levy or by an extra levy to be made by the County Commissioners for that purpose or purposes or by a combination of any one or more or all of these methods, whichever, with a due regard for the sound financial condition of the county seems to the County Commissioners most proper. The Couny Commissioners be and they are further authorized, empowered and directed to pay out of the funds raised by the regular tax levy or by an extra tax levy, to be made by the County Commissioners for that purpose or purposes, the interest and principal of the bonds aforesaid, if issued, and the costs of maintenance of the County Farm and County Home and the support of the inmates of the County Home.

41YY. That at the regular election in November, 1924, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of Garrett county the question whether or not the said County Farm shall be bought and the said County Home established thereon, and at such general election the ballots used and cast upon the question shall have printed or written thereon the words "For the County Farm and County Home" and "Against the County Farm and County Home," and if amajority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "For the County Farm and County Home" then the County Commissioners of Garrett county shall proceed to exercise the power vested in them by this Act and shall buy the said County Farm and establish the said County Home as herein provided; but if a majority of the votes cast upon the said question shall be "Against the County Farm and County Home," the question whether or not the said County Farm shall be bought and the said County Homo established shall again be submitted at the general election in November, 1926, to the qualified voters of Garrett county, and at such general election the ballots used and cast shall have printed or written thereon the words, "For the County Farm and County Home," and "Against the County Farm and County Home," and if a majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "For the County Farm and County Home," then the County Commissioners for Garrett county shall proceed to exercise the powers vested in them by this Act and shall buy the said County Farm and establish the said County Home as herein provided; hut if the majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "Against the County Farm and County Home," then this Act shall be null and void and said County Farm shall not be bought, nor shall the said County Home be established.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1. 1924.

MANAGER TAYLOR TELLS OF TRIP TO EUROPE

Edward M. Taylor, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Lynchburg, Virginia, is a member of the Veteran Corps Richmond Blues, one of the most famous military organizations in the country. The Richmond Blues and several companies of Connecticut militia chartered a boat and took a trip to Europe a short time ago.

While in Brussels, Mr. Taylor took occasion to visit one of the telephone central offices. Being a firm believer in having every telephone subscriber visit the central office and during Visitation Week in Lynchburg a short time ago, having had most of his subscribers in his central office, he was much surprised to find that visiting a telephone exchange in Brussels was like making an effort to get into America without a passport. He was denied permission to enter the building and was directed to the Post-office Department across town, the system in Belgium being government owned, is operated by this department.

Mr. Taylor says he was treated most cordially by the officer in charge and was given a letter to the exchange head of the central office, he wished to inspect. His description of his visit follows:

"I was admitted then, and was introduced to one of the engineers, who spoke good English. Well, I told them much about the Bell System, especially the Western Electric and Graybar Companies. They became so interested that I thought I would never go through the manual plant—and there was also some auxiliary machine switching plant. I was first shown cable racks and the main and intermediate frames, all of which were familiar, for they use W. E. material.

"Then I reached the operating room, which I recognized, for I used to show it on the slides when lecturing. The board looked familiar, but it is old, and while it was plugged and worked busily, it wasn't like ours. The personnel is made up of hard-working girls, who wear uniforms something like American overalls.

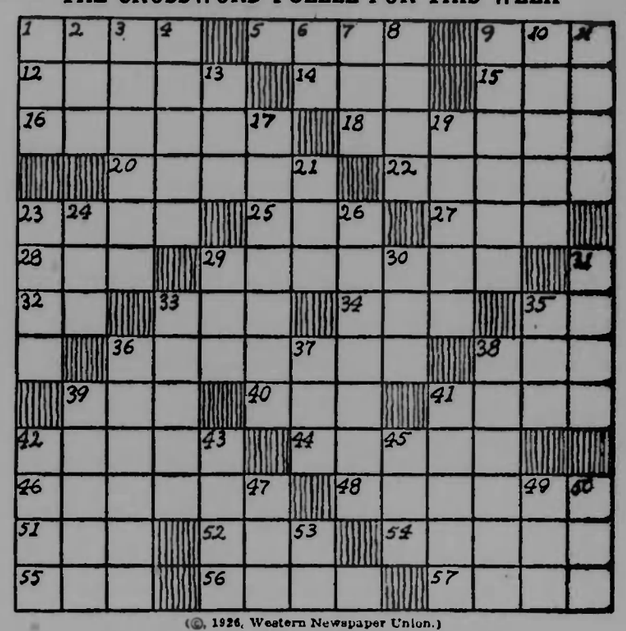
"Part of this old switchboard is being superseded by a 10,000-line machine switching plant, which is located on a lower floor. All the material is from the Western Electric Company.

"Brussels is a city of 850,000 population, but they have only 37,000 telephones. They have six central offices, three manual and three automatic. The outside plant is underground, and they use an expensive distributing pole, a structural affair like the support of a steel bridge, ovaling at the top, from which place the wires are distributed.

"These Belgians in the telephone business have been through a terrible war, and are working like men and women for their country. They deserve much credit."

THE MAINTENANCE MAN

A telephone plant, well designed and admirably constructed in every respect, but not kept up to the mark from day to day, would soon fall into a state of general debility, inexorably reflected in a lowering of the grade of service, says F. L. Rhodes, outside development engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in writing on "Foundation Stones of Service."



Rot or rust in the out-of-doors plant take their daily toll. Dirt and dust in the central offices would speedily affect the operation of the delicate switching mechanisms were eternal vigilance not exercised. It is only by frequent and orderly testing processes that many troubles can be detected and repairs made before the trouble becomes so serious as to affect the telephone service from the subscribers' standpoint. Cleverly contrived devices placed in the hands of the maintenance men enable them, by the exercise of expert skill acquired through long experience, to locate hidden defects in cables and wires with a degree of precision that seems marvelous to the uninitiated.

At every point throughout this broad land where limbs of trees overhang or project near telephone wires on poles, there will be found, not far away, a maintenance man, whose job it is to make sure that these limbs are kept properly pruned so that, when it becomes a vital matter to hurriedly summon the doctor or the police or fire department, it shall not be found that the telephone service is interrupted. And in this man's pocket will be found a booklet, carefully prepared under the guidance of forestry experts, showing him, in every essential detail, how to prune trees, so that his work will be a benefit, rather than an injury to them.

TELEPHONES IN BANK VAULTS

An ordinance has been introduced into the City Council of Chicago requiring that telephones shall be installed in every bank vault in the city. Recently a clerk employed in the City Hall building was locked in a bank vault for several hours and was not released until the night watchman happened to hear a frantic pounding on the door of the vault. If there had been telephonic communication with the outside office his release would [illegible]

A. D. Naylor

Republican Candidate for

State Senator

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:—

As the candidate of the Republican party for the office of State Senator I appear before you asking for your support at the polls on November 2nd.

For more than forty-two years I have lived in this county and have always tried to live an honest, upright life, and how I have succeeded in so doing my neighbors and those among whom I have lived so many years must be the judges.

Practically ever since I have been old enough to plan and think for myself I have been a Republican. I believe in the great constructive, upbuilding and progressive principles advocated and applied by this party, through its peerless leaders, the martyred Lincoln and M Kinley, the progressive Roosevelt and the wise and careful Coolidge, through which principles, so applied, this nation, of which we are so proud, has become the greatest nation on earth.

In upholding and maintaining these principles it has been my pleasure to consistently support the nominess of this great party, National, State and local, and if I am elected to the office for which I have been nominated, I will, to the best of my ability, by voice and vote, continue to uphold and advance these principles, and in legislation directly affecting the people of our county I shall be governed in my actions thereon by the wishes of the majority of our people.

I am in full sympathy with the platform adopted by the Republican party of the State of Maryland at its recent State convention, and it is hoped there will be enough Republican Senators and members of the House of Delegates elected at the coming election, with the aid of our Republican Governor Addison E. Mullikin, to make this platform a part of the constructive legislation of this State.

I have served two terms as a member of the House of Delegates and my vote on every measure coming before this body is a matter of public record. I have no reason to be ashamed of any vote cast by me, as such representative, for I believe now as I believed at that time, all of said votes were cast for the best interests of the people of this county and State at large, and in accordance with the wishes of the people whose vote elected me to that office with several other fellow Republicans.

I submitted my candidacy for the office I now seek to the electorate of our county, in primary assembled and received the largest vote of any of said candidates in the largest primary ever held in Garrett County, and I respectfully submit therefore that I am not the candidate of any faction or section, but the candidate of the Republican party of Garrett County.

Such, briefly, is my public record, and in forming it, I think I can safely say, I have been free of the charge of circulating slanderous reports about my fellowmen or my opponent or misreprsenting facts.

AN OPEN LETTER

ADDRESSED TO

A. D. NAYLOR

Replying to the letter sent me in these columns in last week's issue relative to exempting the dam from taxation, along with a registered letter mailed me. I saw the article in these columns a day before receeiving the personal letter, which makes it evident it was more desirable to give this information to the public than to me.

I am surprised that Mr. Naylor is getting excited about this talk at this late date, as it has been common talk by our people since be announced his candidacy for State Senator, and Mr. Naylor has most emphatically denied these statements for months in the press, and if the people have confidence in Mr. Naylor's statements, he should have no fear.

Mr. Nayor asks me where I got my information. It has been common talk for months with the people. Where it started I do not know. People ask me if I believe it. I tell them that I believe Mr. Naylor is as innocent as a child, personally, of these charges.

I want to draw Mr. Naylor's attention to the fact that there is more to this story than has been told.

Before any candidate had filed for the office of State Senator, Mr. N. R. Selby tells me he went to you on two different occasions and asked you if you were going to be a candidate for this office, and he says you promised him positively that you were not going to file, and Mr. Selby said he would file, and did. After this date there was pressure enough brought on you to file, ignoring the promises made to Mr. Selby, and it may be now that some of the people do not have any more confidence in your denials than Mr. Selby has in your promises.

Mr. Naylor, there is a strong feeling in the county that you were persuaded to file for the office as Senator by a very small clique of people, and were nominated by the dictations of the same clique, and if elected, will be dictated to by the same clique, and you may hear more about "special privileges" if elected than you have anticipated when entering the race.

It is rather amusing that you would enter a threat on me for damages for being responsible for common gossip in the mouths of the people for months before I was a candidate.

I want to advise I am an American of old heritage from the days of the Revolution and believe in American principles, the freedom of speech and press, and will ever exercise those liberties, so long as I tell the truth and do not interfere with the rights of others.

I notice in a former article where you say you were nominated in an open primary by the majority of the people. I want to remind you the people think you were nominated by the influenee of the clique I refer to and if elected will be under their influence.

If you are conscientious in what you say, being nominated by the will of the majority of the people, and affiliated with the party having over three thousand majority, along with having a clique back of you and the old ring organized in every corner of the county, why should you fear defeat by me, with all these things in your favor?

THE MAN FOR

State Senator

Grantsville, Md., October 18, 1926.

As a result of the Republican primary held last September, Hon. A. D. Naylor was nominated as the Republican candidate for State Senator for Garrett County—a man whom I have known for more than thirty-five years.

Mr. Naylor has had legislative experience, having served as a member of the House of Delegates, and is well fitted for the position of State Senator, not only by reason of the experience gained while a member of the House of Delegates, but also by reason of his natural abilities, his broad knowledge ot the affairs of county and State, and is acquainted with the needs and conditions of the county.

His candidacy should appeal to the citizens of this county as it does to me, for I feel that with him in the Maryland Senate we will have a man capable and well fitted to serve the county to its best interest.

Identified as he has long been with the progress of the county, interested in its welfare and upbuilding, he will, if elected, do all he can for the further progress and advancement of our county.

Mr. Naylor is a man of broad business ability and experience; is a heavy taxpayer and stands strongly for an economical and business-like administration of the affairs of the State and county.

I feel that he will do all in his power to lift the burdens of taxpayers, being for a reduction in our taxes.

This is a field in which we need good business men at Annapolis who stand for constructive legislation, for the abolishing of needless offices, practicing economy in the affairs of government, conserving the interests of the State and county and conducting its affairs in a business-like manner.

We can count on A. D. Naylor in all these respects, and to be active and diligent in looking after our interests.

The writer believes Mr. Naylor is a capable and safe man to send to the Senate where he believes he will serve all the people with credit to himself and honor to his county.

Respectfully,

A TAXPAYER.

Replying to "The Garrett Countian"

Replying to your inquiry regarding my photograph with the words inscribed, "For State Senator," I wonder if the party making this inquiry does not know that I am an affiliated Democrat and am in full accord with all the Democrats of the county and expect their full support at the general election.

If I am as fortunate in this election as I was in the last one, I will receive a wonderful percentage of the Republican votes and will be this time the same as I have been in the past administration, THE PEOPLE'S Senator of Garrett County, as the words on my photograph indicate.

OPEN LETTER

BY

J. W. McCULLOUGH

To the Citizens of Garrett County, Md.

As you are aware, I am a candidate for State Senator, and was placed on the ticket at a late date, and as there are only thirteen days more until election day, and as we have a large county and a great part of it very difficult to get over, it will be impossible for me to see but a small proportion of our people. While I have a strong desire to see you all, but as it is impossible, I want to discuss a few matters with you through the press, as I see them, and hope the majority of the people will acquiesce with me.

The general public is not seeking new laws—we have plenty of good laws. The good citizen is demanding more severe punishment for intentional violation of laws. The most important duties of a representative are to see that good laws are not repealed and bad laws kept off the statutes.

The matters of most interest to our people today are public schools and good roads. We look upon our school system with pride as being one of the best school systems in our land, and many of our neighboring States are patterning after some sections of our school law. Our law is a new law, drawn with efficiency and skill and with an open mind, giving all classes of children, both of rich and poor heritage, an equal right to education. This is a law in which every good citizen is vitally interested for the betterment of the rising generations. This law is written quite at length and has been in practice four years. It is conceded by all that no one is perfect, and possibly we may have some citizens giving these questions careful thought and their suggestions regarding changes would be valuable in aiding to bring the public sentiment in full accord with the school system. Such suggestions would be welcomed by me and given careful consideration if I am a member of the next Assembly.

It is conceded that Maryland has one of the best highway systems in the country—practical and economical, and stands in the front row of progress. Our county has been receiving yearly from the State, under the present budget system post-road funds amounting to about eighty-five thousand dollars ($85,000.00). For the Lateral fund the State puts up about $59,675.00 (thirty-nine thousand, six hundred and eventy-five dollars), the county putting up an equal amount in the Lateral road fund, making a grand total of about $164,350.00 annually. The expenses of surveying in our county come out of this sum, and at present costs of building roads, the average mileage we are able to construct is between four and five miles yearly. This is what we have been doing ,and with no change in costs the same conditions will continue with the same amount of appropriations.

We have in our county at this time four roads under construction and none of them completed, all of them reaching our neighboring States' lines with hard surfaced roads now ready for connection, making in the aggregate twenty-four miles. Under our present system there will have to be some one disappointed for several years to come, along with large communities with deserving people who need relief and should have it at the earhest possible time. Those people are paying their share of taxation and are not getting the advantage of good reads to market their crops in all seasons.

I have given these questions a great deal of thought and have come to the conclusion, if I am elected to the Senate to represent you, immediately after the election I will advertise in these columns for the citizens of each voting precinct to hold a meetingon a certain date and for them to determine the amount of State road they will have to have in the next four years and to select two of their representative citizens to attend a meeting at a later date to be held in our county-seat, Oakland. I would want this meeting represented by two good citizens from each voting district to outline their wants. Even if they only want work done in a regular way I want them present to say so. It takes organization and team-work to accomplish things of importance.

I feel that a meeting of this kind should be called every two years before the Legislature convenes and get the representative people of the county together and outline the thoughts and requirements of the various sections of our county.

If I am successful and call a meeting of this kind, I would want all the members of the House of Delegates present that we could all understand the sentiments of our people and work out their requests agreeably to a successful end.

If I am defeated, I hope my worthy opponent will call such a meeting and see if we can give our people satisfactory relief. I would be glad to attend such a meeting and explain my thoughts in detail for what they might be worth.

This is the last letter I expect to write, as there is only one more issue of this paper before the election, and I do not want to say anything that cannot be rebutted in an epen lettre in these columns before the election, in case anyone should want to reply.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. McCULLOUGH.

VOTE FOR

Jefferson Ralston

Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Garrett County.

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:—

Jefferson Ralston is a native of Garrett County, born of an industrious family, whose record, wherever they may have lived, is clean and whose lives have been of good service to their community.

Mr. Ralston's early life was spent in the lumbering camps of Western Maryland and West Virginia where he has learned the life of hard knocks and how to handle men. His services were such that he was promoted to superintendent on more than one big job. On approaching middle life he decided to enter a less strenuous life and at present is a very successful salesman of paints and oils in the same territory of his earlier service. Wherever he goes he is well liked and well known to hosts of friends as a fair, clean and aggressive worker.

If Garrett County wants a Sheriff who is a MAN in every sense of the word, who knows how to handle all types of men, who is clean and aggressive and will enforce the law, who is fearless and carries his nerve in his body, who is fair and will serve all people alike and is not tied to any ring or clique, then vote for a real man for Sheriff, Jefferson L. Ralston, from all of Garrett County. VOTER.

VOTE FOR

Harvey Gortner

OF DISTRICT No. 3

For Board of County Commissioners

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:—

As it is next to impossible for me to see all of the voters of the county between now and election day, I resort to this method to appeal to you for your support at the polls on Tuesday, November the second.

To those of you who do not know me personally, I want to state briefly that I am a native of Garrett County and have spent the thirty-two years of my life in the county with the exception of twenty-one months when I answered the call of my country and for seventeen months was overseas with the American Expeditionary Forces fighting for the cause in which our country was engaged.

I have been engaged in the automobile business at Grantsville for the past five years, where I have taken up my residence and make my home.

I feel that my familiarity with Garrett County, my knowledge of its needs and my business experience quality me to render faithful, efficient and economical service to the people of Garrett County.

It has often been said by many people of the county, irrespective of party, that there should be a minority member of the Board of Commissioners, and I believe and I think that the people of the county believe that in all fairness and justice that District No. 3 of the county should be represented on this Board.

All of the present candidates with the exception of myself, are residents of Oakland and vicinity, and I believe that it will facilitate the administration of the affairs of the office and be of great convenience to the people of the lower end of the county to have a member of the Board in that section of the county with whom they can consult without the inconvenience and expense of a long and tiresome trip to Oakland.

Believing that you will recognize and appreciate the logic of my claims and feeling assured that all citizens interested in the proper administration of the affairs of the county are familiar with the situation and pledging you, if elected, a faithful, fair and economical administration, I am,

Very respectfully yours,

HARVEY GORTNER.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 51. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, OCTOBER 28, 1926. NUMBER 36.

Naylor Replies to McCullough

Two weeks ago a number of the citizens of Districts 2, 5 and 6 reported to me that my Democratic opponent, Mr. John W. McCullough, had personally been repeating the tax exemption story and gave me affidavits to that effect. Upon the strength of these I issued my challenge to him to produce his proof. You have doubtless noticed how he attempted to side step and avoid the issue in his article last week. However, he did say that he believed I was personally innocent of the charge.

This would close the incident so far as I am concerned had he not said in his reply, "There is more to this story than has been told." A good many voters are wondering what he means by that.

Could it be possible that this story was being spread merely a smoke screen behind which Mr. McCullough hoped to be returned to the Senate?

I stated a good while ago that I was absolutely opposed to the exemption of any corporation from its just share of taxes; had never been approached by anyone about exemption and would oppose any and every effort to exempt the local power company. Has anybody noticed any statement to the same effect from Mr. McCullough?

Is it not a fact that the present Democratic machine, through its Conservation Commissioner, has taken over control of the dam and has been seeking a better hold on it and the surrounding land? Didn't the Commissioner, when he had the flag raising at Rainbow Inn, near Thayerville, this past summer advocate establishing a State park of some 1000 acres in Garrett County immediately surrounding the dam or lake? Was or was not Mr. McCullough present at this meeting along with the other State officials?

Is it not a fact that since then the Commissioner has gone ahead with his plans to secure certain land from individual owners? Perhaps there is already an understanding between the power company and the State officials!

If that State park were established isn't it a fact that the property involved would be free of taxes?

It is alleged that Mr. McCullough, in discussing this matter, has admitted that he and certain officials of the company have discussed the question of tax exemption.

Hasn't he at Annapolis always voted as the Democratic machine of Baltimore dictated and might he not be counted upon to do the same thing again?

Many voters are asking these questions since they read Mr. McCullough's article of last week. They say that five years ago he promised to vote against increasing Baltimore's delegation in the Legislature, and then voted to add fourteen new members from that city and thus gave the city machine a better grip on the State. They are wondering if he will not vote again as that machine dictates if he should be re-elected and if the tax exemption question should come up.

In a recent issue of the Baltimore Sun, Mr. Jesse Bowen, a Democratic corporation lawyer of Baltimore, came out in defense of Governor Ritchie and the Conowingo mess. The Observer, another Baltimore paper, has also called attention to the fact that Mr. Bowen's law firm is counsel in Maryland for the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Power Corporation, the company operating in Garrett County. Those who were connected with this company's attempts to close certain of the roads of this county or with the various condemnation suits brought to obtain possession of the land where the dam is located recall that Mr. Bowen appeared as chief counsel for the company.

Many voters are piecing these details together and are wondering if the Democratic machine is planning another Conowingo deal for Garrett County, and if so just what part Mr. McCullough might play in it. He has seemed very anxious for the nomination. Could such a thing be true that the Democratic machine, if successful at this election, has planned to pass a bill through the Legislature taking over the land, which it already controls, and exempting the power company from taxation, and that it wants every possible vote? Could it be true that Mr. McCullough is in accord with such a plan as this? Is it or not a coincidence that within the last two weeks certain men connected with the power company have been in Garrettt County approaching the voters and soliciting their support for Mr. McCullough?

Is it possible that this story was spread against me for the express purpose of diverting attention from Mr. McCullough and the real danger lurking in the background? I confess that I do not know what may have been the object, but a good many voters are wondering about it.

In the light of the known Democratic plans and the absence of any statement from Mr. McCullough and those backing his candidacy, there may be room to question. Perhaps, after all, "there is more to the story than has been told."

So far as the reference to Mr. Selby is concerned, it is sufficient to say that Mr. Selby is a straightout, loyal Republican who came to my store in Oakland the day after the primary and promised me his loyal support and has since stated both publicly and privately that he intends to support and vote for me and for the Republican ticket.

Furthermore, Mr. Selby stated in Oakland last Friday that you had used his name without consulting him.

Mr. McCullough referred to the presence in Garrett County of a clique which he thinks exists. This is the old phrase which is used in every election by Democratic office seekers. It is an unjust accusation against every Republican nominated in the recent primaries. The Republican ticket was nominated by more than three thousand Republican voters scattered over the entire county of Garrett, The Democratic ticket was nominated behind closed doors by exactly six people, and a good many Democrats say they didn't want Mr. McCullough and only took him because he persisted in pressing his claims.

So far as I am aware there is only one clique which the people of Garrett County need fear, and that is the one in Baltimore, more commonly known as the Mahon-Kelly ring or machine, which is seeking to dictate the control of our State. The people of this and every other county of the State of Maryland have just reason to fear the influence of that clique. A great many voters are wondering why Mr. McCullough voted in the Senate to give it more power. Why is Governor Ritchie so anxious to have Mr. McCullough re-elected?

Respectfully yours,
A. D. NAYLOR,
Republican Candidate for State Senate.

STATE DAIRY PRODUCTS B. AND O. SPECIAL TRAIN

A Real Dairy Show and College on Wheels to Visit Oakland Monday Morning, Nov. 15

The entire population and particularly the farmers of Garrett county will have an opportunity to witness one of the most complete dairy demonstrations ever carried on in this section of the State. The date of this affair is Monday, November 15th, starting at 8 o'clock in the morning. At this time a special train known as the Maryland Dairy Products Special, operated by the B. & O. R. R., in cooperation with County Agent Work of the University of Maryland and the various breed associations will be at the local Railroad station for the purpose of demonstrating better dairy practices to the people of Garrett county. This is the first opportunity the local people have ever had to witness such an affair. The train will have its own engine and crew with 8 or 10 cars attached. One of these cars is an exhibit car in which will be a large educational exhibit furnished by the National Dairy Council. This will be of interest to all but especially the young folks as its purpose is to show the value of milk and dairy products for food and to encourage the more general use of such among the children. Another car is the lecture car in which there will be an instructive lecture by a prominent dairy authority entitled "Scrubs vs. Purebreds." This will be of particular interest to the farmers. Still another car is the demonstration car on which there will be cow demonstrations by representatives of the National Breeders' Association. This alone is worth seeing.

In live stock cars connected with the train will probably be the best showing of bulls ever witnessed by anyone in the county. Bulls from all of the dairy breeds will be on the train. These animals will all be from tested dams with high producing records and will vary in ages. They will be for sale. Anyone interested in purchasing a good sire for the herd can locate a splendid individual on the train. These animals will be sold at private sales only.

While the demonstrations and lectures are going on at the train there will also be a lecture at the High School by Professor "Happy" Goldsmith, nationally known humorist orator, who will talk on "Yes, We are Cowllegiate." At the same time Miss Elsie Stark, of the National Dairy Council, will talk in the Court House to the women on "Proper Foods for Health." It is urged that every woman hear Miss Stark.

Every bona fide farmer, actually operating a farm who visits the demonstration will be allowed to register at the train. After the entire program is completed, the registration cards will be thrown into a box and a disinterested person will then be asked to draw out a card. The farmer having the lucky number will secure free, a purebred heifer of his own choice. This gift heifer is an added attraction and has been made possible by the wonderful cooperation of the business men of Oakland. They have appropriated $100.00 for the purchase of the animal.

Any one of these features will be worth coming to witness. Nearby schools will be asked to come in a body. Every farmer should plan now to see the cattle exhibit and hear the lectures and the women will certainly miss something if they no not hear Miss Stark.

Other announcements in regard to the train will appear in The Republican in a later issue.

Again we are reminded that truth is stranger than fiction. Not even Dumas would have dared to write such a story as comes by Associated Press from Palermo: Fifty years ago a Sicilian peasant, on the day he went to prison for life for murder, became the father of a male child. Twenty years later that son learned that his father had been convicted on the false testimony of two men and he killed them, afterward being himself sent to prison for 30 years. On the day of his release a few days ago, at the completion of his term, the life prisoner was pardoned and the father and son met for the first time—the one aged ninety and the other fifty. Presumably the unfortunate wife and mother had long since lost her hold on life.

Let eveyry man and women vote on next Tuesday.

BOY SCOUT RECEIVES CITATION FOR BRAVE ACT

Leonard Murphy of Oakland, Is Greatly Honored

Scout Leonard Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, Second street, has been cited by the National Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts of America for an act of bravery recently performed.

The award comes to young Murphy for saving the lives of two small children who were standing on the railway crossing at the Baltimore and Ohio station here on the 10th of April last, watching a passing east-bound freight train and were unaware of the approach of a west-bound train on the track upon which they were standing.

The children had been playing about the station during the morning of the day in question and when they saw the train going eastward they crossed to the west-bound track and climbed upon the fence separating the two reaches of rails. On account of the noise made by the running train the children did not hear another train approaching and continued to cling to the fence pickets. Leonard Murphy, who is engaged about the station as messenger, saw the children and realizing the danger they were in he risked his own life to "beat" the approaching locomotive to the children and in a moment he had darted across the intervening track, lossened the grip of the two children from the fence and pulled them to safetly.

The citation was presented to the deserving youth by W. R. Offutt, chairman of the local Court of Honor at the regular monthly meeting held on Monday night.

Comparatively few such citations are awarded by the National Court of Honor, and it is indeed a distinction to receive one of them.

DIED.

MRS. HATTIE DEEM.

Mrs. Hattie Deem, aged 46 years, 4 months and 20 days, wife of Van Deem, died at her home near Wilson, West Va., on September 18, 1926, after an illness of several months of cancer of the stomach. Her funeral was conducted on September 21 by Rev. Strader, of Bayard, W. Va., in the Fairview church. The deceased was a member of the M. E. church and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Trembly, of Eatons, W. Va. She is survived by her husband, Van Deem, and eight children, namely, Mrs. Carrie Raines, of New Comerstown, O.; Mrs. Delia Lee, of Gortner; Mrs. Pearl Cooper, of Wilson; James, Ralph, Elsie, Florence and Mildred, at home. She is also survived by one sister and two brothers, Mrs. Ella Reed, of Kimbleton, W. Va.; Calvin, of Eatons, W. Va., and George, of Greenville, W. Va. Mrs. Deem was a kind and loving mother and her death is regretted by all who knew her.

MISS EDYTH SEVILLA MURPHY

Edyth Sevilla Murphy, died on October 16, very suddenly, being ill but two hours when the death angel came and called her away. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Murphy and was a Sophomore in the Oakland High School, having gone to her home just a few days prior to her death, which was caused by an acute attack of indigestion. During her school years she made many friends and was highly esteemed by every one who knew her. She is surivived by her father and mother, seven sisters and three brothers, namely, Mrs. John S. Wilt, of Bond; Miss Bertha Murphy, Akron, O.; Nellie, of Oakland; Clemma, Gertrude, Mary and Helen, at home; Clude, of Johnstown, Pa.; Dayton and Frank, at home. A brother preceded her in death several years ago. She was aged 16 years, 11 months and 3 days.

Armistice Day to Be Holiday in Oakland.

The local post of the American Legion is planning a holiday for Armistice Day, November 11th, in which they are having the co-operation of every business house in Oakland, all of the merchants having agreed to close their stores at noon on that occasions. The drug stores will close at noon also, but will reopen at five in the afternoon. The barber shops will be closed the entire day. Garages are included in the half-holiday with the merchants. A program which will include a shooting match in the morning, a community sing in the afternoon at the Maryland Theatre and a ball at night has already been arranged for and will be carried out. Other features may be added prior to the day.

Tuesday is Election Day.

Mrs. U. G. Palmer, Former Resident of Garrett County, Warns Against the Establishment of a Poor House In This County and Cites Reports of Investigators Who Contend That Such Institutions "Are a Disgrace to the State; a Menace to the Communities Through Which They Spread Disease and Degeneracy, and a Pest to the Helpless, the Wretched and the Diseased."

Verona, Pa., Oct. 25, 1926.

To the Editor of The Republican.

Sir:—I learn that Garrett county is again to vote upon the "poor house" question. May I submit the following facts for the consideration of the voters? Yours truly,

MRS. U. G. PALMER.

Sixteen fraternal organiztions, backed by the United States Department of Labor, made an investigation of poor houses. The investigation resulted in the conclusion that "poor houses are a disgrace to the State; a menace to the communities through which they spread disease and degeneracy, and a pest to the helpless, the wretched, the diseased and demented who turn there for refuge."

The New York Times says: "The poor farm is our human dumping ground into which go our derelicts of every description. Living in this mess of insanity and depravity, this prison place for criminals and the insane, are several thousand children and respectable old people whose only offense is that they are poor."

The Ohio Department of Public Welfare has admitted that seventy-five per cent of the dependents are feeble minded. In North Carolina the State Bureau of Mental Hygiene puts the percentage of 85. Of the 3125 inmates of the Iowa poor farms in 1924 the courts declared 45 per cent insane.

The National Committee of Mental Hygiene makes this report: "Of 116 institutional paupers in North Carolina, but three were mentally normal; of 269 in West Virginia, 28 were normal; but 5 of 129 in Kentucky, and 47 of 175 in Arizona. Sixty per cent of 3334 paupers in Michigan were normal and 47 per cent in Wisconsin.

"What these children need are homes, not institutions; doctors and nurses, not caretakers; personal attention, not attention en masse; the personal care of men and women rather than the mechanical authority of an institution or the State.

"The system, whatever it is, cannot fail to be extravagant, because there are too many poor farms: the cost of administration is often higher per capita and the management in almost all cases is inefficient."

The Providence Journal reports that "One Rhode Island farm is run for two old men, the net cost of keeping whom in squalid condition is about three times what decent care would cost."

The Topeka State Journal says that "only three of the poor farms in that State have each ten or twelve inmates, nevertheless within the past year 24 children have been incarcerated with the veritable scum of feeble-minded, hopelessly insane and social derelicts who people these institutions"

The Commission of Public Welfare calls upon the American people to "wipe out the hellish system."

MARAUDERS ARE CAUGHT RED HANDED BY SHERIFF

Angus McKenzie and Charles Merrbaugh Arrested While Stealing at Stone House Farm

Angus McKenzie and Charles Merrbaugh, both of whom reside at Salisbury, Pa., are in the Garrett County Jail in Oakland where they will be held pending the action of the grand jury in December which will investigate charges preferred against them by the State officers.

Sheriff Guy O. Yutzy was called by telephone from Salisbury Saturday morning about one o'clock to come without delay to Stone House Farm, three miles east of Grantsville, as passers-by along the National Highway had seen and reported to the Pennsylvania authorities several persons at work in the field with two cars parked conveniently near, the informers being under the impression that all was not what it should be.

Within an hour Sheriff Yutzy, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff W. D. Casteel were at the place designated, but the men seen in the field sometime previous had disappeared, the ears, however still being at the designated place. An investigation was made by the officers who went to Salisbury where they visited the homes of McKenzie and Merrbaugh, who were suspected as being the parties seen in the field, but the houses were without tenants. Returning to the Stone House field where guards had been placed in the underbrush commanding a view of the parked cars the officers were just in time to see the suspects return and attempt to move the automobiles. This move was frustrated when the officers placed them under arrest and took them to the field where they had been working when it was discovered that about eight bushels of potatoes had been dug and put in sacks ready to be carried away.

Following a threat made by the officers to place Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Merrbaugh under arrest also as accomplices in the theft of the potatoes and bring them to Oakland, the men made a confession of the crime and were brought on into Oakland and put in jail.

One of the men—Merrbaugh—has been employed on the Stone House Farm for sometime by the superintendent, County Commissioner H. P. Miller, who, at the time of the theft was in Baltimore under treatment at a hospital.

For a number of years past and at certain periods during these years, it has been customary for the fields of this farm and other fields in the neighborhood of Grantsville to be robbed, the thieves even going so far as to slaughter and carry away livestock and other property.

The Board of Directors of the Mt. Lake Park Association met at the Park last Saturday with Dr. Moore, Dr. U. S. Wright, Dr. J. R. Edwards and Mr. F. E. Baker present.

SOUTHERN Gas & Power

You can FEEL the difference

with this new oil in your Ford

HUNDREDS of road tests made with the new "Standard" Motor Oil in all types of cars prove that it represents a great advance in motor lubrication.

For instance, a Ford run 609 miles from September 24th to October 22d, 1925, showed 12.8% increase in oil mileage; 12.3% increase in gas mileage; increased power; snappier pick up; no drag on hills; removal of carbon deposits in motor.

Here's proof that the new "Standard" Motor Oil effectually solves the lubrication problems of every motorist. Get a crank case full and try it out yourself. You can actually feel the difference. At all "Standard" Service Stations and dealers.

7 Advantages of "Standard" Motor Oil

1. Constant lubrication.
2. Minimum friction.
3. Less "breaking-down" under load or at high speeds.
4. More miles per quart of oil.
5. Better hill climbing — smoother operation.
6. Negligible carbon.
7. Actual saving in gasoline.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Prepared Especially For The Republican Readers by Rev. U. S. Brown

SUNDAY LESSON FOR OCTOBER 31, 1926.
THE EVILS OF STRONG DRINK.
(World's Temperance Sunday)
Proverbs 23:22-35.

At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder—Proverbs 23:32.

THE PORTRAIT.

The artist had a permanent model from which to copy, for the picture is as readily recognized now as when it was earliest drawn. Drunkenness never develops anything new. From the day Noah found wine to be a mocker to the hour when some man slips through the back fence and his neighbors stake upon him with wonder, beastiality, and contempt, the same stagger, the same "morning after." The figure that could be seen in any alley and now lurks in forbidden places has never changed a feature. The first line seems borrowed from the shouting of a drunken revel. "Who says woe? Who cries alas?" "Who says woe?" Who cries alas?" is the early song. But with self-control and the complaining whine. Everyone except himself is to blame for one except himself is to blame for everything. Society, circumstances, his hard hearted employer, his wife, and all things except his own responsibility. "Did Brown ben his misfortune like a man?" was a recent query. "Yes," was the reply, "very much so, he put it on his wife." There is more than just in the phrase for it sounds as the night before. Wounds follow that have no place among the sober, for bleared and the latter state soon comes to be like the beason like nose, nature's warning flag against such treatment of the body.

"Don't look." The Bible urges the avoidance of the wine cup. Distilled drink and the picture here drawn was made by the much advocated wine that is to become an antidote for all the evils of the drink traffic, outlawed because of its iniquitous stamp upon the same stagger, beastiality, and contempt of the drunkard. The moment of temptation is the moment to conquer. Refusal to look, to touch, to taste of it, a child refuses the burning sensation—calls him to take

EUROPE CHANGES LITTLE AS CENTURIES PASS.

Europe has changed but little in its political psychology in the last century and a quarter. The boundaries of the nations have changed; some countries have grown greater and others have vanished.But the American viewpoint might well remain the same. President Washington, as every American well knows, in his farewell address issued a word of warning to Americans about their mixing into the quarrels and dissensions of Europe In the current issue of the National Republic is quoted a letter written by George Washington to Lafayette at a time when Washington was President of the United States. The letter, which seems almost entirely applicable today follows:

"While in Europe, wars or commotions seem to agitate almost every nation, peace and tranquility prevail among us, except in some parts of our western frontier, where the Indians have been troublesome, to reclaim or chastise whom, proper measures are now pursuing. This contrast between the situation of the people of the United States and those of Europe is too striking to be passed over, even by the most superficial observer, and may I believe, be considered as one great cause of leading the people here to reflect more attentively on their own prosperous state, and to examine more minutely, and consequently approve more fully, of the government under which they live, than they otherwise would have done. But do we wish to be the only people who taste the sweets of an equal and good government. We look with an anxious eye to the time when happiness and tranquility shall prevail in your country and when all Europe shall be freed from commotion, tumults and alarms."

Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell and daughter, Miss Lillian Sincell, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland, and Rev. Otto A. Bremer, pastor of the University Lutheran church at Seattle, Washington, who spent a week in Richmond, Va., where they attended the sessions of the General Synod of the United Lutheran Church, returned to Oakland yesterday morning. Mr. Bremer left this morning for his home in the west.

SOLUTION OF LAST WEEK'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

Today The Republican publishes the official ballot to be used at the election on Tuesday of next week. On it are the names of thirteen Democrats—held by many to be an unlucky number—and the names of twenty-four Republicans, besides two propositions, the proposed Constitutional Amendment and the question whether or not Garrett county shall issue bonds for the purpose of buying a county farm and establishing thereon a home for the poor, indigent and unfortunate. It is suggested to the readers of The Republican that the article published elsewhere in this paper today, submitted by Mrs. U. G. Palmer, bearing on the subject of poor houses be read before any of the voters cast their ballots.

A Last Tribute to Mrs. Eilen Martin

Softly and tenderly the golden sunbeams of the morning kiss the mountain's top and bask in the pearly dewdrops on its side. Gently as a mother's voice soothes a restless child to rest does the eastern light call forth the slumbering world from its peaceful repose and bids it arise to the unfinished task of yesterday. All seems tranquil and sweet, but we awaken to a sadness appalling. Death with his uncouth hand has rudely pushed aside the beautiful curtains of the dawn and drawn down the blinds of a dark and saddened shade. He turned the sunshine of a lovely home into a gloom too dark to paint. With an icy touch He smote the form of a loved and treasured one and claimed her for His own and left behind hearts bleeding and torn with a grief too deep for human sympathy. So sadly do we realize that another beautiful life is ended. Waning, as it were, in the autum in its evening radiance. Yes she faded away like the stars of the morning—

Losing their light in the glorious sun,
Thus did she pass from earth and sorrow,
Still remembered by what she had done.

It is with an inexpressible sadness that we speak of her death. Mrs. Martin was kind, affectionate and unselfish; full of kindness and sincere motives. A true and devoted Christian and mother, a sympathetic friend and neighbor Surrounded by all that makes life pleasant she shed a halo of gladness and pleasure upon those around her. In her early life she united with the church and leaned upon Jesus as her "Haven of Rest." Her heart seemed so full of love for her friends that she forgot her own suffering and was continually planning for the happiness of others. The upbuilding of her Master's cause was her chief concern. In her home she was a true and loving mother; a most devoted companion. She will be missed. How our hearts ache to know that she will never meet us again upon this earthly pilgrimage, but she has left an example of true Christian devotion that will shed its sweetness on our lives still.

Her work is done, and well;
A generous, sympathetic Christian life;
A faithful and noble friend and wife.
Her influence, who can tell?
Say not her work is done;
No deed of love or goodness ever dies;
But in the lives of others multiplies,
So it is just begun.

She leaves three loving daughters and a host of friends. To the sorrowing ones we offer our sincerest sympathy and say to them, mourn not, for she has only gone on before and waits to welcome you home. She has left you with a radiant hope of meeting her in the "Haven of Rest" where she has anchored her soul.

By one who loved her—
MRS. A. S. OURS.

LET THE STATE HELP PAY YOUR TAXES

BERNARD I. GONDER
Candidate for House of Delegates

Eastern Shore counties receive much larger State appropriations than Garrett County. Why?

The State administration is controlled by the Democratic party; both State houses of representatives are Democratic. Eastern Shore sends Democratic representatives to Annapolis and get what they want. Garrett County sends Republican representation and receives what party in power chosses to give them, which for the past twenty years has been zero.

I pledge, if elected, to secure equal State appropriations for Garrett County as received by Eastern Shore counties and thereby reduce your taxes to a minimum.

Homes, stores, churches, factories—all over the country—are being heated more comfortably and at less cost with the Caloric pipeless furnace.

The Caloric delivers practically 100% of the heat from the fuel directly into your rooms, and at the same time withdraws the cool air from the building. This establishes a natural air circulation, with the result that the building is heated more uniformly and fuel consumption is cut ⅓ to ¼. There are now

OVER 135,000 CALORIC USERS

—in every state in the Union, in Canada, Alaska—and many in this locality.

Here a word of warning. Caloric success has been so revolutionary that it has aroused opposition from those who profit from making and selling out-of-date heating systems. The result is that many imitation pipeless furnaces have been put out which are failures. Be not misled by these failures. Most of them were designed to be failures—and have been marketed in vain attempts to discredit the rapidly-growing Caloric idea.

VOTE FOR

Jefferson Ralston

Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Garrett County.

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:—

Jefferson Ralston is a native of Garrett County, born of an industrious family, whose record, wherever they may have lived, is clean and whose lives have been of good service to their community.

Mr. Ralston's early life was spent in the lumbering camps of Western Maryland and West Virginia where he has learned the life of hard knocks and how to handle men. His services were such that he was promoted to superintendent on more than one big job. On approaching middle life he decided to enter a less strenuous life and at present is a very successful salesman of paints and oils in the same territory of his earlier service. Wherever he goes he is well liked and well known to hosts of friends as a fair, clean and aggressive worker.

If Garrett County wants a Sheriff who is a MAN in every sense of the word, who knows how to handle all types of men, who is clean and aggressive and will enforce the law, who is fearless and carries his nerve in his body, who is fair and will serve all people alike and is not tied to any ring or clique, then vote for a real man for Sheriff, Jefferson L. Ralston, from all of Garrett County. VOTER.

MULLIKIN STILL POURING HOT SHOT INTO GOVERNOR.

(From The Observer)

Apparently unhappy, Governor Ritchie continues on the defensive as he goes from county to county in his campaign for re-election. Addressing Addison E. Mullikin, the Republican candidate, he continues to pour the Conowingo shot into him, while the Governor replies without answering. He fails to tell what Mr. Mullikin wants to know and that is, why he thrust aside the Democratic Caucus and the latter's plan for the Conowingo problem and jammed the project through before the Legislature could meet.

The Governor does not answer this question. To tell the truth about it might mean his undoing.

Mr. Mullikin makes a good impression on the stump. He is not satisfactory to the Governor, though, and with reason, for he is now trying to make Senator Weller the issue. At the same time it is an advantage to him not to have them. And to date the Democratic leaders have sought in vain to find some point on which they might attack the Mullikin record and at last indications from county headquarters are that they will hand out a story to show that Mr. Mullikin is descended from a poor Eastern Shore family. In fact they may be able to prove that in his early days he was as poor as was Governor Al Smith and not nearly so fortunate as was Mr. Ritchie, whose father held his Record All Right.

I have heard Democrats say that the best thing would be for the Mullikin record to be given all the publicity possible. So far as Mr. Mullikin has held public office he has acquitted himself with honor and no one has been able to cast a stone at him. That he was not better known prior to his nomination was largely due to his disinclination to stand in the limelight. Those who have known him long give assurance that he will prove a vote getter and promoters will be able to persuade him to betray the people of his State. He is not tied up with any firm of contractors.

Next week all the candidates will be in Baltimore City. The Democrats, having brought not only Attorney General Robinson but also Comptroller Goodell, with other satisfactory reasons concealed, are now trying to make Senator Weller the issue. At the same time they must be realizing that Representative Tydings, their candidate for U. S. Senate, has been hurting himself by his speeches. Business men in particular are turning to Senator Weller, who has a splendid record, and Democratic politicians are saying privately that Mr. Weller will get a much bigger vote among the business clientele than he got in 1920. At that time John Walter Smith had the call on the business vote.

The campaign has its humorous features, the most amusing being the attempt of the Democratic Publicity Bureau to show that Mr. Mullikin is not a native of Maryland. Now his election is being encouraged by the same paper, the editors of which seem now to be spokesmen for political heresy. The Sun paper is dodging the Conowingo issue and failing to defend the Governor's blacklisting of Baltimore City.

The Labor Vote.

After considerable delay the Federation of Labor has gone on record to be given all the publicity possible for Mr. Mullikin. He has held public office in Baltimore and Washington who have been friendly to labor. Mr. Mullikin, known that this unique mill front is not meant to be a batting ground for followers of the grand and glorious trademark of the Purina Mills of St. Louis and its checkerboard products. mill checkerboarded are only taking this means of letting the public know that they are handling the celebrated Purina Chows and that they are ready to do business with any and all feeders in this section. "We have the goods Mr. Henderson, "and now it is your move." If feeders want to lower their production costs, the best and most perfectly balanced ration on the market today, they know they can always find it by going to the checkerboard mill by going to the checkerboard mill in the near future.

Incoming Governor will have three grand jury that complaints had been made about the registration in the Judges to appoint within a short time. list has recently been fattened with the names of many new Democrats. It is alleged that many persons from Baltimore and Washington who have shacks on the shores of Stony, Curtis, Rock and other creeks which they inhabit in summer, have been registered as residents of Anne Arundel. The Republicans deny that the bona fide part of the residence, while the Democrats,led by Frank S. Revell, local boss, Ritchie leader and candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court, deny it. Mr. Revell says the Democrats are innocent of any violation of the law and, of course, he can point to the record it has not been the custom to lock up men for election aberrations not resulting in the loss of human life.

Of course it was to be expected that the Ritchie leaders in the county would scrape the woods and fields for votes this year. Three years ago the Governor, residing here as now, lost the county by 3,000 votes. In September primary Pinkney got a big vote throughout Anne Arundel. It is therefore up to Mr. Revell, Ike Nutwell, of the Eighth Precincts, and other patriots to do their best for the Governor

THE STROLLING SCRIBE.

They tell me some of the organization Democrats are sore at the so-called Richie League which has hired a room at the corner of St. Paul and Lexington streets for daily meetings where the voters are reminded that they should vote for the Democratic ticket. It is hard that after having collected $1,000 campaign money from each of the Democratic nominees for the bench the Richie League is trying to make one of these Democrats lose his investment. It is peculiar politics and politicians, but when it comes to an indorsement of Judge Morris A. Soper, Republican, withdrew it when he feared that it might do some damage to the Ritchie political career of Old Anne Arundel.

Now that Bladen Lowndes has gone bear hunting, Anne Arundel County politicians have again gotten into print through the courts. The county is to have a new Circuit Court Judge, to succeed Judge Robert Moss, who resides in Annapolis. The Judge, charging the grand jury, alluded to persons in "high places" who flount the Constitution and "encourage law breaking" and naturally make everybody wonder who the Judge could have been much as was Mr. Richie, whose father held

"IT'S YOUR MOVE," SAY OWNERS OF CHECKERBOARD MILL

Anyone who has passed down Water street recently, has undoubtedly been attracted by the unique appearance of the Purina mill front. It is painted red and white checkers emblazoned on the front of the Oakland Roller mill, which is owned by the Purina Mills of St. Louis, Mo. The Purina Mills have built up an enviable reputation for themselves by the merits of their Chows. We consider it a real asset to have a representative of this concern in our town, and we are sure that every shrewd feeder who is interested in producing more eggs, more milk, and more meat at less cost, will be able to 41AA. The County Commissioners of Garrett county be and the same are hereby authorized ,empowered and instructed to purchase a farm in Garrett county, not exceeding three hundred acres in extent, to build thereon if there be not such a building standing thereon, a building of a size sufficient in their judgment to house all the persons who are public charges of the said county.

41BB. The building so built, or if it be not necessary to erect a building thereon, the building standing thereon shall be known as the "County Home" and the farm shall be known as the "County Farm."

41CC. The County Commissioners of Garrett county are further authorized, empowered and instructed to erect on the said farm such outbuildings, fences, etc., as in their judgement are necessary for such a farm and home and to equip and furnish the said farm and home with such equipment, furniture, farming implements, live stock and foodstuffs as they deem necessary.

41DD. The County Commissioners aforesaid shall maintain and supervise the management of the County Home and the County Farm and make such rules and regulations for the management and government of them and of the inmates of the said County Home as they may think proper.

41EE. The County Commissioners shall, on their first meeting day in the month of March next succeeding the going into effect of this Act and at the first meeting in each succeeding March appoint some suitable person to be Superintendent of the County Home and the County Farm connected therewith, for the year ensuing such appointment. The Superintendent so appointed shall enter upon the discharge of his duties the first day of April succeeding his appointment and shall hold office for one year from that date or until his successor is appointed and has qualified. The County Commissioners shall appoint such assistant or assistants to aid the Superintendent for such period or periods as they deem necessary for the proper maintenance of the said County Home and County Farm.

41FF. The County Commissioners shall have power to remove from office the Superintendent or any assistant whenever in their judgment the interests of the county may require such removal. In case of a removal from office, the County Commissioners shall appoint a successor to fill out the unexpired term of the person removed.

41GG. The County Commissioners shall require the Superintendent, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, to give a bond with security approved by them, payable to the County Commissioners of Garrett County, in the penalty of one thousand dollars ($1,000), conditioned as follows, to-wit: "The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bound A. B., as superintendent of the County Home and County Farm in Garrett County shall well and truly perform and discharge his duties in said station, then the above obligation to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue in law."

41HHH. The said Superintendent shall receive such fair salary as to be agreed upon by the County Commissioners and the Superintendent for services to be rendered by him and his family per annum and so pro rata during his continuance in office. This salary to be exclusive of board and lodging for himself and family. The assistant and assistants, if they are appointed, shall receive such compensation as the County Commissioners shall deem proper.

41II. The Superintendent shall have charge and custody of the lands, goods and chattels of the County Home and the County Farm and of the inmates committed to the County Home and take charge, manage and govern the same under the supervision of and according to the rules and regulations laid down by the County Commissioners.

41JJ. The Superintendent shall keep a complete set of account books for the County Home and the County Farm, showing receipts and expenditures, including receipts from the sale or sales of the produce from the County Farm and from the labor of the Inmates of the County Home. He shall render the County Commissioners a monthly statement under oath to obe administered by one of the Commissioners, showing the receipts and expenditures for the past month with vouchers thereof, together with a statement of his requirements for the coming month.

41KK. The County Commissioners shall also keep a complete set of ae-County Commissioner shall sell sup-County Farm. 41LL. The County Commissioners shall meet at the County Home at least once in every three months. They shall use every effort to make the cost of the purchase and maintenance of the County Home and County Farm as economically as possible and consistent with the proper care of the inmates. Especially shall they use economical methods in the purchase of supplies and other materials. No County Commissioner shall sell supplies or materials or be in any way interested in the sale of them to the County Home or County Farm.

41MM. The County Commissioners shall be compensated for their expenses in connection with the County Home and County Farm in the same manner and at the same rate as for their services and expenses in connection with other county matters.

41NN. The Superintendent shall keep a list of the inmates committed to the County Home, showing their names, place of birth, nationality, age at the time of commitment, date of discharge or of death, as the case may be, cause of death if inmate died at the County Home, whether or not the inmate was previously committed there and, if so, how often and for how long each time A true copy of the list shall be furnished by the Superintendent to the County Commissioners semi-annually on the first day of January and June of each year and whenever they shall require.

41OO. The Superintendent shall compel all of the inmates of the County Home, if of sufficient ability, to work.

41PP. Upon complaint and due proof made by the Superintendent to a Justice of the Peace of the County that any person in the County Home has behaved in a disorderly manner or has refused or neglected to obey any of the rules or regulations of the County Home, the said Justice of the Peace may direct such moderate and proper correction to be given to such offenders as the nature of the case may require.

41QQ. Upon complaint made that any person from his disorderly conduct gives disturbance to the neighborhood and is likely to become chargeable to the county, any Justice of the Peace, if, upon hearing he shall adjudge the complaint to be well founded, may commit such person to the County Home for any time not exceeding three months, unless he shall find security, in the discretion of the Justice of the Peace, in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars ($50.00) for his good behavior for the space of six months.

41RR. Any Justice of the Peace of the county or any person authorized by him may apprehend and commit to the County Home any rogues, vagabonds, vagrants, beggars and other idle, dissolute and disorderly persons found loitering or residing in the said county and having no visible means of subsistence and following no trade or occupation, there to be kept at hard labor for any period not exceeding three months and the Superintendent shall receive and employ them accordingly.

41SS. The County Commissioners as a body, may appoint what poor, insane, feeble minded, aged, crippled and others who are or are likely to become public charges, shall be received in the County Home; provided that any one Commissioner may, during the interval between meetings of the County Commissioners as a body, commit a poor, insane, feeble minded, aged, crippled or other person who is or is likely to obecome a public charge, and he or she, as the case may be, shall be received into the County Home and there remain until the next meeting of the Commissioners as a body, at which time they shall determine whether or not the said person shall remain there longer.

41TT. The County Commissioners shall have full power and authority to receive into the County Home all such lunatics, insane, feeble minded, crippled, aged persons and paupers as may be committed thereto by any of the Courts of this State and also such lunatics, insane, feeble minded, crippled or aged persons and paupers as may be placed in said County Home by their friends for safe keeping or treatment and shall be entitled to receive as compensation for the board, treatment and support of such persons such compensation as may be reasonable and just, to be paid by the County Commissioners of the counties from which said persons may be sent, when committed by order of any Court, and to be paid by their relatives, friends, trustees or committees of such persons when placed there by their friends, relatives, trustees or committees.

41UU. All the fines, penalties and forfeitures imposed by this sub-title of this Act shall be recovered in the Circuit Court by action of debt or indictment for the use of the County Home.

41VV. All sheriffs, constables and other officers shall assist the County Commissioners and the Superintendent and other officers appointed by them in the discharge of their respective duties.

41WW. If any person shall be sued or prosecuted for anything done in pursuance of this sub-title of this Article of anything therein contained, he may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence; and if upon trial a verdict shall be nonsuited or discontinued, the defendant shall receive treble costs, and if the plaintiff shall be unable to pay them, they shall be paid by the attorney who brought or prosecuted the suit, unless the plaintiff shall give security for them to be approved by the Court.

41XX. The County Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized, empowered and directed to raise the funds necessary for the purchase of the County Farm, for the building of the County Home, if it becomes necessary to build one, for the erection on the County Farm of such outbuildings, fences, etc., as they deem necessary and for supplying the necessary equipment, furniture, farming implements and live stock, by issuing bonds of the county, either coupon or serial, for such an amount, in such denomination or denominations, bearing such interest and maturing at such date or dates as the County Commissioners deem proper, or by paying for the same out of the funds of the county raised by the regular tax levy or by an extra levy to be made by the County Commissioners for that purpose or purposes or by a combination of any one or more or all of these methods, whichever, with a due regard for the sound finaocial condition of the county seems to the County Commissioners most proper. The Couny Commissioners be and they are further authorized, empowered and directed to pay out of the funds raised by the regular tax levy or by an extra tax levy, to be made by the County Commissioners for that purpose or purposes, the interest and principal of the bonds aforesaid, if issued, and the costs of maintenance of the County Farm and County Home and the support of the inmates of the County Home.

41YY. That at the regular election in November, 1924, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of Garrett county the question whether or not the said County Farm shall be bought and the said County Home established thereon, and at such general election the ballots used and cast upon the question shall have printed or written thereon the words "For the County Farm and County Home" and "Against the County Farm and County Home," and if a majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "For the County Farm and County Home" then the County Commissioners of Garrett county shall proceed to exercise the power vested in them by this Act and shall buy the said County Farm and establish the said County Home as herein provided; but if a majority of the votes cast upon the said question shall be "Against the County Farm and County Home," the question whether or not the said County Farm shall be bought and the said County Home established shall again be submitted at the general election in November, 1926, to the qualified voters of Garrett county, and at such general election the ballots used and cast shall have printed or written thereon the words, "For the County Farm and County Home," and "Against the County Farm and County Home," and if a majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "For the County Farm and County Home," then the County Commissioners for Garrett county shall proceed to exercise the powers vested in them by this Act and shall buy the said County Farm and establish the said County Home as herein provided; but if the majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "Against the County Farm and County Home," then this Act shall be null and void and said County Farm shall not be bought, nor shall the said County Home be established.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1921.

Approved April 9, 1924.

TRUSTEES' SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

IN GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

Under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, passed on the 14th day of October, 1926, in a cause wherein John S. Mckenzie et al. are plaintiffs and Francis Leo McKinzie et al. are defendants, the same being No. 2676 Equity, the undersigned trustees hereby give notice that they will on

SATURDAY,

The 13th Day of November, 1926,

at the hour of 2:30 o'clock P. M., in front of the First State Bank, of Grantsville, in the town of Grantsville, Md., offer at public auction to the highest bidder all that lot of ground situate in Garrett County, Maryland, which is known and designated as Military Lot No. 777, containing 50 acres, more or less, and particularly described in a deed from Henry Blocher et ux. to James W. Blocher dated the 16th day of June, 1900, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 38, folio 486, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

Said lot is improved by a dwelling house, barn, outbuildings, small orchard, and nearly the entire acreage can be cultivated, and upon the land is a spring with running water.

GRANTSVILLE

The members of the Adult Bible Class of the Lutheran Sunday school will hold a masquerade social at W. O. W. Hall, Thursday, October 28. There will be various kinds of entertainment. The Mother Goose stories will be given by home talent and Beall High School Orchestra of Frostburg, furnish the music. Refreshments of all kinds will be served and prizes for the best masked couple will be given. A good time and lots of fun for everyone who attends.

The first snow fall of the season came Monday and anxicty is felt for the apples and potatoes, as the thermometer has registered around freezing and was 23 degrees above zero. Although the snow came two weeks later than last year, the first storm was October 9th, no one was prepared, as the season has been so wet it has been impossible for the large crops to be taken care of.

The Women's Community Club will have an all-day meeting at the home of the president, Miss Mollie Dorsey, Wednesday, November 3. Christmas suggestions will be given by Miss Lola Belle Green and any member who may have a new idea is invited to bring it. All members are urged to be present to spend a pleasant and profitable day.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, 1926.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1924,an Act was passed, to-wit: Chapter 116 proposing an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, by adding a new section to Article 4, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A, granting authority to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore to pay each of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore additional salaries; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 116.

AN ACT to amend the Constitution of Maryland by adding a new section to Article 4.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifth of all the members of both houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as hereinafter provided, the same shall stand as an additional section to Article 4 of said Constitution, to follow section 31, and to be known as Section 31-A.

31-A. In addition to the authority granted to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore by the preceding section to pay to each of the judges of the Supreme Bench the annual sum of Five Hundred Dollars, authority is hereby given to said Mayor and City Council to pay to each of said judges such further annual sum as an addition to their respective salaries as the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore shall from time to time deem right and proper, provided, that any such sum being once granted shall not be diminished during the continuance of said judges in office.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall be, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejestion, in pursuance of the directions contained in Artiele 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said general election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall he by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Aaainst the Constitutional Amendment," so that the voter may elect; and immediately after said election due return shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said 14th Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 9, 1924.

Now, Therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland,do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 116 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1924, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland. Done at the City of Annapolis this 15th day of July, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-six.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

This Correspondent Offers a Solution of a Problem That Has Been a Serious One With Garrett County Farmers in the Saving of their Buckwheat Crops The Past Two Years.

When the weather is bad in the fall of the year as it has been for the past two seasons, the saving of the buckwheat crop is quite a serious problem. To secure the best results the grain should be threshed within a week after it is cut, but since all the grain in the county is cut about the same time, it is obviously impossible to thresh it all in the time mentioned if all depend upon the traveling threshing machine to do the work. In bad seasons farmers are often confronted with the dilemma of threshing their buckwheat while it is wet or of leaving it in the field hoping that a machine may come along later when the grain is dry. In either case some loss is certain and often it is total.

As a solution to this problem I am suggesting that in each small section of the county the farmers unite and obtain a small machine that can be driven by at least a six horsepowed engine. A machine that merely threshes and shakes out the straw is preferred over one of the separator type for several reasons: the latter costs too much, it takes too many men to run it and they rarely do first class work on buckwheat in that they frequently hull some of the grain and leave quite a bit of short straw. Of course with the first type of "chaff-piler" the grain will have to be cleaned up on a fanning mill and that is hard work, but that can be done on rainy days when nothing else can be done.

A number of years ago, my brothers, living in the Mason section, lost several crops of buckwheat by reason of wet weather. We then secured a small machine, which we ran with a six h. p. gasoline engine and since then they and their immediate neighbors have been able to save their buckwheat in the proper time and in the proper condition.

When we tried to get some of these ancient type of machines we discovered that they were no longer made. However, by good luck we secured from a junk heap the casting of a thresh box and a cylinder, which we had to rebuild, of a Frick separator of the vintage of the eighties. From another source we bought a shaft to operate the shaker and hearings therefor and from another source a 20-inch pulley. A blacksmith forged a 4-inch crank on the shaft The rest of the work we did ourselves in about two weeks, one man working most of the time and two others at odd moments. The frame of the machine and the shaker were made from material on the farm and we did the iron work ourselves. The bottom of the shaker was made from a sheet of galvanized iron in which the proper holes were punched. For driving the shaker we anchored a flexible lath of hickory to the bottom and connected it to the crank on the shaker shaft by a head of seasoned hickory.

The hole in this head was first bored and then burned out to size by means of a hot bolt. This produced a smooth, hard bearing which has shown no indication of wear after ten years' service. For a pulley on the cylinder shaft to drive the shaker we keyed on a built-up block of maple and then turned it down to a 4-inch size. The cyinder speed is a little "dizzy" for turning, but it can be done. When completed the machine was at once put in service and has been run each year since then with practically no repairs.

Buckwheat is one of our most valuable crops, but every good cook knows that good cakes cannot be made from grain that has not been properly cared for. As a large part of the crop is shipped to distant points, the reputation of the buckwheat of the county is apt to suffer if a poor quality is marketed. In order to preserve the reputation of our buckwheat I am offering this solution. Of course it has objectionable features, but experience has shown that it produces results that are worth considering.

McCullough's Senate Record

"There is a feeling among a great many people that their representatives do not get anything for their people. It would have been easy for me to have gotten some institution for our county if I had joined with the extravagance of passing the bills mentioned. * * It is true I did not bring any large monument home with me in honor of myself and people."—Extracts from announcement of Hon. John W. McCullough, Democratic candidate for re-election to the State Senate.

In this manner is a stock argument of the Democratic party admittedly shattered and the failure of its candidate publicly acknowledged by himself.

The people of Garrett county have been told on numerous occasions that a Democrat in the State Senate from this county would be able, by voting with the Democratic organization, sometimes commonly spoken of as the Mahon-Kelly machine of Baltimore City, to, in turn, accomplish more for his people than could a Republican and would secure for all a just return for the State taxes paid. Five years ago the experiment was tried and Mr. McCullough now excuses his failure, and his own, as set forth above, by the statement that while he got nothing for Garrett County the State tax rate was reduced some nine cents. He does not refer to the known fact that while the rate was cut the assessments were raised and that the tax bills are now higher than ever.

The Senate Journals for 1922 and 1924, the two sessions in which Mr. McCullough served, show that he was a pretty dependable organization Senator. In 1922, in accordance with the wish of the Democratic machine of Baltimore City, he voted to increase the number of Senators and Delegates from Baltimore City and helped make more certain and secure the domination of the city over the counties by giving it fourteen additional votes in the Legislature. The people of Garrett County have always been opposed to this increase. Some of them say Mr. McCullough promised to oppose it. The county Delegates voted consistently against it and it was presumed that Mr. McCullough would also vote against it and in the interests of his county. Instead he voted against his County and in favor of Baltimore City.

In 1922 and again in 1924, Mr. McCullough voted for the appropriations requested by the leaders of his party and by the same old machine, and in the latter year not only did he vote for them but he was a member of the committee which framed and reported the bill to the Senate floor. He did not provide anything for Garrett County in either of the two bills because, so he says, at least, he wanted to reduce the State tax rate. He did vote to give the other counties of the State and the City of Baltimore the sum of $4,759,050.00 for institutions in those counties and the City of Baltimore which were not owned by the State but were and are owned by the counties, City of Baltimore or private corporations or organizatioons. Among these appropriations were the following:

To Allegany County	$175,500.00
To Anne Arundel County	45,000.00
To Calvert County	10,000.00
To Cecil County	30,000.00
To Dorchester County	67,500.00
To Frederick County	50,000.00
To Harford County	30,000.00
To Montgomery County	33,750.00
To Prince George's County	18,750.00
To St. Mary's County	35,000.00
To Talbot County	62,500.00
To Washington County	40,000.00
To Wicomico County	75,000.00
To City of Baltimore and miscellaneous	4,086,050.00

Other huge sums, in addition to the total of $4,759,050.00 for State-aid institutions, were given for State institutions located in the various counties and the City of Baltimore. Not one cent for Garrett County.

The taxpayers of Garrett County have to pay, and for the most part, have paid, their proportion of these amounts in their State tax bills without any return whatever. Surely Garrett County has need of hospitals or other institutions just as badly as other counties of the State and is just as much entitled to some of this money as any other county or the City of Baltimore. If it was all right for Mr. McCullough to vote for these appropriations for other counties and give them the benefit of some of the taxes paid by this county, should he not have included an item for Garrett County? In 1924, as stated, Mr. McCullough was one of the Senators who drew the bill, but for some reason he made no provision for his own home county, although the county Delegates went to him on different occasions during the session and asked him to secure something for Garrett County.

It is well to note in passing that the Senator from Allegany county, a Republican, secured in the above list alone $175,500.00 for his county to say nothing of $217,500.00 for the Frostburg Normal and perhaps other appropriations, while Garrett County, with a Democratic Senator, got nothing.

In the session of 1922, Mr. McCullough also voted in favor of an expenditure of $40,000.00 to advertise the resources of and encourage immigration to Charles, Prince George's, St. Mary's and Calvert counties. Garrett County has an abundance of territory which might well be taken by people encouraged to come into it by some advertising, but the other counties got the money and Garrett helped pay the bill.

In the light of these facts, and others which might be set forth if time and space would permit, would it not appear to an unbiased, individual taxpayer, who would like to see some return for his State taxes and would prefer not to have it all go to other counties and the City of Baltimore, that Mr. McCullough, when he got to Annapolis, must have forgotten Garrett County, and the expectations of his people or else he did not have much influence in the State Senate. A desire to cut the State tax rate does not appear from the records to be a consistent excuse for his failure to do something for his county and its people.

Furthermore, we do not believe that Mr. McCullough can point to a single act of constructive legislation, either county or State, for which he is entitled to credit.

Mr. McCullough, in the article first referred to, stated that "the public has a perfect right to investigate the public and private record of those who seek office and decide whom they prefer to represent them." The above facts are taken from his public record and the taxpayers of Garrett County have a right to know them. Do you want four more years of that kind of representation? If you do not want that, then vote for the man who will consider the wishes and needs of Garrett County and send A. D. Naylor to the State Senate.

The Chestnut Blight

Cutting down a tree because it is sick seems drastic. Yet the director of the Appalachian forest experiment station is advising people all through the east to cut down their chestnut trees. The chestnut blight is spreading irresistibly, he says, and no means have been found to combat it.

"The best thing to do is to chop down the good remaining chestnut trees, worth millions of dollars; use them up and permit nature to grow other kinds of trees in their places."

Perhaps this is necessary. Undoubtedly, if the forestry people advise it, it is wise at least to abandon hope for profit from chestnut trees, and set the mind resolutely to the growth of other woods. But chestnut trees are lovely in themselves, the nuts are valuable as food, and the wood is delightful in interior use. Every lover of these trees will hope that before many years the forestry researchers may find some means of preventing or curing the blight and restoring to our children's children the beauties enjoyed by the earlier dwellers in America.

Arrested on Desertion Charge

Okey Junkins, recently of Deer Park, where he deserted his wife and three children several months ago, going from Garett county to Morgantown, W. Va., near where he secured work in a mine, was arrested in Morgantown last Saturday by the officers there under instructions from the Garrett county authorities, upon a warrant charging him with desertion. He was brought to Oakland Saturday evening by Constable Shartzer and is being held in jail pending disposition of the charges before the court.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors for all the loving kindness and help we received from them while our dear wife and mother was ill, and also after her death, and for the beautiful flowers and wreathes distributed at her funeral.

VOTE FOR The AMENDMENT
A Non-Partisan Measure

Annapolis, Maryland
October 11, 1926.

Mr. Jesse N. Bowen,
Citizens National Bank Bldg.,
Baltimore, Maryland.

Dear Mr. Bowen:—

I have your letter asking my position upon the proposed Constitutional Amendment permitting Baltimore City to increase the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City.

This proposed Amendment will be submitted to the voters of the State at the general election on November 2nd next. It must be submitted to the voters of the whole State because it is an amendment to the Constitution of the State. At the same time, it only affects the Judges of Baltimore City, and if it is adopted, then any increase in the salaries of the Baltimore City judges which results will concern nobody except the people of Baltimore City. It will not, in any way, fall upon the taxpayers of any other part of the State.

I am very much in favor of this amendment and expect to do everything I can to help secure its approval by the people on November 2nd.

In Baltimore City the sample ballots of the Democratic party will be marked for it, and I hope that the Democratic sample ballots in each of the counties will be marked for it also.

A vote in the counties in favor of this proposed amendment will simply be a recognition by the counties of the State of the right of Baltimore City to increase the salaries of its own Judges at the expense of its own people.

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT C. RITCHIE.
Governor.

Baltimore, Maryland
October 11, 1926.

Jesse N. Bowen, President,
Bar Association of Baltimore City,
Citizens National Bank Building,
Baltimore, Maryland.

My dear Mr. Bowen:—

Your recent communication with regard to the constitutional amendment to be voted upon on November 2nd, has my unqualified and hearty approval. I regret that this matter was overlooked in the drafting of the Republican platform. This measure provides for the amendment of that part of the State constitution fixing the amount that Baltimore City may itself pay by way of salary to the judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. It imposes no additional tax burden upon the Counties or the State. In order for Baltimore City to maintain the high standard of its judiciary, it is essential that it should have authority to pay them such salaries as the City shall deem proper.

I am requesting the City and County organizations to have the official sample ballots prepared and distributed by them so marked as to show that the Republican party is in favor of the adoption of this amendment, and I shall regard it as a public duty to urge its adoption at every available opportunity during the course of the campaign.

Very truly yours,
ADDISON E. MULLIKIN.

VOLUME 51. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, NOVEMBER 4, 1926 NUMBER 37.

RITCHIE-TYDINGS TICKET GAINS BIGGEST VICTORY IN MARYLAND'S HISTORY

GOVERNOR LEADS MULLIKIN BY MARGIN OF 58,000 VOTES WITH RETURNS FROM PARTS OF STATE STILL MISSING.

Returns from Tuesday's election show that the Democratic party won the most overwhelming victory in its history in Maryland.

With forty-three precincts missing in a total of 1,184 in the entire State, Governor Albert C. Ritchie has a majority of 58,978 over his Republican opponent, Addison E. Mullikin.

He not only carried Baltimore, complete, by the unprecedented majority of 47,559, but he carried the counties as a whole, which no Democratic candidate for Governor had done since 1907. His county majority will be 10,000 or better.

WHOLE TICKET VICTORIOUS

The entire Democratic State ticket swept along with the Governor in triumph. Millard E. Tydings, the nominee of the Democrats for United States Senator, with virtually the same precincts reporting, defeated Senator Ovington E. Weller by 52,420.

Comptroller William S. Gordy, Jr., defeated Dr. Charles F. Goodell, Republican, by 60,908, with fifty-four precincts still out. James A. Young, Clerk of the Court of Appeals, defeated Mrs. Eva C. Chase, Republican, by 64,049. And Attorney-General Thomas H. Robinson, low man on the Democratic ticket, overcame former Mayor William F. Broening by 34,294.

The State Legislature is overwhelming Democratic. Apparently twenty-two of the twenty-nine members of the State Senate are of that party and it is expected that complete returns will show that the Democratic majority in the House of Delegates is almost as large. In Baltimore, the Democrats won five of the six State Senators, and thirty-three of the thirty-six members of the House.

In the national aspect of the election, the Democrats, in addition to electing Mr. Tydings to the Senate, won five of the six members of the House of Representatives, a gain of one.

They reelected T. Alan Goldsborough in the First Congressional district; elected William P. Cole, Jr., in the Second in place of Mr. Tydings; elected Vincent L. Palmisano in the Third, which has been represented since 1920 by John Philip Hill, and reelceted J. Charles Linthicum in the Fourth and Stephen W. Gambrill in the Fifth. Frederick N. Zihlman, reelected in the Sixth, is the lone Republican member.

In the contest for seats on the Court of Appeals, Judge Hammond Urner, Republican, was reelected over Samuel A. Lewis in the Sixth circuit. Judge John R. Pattison, Democrat, appears to have been reelected over A. Stengle Marine in the First circuit. Judge William C. Walsh, Democrat, was defeated by D. Lindley Sloan in the Fourth circuit.

Gov. Ritchie broke records in all directions in his race for another term, which ended in overwhelming success in Tuesday's election.

He had been renominated after a prolonged primary campaign in which he carried every ward in Baltimore and every county in the State; he was reelected for a third term, although no other Governor since the Civil War had served a second term; he carried Baltimore by the largest majority ever given a candidate for Governor, and he completely reversed the order of results in Gubernatorial elections in the counties, that had prevailed for a generation.

His high-water majority of 47,559 over Addison E. Mullikin in Baltimore came from 26 of the 28 wards in the city. Only two were carried by Mr. Mullikiu, the Fourteenth and Seventeenth, in both of which there are large numbers of Negro voters who always support the Republican candidates. Mr. Ritchie carried, in fact, every ward in Baltimore that it is politically possible for a Democrat candidate for Governor to carry.

But even more surprising was his success in the counties. For years, the counties as a whole have given small but regular majorities for the Republican candidates for Governor. They did so for George R. Gaither against Austin L. Crothers in 1907; for Phillips Lee Goldsborough agianst Arthur Pue Gorman, Jr., in 1911; for Ovington E. Weller against Emerson C. Harrington in 1915; for Harry W. Nice against Mr. Ritchie in 1919, and for Alexander Armstrong against Mr. Ritchie in 1923. Since the repeal of the Wilson ballot law many politicians have regarded the State outside Baltimore as surely Republican.

And Mr. Ritchie, in particular, was held by many politicians to be unable to capture the State outside of Baltimore for the Democrats. His identification with the wet movement, culminating in the active opposition to the enactment of a State Volstead law, were believed to make him particularly objectionable to the people of the counties, the majority of whom are supposed to be dry.

In this campaign it was supposed by active men in both parties that this dry opposition to Mr. Ritchie in the counties would be especially vigorous because the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which is friendly to him, had taken a fight to the drys of the Eastern Shore and Western Maryland when Franklin Upshur was entered as a candidate for the Democratic nomination on the Shore against T. Alan Goldsborough, and when George Louis Eppler was entered for the Republican nomination in Western Maryland against Frederick N. Zihlman.

President Proclaims Thursday, November 25, Thanksgiving Day.

In a Thanksgiving proclamation Saturday, President Coolidge asked the nation to make November 25 a day of praise to God for a year in which the United States has been "blessed among the nations of the earth."

The full text of the proclamation follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A PROCLAMATION.

As a nation and as individuals we have passed another twelve months in the favor of the Almighty. He has smiled upon our fields and they have brought forth plentifully; business has prospered; industries have flourished and labor has been well employed. While sections of our country have been visited by disaster, we have been spared any great national calamity or pestilential visitation. We are blessed among the nations of the earth.

Our moral and spiritual life has kept measure with our material prosperity. We are not unmindful of the gratitude we owe to God for His watchful care, which has pointed out to us the ways of peace and happiness; we should not fail in our acknowledgement of His Divine favor which has bestowed upon us so many blessings. Neither should we be forgetful of those among us who, through stress of circumstances, are less fortunately placed, but by deeds of charity make our acknowledgement more acceptably in His sight.

Wherefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 25th day of November, next, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, and I recommend that on that day the people shall cease from their daily work and in their homes or in their accustomed places of worship, devoutly give thanks to the Almighty for the many and great blessings they have received, and seek His guidance that through good deeds and brotherly love they may serve a continuance of His favor.

In witness whereof, I have hereto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the United States.

Done at the City of Washington, this 30th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and fifty-first.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

By the President:—

JOSEPH C. GREW, Acting Secretary of State.

ARMISTICE DAY WILL BE GENERALLY OBSERVED

In Oakland November 11 When Banks and Other Places of Business Will Be Closed.

Plans have been completed by the local post of the American Legion to hold an Armistice Day celebration in Oakland on the 11th day of November, the eighth anniversary of the declation of peace between the nations of the earth marking the close of the World War.

The committees in charge of the affair have arranged for a trap shoot to begin at ten o'clock when turkeys, ducks and chickens will be contested for. There will also be rifle and shotgun target and claybird matches. The shoot is expected to bring a large number of bull's eye artists to the traps on that day.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon a community sing will be held at the Maryland Theatre where a program of old-time and popular songs will be rendered, followed by short Armistice Day addresses to be delivered by Mr. Fred. A. Thayer and Delbert Davis.

At night, from 9:00 until 1:00, a dance will be held at the Grand Skating Rink, the music for this affair to be furnished by the Oakland Orchestra.

The following is a list of the business houses in Oakland which will be closed all day or a part thereof:

To be closed all day—The Garrett National Bank, The First National Bank, The Farmers Bank, Bittner & Stahl, R. L. Wolfe.

To be closed from 12:00 o'clock noon—The Coffman-Fisher Co., E. S. Evans, The Republican, The Mountain Democrat, Owen Treacy, David Durst, F. E. Gonder, Lewis Gortner, G A. Fraley & Sons, H. L. Miller, J. S. Elliott, A. D. Naylor & Co., Waingold's Garage, Oakland Welding and Machine Co., J. Fazzalari, Oakland Garage, Bell's Studio, Oakland Produce Co., D. M. Dixon & Co., W. H. Hinebaugh, H. C. Sincell, Oakland Jewelry Co., Treacy's Cash Store, J. W. Hart Estate, Hamill's Stationery and Book Store, Auto Electric Service, Ernest C. Liller, Mrs. C. V. Harvey, Oakland Hardware and Furniture Co., Treacy's Garage, Swan & Coleman, L. B. Shaffer, the Gas Office, Brown's Store, A. R. Martin, Laura M. Smith, Oakland Farm Supply Co., Kerins Bros. Garage, Standard Garage, F. A. Smouse, American Garage, H. W. Kahl, Houck Auto Supply, A. & P. Store.

To be closed from 12:00 noon until 5:00 o'clock p. m.—W. A. Gonder, W. A. Sturgiss, Gonder's Pharmacy, Jos. E. Harned, George Sanner.

ROAD TO MORGANTOWN IS STILL UNCOMPLETED

Only Seven Days Needed to Finish Pouring Concrete, But It May Take All Month

The Morgantown-Reedsville improved highway, the connecting link in the short cut for motorists traveling east from Fairmont, Morgantown and other West Virginia points through Oakland, will be completed this fall unless something unforseen develops, according to those in charge of the work.

It has been announced that should freezing weather develop for any length of time, plans would undoubtedly be formulated whereby the concrete could be poured without any ensuing danger of cracking. This would entail the construction of a tramway and it is assured that such a plan will be carried out if necessary.

Due to the heavy rain on Sunday there was no concrete poured either Sunday or Monday but it is the hope of those in charge that the cold weather would not last for more than a couple of days so that it would be possible to further the work of the highway next week.

It is possible at this time to drive to a point near the Greer limestone plant but a detour is necessary at Dellslow where the finishing work on the bridge is being completed. The bridge has been finished but there remains filling in and the laying of the road floor, it was announced.

There are 3,350 lineal feet of concrete yet to be poured to connect the gap from the Monongalia county end of the project to the Preston county line near Cascade where the road has been completed. It will require about seven full working days but owing to the weather usually encountered at this time of the year it will probably require a month to get seven days suitable for the pouring, engineers declare.

It was explained by those in charge that all of the necessary detailed work such as the erection of the Dellslow bridge, beams and guard rails would be completed before the remaining concrete could be poured and the road ready to open.

JOHN CALHOUN.

After several years of suffering, John Calhoun, of near Weber, died on Thursday, October 21. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of Mountain Lake Park where he attended the services as long as his health would permit. His funeral took place on Sunday, October 24th, with interment at Everett, Pa., near his former home.

MISS EDNA L. HARTLEY

Miss Edna L. Hartley, 26 years of age, of Blaine, W. Va., died at the Western Maryland Hospital Saturday morning. The body was sent to Blaine Sunday afternoon by G. Stanley Butler, undertaker.

REPUBLICANS LOST BUT ONE LOCAL CANDIDATE IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

TERRIFIC FIGHT PUT UP AGAINST NAYLOR FOR SENATE; CASTEEL FOR SHERIFF AND RENNINGER FOR STATE'S ATTORNEY.

Unofficial returns in Garrett County show that the entire Republican ticket with the exception of Mr. Charles A. Ashby, for County Commissioner, was elected by majorities running from a few less than a hundred to more than five hundred, the candidate for State Senate, Mr. A. D. Naylor, receiving on the unofficial returns, a majorit yof 565 over his opponent, Senator John W. McCullough.

Mr. Ashby was nosed out of the running by Harvey Gortner, of Grantsville, who has a lead of 338 votes over him.

Sheriff-elect W. D. Casteel was nearly swamped by Jefferson Ralston, the former's majority, on the face of the returns being only 98, or perhaps a few more.

Congressman Zihlman carried the county by the unprecedented majority of 1772 over his opponent, Frank W. Mish of Washington county. Mr. Zihlman's majority in the Districts is more than 10,000.

D. Lindley Sloan, Republican candidate for Chief Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit has an unofficial majority of 1278 over his opponent, Chief Judge William C. Walsh.

Julius C. Renninger, for State's Attorney, was elected by a majority of more than 150 over Asa T. Matthews, his Democratic opponent, notwithstanding the terrific fight put up against him.

With portions of two or three voting precincts in Garrett county missing, unofficial totals give the following results:

THE FALL OF JERICHO.

Joshua 6:1-27. Read Chapters 2-5.

This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.—I John 5:4.

THE ADVANCING HOST.

There was no careless rush of an undisciplined host into the midst of the promised land of desire. Joshua was too good a soldier to attempt anything of the kind, so he sent spies across the river to see the situation in the first fortress that barred the road. He may have meant it as the repetition of that old test of Israel at Kedesh-Barnea when he had reported upon the land and the people had refused to enter upon the enterprise. But there found the city in deadly fear and dared buy the patriotism of a woman, so greatly did they feel that they could dare safely to allow anyone to know their mission. And she sold out her own people, betraying all she knew to them in return for their promise of immunity in the sack of the city. She cuts a sorry figure, but there has never been a spy system that produced any other sort. That is one of its curses wherever it is used. But what was done in that old day is not to be judged by the light of the present. They got their information and reached the camp in safety. Joshua heard their report and ordered an immediate advance to the banks of the Jordan.

Here they were halted by the muddy torrent that poured its spring flood down into the Dead Sea. God had told him to go forward and he would go to the limit of his own resources. It was when the disciples had pooled all the bread they possessed that Jesus fed the multitude out of it. It was when Paul paused at the edge of the ocean that he had the vision of the Macedonian man. It was when the widow gave her whole store that Jesus lifted His voice in praise. Always it is the man who dares everything who finds God opening new ways for further advance. Our failure is to follow the leadings, expecting God to provide before the need has arrived. It is the cause of endless worry in spite of our insistence that we do not trust God. A child riding upon a train saw it turn directly toward a river and she closed her eyes and shivered with fear, only to find herself borne on the shining way of a bridge. And she said, "Somebody's been along here before me," and forgot her fears. God has gone over the way before all of us and there is a bridge where it is needed.

THE CROSSING.

Joshua found that there was a way through the flood, just as Moses had found it forty years before. There is nothing in the record to indicate that he was on his face when his advance halted—he was up and marching. How did they get across. This old chronicler has no interest in how God did it. That is a purely modern attitude of mind and he would have been amazed at our query. Landslides have occurred since and closed the flow and it may have happened in the same fashion then. The decisiveness of Joshua appears in his alert taking advantage of such an occurrence and in flinging his fighting force into the field with the swollen stream at his back where it would be victory or death. There could be no retreat. I think it was Garibaldi who burned his ships after landing on the shore of Sardinia, so that all retreat was cut off. And there is no doubt of the effect of such daring upon the minds of both armies. He was no slouch of a soldier whatever interpretation we give the event. Then came the absence of the familiar manna, and they felt again God's hand of leading assuring them that they no longer needed such supply—they would capture food. The religious consecration at Gilgal changed them into crusaders and sent them forward with renewed enthusiasm. Then Joshua had his vision as he faced those frowning walls and perhaps wondered if it were possible for him to gain the city with no siege implements. God was surely leading, and only success could follow such a Captain.

THE CAMPAIGN.

There was certainly never such another hare-brained scheme as this march about the walls undertaken in all the annals of the world. Leaving camp the host took its way with blaring trumpets but with utter silence otherwise and bearing the Ark of Jehovah tramped around the city. There was a silent throng upon the battlements and the day closed with wagging tongues throughout the city as well as dismay among the superstitious. What witchery was being enacted about them? What would happen the next day? And again it was the march of silence. And so it went until the seventh day when it was repeated seven times. Dr. John McNeal said that Joshua knew better than to let them talk, for its contagion of criticism would have ruined the whole thing. What happened to the walls? Again we are faced with the word of one who wasn't interested in how it was done. There has been one explanation that likened the march to that of a line of soldiers crossing a bridge where they must break ranks lest they destroy it. Here the steady tramp around the walls set up vibrations that presently toppled them over. Others say it is mere poetic fancy that describes a wonderful victory that was so easy that it was as though the walls had fallen. Others still accept it as literal history, and the fact abides that under their sense of God's leadership the city became theirs. After that any explanation that satisfies a modern mind may be accepted.

THE DEVOTED CITY.

It was a blood offering to the Almighty. It was a bloody day in which these old chronicles were penned and no one expected anything other than death or slavery when a capture was made. That it would not be thought of now shows the advance we have made. To charge Israel with wrong because they did not live up to our code is palpably unfair—it was the code of their time. To charge God with the bloody deed is equally wrong for He speaks to men upon the level of their enlightenment and has no other way of reaching them. The day will come when the world will turn back the page of our present record of war between nations, of war in industry, of drunkenness among many of us and will condemn us utterly and wonder at its brutality and mayhap charge God with its cruelties. All of which we would like to protest against if we could rise in our own defense. But we may follow them in giving the best and finest returns from victory to their God. Of that we need to do more.

GRANTSVILLE

At the state-wide vocational judging contest of dairy cattle, held at the Frederick Fair, the Grantsville Agricultural class came out seventh place among twenty-eight high schools of the state. Also the school can feel honored to know that one of the members, Casper Loechel, won two prizes in judging the Holstein breed of cattle among a number of other boys. The boys of the class take a great interest in the work with the help of their instructor, M. W. Whiteford, who is always ready to encourage them for greater things. They have recently organized a junior Cow Testing Association among the boys parents and others interested and have 60 members enrolled. The herd will be tested every month and accurate records will be kept of their production so the nonproductive cows may be abolished. This association will be of a great help to the dairy men as the state does not have enough men to cover the districts so often.

The Utopia Literary Society was re-organized Thursday afternoon. Helen Folk, president; Velore Swauger, vice-president; Dorothy Edwards, secretary and treasurer. A very interesting meeting was held and all the members agreed to have a meeting every Tuesday after school and the third Tuesday to have a public meeting in the evening.

The Hallowe'en social held by the members of the Adult Bible Class of the Lutheran Sunday school was quite a success. Forty seven dollars being added to the improvement fund. The Beall High School Orchestra furnished plenty of music while the Mother Goose stories, given by the children in town coached by Miss Holmes and Miss Wallace, was quite pleasing to all. Prizes were given to Mrs. Albert Swauger for comical costume, Mrs. C. S. Zeller for gypsy costume, Harold Miller comic costume, Edith Bittinger, Red Riding Hood, and Eleanor Younkin country boy.

The Republican Rally held in the W. O. W. hall Friday night was well attended. Hon. Cyrus W. Flook, of Hagerstown, Md., gave a splendid address; A. D. Naylor, Julius C. Renninger and Wm. Casteel, all of Oakland; spoke on the issues pertaining to the election.

Mrs. Ross Compton, of Akron, Ohio, a half sister of Ralph Engle, who still remains in a critical condition, came to Frostburg to be with him in his illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Diefenbach, Mrs. Harry Edwards, Mrs. James Younkin, Mrs. C. A. Bender, Ethel Broadwater, Mrs. Harold Boucher, Mrs. Fred Livengood, were all delegates from the different Sunday schools in Grantsville to the State Sunday school convention held in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Chisholm, of Trenton, Ohio, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Morrison.

Miss Louise Harman, of Accident, was a week-end guest of Miss Delta Gantt.

Prof. Ralph R. Webster has recovered from the grippe.

Mrs. A. C. Stanton, Mrs. Effie Parmer, Mrs. T. D. Maurer and Guy S. Stanton, all motored to Morgantown. Saturday to witness the Missouri and West Virginia University foot ball game.

Mrs. C. S. Zeller is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Barr, Grove City, Pa.

Rev. E. W. Somerville, of Crittendon, Va., is visiting Mrs. Marian Broadwater and other relatives here; also his brother, R. M. Somerville, of Boynton, Pa.

James K. Smart, of Philadelphia, Pa., was a week-end guest of Miss Angella Getty.

J. J. Glotfelty is confined to his bed with an attack of heart trouble.

Harry C. Edwards, Harry and William Durst and George Edwards spent several days in Buffalo, N. Y., last week.

LOCH LYNN

Mrs. L. A. Shipley, better known here as "Grandma" Shipley, died at the home of her son in Baltimore early Saturday morning, October 30th. She was 84 years of age. Her grandson, C. W. Shipley, of Loch Lynn, left here Saturday evening to attend the funeral which took place in Baltimore.

Mrs. Walter Combs is spending the week with friends in Bloomington, Md.

Mrs. Alex. Dunn and family left Saturday morning for Washington, D. C., to visit relatives.

Mrs. H. M. Weeks and children, Mrs. C. E. Hardesty and children and Mrs. Ollie Sweitzer spent Saturday in Cumberland.

Mrs. E. J. Riley, who has been here with her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Martin, for the past two months, returned to her home at Fairmont on Monday.

A Chevrolet touring car, owned and driven by Josiah Sims, who resides near this village, was struck and dragged a short distance by a helping engine at the Mountain Lake Park crossing here Sunday afternoon. The occupants of the car escaped uninjured, but the automobile was badly damaged.

There will be the usual church services in both churches here next Sunday.

Mrs. A. L. Biggs will be hostess for the November meeting of the U. B. Ladies' Aid Society at her home here Friday afternoon, November 5th.

BITTINGER

Numerous sheep buyers were in this section during the past week buying lambs for shipment and as a result there was sharp competition, which turned to the advantage of the farmer.

The Republican rally held in this village on Thursday evening of last week was unusually well attended. Addresses were made by Mr. A. D. Naylor, Attorneys J. C. Renninger and E. Ray Jones, Albert Markley, D. E. Orendorf and C. A. Ashby.

The entertainment and social held by the pupils and teachers of the village school last Saturday evening, was well attended and in every way was a success.

Messrs. Ellsworth and Thomas Beachy, who have been employed for some months in Akron, O., are home for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Beachy.

Sawing operations have been started on the George Kurtz mill located on the Henry B. Wiley farm near this village.

Frederick G. Fox, of Friendsville, was in this district recently doing some political work for one of the candidates.

Frank Brenneman is the owner of a Maxwell sedan in which he can ride with more comfort.

Simon Brenneman and family were shopping in Oakland last Saturday afternoon.

GORTNER

Miss Anna Virginia Slabaugh spent the week-end with Miss Cleo DeWitt, at Sunnyside.

Mr. S. J. Lichty and son Roy attended the funeral of Mr. Lichty's friend, Mr. Joseph Warner, near Berlin, Pa., on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and son, of Salisbury, were among the Sunday visitors at Mr. Norman Beachy's.

The Spoerleins were guests of home folk at Hoyes on Sunday.

Messrs. Noah and Dan Lichty, W. C. and Paul Welch brought their cattle home from Cannan Valley pasture last Friday.

Mr. Webster Slabaugh is home from Cumberland for a few days.

Mrs. Mary Lee and daughter, Miss Bertha Lee, took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Grover Lee on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Irwin, of Pittsburgh, who were called to Mt. Lake on account of the illness of Mrs. Irwin's mother, were callers at the home of Mr. S. W. Slabaugh on Saturday.

The following attended singing at Mr. Lichty's Sunday evening: Misses Sadie Swartzentruber, Margaret Gowns, Lena Slabaugh, Lucy Beachy, Fannie Yoder, Emma Burkholder, Hallie and Blanche Fulmer. Messrs Charles Lewis, Francis Sanders, Isaac Beckman, Albert Sisk, Simon and Alvin Beachy, Norman, Alvin and Noah Yoder.

Mr. Lewis Beachy is in Norfolk, Va., at this writing.

Messrs. C. T. and Earl Sanders and Miss Mildred Taylor, spent Sunday afternoon at Mr. N. C. Slabaugh's

Messrs. Simon Beachy and Norman Yoder and Mrs. Noah Hershberger, returned to Grantsville Monday evening after having visited relatives here over the week-end. They were accompanied by Miss Lucy Beachy, who had spent last week with her mother at Gortner.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Slabaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Slabaugh were guests of relatives at Mt. Lake Park last week with her mother at Gortner last Sunday.

RICH POSSIBILITIES IN TIMBER GROWN IN STATE

Maryland Forests Are Found to Contain Tree Species of Great Variety and Highest Value

Thousands of visitors, as well as residents of this State, are delighted every year with the forests of Maryland, especially at this season when all nature is donning styles for autumn. The lavish blending of many hues is producing vast symphonies of color.

Many who behold the glory which attends Proserpine's annual farewell to the living world believes with Emerson that beauty is its own excuse for being. The science of forestry holds, however, that important though woodlands are, from the aesthetic viewpoint, their economic importance is infinitely greater.

Serving, then, so well the interest of beauty in this section of the country, what is the commercial status of Maryland forests? Is timber production profitable in this State or can it be made so?

According to F. W. Besley, State Forester, Maryland is paying now an annual freight bill of $5,000,000 for the importation of lumber.

By spending $75,000 a year in addition to the $30,000 now spent in operation of the State Department of Forestry, he declares that within thirty years Maryland would be on a permanent basis for supplying its entire lumber demand, with the exception of a few species, such as teak and mahogany, which could not be grown here.

The value of these minor exceptions, however, would be more than offset, it was explained, by the surplus of pulp woods which could be exported to Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Freight charges over a period of thirty years at the above figure would amount to $150,000,000 as compared with the necessary expenditure of $4,650,000 over that period to develop the present 2,228,900 acres of woodland in the State and to reclaim approximately 300,000 acres of waste land adaptable for timber growing.

Additions to the present work which would be required to reach this goal include improvements in fire protection involving $55,000 a year, $10,000 a year to operate a tree nursery producing 2,000,000 trees per annum, $10,000 a year for foresters to cooperate with private owners in the application of accepted forestry principles in the management of their woodlands, and $1,500,000 over the thirty-year period for foresting waste lands.

In addition to encouraging and cooperating in efficient forest management on private timber lands, the Maryland forestry program includes the establishment of a number of State forests.

These areas are being acquired to serve a number of purposes, including timber production, conservation of moisture on watersheds supplying city water systems and power developments, the provision of out door recreation facilities and the protection of game.

Ownership of 3,927 acres of land for State forests and control of 2,100 additional acres for this purpose have been acquired by the State.

The Patapsco State forests, comprising 2,500 acres along the Patapsco river from Relay to Hollofield, is primarily a beauty spot and camping grounds for Baltimoreans, and in addition, is an effective game preserve, since hunting is not allowed and it conserves the water supply which supports seven power developments on the river from Relay to Oella, a distance of eight miles.

State forests aggregating 3,337 acres have been acquired in Garrett county for the purpose of producing timber with the incidental recreational advantages and game production while the Fort Frederick state forest of 190 acres on the Potomac river near Big Pool is being used for experimental planting.

Virtually identical in character to a state forest is the Loch Raven watershed of approximately 8,000 acres owned by Baltimore. Forest work has been carried on here under the direction of J. W. Armstrong, filteration engineer in the Bureau of Water Supply.

At a cost of $15,000 since 1912, Mr. Armstrong estimates that more than 750,000 trees have been planted on the area, including white pine, red pine, Norway spruce, tulip poplar, black locust, red oak, white ash, black walnut, catalpa, sugar maple, wild cherry and hickory.

In the original forest, chestnut was plentiful, but this was virtually destroyed by the blight and the woods have now been cleared of the dead trees.

According to Mr. Besley, this area is capable of producing an annual timber crop of an approximate value of $40,000 without impairment of its usefulness as a conservator of moisture.

Of course, the present beauty of Loch Raven would not survive logging operations. The State Department of Forestry has no jurisdiction over the land, and Mr. Besley made this statement in reply to a question without offering a recommendation in the matter. He did point out that it was the policy of the department to protect beauty spots.

Mr. Armstrong declared that the area is serving the primary purpose of protecting the water supply of Baltimore and also is augmenting the city's park system. "So long as I have anything to do with it," he declared, "I will consent to nothing that would destroy the beauty of Loch Raven."

Chief among the agents of forest destruction, according to Mr. Besley, are forest fires. The total amount of funds at present available for forest protection in Maryland is $16,000 a year, whereas Massachusetts, with little more forest land than Maryland spends annually for this purpsoe $72,000.

The spring fire season this year was the most destructive fire period in the history of the Maryland Department of Forestry. A total loss of $500,000 was suffered, the area burned extending from Baltimore to Frostburg.

An addition of $55,000 in the annual appropriation is deemed necessary for adequate protection from fire for the forests of this State.

Maryland today is dependant upon outside sources for more than eighty per cent of her lumber supply, most of it coming from the South and some from the Far West.

At the present rate of cutting, it has been estimated that the Southern States will be out of the exporting class within the next ten years, and Maryland, according to Mr. Besley, with other Middle Atlantic States, will have to compete for the timber of the Pacific Coast at rapidly increasing prices and high freight rates, unless it solves its forestry problem at the present time.

"The solution lies in adequate fire protection and increased productiveness of our forest lands," he declares. "Under private ownership these lands are not providing more than one-third the crop they are capable of producing under scientific management.

"Maryland has 2,228,000 acres of forest land, which, if fully productive, would furnish our full timber requirements or value equivalent based on present uses. Private initiative has failed and will continue to fail to meet our timber requirements.

"It is the duty of the State to lead the way in safeguarding our future timber supplies. State forests are the answer and at least should constitute ten per cent of the total forest area. The bulk of the area will be in the mountaineous sections, though considerable land should be acquired in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore as demonstration forests."

With regard to the profitableness of large-scale timber growing, it was pointed out that in 1911 the Federal Government purchased 2,205,027 acres of cutover land in the White Mountains and the Southern Appalachians at a cost of $15,393,888. During the next ten years the only additional expense in connection with the investment was $1,406,587 for administration and fire protection.

At the end of that time the value of the holdings had increased to $20,621,929, which represented a net gain of $6,228,041.

As an example of acquisition of forest land by a State, the purchase of 1,150,000 acres for $2,456,700 by Pennsylvania was cited. This land, purchased since the founding of the Pennsylvania Forestry Department, it was said, shows a net gain in value of $4,930,488, according to the 1923 report of Governor Pinchot.

Records of the forestry department show that the present annual growth of wood and timber in Maryland is approximately 80,000,000 cubic feet, or nearly fifty per cent greater than the growth. The annual consumption of wood and timber in the State is 200,000,000 cubic feet, or two and one-half times the annual growth.

Maryland forests contain tree species of the greatest variety and the highest commercial value known in the Eastern United States. No section of the country is more favorably suited for timber growing than Maryland because of its valuable tree species, suitable soils, nearness to timber markets and the presence of important wood-using industries.

Speaking of indivduals who are beginning timber growing as a commercial enterprise, Mr. Besley cited the case of Harry Orem, of Cambridge.

Mr. Orem purchased 100 acres of land which had just been logged in Dorchester county several years ago for $1,250. A total of 800 cords of firewood was cut immediately, yielding the entire cost of the land, plus cutting expenses and a surplus which has been invested and is yielding $14 a year.

The land was seeded by the pines which were removed just before he acquired the property, and at no cost a new forest has sprung up. Thinnings every ten years will pay the cost of managing the woodland, and in thirty years, Mr. Besley estimates, the stand of pine on this tract will be worth $25,000.

A large collection of native and exotic trees has been brought to the Starr arboretum, near Easton. The forestry department is cooperating with Mrs. William J. Starr in furnishing specimens of the 150 native species throughout the State to make the collection as complete as possible. There are now one hundred different species here and in five years it is expected that the number will exceed 300.

A tree nursery is operated at College Park by the forestry department, producing an output of 350,000 and 10,000 roadside tree planting every year. It is unable to supply the demand for trees, which, at present, is approximately 1,00,000 annually.

IMPROVING TEACHERS IN SERVICE.

The movement to train teachers of rural schools while carrying on their regular school work gains in extent and importance. Word received by the Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior, from Kings county, California, describing the educational program of that county states that the policy of in-sevice training practiced there has been responsible in large measure for significant improvement in the quality of school instruction. Extension courses of university grade are given in selected centers for which university credits are allowed. Some of the courses offered are: Teaching English to Foreign Children, The Teaching of Reading, Rural Education, The School Cirriculum. Another interesting development in the same county is the cooperative plan whereby members of the faculty of a nearby State teachers college are given intensive supervision to certain rural schools in exchange for the privilege of using the schools as practical training institutions for student teachers who aspire to serve rural communities. Both these activities are practical and effective means for improving schools and at the same time promoting professional growth among the teaching staff.

THE SMALL CITY ARRIVES.

According to the municipal experts of various kinds the era of the small city and, town is arriving It is now seen that a city can actually grow bigger than is good for it, and some authorities are claiming that the great metropolis will in time arrive at the stage where it will be impossible physically to grow, in extent of territory at least.

There are perhaps many reasons why the smaller community is coming into its own. Perhaps the most potent of these is that the smaller community is no longer what it used to be—is in fact a great deal better.

The city or town with muddy streets is rarely found in this day of good roads and automobiles. Civic pride has grown in the smaller as well as the larger cities. Ramshackle buildidngs are being eliminated everywhere, and the smaller communities now have fine public buildings including adequate schools and libraries, up to date hospitals and so on. They are all coming to have fine parks too, parks that would do credit to some of the larger cities of the country.

But the improvement has not all been along inanimate lines. The people have improved too. Out in what was once the broad, open spaces they dress just as well, if not better, ride in as good automobiles, eat better food, and have the same books and general entertainment that they do in the big cities. The time was when you could spot a stranger on Broadway or Michigan Avenue or Broad Street by his general appearance. Try and do it today and see how easily you can be fooled.

We hear a lot of talk about how the radio, the telephone, and the moving picture have lessened the distance between the big city, the smaller town and the rural community. The greatest single factor in this development of the smaller city and town is not given proper credit, and that factor is the home newspaper.

Just stop for a moment and compare our home newspaper with what they were a dozen or so years ago. You will find that the change is astounding. Even in the very small cities the home newspaper is now generally a thriving, up-to-date institution with metropolitan airs. Through its outside news conneetions it keeps in touch with the very latest thought and the latest customs throughout the nation. And by its local efforts it encourages progress and good citizenship at home. Give, therefore, the home newspaper its share of credit for lessening the gap between the home town and the metropolis.

Yes, the era of the smaller city has arrived. Ours is one of them. It's one of the best places in America to live. Why not all pull together to make it even better? If it's good enough to raise our children in, it's good enough to boost.

NO REASON FOR DOUBT

The country is enjoying the greatest year in its history simply because industry has learned a great lesson.

Early this year economists were certain that spring and summer would see business on a very substantial scale. As to the late summer and fall there was considerable doubt and hesitancy, to say nothing of the outlook for the winter and next spring.

But industry has become sold on the idea that business does not have to be booked a year in advance to insure prosperity. The peaks in business apparently were reached early this summer. Even then there was some hesitancy about buying for the fall. There were many leaders who felt that a depression was inevitable.

So consumer and merchant continued to buy only for a short time in advance. The result was an agreeable surprise. We entered the fall season to find that business, while it was not booming, was on a sound, substantial basis. It is continuing to run in that manner.

The good fall business was encouraging and we now find growing confidence in the prospects for the winter and next spring Employment is holding on at an encouraging figure, which means that the ultimate consumer is being paid the wages which he will spend this winter for the necessities of life. This means, of course, that steady production must be maintained through the winter, for there are no vast stores of overproduction to be eaten up.

America today is producing just about the amount that it will consume tomorrow. With the country as a whole operating on this basis it is easily seen why industrial leaders are confident that business is going on an even keel for some time.

With the adoption of the hand-to-mouth buying system by the large consumer there is substantial evidence that the day of alternate boom and depression is at an end and America may look forward to a steady stream of business with no fear of panicky disturbances.

Good Months and Bad Months.

A glance at the records kept by the State Department of Health of sickness and death in the counties of Maryland reveals the fact that certain months in the year are like the little girl with the curl. Some are very good; others are horrid. February and March are usually the worst offenders, both as to sickness and death; July and August are the best behaved, so far as sickness is concerned, while for the last two years June has recorded the lowest number of deaths, and therefore has ranked as the prize month.

"Continuous effort to cut down what the health officer calls 'seasonal' sickness and death is part of the health officer's job, day in and day out," Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases said in reviewing the records of the Department. "There are certain diseases that are more likely to occur during the summer and early fall than in the winter. Typhoid fever and certain intestinal disturbances among young children are in that class. Other diseases are more prevalent in the winter. In general, what we call the diseases of the digestive system, are more common in the summer, while the respiratory diseases or those that affect the air passages—the nose, the throat and lungs—are more common during the colder months.

"Soon after the schools open in the fall, when large numbers of children come together in indoor activities, we know that there is likely to he a flare-up of certain catching diseases, especially of the so-called childrens' diseases and of colds and influenza. The effect of this begins to be noticeable in the increased number of cases of sickness reported in November and December. January, February and March are the worst offenders with sometimes one and sometimes another leading in the total amount of sickness reported.

"It is a mistake to treat either the common cold or any of the so-called childrens' diseases lightly. It is better to face them for what they are—wolves in sheep's clothing—and treat them accordingly. Consult your doctor and follow his advice.

"The months that have a bad record for sickness are usually months of unfavorable weather. We can't control the weather, hut we can strengthen our powers of resistance by following the well known rules of the health game—fresh air, the right sort of food, dressing according to the weather, and getting plenty of sleep."

Garrett County Citizen Injured

Mr. Alex Croft, a well known resident of Garrett County, who resides near Pea Ridge, is confined to his home suffering with painful injuries sustained October 15th, when he had one of his legs badly hruised and the other badly fractured. At the time of the accident Mr. Croft was hauling telegraph poles out to the National Highway. He was accompanied by Cecil Michael and Herbert Pone.

GRANTSVILLE LOSES TWO PROMINENT MEN BY DEATH

Dr. George Charles Keller, Dentist, and Ralph Engle, Agriculturalist, Succumb.

On Friday, October 29th, 1926, at 3:20 o'clock p. m., passed to his eternal rest one of the oldest and best known residents of Grantsville, Dr. George Charles Keller. He was born in Hampshire county, Virginia, the second son of Daniel Taylor Keller and Mary Jane Thistle Keller, and at the close of the Civil War was a stripling youth. His father having been an officer in the Confederate Army (Stonewall Brigade) emerged from that great conflict, like many others of the old South, impoverished, and died soon thereafter. To escape the then ravaged condition of the South, his widowed mother removed to Maryland where Dr. Keller grew to manhood. He selected dentistry as his profession and allowed no obstacles to stand in the way of the acquirement of a proper training. He was graduated from the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1886 and immediately started to practice in Grantsville. He continued in this practice for more than twenty-five years or until about 1912 when he decided to return to his native state, where his eldest son was engaged in the drug business at Winchester. However, the ties of his adopted State were too strong, and after a year or so he came back to Maryland where his practice continued unbroken until about four years before his death. He was probably the best known dentist in Garrett county and his practice reached into all the surrounding territory and into the adjoining States of Pennsylvania and West Virginia as well. While devoted to his profession, his hobby, if he may be said to have one outside of his profession, was civic interest.

Coming from the South, he was naturally a staunch Democrat, and while never seeking nor accepting political preferment, he was nevertheless a power in his party and his hand was in part back of many a movement for better local and State governmental conditions. His community interest was not confined to politics. He was elected a director of the first bank to be established in Grantsville and later when the First State Bank was launched in 1910, he was chosen president of that institution, which office he held until his death, or for more than sixteen years.

Having been confirmed in early youth, he remained a devout member of the Reformed Church all of his life and held successively the offices of deacon and elder in that religious organization.

His funeral took place at 9:30 o'clock on Monday, November 1, 1926, Rev. Samuel Lobach, pastor of the Grantsville Reformed Church, officiating. The gathering of friends and relatives from great distances, the profusion of lovely flowers, the people that overflowed from the church into the churchyard and the street, the closing of all business places in Grantsville, the telegrams of sympathy, the help and offers of help to the bereft family, all these were marks of the esteem and love in which Doctor Keller was held by all who knew him. His six nephews were the pallbearers, namely: Dr. W. B. Getty, Messrs. Daniel B. Getty and Oliver G. Getty, of Meyersdale, Pa.; Dr. Gorman G. Getty, of Lonaconing, Md.; Messrs. Frank and William D. Getty, of Grantsville. The flower bearers were his associated directors in the First State Bank and other intimate friends, namely: Messrs. J. J. Bender, F. W. Bender, Simon S. Miller, H. P. Miller, J. A. Beachy, Louis Hanft, C. E. Ellithorp, C. A. Bender, J. G. Gnagey, W. E. Stanton, J. U. Stanton, V. L. Blocher, J. J. Glotfelty, Richard Younkin, John Zehner, Noah Warnick, and Drs. N. R. Davis and J. H. Dorsey.

Doctor Keller's death was due to heart disease. Every effort that love or science could devise was made to defeat the approach of the enemy, death, but while his coming was made easier by the use of sedatives, there was no power that could stay him. In his last illness, Dr. Keller was treated by Dr. John E. Legge, Baltimore heart specialist; Dr. Bruce Lichty, of Meyersdale, Pa., Dr. Keller's brother-in-law; Dr. Johnson, of Cumberland; Dr. B. T. Keller, his brother, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and Dr. N. R. Davis and Dr. J. H. Dorsey, of Grantsville.

Doctor Keller was married to Ella B. Getty, daughter of the late Senator William Reed Getty, in 1886, and his own death is the first break in a family noted for its unity. From this unbroken union of more than forty years there survive his wife, Mrs. Ella B. Keller; four children, Bayard T., pharmacist; William G., attorney; Ruth C., teacher of French; Charles O., cashier of the First State Bank, and one grandchild. Bayard T., Jr. He is also survived by one brother and two sisters: Dr. Bayard T. Keller, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio; Mrs. Alice Getty, Meyersdale, Pa., and Mrs. J. Maddie Willis, Washington Court House, Ohio.

Doctor Keller's unfailing courtesy, his geniality, even in times of adversity, his kindness of heart—these superimposed on a basic sterling character, have made a place for him that will be keenly missed and long remembered.

George Charles Keller was born at Patterson's Creek, Virginia, on March 9, 1856; he died in Grantsville, Maryland, on October 29, 1926, aged seventy years, seven months and twenty days.

RALPH ENGLE.

Ralph Engle, one of the most prominent farmers and business men of the Grantsville section of Garrett county, died at the Miners Hospital, Frostburg, Md., at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the cause of his death being due to injuries he received when he fell from an apple tree at his home two weeks ago. The fall produced a fracture of his spine and this was followed by paralysis and pneumonia later developing. Mr. Engle was a leader in civic and church affairs and was held in the highest respect by a large circle of friends not only in his immediate community but by residents and citizens in all parts of the county. Recently his home was destroyed by fire but a new dwelling along modern lines was almost completed when he met with the accident resulting in his death. Mr. Engle was aged sixty-nine years and the greater part of his life, marked by industry and good citizenship, was spent in Garrett county where he contributed to the welfare of his family and community in no small measure. He was a member of the Grantsville M. E. church and in addition to his agricultural interests was a director in the First State Bank of Grantsville. He is survived by his widow and by eleven children—one son and ten daughters. The daughters are Mrs. E. F. Fisher, Baltimore; Mrs. S. R. Willetts, Hamburg, N. J.; Miss Beulah Engle, New York City; Mrs. H. G. Osborne, Rutherford, N. J.; Miss Ida Engle, Bartlettsville, Oklahoma; Mrs Harold McManus and Mrs. Raymond Goetz, Frostburg; Mrs. H. F. Wilson, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Martha Engle, Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.; Miss Elizabeth Engle, a student at the Frostburg State Normal School. The son, John Engle, is proprietor of the Old Trails Bus Line operating on the National Highway between Frostburg and Uniontown and from Oakland to Keyser's Ridge. The remains of Mr. Engle were taken from the hospital at Frostburg to his late home yesterday morning. The funeral will be held from the Grantsville Methodist church this morning and interment will be made in the Grantsville cemetery.

Homes, stores, churches, factories—all over the country—are being heated more comfortably and at less cost with the Caloric pipeless furnace.

The Caloric delivers practically 100% of the heat from the fuel directly into your rooms, and at the same time withdraws the cool air from the building. This establishes a natural air circulation, with the result that the building is heated more uniformly and fuel consumption is cut ⅓ to ½. There are now

OVER 135,000 CALORIC USERS

—in every state in the Union, in Canada, Alaska—and many in this locality.

Here a word of warning. Caloric success has been so revolutionary that it has aroused opposition from those who profit from making and selling out-of-date heating systems. The result is that many imitation pipeless furnaces have been put out which are failures. Be not misled by these failures. Most of them were designed to be failures—and have been marketed in vain attempts to discredit the rapidly-growing Caloric idea.

A Card of Appreciation.

To the People of Garrett County:—

I take this means of thanking the voters of Garrett county for re-electing me as one of their Delegates in the General Assembly of Maryland. It shall be my aim, as in the past, to be a representative of all the people and to work in harmony with the Senator-cleet and other members of the delegation for the best interests of the people of Garrett county and the State of Maryland.

Again thanking you for your loyal support, I am, Sincerely yours,

ALBERT MARKLEY.

Sunnyside Grange Notes.

At our last regular meeting we had a very interesting and enjoyable session, every one taking part in the program, which consisted of songs, roll call, readings, instrumental music, etc.

At the next meeting to be held on the 10th inst., we are expecting a still more interesting session and hope to have a large attendance of the membership present. Those who have not been attending regularly do not realize what they have been missing.

On November 11 (Armistice Day) plans are being made for a very busy day at Sunnyside Grange Hall. The women have their monthly meeting on that date, which is an all-day meeting, Christmas suggestions being the topic, and in the evening there will be a chicken supper. All who desire a good country supper of fried chicken should be there. See Wm. Glotfelty or F. C. Stahl and secure your tickets beforehand. COM.

Senator-Elect Naylor Appreciative

TO THE VOTERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:—

I take this opportunity of thanking the voters of Garrett County for the handsome vote given me at the general election, November 2, electing me as your State Senator.

As I stated in my original announcement for the nomination, preceding the primary election, which purpose I still have in mind, that if elected, "I will serve the people of the county as a whole to the best of my ability."

Again thanking you, I am, Sincerely yours,

ALONZO D. NAYLOR.

School Census Being Taken of all Under 19 Years of Age.

This week the public school teachers of Garrett county are taking the school census of all persons of the county under nineteen years of age. This census or enumeration is in accordance with the State school law that the census shall be taken every two years.

The general school fund is distributed in part on the basis of the school census now being taken in this county as well as over the entire State under the direction of the State Board of Education.

The census goal as determined upon by Mr. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, which goal has been sent to all teachers, is a letter giving the number of those enumerated at the last census, which was taken in November, 1924, reads as follows:

"That we as school people shall not feel satsified with our census or enumeration until it exceeds the census of 1924—unless we have positive facts for the County Superintendent that that goal cannot be reached."
